U.S. massed tanks on Canada border in 1970 crisis?

TORONTO (UPI) — The Toronto Star reported Saturday that the U.S. massed tanks and heavy equipment near the Canadian border in preparation to move into Quebec at the height of the separatist crisis in 1970.

Both the U.S. and Canadian governments denied the report.

The newspaper in a copyrighted story quoted Leslie J. Bennet, a former chief of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) anti-espionage operations, as saying that U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) agents had infiltrated Montreal on a large scale during the Front de Liberation Quebecois (flq) crisis and tanks and heavy equipment were massed just south of the border.

Bennet said the federal government was informed that should the Quebec government fall or fail to preserve order, the Americans would move into southern Quebec to protect vital U.S. interests in the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, who was defense minister at the time of the crisis, denied the story. In Washington, a spokesman for the State Department said the story was "absolutely false."

Bennet, a 53-year-old career intelligence officer was quoted as saying "during the separatist crisis of October, 1970, in Montreal, the Canadian security service had to assign investigators to shadow agents of the CIA who had infiltrated Montreal on a large scale and were carrying on operations without the approval of the Canadian government.

"During the same crisis, the Canadian government moved tanks and other heavy equipment into position just south of Ottawa to offset a buildup of American tanks and heavy equipment just south of the U.S. border."

Bennet, who retired from the RCMP last year, is now employed by a pri- that security firm in South Africa.

Macdonald, in denying the story, said: "Frankly the story doesn't accord with any experiences I had as minister of defense. I just don't believe it."

Macdonald sad he could see no reason why the U.S. Army would put troops on the border. "It would have been political insanity on their part to have planned that," he added.

Agnew reported willing to deal

Gas dealers to mobilize in war council

By United Press International

A nationwide shutdown of service stations will be one of the major topics of discussion today at a "war council" called for gasoline dealers from 40 states, a spokesman said Saturday.

Robert Jacobs, a leading official of the Illinois and Indiana Gasoline Dealers Associations, said "other forms of activity" also will be discussed at the noon meeting scheduled at a hotel at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport but he declined to describe them.

The meeting today was the latest in a series of protests by gasoline dealers across the country over the Phase IV guidelines. The dealers object to the freeze on retail prices while wholesale prices are allowed to rise.

There already have been a number of localized shutdowns of service station but so far no nationwide action.

Independent service station dealers in the Baltimore and Washington metropolitan areas Saturday reaffirmed their intentions to close Monday to protest Phase IV.

A spokesman for the Maryland Independent Dealers Association predicted most of the agency' 400 members would observe the shutdown. In Washington, organizers estimated that 60 per cent of the area's 2,000 independent dealers would close, but individual station managers indicated they would wait and see what neighboring competitors would do before deciding.

The California State Automobile Association reported that 90 per cent of the stations there were closed.

GASOLINE LINE

These motorists are not queued up for a major sporting event. Instead, they are waiting patiently to get gasoline at one of few open gas stations in San Francisco after a majority of Northern California retail gasoline dealers decided to close for all or part of four-day protest against Phase IV price controls. The protest, through Monday, is reportedly being strongly supported by dealers.

Source says he'd quit to face minor charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's lawyers are bargaining with the Justice Department toward a possible deal in which he could resign and be charged only with a minor offense in a Maryland political corruption case, a congressional source said Saturday.

The source, who declined to be identified, said Agnew was expected to decide his course of action within a week —with his decision possibly hanging on prospects for his indictment by a federal grand jury in Baltimore that may start hearing evidence against him next week.

The highly secretive negotiations between attorneys for Agnew and top Justice Department officials reportedly began Thursday.

Justice Department spokesmen had no comment.

Agnew's office announced Saturday that he is forming a legal "defense fund" and denied reports that his lawyers were trying to arrange a deal.

Agnew's press secretary, Marsh Thomson, said the defense fund was being established to cover all "legal costs" growing from an investigation of the vice president in connection with an alleged scheme of political kickbacks in his home state of Maryland.

There were conflicting reports about the exact nature of the negotiations. The congressional source described them as "plea bargaining" based on the assumption that, if Agnew resigned, the Justice Department would use any evidence against him only to charge him with a minor offense.

Agnew has been under federal investigation for possible violations of conspiracy, extortion, bribery and tax fraud laws in connection with an alleged arrangement in which Maryland politicians accepted kickbacks from architectural and engineering contractors.

The grand jury investigation stretches back to the years when Agnew served as Baltimore county executive and Maryland governor before becoming vice president in 1969.

The Washington Post reported Saturday that Lester Matz, a Baltimore County consulting engineer who has received limited immunity from prosecution, told federal investigators that he gave Agnew between $25,000 and $50,000 over the last decade.

It was not known whether Agnew or the Justice Department initiated the reported plea bargaining —a common judicial maneuver in which a defendant agrees to plead guilty to a lesser than the maximum charge which evidence could warrant. There also was no indication what possible charges were being discussed.

Both the Post and CBS News reported that Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen was inisting that Agnew plead guilty to some offense rather than let the vice president escape all charges by resigning.

The Baltimore Sun said one of the vice president's lawyers, Judah Best, planned to file suit next week to try to stop federal prosecutors from presenting the Agnew evidence to the Baltimore grand jury, which thus far has focused on other aspects of the kickback case.

Agnew denied the allegations soon after he was formally told of them Aug. 1, and has continued to maintain a fairly normal schedule of appearances. The Kissinger swearing-in was one of the first official events Agnew has skipped since the investigation became known.

New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who attended the Kissinger ceremony, told reporters that President Nixon had not consulted with him about the Agnew situation. Rockefeller has been mentioned as one of the possible successors to Agnew if he decides to resign.

Sources said that when Agnew conferred with Nixon for an hour Thursday, he sought assurances from the President that he would not be pressured into resigning by the White House.

Monorail stalls, power line burns

POMONA — Firemen were kept busy Friday and Saturday with a rescue operation at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds here and a high-voltage power line that burned away partially Saturday afternoon.

Sixty persons were removed from stalled monorail cars at the fairgrounds Friday evening, department spokesmen related. Although no one was injured, it took about 45 minutes to clear the eight cars halted by an electrical problem.

Traffic around Foothill Boulevard and Garey Avenue was routed away from the intersection during a three-hour period Saturday afternoon, said the fire department. Power lines carrying 12,000 volts were left dangling from the northeast corner of the intersection, causing not only a hazard to traffic, but also a fire danger to a gas station below.

Electrical service to some commercial customers in the area was out for a time, related department spokesmen. They said the problem occurred shortly before 2 p.m. when static electricity caused a fire which burned off about 10 feet of the pole some 50 to 60 feet above ground.

Youth, 16, killed crossing freeway

INDUSTRY — A 16-year-old youth was killed as he attempted to dash across the Pomona Freeway east of Azusa Avenue Friday afternoon, the California Highway Patrol reported.

John C. Mock, 18709 Villa Park, La Puente, died three hours after the 12:40 p.m. accident in Doctor's Hospital in San Gabriel.

Driving the auto which struck the youth was Dowsan Metcalf, 26, of West Covina.

Rock singer's body cremated

Hunt on for coffin snatchers

JOSHUA TREE NATIONAL MONUMENT, Calif. (UPI) — The FBI and three Southern California law agencies Saturday hunted a pair of bearded coffin-snatchers who stole the body of rock singer Gram Parsons and cremated it in a ritual ceremony Friday in boulder-strewn Desert National Park here.

The charred remains of the 27-year-old singer-composer were found in the ashes of the coffin, which had been stolen Thursday from Los Angeles International Airport by two men driving a vintage hearse.

Airport officials who mistakenly released the coffin prior to a flight to New Orleans, where Parsons was to be buried, said the fake mortuary attendants wore long hair, one with western boots and a cowboy hat, the other with a heavy black beard.

The men told Western Airline attendants that Parson's family in New Orleans had authorized them to take the body to suburban Van Nuys Airport for a private flight to the Gulf Coast. They signed receipts and were given the coffin.

Parson, a guitar player formerly with "The Byrds," died of an apparent heart attack Wednesday outside the desert park at a motel where he was vacationing for a week. The results of an autopsy will be made known early next week.

The popular, longhaired musician was vacationing with a Los Angeles couple. Parson's wife, Gretchen, was not along on the trip. She was not available for comment.

The morning after the coffin was snatched from the airport, the two men in the old hearse sped down Interstate 15 some 200 miles to the huge desert park, where they set fire to Parson's wooden coffin in a bizarre predawn rite.

Asked if the circumstances appeared ritualistic, Los Angeles homicide detective, Sgt. John Hamilton, said, "It kind of looks like that."

Chief Park Ranger Don Colville, who was on the scene within hours of the coffin's discovery, said the stark cremation scene reminded him of a "Viking funeral, the kind the Norsemen got when they died at sea."

Francis Fox elected to Chino Hills airport board

SANTA ANA — Francis T. Fox, former general manager of the Los Angeles Department of Airports, has been elected to the board of directors and appointed principal consultant to the Chino Hills Airport Complex, Inc.

Fox had served as aviation director for the Hughes Tool Co. since Nov. 1, 1968, when he resigned his airport position. He is currently a consultant to Howard Hughes' Summa Corp., formerly Hughes Tool Co.

His election and appointment were announced by Reg Wood, chairman of the corporation's board of directors. This is viewed as further solidifying efforts to create the jetport.

The airport company is seeking to create an "airport in a park" development on 25,000 acres of unoccupied land in the Chino Hills. The site straddles Orange and San Bernardino Counties.

A recent state survey indicated this as a possible site for a major new airport to serve Southern California.

"There is an obvious need for an airport in this area to meet the demands of the traveling and shipping public. Because of the uninhabited area under consideration, I am sure the proposed detailed environmental impact report and master plan will show a minimal amount of noise or other ecological problems to the neighboring communities," Fox said.

The enormous buffer zone around the proposed two runway system will provide protection for neighboring residents, and the runways will be 1,000 feet above the level of area communities, he added.

"This will be an environmentally controlled airport where only those aircraft meeting the rigid Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) noise standards of the future, as well as safety standards, will be permitted to operate."

Most aviation experts have agreed this is a a feasible airport site since the FAA gave airspace clearance last year, Fox said.

"It is expected the airport will commence operation about 1978. Meanwhile, the air transportation needs of the public can be taken care of at Los Angeles International Airport and a greatly expanded Ontario International Airport."

While with the Los Angeles Department of Airports, Fox was instrumental in that agency acquiring the Ontario airport, then under Ontario City control.

Since joining the Hughes Tool Co., his duties included supervision of activities relating to airports, airlines, corporate aircraft and related aviation projects.

The proposed Chino Hills airport site is four miles northeast of Yorba Linda and four miles southwest of Los Serranos.

The airport company proposes building two 12,000-foot runways to handle 100,000 commercial operations and 20,000 general aviation operations a year.

The airport would occupy about 4,000 acres, with an adjoining 21,500 acres to be controlled through purchase, leasing or easements to prevent any non-compatible development.

Reporter claims Allende was killed by attacking soldiers

OFFENBURG, Germany (UPI) — A West German reporter said in a report published Saturday he saw the body of deposed Chilean President Salvador Allende the day of his death and Allende had been shot in the back, shoulders and head.

Gerhard Eisenkolb, a reporter for Bunte Illustrierte magazine, said in the story:

"Allende did not surrender" during the Sept 11 military coup. "About three hours after the ultimatum (by troops to Allende to surrender) soldiers stormed the government palace.

"Together with two Chilean journalists, I ran after them. There was shooting everywhere.

"We came upon Allende's body in the Red Hall. His head had been mutilated beyond identification. I saw several bullet wounds in the dead man's back and in his shoulders."

Bunte Illustrierte said Eisenkolb had been in Chile for an interview with Allende the day of the coup and had left the country last Thursday.

Anytime they want to, says Tunisia president

Israel able to roll over Arabs unopposed?

By United Press International

President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia said in an interview published Saturday that Israel could roll over Arab lands from the Nile to the Euphrates anytime it wanted, even against united Arab opposition.

Bourguiba said time favors Israel, not the Arabs, and he doubted peace negotiations could begin soon because neither side will drop its preconditions for such talks.

"Israel is in the position to fulfill the old Jewish dream, the dream of a state that stretches from the Nile to the Euphrates," Bourguiba was quoted as saying in an interview with a correspondent for West Germany's Die Welt newspaper.

"The Israelis can do that. They have the might to do it and the Arabs and all the underdeveloped countries can do nothing to stop it, even if they were united."

While Bourguiba's remarks were printed, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was meeting with Soviet Ambassador Valdimir Vinogradov in Cairo as part of a renewed dialogue between Cairo and Moscow aimed at improving relations. The meeting followed a Soviet-initiated exchange of letters between Sadat and Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The Cairo newspaper Al Gomhouriya said Saturday Egypt has no objection to any new American peace initiative in the Middle East provided it takes full account of Arab rights and proposes specific practical steps.

The newspaper was commenting on reports from Israel that U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger might launch a new initiative for a peaceful settlement later this year.

The newspaper said any new initiative would have to include two main principles on which Arab policy is based:

—The necessity of Israel's withdrawal from all occupied Arab territories.

—Guarantees for the legal rights of the Arabs of Palestine, including the right to determine their destiny and return to their homeland.

In his interview with Die Welt, Bourguiba said Israel was now so strong it could get along without U.S. military support.

"Israel can even ignore the pressures of the United States (as a potential mediator) because it can build its tanks, aircraft, cannon and warships itself," he said.

Food prices leveling off across nation

By United Press International

While the price of food showed a definite jump after the price freeze was lifted, a spot survey Saturday indicated that prices have generally leveled off and in some cases declined since last month.

The government announced Friday that retail prices for food went up 6 per cent in August, the largest increase in 27 years.

But a UPI check of selected supermarkets in cities across the country showed that in many cases items had dropped in price since a similar survey Aug. 24.

A Dallas supermarket is a typical example.

A loaf of bread that sold for 39 cents under the price freeze which was lifted July 18 rose to 42 cents in August but is now down to 36. A dozen large AA eggs that jumped from 75 cents under the freeze to 91 cents is selling for 83 cents.

Milk jumped from 52 cents a half gallon to 74 and was back to 57, while uncut chicken selling at 55 cents during the freeze was back at that price after rising to 63 cents.

Eggs were one food item that showed a spectacular rise after the ceiling was lifted. Although still selling at a dime to a quarter above freeze levels, egg prices have fallen from their August level.

A dozen large grade AA eggs was selling for 10 cents less than in August in New York, eight cents less in Boston, seven cents less in San Francisco, six less in Washington, four less in Columbus, Ohio, and Los Angeles and two cents less in Chicago.

Uncut fryers showed a similar trend, going for 24 cents less a pound in Washington, 17 cents less in San Francisco eight cents less in Columbus and six cents less in Chicago. Chicken did show a jump in New York, going up 24 cents a pound and in Boston, up five cents.

The American Meat Institute in Chicago said meat prices will go lower. A spokesman said the average cost of live cattle had dropped 25 per cent and live hogs 31 per cent since the August highs on which the Consumer Price Index (CPI) figures were based.

"It is meaningless to report percentage increases in CPI on meat prices when they are based on the record high prices of mid-August caused by the pressures of the artificial ceiling price on beef," institute president Herrell DeGraff said.

"Already wholesale meat prices are close to or below the same levels which prevailed on March 29 when the government placed ceiling prices on all meat.

"Because of current large runs of livestock, consumers can expect ample supplies of beef and pork to be available soon at retail prices comparable to those of last winter."

2 women slain in robbery of hotel for lovers

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Two women suspects were shot to death early Saturday in a gun battle between police and three couples staging a holdup at a hotel catering to trysting lovers, police reported.

One police officer and a chambermaid at the hotel were wounded in the shooting. The third woman suspect was arrested, but all three men escaped, according to police.

Police said the three couples showed up at the Grand Hotel Alojamiento in a southwestern Buenos Aires neighborhood shortly after 5 a.m. and subdued two employes at gunpoint. They then proceeded to rob the occupants of the hotel.

Alojamiento hotels are establishments that specialize in renting rooms on a short-term basis for lovers' rendezvous. The word alojamiento (lodging) in the name serves to warn married couples and families to seek accomodations elsewhere.

Police said a radio patrol car arrived at the hotel while the robbery was in progress and ordered the suspects to surrender. The women opened fire on the officers whie the men fled, police said.

CONGRATULATIONS, HENRY

Western governors face energy crisis pressures

GLENEDEN BEACH, Ore. (UPI) —Western governors, faced with an energy crisis that could black out much of the Pacific Northwest, Sunday begin there annual conference under pressure to find solutions or face federal intervention.

Their concerted effort to find ways of saving electricity now could avert a major shortage later when water stored behind hydroelectric power plants may fall below already frighteningly low levels.

Among those scheduled to address the governors during the four day session at the Salishan Lodge are John Love, special adviser on energy to President Nixon; Interior Secretary Rodgers C.B. Morton and consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

The big problem confronting the governors is how to coordinate their individual state efforts to conserve and if necessary curtail electricity to avoid a system-wide power failure.

They will have to act quickly.

With the usually wet Pacific Northwest in the midst of one of the worst dry spells in more than 30 years, hydroelectric reservoirs which supply more than 85 per cent of the power supply are far short of meeting projected needs.

Heavy rains in the coming months would help but there is no such guarantee.

Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and parts of Montana and California are particularly affected by the water shortage.

Washington Gov. Dan Evans, chairman of the National Governors Conference this year, wants to get right down to business as soon as the meeting is officially opened by Oregon Gov. Tom McCall, Western conference chairman and host.

Evans was given broad authority to curtail electricity by a special session of the Washington legislature earlier this month. But he was directed to make every effort to coordinate possible mandatory curtailments with other states.

When he asked for the standby authority, Evans said it would take a concerted effort by all of the states to prevent a major power failure during the coming winter months when demand peaks.

He said if one state fails to act, it could cripple all the others in the multistate power system.

They're all drinking milk

First diaper for oldest of surviving sextuplets

DENVER (UPI) —For the first time since their birth all five surviving Stanek sextuplets drank milk Saturday and John, the oldest, became the recipient of the infants' first diaper.

Doctors said three of the babies had won their fight against a lung disease that killed their tiny sister.

"We're encouraged about all five infants," said pediatrician Dr. James Strain. "Their conditions are continuing to improve and they're steadily gaining strength. Three of them seem to have shaken the disease that killed Julia."

John, the first of the infants born last Sunday night seven weeks premature, received the first diaper, and his mother, Mrs. Eugene Stanek, 34, held Jeffrey for the first time.

Strain and pediatrician Dr. Tibor Engel, who had administered a fertility drug to Mrs. Stanek, said it was too soon to tell when she and her husband might be able to take the infants home. Mrs. Stanek was expected to be released next week.

"I've had lots of offers from friends and neighbors so I don't think I'll have much of a problem feeding them," she said. "I don't know what this will mean to our 4-year-old son. I haven't seen him yet. I don't believe it will mean that much to him until they are home.

"The babies are not too individual looking right now. There are tubes and wires connected to them helping them along but John's pretty lively."

Mrs. Stanek said she believed insurance would pay for the majority of the $100 per day hospital cost.

"I'm not looking for a part-time job yet," she said. "Everyone, including Eugene and me, is hopeful for the future."

Eugene Stanek, 31, a suburban Denver junior accountant, turned down a chance to lift his children "because they look so tiny." He talked with his wife and then went home to sleep.

Strain said that Catherine, Nathan and Stephen were looking so healthy that they might be taken off respirators helping them breathe by Monday. The respirators were used to dilute the effects of hyaline membrane disease.

Spacewalk by two in Skylab

HOUSTON (UPI) —Two Skylab astronauts whizzed through a simple spacewalk Saturday collecting six rolls of precious pictures of the sun that could hold the key to man's understanding of earth's energy source.

Moonwalking veteran Alan L. Bean, and scientist Owen K. Garriott, clad in cumbersome white spacesuits, waltzed outside the station that has been their home for 56 days to replace the film cassettes in the powerful solar telescopes.

Jack R. Lousma, who has made two outside journeys in two months, stayed in the station to monitor vital spacecraft systems while his crewmates spent two hours and 41 minutes in the starkness of space.

It was the third and shortest spacewalk for the Skylab 2 astronauts who will end history's longest spaceflight Tuesday. Garriott, making his third walk of the flight, captured the record for the most time spent outside an orbiting craft—13 hours and 43 minutes.

The pilots will splashdown about 224 miles southwest of San Diego at 3:20 p.m. PDT after 59 days, 11 hours and nine minutes in space.

It was Bean's first trip outside a spacecraft since walking on the moon on Apollo 12 in November, 1969, and he reacted like a typical tourist with not enough time to see everything.

"Golly, what a place to visit. Whooee," Bean marveled as he moved around suspended in weightlessness with the grace of a ballet dancer. "You sure can get around easy out here. Everything's turning sort of reddish pink as the sun goes down.

"The EVA (spacewalk) went very smoothly, just ground along," the mission commander reported afterwards.

DIANA SANDS

Black stage star dies of cancer

NEW YORK (UPI) —Diana Sands, the black actress who rose to stardom with her role in "Raisin in the Sun," died Friday night of cancer at the age of 39, it was announced Saturday.

Miss Sands had been at the Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Disease for several weeks following an unsuccessful operation to remove a tumor. She had a starring role in the movie "Claudine" but was replaced in the part when the operation became necessary.

A native of New York, Miss Sands began her career as part of a dance team called Twan and Diana in which she wore bells and veils.

She appeared in a number of plays but her big break came in 1959 when she landed a role in the Broadway play "Raisin in the Sun" written by black playwright Lorraine Hansberry.

Miss Hansberry also died of cancer at a young age, 34, in 1965.

Miss Sands' performance won her the "Outer Circle" critics award for the best supporting actress and launched her career.

A veteran of movies and numerous television shows, she also won the Off-Broadway magazine award in 1958, the International Artist award in 1961, the Theatre World award in 1963, an Obie Award in 1964, as well as Toni and Emmy Award nominations.

Her mother said funeral services would be private but there would be a memorial service which will be announced at a later date.

Italy says apology is acceptable

ROME (UPI) —Italy has accepted a Libyan apology for the strafing of an Italian warship by Libyan jet fighters and considers the incident closed, a government source said Saturday.

The source said no further protest was planned over Friday's machine gun attack by Libyan Mirage jets on the Italian corvette De Cristofaro in international waters 33 miles off Libya. The corvette was on routine patrol accompanying Italian fishing boats.

Two Italian sailors were slightly injured and the De Cristofaro lightly damaged in the incident, Italian officials said. None of the fishing boats was harmed.

Libyan Premier Maj. Abdel Salam Jalloud expressed his country's "profound regret" to Italian Ambassador Aldo Conte Marotta, who had delivered a strong protest, a foreign ministry communique said.

Jalloud also offered Libya's immediate assistance in whatever form was needed, the communique said.

The government source said Italy accepted Jalloud's explanation that the incident was "a deplorable mistake."

The attack was one of a series of incidents involving Italian fishing boats. A Libyan coast guard vessel captured five Sicilian fishing boats and took their captains prisoner Wednesday.

Navy awards Gen. Dynamics $2 million pact

POMONA — General Dynamics' Electrodynamics Division has won a Navy contract to modernize the printed circuit board manufacturing facility of the Naval Industrial Reserve Ordnance Plant here.

Value of the pact, according to the office of Rep. Jerry Pettis, is $1,915,-583. The company will provide all labor, material, service and equipment to upgrade the facility to meet pollution control and Occupational Safety Hazards Act standards.

According to a company spokesman, the facility at this time is not in violation of pollution standards. The contract, he stated, merely provides for latest equipment to be installed, thus anticipating any future tightening of standards.

Little cigars join advertising ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon signed legislation Saturday banning broadcast advertisements for so-called little cigars.

The bill amends the federal Cigarette Labeling and Advertising Act of 1965 to bring little cigars under the prohibition on advertising of cigarettes over radio, television and other broadcast media.

The "little cigar" was described by Congress in the legislation as any roll of tobacco wrapped in leaf tobacco or any substance containing other than cigarette tobacco which weighs not more than three pounds per 1,000 units.

The bill was passed on the basis of a report to Congress on the consequences of smoking, in which the Public Health Service warned that little cigars are as dangerous as cigarettes if the smoke is inhaled.

Public thinks Nixon not treating him fairly

Undercurrent of suspicion in Agnew poll

NEW YORK (UPI) —Two-thirds of the American public are opposed to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew resigning now, but 58 per cent would approve his leaving office if he is indicted, a Newsweek-Gallup poll reported Saturday.

The poll findings, scheduled to appear in the magazine's Oct. 1 edition, disclosed an "undercurrent of suspicion" that President Nixon may not be treating Agnew fairly, Newsweek said. Only 40 per cent agree that Nixon is being fair to the vice president, while 35 per cent, says he is not, and 25 per cent voiced no opinion.

The poll was the result of a Newsweek-sponsored telephone survey of a cross section of 631 Americans conducted by the The Gallup Organizaition late this week.

Asked if they thought the vice president should resign if he is indicted 58 per cent said he should, 30 per cent said he should not and 12 per cent had no opinion. Only 16 per cent thought Agnew should resign now while 66 per cent said he should not.

Former Secretary of the Treasury John Connally (24 percentage points) headed the list of six potential candidates to succeed Agnew if he resigned, followed by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., with 19 per cent, and Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., 15 per cent.

The others included New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, 14 per cent; Attorney General Elliott Richardson, 5 per cent, and former Secretary of State William Rogers, 4 per cent.

REPORTER ON WHEELS — Roland Lindsey, UPI's Austin, Texas, bureau manager, checks out a new 10-speed bicycle. Lindsey, who admits to being a little overweight and a little over 35, thought the bicycle would be a good way to get back in shape. However, both he and the cycle were bent out of shape in a crash in his own driveway. Lindsey suffered only a few minor cuts and bruise.

Middle-age paunch vs. the 10-speed bike

By ROLAND LINDSEY

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Physical fitness isn't all it's cracked up to be.

Especially if you're on the downhill side of 35, overweight, spend about eight hours a day punching a typewriter and aren't accustomed to lifting anything heavier than that bothersome paunch that materialized around your midsection over the years.

My choices were (1) to cut down on my eating; or (2) to increase my exercise.

Recalling my penchant for food, especially the fattening kind, I mistakenly chose exercise. That proved to be a pain in the neck—and knee, and legs, and shoulders ...

For two weeks, I got up at the crack of dawn, pulled on some jogging shorts, and drove a few blocks to a nearby high school track to begin the regimen of becoming a truly fine physical speciman.

By the end of the first week, the soreness in the leg muscles was about gone. But the spring that I remembered from a few years back—it was really almost 20 years now that I count it up—still wasn't there.

So I came up with the perfect solution—a bicycle! One of those classy, 10-speed foreign jobs. Bike riding was always fun, and like they say, once you learn how you never forget it.

So on I rolled the shiny $100 jewel into the garage and announced to a somewhat skeptical wife that cycling had now replaced jogging. She said I should have used the money to buy some bookshelves she wanted for the house.

Despite jeering from the neighborhood kids, on the first day I toured several blocks in fine fashion, and made it back home without incident.

Then came the second day. I straddled that impossibly hard and pointed seat that 10-speed bikes are cursed with, pushed off down the hill of my front lawn toward the driveway. Instant humiliation.

My front wheel hit the edge of the driveway and turned crossways, spilling me and the bike down the rough concrete drive.

Right in front of my son and another laughing kid, I had crashed. I mean bad. Not only did it break my glasses, skin my knees and hands and bruise a shoulder—it bent the front wheel of my new exercise machine!

The bike repairman managed to straighten out the bent parts with hardly a smirk.

So now I can again peddle through the neighborhood. And this time the kids aren't so eager to spend their time chasing the old man around.

The excitement just isn't there for them. They know there's no way I could top that first crash. And besides, I think they're afraid I'll take them down with me in the next one.

Martha denies she has mental ills

NEW YORK (UPI) —Martha Mitchell, in her first television interview since she left Washington, denies that she is suffering from a mental condition and complains of "the torture I'm being put through."

In the interview with NBC, taped Friday for broadcast today, an obviously distraught Mrs. Mitchell said she wanted to counter rumors that she is in a mental institution.

She said she has received letters from persons who "say they're sorry I'm in the hospital, to please take care of myself and they're going to send me this and send me that and where can they contact me?

"So I decided it was time for me to tell the American public that I am sitting in my apartment...I'm perfectly capable of doing anything I want to do and there's absolutely nothing wrong with me except I'm mentally tortured from the torture I'm being put through," she said.

Mrs. Mitchell denied she and her husband, John, were getting divorced, and blamed the news media for spreading the rumor. Former Attorney General Mitchell moved out of the apartment last week.

Asked why her husband hadn't contacted her, she replied, "Well I guess he's mad at me for throwing his clothes out for one thing...and then, I think that he just thinks that I'm overly wrought and that I should have some kind of care...I think they are terribly frightened I'm going to say something...I don't know what I could say...." Mrs. Mitchell said she threw some of her husband's clothes out of their apartment because she was angry she wasn't notified of the postponement of Mitchell's trial on charges of purjury and conspiracy to obstruct justice.

"I got mad and like any woman does...if you get mad you do something. He's not here, you can't hit him on the head, so I've got to do something, so I took his clothes...a few ties and a few shirts and threw them out there in the foyer," she said.

"You know when you're under pressure and under strain you say things and do things that you wouldn't do ordinarily—it's just a state that you get in that you can't explain and you'd have to go through something like this before you know what it's like."

Mrs. Mitchell denied she has ever been in a mental institution. "I've never been committed to anything but...except the good of my country...and that's all."

Mrs. Mitchell claimed that she did not make many of the phone calls attributed to her.

"These phone calls that I get credit for, they've got somebody that mimics me so well...somebody mimics my voice all the time," she said.

McGovern not sure about '76

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential nominee, said Saturday he had not decided yet "either privately or publicly" whether he would make another bid for the White House in 1976.

McGovern issued a statement responding to a report by columnist Tom Braden, who said the South Dakota senator had told financial advisers he would run again despite his overwhelming loss last year to President Nixon.

"I do not know who the unnamed supporters are who told Mr. Braden that they believed I would run again in 1976," McGovern said. "But I do know that no such decision has been made. I have my hands full with responsibilities in the Senate and in South Dakota.

"Although I intend to speak out on national and international questions, I have made no decisions either privately or publicly to run for the Presidency again."

Valley cities to get $934,233 tax revenue

Ten Pomona Valley cities will receive a total $934,233.27 of the $91.9 million to be allocated to California cities and counties in the Sept. 1973 distribution of local sales and use tax funds, the State Board of Equalization reported Friday.

Better than half of the total amount to be allocated to Valley cities will go to the communities of Pomona, Ontario, and Montclair. Pomona will receive the biggest chunk, $311,775.69, while Ontario will get $163,124.96, and Montclair, $145,679.75.

Other Valley cities and their allocations are: Upland, $99,905.96; Glendora, $87,183.85; Chino, $42,594.53; San Dimas, $36,794.95; La Verne, $22,186.02; Claremont, $20,956.01; and Walnut, $4,031.55.

The $91.9 million comes from "cleanup payments" for the second quarter of 1973 totaling $51.4 million, and advance payment for the third quarter 1973 of $40.5 million.

The combined totals of second quarter cleanup payments and third quarter advance payments and the sources of the funds are:

Bradley-Burns 1 per cent local sales and use tax payments to cities and counties, $71 million.

— Bradley-Burns 1 per cent cent local sales and use tax payment to counties for the County Local Transporation Fund, $17.1 million.

Blind Brazilians

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — There are 400,000 blind Brazilians, according to the Getulio Vargas Foundation here. Only 3,000 of the blind children in Brazil attend school, the foundation said in a recent report urging better education for the blind.

Private tour that guard didn't enjoy

CINCINNATI (UPI) —An art lover, armed with a machete, forced a guard at the Cincinnati Art Museum to give him a private, hour-long tour.

Bruce Riley, 19, climbed a wall on the east side of the museum and dropped down an elevator shaft to the main floor of the building where he accosted guard McKinely Smith.

He told Smith he was just "very interested in art and wanted to look at the paintings."

Police were alerted to the break-in when Smith did not report at a scheduled time.

Riley was charged with assault with a deadly weapon and burglary. He allegedly took two black folders of miscellaneous art materials valued at $25.

NEW ADDITION—Buick's new entry in the intermediate line for 1974 is the Regal four-door colonnade sedan. The new addition combines improved ride and handling qualities plus new interior selections. Buick's 1974 line is now in dealer showrooms.

1974 Buick line

Changes occur in mechanical system, styling

Now on display in dealer showrooms are the new Riviera and LeSabre coupes and a four-door Regal sedan in the Buick 1974 line.

Both the Riviera and LeSabre coupes feature their own distinctive version of the colonnade-style roof which was featured on the Century series last year. The 1974 models also feature a new pillared roof design with a fixed rear side window.

Mechanical changes in the Buick line include a new high-energy ignition sysem, energy-absorbing bumpers in the rear and steel-belted radial ply tires built to General Motors specifications.

All Buick models for 1974 are equipped with the interlock ignition system which prevents the engine from being started until both outboard front seat occupants have their lap and shoulder belts fastened.

New Buick interiors in a wider variety of cloth and vinyl designs are offered as well as a leather interior on the Riviera and Limited. The number of trim sets has been increased from 258 last year to 460.

General Motors' new unitized high-energy ignition system is standard on all Stage I engines and optional on all V-8s. The new system produces greater voltage than regular breaker or conventional solid-state ignition systems and firing is more precise because distribution of the charge is accomplished electronically rather than mechanically. According to company officials, the system also aids starting in cold or wet weather and minimizes ignition tune-ups because there are no points or rubbing block to wear out.

Pomona council asked to open mall to traffic

POMONA — The City Council Monday night will consider a request that the Pomona Mall be opened to vehicle traffic.

Officials, however, may delay a decision pending the return of the city's public works director.

The Pomona Mall has been restricted to pedestrian traffic since a major improvement project about 10 years ago.

The request to allow vehicles is included in a letter from the Central Business District's board of directors, signed by George W. Beamon, chairman, and John A. Evans, co-chairman.

"Due to almost total lack of activity on the mall, on Sept. 13, 1973, the board of directors of the Central Business District voted unanimously to respectfully request that the city restore one-way, no parking, automobile traffic on the mall. There would be no cross-Garey traffic.

"It is further requested that this action be taken as soon as possible, certainly, at least to be effective on or before Thanksgiving day, 1973.

"Since Ron Kranzer (public works director) is out of town, we feel any discussions or debate in council chambers should be delayed until he and staff have had an opportunity to go over the Central Business District's board request.

"The CBD board feels this is a last ditch stand to restore some activity on the mall, so please place the letter on calendar and then request the city engineer to consult with the undersigned CBD committee prior to Friday, Sept. 28." the letter concludes.

The City Council will meet at 8 p.m. in the City Council chambers. There is no afternoon session scheduled.

In another item, the City Council will consider a resolution authorizing the city's purchase from the Historical Society of Pomona Valley, Inc., of the La Casa Primera de Rancho San Jose. It is located at the southwest corner of Park and McKinley avenues.

The total cost to the city will be $82,667, which includes $21,400 for return of down payment; $58,837, trust deed balance; $1,830 for back payments; and $600 for reserve for taxes.

The City Council will also be asked to approve plans and specifications for a pedestrian overcrossing on Valley Boulevard near Omar Street.

The cost is estimated at $75,000, with the project being eligible for gasoline tax improvement funding. Bids may be opened on Oct. 10.

Officials will hold a public hearing regarding a proposal that the hillside overlay zone be applied to a section of the Ganesha Hills located east of Ganesha Boulevard, north of Gillette Road and south of McKinley Avenue.

The 37 acres now contains two reservoir sites, a restaurant, four homes and vacant land. The Pomona Plenning Commission had recommended the overlay at its Sept. 12 meeting.

The city planning staff said the overlay would give the city additional controls over development by limiting the amount of "cut and fill" and specify the type of ground cover to prevent erosion.

Open Door Pomona

Rape crisis assistance offered

POMONA — A rape crisis intervention service has been initiated by Open Door Pomona, 1107 N. Gordon St.

The telephone number to dial is 623-6017. It will be answered 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Director John C. Hinze said Open Door is equipped to make medical referrals for attack victims, provide trained women as escorts and transportation, not only for medical examination or treatment, but also to file complaints with the police department and to help with interpersonal problems that might arise in the victim's family.

Should it be necessary, Hinze said Open Door also is equipped to provide referrals for treatment of venereal disease or problem pregnancy following rape.

"We are compiling statistics and information on how courts and hospitals are treating rape victims," said Hinze, a Cal Poly senior majoring in social services.

According to Hinze, Pomona Open Door is one of the first agencies in Southern California, and one of a few in the United States, to offer rape crisis intervention service.

Trained psychologists and nurses have consented to serve as consultants in providing the service, Hinze said.

Open Door Pomona, founded in June of 1970 as a multi-service center for youth, places primary emphasis on serving those 14 to 24 but, as the name implies, opens its services to any individual in time of crisis or emergency.

Ten services and programs provided include the 24-hour, seven-day hotline for crisis (623-6017); individual counseling, suicide intervention, outreach programs, group rap sessions, juvenile diversion programs, a speakers bureau, public information service, limited emergency housing, extensive referral service and emergency transportation.

The last is provided by volunteers who use their own cars. Hinze said plans are to add a station wagon and provide service within a 50-mile radius of all emergency situations encountered by Pomona agencies.

Hinze lists as "proposed services" for Open Door Pomona, a nonmedical detoxification program utilizing a resident staff of ex-addicts, and an emergency clothing bank, whereby those in crisis might receive clothing.

'Insight' producer to lead fall film course at Theology School

CLAREMONT — "Teaching Theology Through Film" will be added to the fall curriculum at the School of Theology. Father Ellwood Keiser, C.S.P., creator and executive producer of the award-winning dramatic TV series, "Insight," will lead the course beginning Thursday.

The course will center on methods of sharing the gospel through film. Students will learn how to incorporate film into the worship, adult education and teen-age programs of the local congregation, how to select and use film and lead discussions on the topics presented. Father Kieser describes the course as "Cinematic treatments of the great Christian realities—God, Jeus, community—and of the principle Christian values — love, faith and trust."

Father Keiser is a member of the Paulist Fathers, a Roman Catholic order, which specializes in serving those outside their church. Twelve years ago, he was teaching theology and philosophy to college students. Today, he is working with the top writers, directors and actors in the entertainment community to reach more than 150 million people each year. "You show me any other way to communicate human values to that number of people and I'll use it," says Father Kieser.

Now called the freest producer in Hollywood, the 44-year-old Father Kieser has created an imaginative type of TV theater through his series that has attracted many big stars.

These actors, along with top directors and writers, work without pay. "People will do things for God they won't do for money," Father Kieser explains.

"Insight" plays each week on 200 commercial stations and 70 educational channels in the United States. Hailed by civic leaders and critics for its artistic and educational excellence, it is described as the most widely seen TV series of its kind in the world.

Volunteers to drive blind to events needed

POMONA — Volunteer drivers are needed in the Pomona area to transport visually handicapped young people to and from Foundation for the Junior Blind activities in Los Angeles.

These include Friday night socials for teen-agers and Saturday recreation-educational programs during the school year.

The foundation center is located at 5300 Angeles Vista Blvd. between Crenshaw and La Brea, off Slauson.

Foundation executive director Norman Kaplan said without volunteer drivers the foundation has no way of bringing the blind young people together.

Volunteers, he said, are under no obligation to drive any set number of times.

"Once a week, twice a month or even once a month," he explained. "We will be grateful for whatever help an individual can give."

Those wishing to assist may contact the foundation at 213 295-4555.

Comet comment

NEW YORK (UPI) — Comets are sky spectaculars but contrary to what some believe they are not burning, but rather are frozen. Their light comes from the reflection of sunlight off the frozen nucleus. Gases eliminated from the nucleus expand into what is called the coma and together they form the head of the comet.

While the nucleus of a comet may be about five miles across, nucleus and coma together may reach 100,000 miles in diameter. The tail is tens of millions miles long—the record is about 200 million miles.

GOOEY, ISN'T IT—A Claremont School District patron donated her small truck to the kindergarten students of Mrs. Gay Collins at Sycamore School Thursday, and the children painted every inch of the outside of the truck with poster paint. They used brushes at first, then resorted to finger painting. Even the tail pipe and the inside of the gasoline cover received attention. Showing off her poster paint hands is Diana Gray, an artist at 6. The truck owner hopes the paint will come off.

Old man river keeps on rollin'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The mighty Mississippi River, which bubbles to life from little Lake Itasca in Minnesota, is the world's third longest river.

The river travels 2,340 miles from Lake Itasca to where it empties billions of gallons of muddy water into the Gulf of Mexico near New Orleans daily. For comparison purposes, however, the total length of the Mississippi is considered to be 3,484. This includes the length of its longest tributary, the Missouri River.

The other day I shuffled over to a saleswoman with a stack of dresses over my arm and inquired, "Where's your crying room?"

"I beg your pardon," she said.

"Your crying room. I want to try these on."
She directed me to a small room marked "Fitting."

"Do you have one without mirrors?" I asked.

"No," she said stiffly. "This is it. Now, let's see what we have here. Oh, one of our new tent dresses."

The tent dress went over my head easily and when it was belted looked like someone had slipcovered Vermont.

"Do we have these in any other styles?" I asked.

"We have one in canvas with a floor and a screened-in room, but we sold it this morning," she said. "How about our trying on one of our new dresses with a fanny sweater?"

"If it gets that cold, I'll stay at home," I said.

"We certainly can't leave without trying on the new satin slip dress, can we?" She returned with a sleek, sleeveless length of satin that looked like trousseau underwear.

"Surely," I said, "we aren't going to attempt to wear that, are we? I have always felt in my heart that satin was flattering only to pin cushions and women born without stomachs."

She slid the dress over my head and by sheer force brought it to rest over my hips. Neither of us said anything for a full minute.

Then I spoke. "I feel like a mannequin in a Mr. Fredericks window."

"Nonsense," she said. "We just have to learn to suck in."

"What do we wear under it?" I asked.

"Fear," she answered, then added, "maybe we'd like to try on something from the layered look collection."

"I am already into the layered look," I said. "I grew my own this summer."

After I dressed in my own clothes, I wandered off to a corner of the department where a rack of suits caught my eye. "Now we're talking," I said. "Are these career dresses?"

"It depends on how we feel about maternity clothes," she sniffed.

"Are we going to cry now?" I asked.

"I think so," she said, biting her lip.

Men's wear

Time has arrived for wonder watch

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — They are bulky, usually less than beautiful, sometimes hard to read at night, and expensive — $150 to more than $1,000—but they are the hottest status item in men's jewelry today. They are quartz crystal watches which print out the time in digits, i.e.: 12:48.

Aside from the newness of such watches, accuracy is the biggest selling feature—plus the status symbol thing. They are accurate to one minute a year and the people who make them say they will become even more accurate and small enough to be beautiful.

One of the people who makes them is Kenneth Hollandsworth, president of Jules Jurgensen, the 200-year-old Danish watchmaking firm. He produces an all-electronic quartz crystal watch called Optcom I, so we asked him what makes them tick.

Well, for one thing, they don't tick. They don't even hum. About the only thing you have to do is put in a tiny battery from time to time. They are really mini-computers but Hollandsworth couldn't say that because a rival firm has registered the world "computer" as applied to watches.

To start at the beginning, there was the sun dial, the hour glass and the pendulum. After that the balance wheel remained the source of movement in clocks and watches for 300 years. The balance wheel was powered by a hand wound mainspring which oscillated at 2½ times per second to turn the gears that moved the watch hands. In recent years this developed into a self-wind watch where the movement of the wearer's arm wound the spring.

In the early 50s the electric watch came out, replacing the mainspring with a tiny battery. In the 1960s, the first electric watch came out utilizing a battery powered "tuning fork" which oscillated at the rate of 360 times a second.

The latest

Most recently in the last year or so, an electronic quartz watch was developed with a tiny bar of quartz crystal that vibrates thousands of times a second. The faster the oscillation, the more accurate the watch. With such solid state construction all gears and springs are unnecessary.

A solid state watch has no moving parts. The computerized timepiece has the capacity to perform mathematic calculations, programmed to maintain time keeping functions.

Currently bulky looking, the development is so rapid that ultra-miniaturization will make thinner watches (and women's models) available before the end of the year. The prices range from $150 to above $1,000 and the average is around $250-300. The Optcom [illegible] is $[illegible]. Some solid state watches should be selling for around $100 in a couple of years.

Two types of quartz movements are on the market, both of which have all-electron circuitry for digital readouts of the exact time.

1. The LED (light emitting diode) gives time on demand. You push a button and the time appears in glowing red numbers. The disadvantage is that lighting up the digits takes more battery drain than the movement itself and the battery must be replaced more often.

2. The LCD liquid crystal device) which shows the time on a constant basis, and is the one use by Optcom. Here, a liquid is sandwiched between two pieces of plastic. Sub-miniature electrodes inserted into the liquid cause the liquid's molecules to take the form of digits through the pulsating charges of electricity. The advantage is long life and less battery drain. The disvantage is long life and less battery drain. The disadvantage is that it is hard to see [illegible].

In the rush to put out [illegible], which the industry says will completely change the market, some makes have added a quartz crystal to an "ordinary" watch with mechanical movement. This adds a little accuracy but does not do away with moving parts.

Engineer's oath is recommended

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Engineers should take an oath similar to the Hippocratic Oath taken by physicians, says an engineering educator at the University of California.

Prof. Charles Susskind argues that engineers increasingly resemble physicians in their concern for the human condition, but the engineering code of ethics still deals mainly with business relations.

"[illegible] of the responsibility for the uses of technology lies with society, not engineers," Susskind said. "Blaming engineers for the shortcomings of technology makes about as much sense as blaming the failure of a new play on the stagehands."

European hosts happy to see visitors leave

By DONALD W. REYNOLDS

COSTA DEL SOL, Spain — "Lo peor de la plaga se fue" greets you from the taxi drivers, waiters, bar tenders, sales persons, room clerks and all of the other natives serving the tourist hordes that flood the beaches here.

Not being a very good linguist, I asked for a translation and had surprising difficulty in getting it. Finally found a bilingual waiter that embarrassingly explained that the rather free translation was that "the worst of the locusts have gone." And for more than a week the roads have been bumper to bumper, the buses packed and the "no space available" recording on the airline phones.

I have found that few tourists are happy with the accommodations, food or generacceptance, but had taken it as the normal griping of travelers. It was just a little bit surprising to find that the hosts were even happier to see the guests leaving than were the guests to leave.

One of my favorite stories, told as only the late Joe E. Lewis could tell a story: After quite a buildup Joe would introduce his long-time piano player, Mr. Mack. The audieence perfunctorily applauded, then Lewis with the perfect timing that made him one of the greatest standup comedians of his time, brought the house down as he drawled, "He doesn't like you very much either "

Since the days of the Roman Empire, tourism, under many names, has been an integral part of European history, be it the legions of Caesar or the retired folks on the American Express bus. Almost 2,000 years hasn't truly changed the picture. The guests still make the host doubly glad — twice happy — when they arrive, and when they go. And while the money brought in is accepted, in some instances quite graciously, the sigh of relief on the 'locusts' departure is definitely audible.

So why the travel? I've talked to may almost professional vagabonds that have toured the world. Complaining about everything, but always returning for more. Money hunger stimulates the promotions, travel agents and all of those profiting from the visitors — perhaps the best explanation for the wanderer was given me in answer to the question, "What spot do you like best of all?" And the laconic reply, "The place I prefer is where I haven't been " Got your bag packed?

Her steady opposed to her career

By Jean Adams

18 AND 14: I am 18 and the girl I like is 14. Is there something wrong with me or is it OK to like someone that young and take her out? She likes me too. —Criticized in Connecticut.

(A.) There is nothing wrong with you, but you are likely to run into more problems with a 14-year-old than you would if you liked a girl 18 or 17 or 16 years old.

First, the girl's parents may think she is too young to date, or that you are too old for her.

Second, if you are acceptable to her parents you must be very careful how you treat the girl. You are older than she, stronger. She may think that anything you want is wise and right. You must be very sure to be worthy of her trust in you.

Third, you are far ahead of her in school. Her friends are not your age. Your firends are not her age. Your interests are different from hers.

Unless you are very devoted to each other, it won't be simple.

LIES: (Q.) I have been going to summer school. Last week some other girls and I were caught smoking. The principal told us our parents would be called.

Well, when I got home no one had called my mother so I told her about it. But I changed the truth around a lot. When they called her from school the story was different and, boy, did I catch it.

Now I have decided to stop smoking and lying. I have smoked only a very little but since I was a kid I have told lies. I will never do anything wrong again if I can help it. But how can I get my mother to trust me? —14 in Texas

(A.) It is not easy to stop the habit of lying, and you will have to work hard to do it.

Tell your mother of your resolution and ask her to help you stop both smoking and lying. She wants to help you — I am sure — and she wants to trust you. With her help, I am sure you can make it.

New rules to cut red tape for jobless

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —New regulations designed to trim welfare red tape and allow the state to concentrate on finding jobs for employable recipients were announced Thursday by the Department of Human Resources Development.

Under the change, counties will act on their own in determining welfare eligibility for persons physically unable to work. Presently, the decision of the county must be reviewed at the state level.

Department Director Earl Brian said the change will take a "significant" workload off his staff and allow them to place greater emphasis on finding jobs for those who can work.

After two weeks I felt much better. In a short time later I quit and haven't taken any medication, and eat anything I want, and have gained back to 200 lbs. Science for You

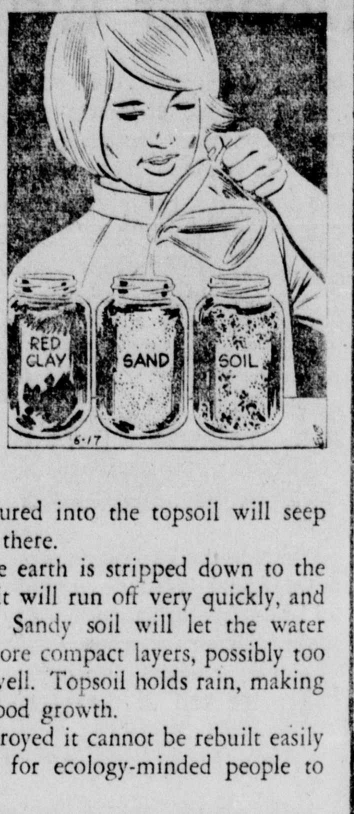
By BOB BROWN



PROBLEM: Soil and water.

NEEDED: three cans, one filled with red clay, another with garden topsoil and another filled with sand. Water.

DO THIS: Pack the sand and soil down and pour an equal amount of water on top of each. Watch what happens.

WHAT HAPPENS: The water poured into the sand will pass through it rapidly. Water poured into the clay will stand on top of it a long time. Water poured into the topsoil will seep into it slowly and be held there.

THIS MEANS: When the earth is stripped down to the clay, the rain that falls on it will run off very quickly, and possibly produce flooding. Sandy soil will let the water pass down to harder and more compact layers, possibly too deep to support plant life well. Topsoil holds rain, making it available to plants for good growth.

Once good topsoil is destroyed it cannot be rebuilt easily and quickly. This is good for ecology-minded people to remember.

Batman, Superman cavort on shelves of Library of Congress

By JOSEPH M. CHAPMAN

as an integral part of Ameri-

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Quickly, who's the nation's largest collector of comic books, a reading staple of American kids that ranged from such heroes as Batman and Superman to Captain Marvel?

Shazaam! Would you believe the prestigious and staid Library of Congress?

Barring any evidence to the contrary, the Library of Congress believes that it has more comic books than anyone, a total of about 2,000 separate titles and approximately 37,000 comics.

From this treasure trove of comic books the Library will pull a few select issues for an exhibit in October featuring two great heroes, Batman and Superman.

The exhibit will include Superman comic books from 1943, 1951, 1962 and 1973. It will also feature Batman comics from 1946, the issue of December of 1950-January 1951, 1966, and 1973.

But if that's not enough for comic book fans, the Library of Congress exhibit will also feature full color excerpts from books by an expert in the field, E. Nelson Bridwell —''Superman from the Thirties to the Seventies' and "Batman from the Thirties to the Seventies."

While the exhibit concentrates on Superman and Batman, it is evidence of the importance of the comic book as an integral part of Ameri can culture. Each month, in addition to comics it already has, the library receives from 100 to 200 new issues through copyright deposit.

Sociologists and historians have found comics to be an important part of their study of American life.

The comic strip was first popularized in the 1890s by R. F. Outcault with his "Hogan's Alley" in the New York World and then with his "The Yellow Kid" in the New York Journal.

But it was not until the late 1930s that the first comic books appeared.

Now comic book buffs will pay from $200 to $300 for a 10 cent copy of the first issue of "Action comics" from 1938—which introduced Superman—or as much as $275 for a copy of the 1939 issue of "Detective Comics" that introduced Batman.

"At one time, comic books could be read only in the Rare Book Room of the Library of Congress and usage was restricted to scholars with a serious intention of publishing the results of their research," a spokeswoman said. "Comic books are now available in the Newspaper and Current Periodical Room."

"Only those issues in an advanced state of deterioration are not in service," the spokeswoman said.

Everybody's body needs carbohydrates

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like your opinion on sugar in the diet. I read an article that stated that anyone who eats ordinary meals containing fruits, potatoes and other vegetables, cereals, breads, meats, eggs and milk is getting ample carbohydrates for his needs. He could go through life comfortably without using a spoonful of added sweetening. In fact, this article states some nutritional observers think we'd be better off if our sugar supply were to disappear. What is your opinion? Also, when one is told by his physician that he has low blood sugar, should he add more sugar to his diet or use less.

Dear Reader — It is important to have a sufficient amount of carbohydrates in the diet from foods that contain important vitamins and minerals The body doesn't function well without carbohydrates. This can cause a disturbance in the body chemistry called ketosis. The accumulation of ketone bodies in an untreated diabetic leads to diabetic coma, a serious medical problem. Continued loss of ketones from the urine in this condition also depletes the body of important minerals, including calcium, which accelerates or aggravates the problem of degeneration of the spine and loss of calcium from the bones.

The term carbohydrates includes vegetables, cereals, fruits, as well as the sweets, which include sugar, honey, syrups, jams and jellies. It is perfectly true that a person can get along quite well from a health point of view if they never use any sweets at all, and, instead, got all of their carbohydrates from fresh fruits, vegetables and cereals. Milk, our principal source of calcium, also contains appreciable amounts of carbohydrates.

Earliest man was more of a vegetarian and early fossils show grinding-like teeth of the vegetarian as seen in other primates, as opposed to the canine overhanging teeth seen in carnivores. Those living in the jungle and tropical regions in places where plant food was abundant were more apt to be vegetarians. It is not true that early man did without carbohydrates. Early cave drawings show primitive man obtaining honey from wild bees.

Sugars or sweets are sometimes very useful, particularly if you need to provide large amount of energy in a small amount of bulk for some medical reason. The biggest drawback of most of the sugars and sweets is that they do not contain any significant amounts of vitamins and minerals (blackstrap molasses though is a good source for iron). When true low blood sugar is present and is responsible for the symptoms, then the diet should be one which restricts concentrated sweets, specifically sugars and syrups, jellies and jams. In most instances these individuals can continue to use vegetables and cereals without added sweetners

Not all cases of low blood sugar are rellated specifically to the diet. There are rare examples in which a tumor of the pancreas is the cause. When the tumor is removed this usually will solve the problem.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of the Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on low blood sugar, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Low Blood Sugar" booklet.

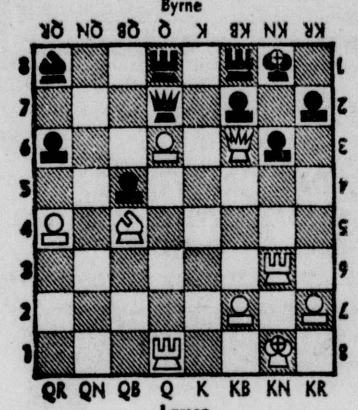
Even grandmasters can be checkmated

Although middle-game checkmates are rare in grandmaster chess, threats of checkmate or threats of threats of checkmate appear and reappear in many games. Sometimes the threat will force a weakness in the defender's pawn position and-or the threat will gain time to position an attacking piece.

Infrequently the attacker's checkmate cannot be countered satisfactorily and the defender must lose heavy material to avoid it. The attacker will make a drastic sacrifice or sacrifices if he sees that a costly (for his opponent) mate threat can be achieved.

(Diagram 1)
BLACK
Byrne



Larsen
WHITE

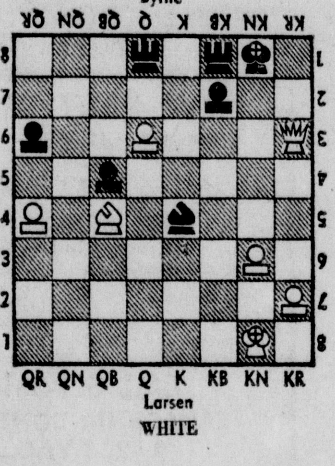
For example, Bent Larsen (white) reached the position in diagram one against Donald Byrne at the San Antonio "Fried Chicken" Tournament last year. Habitually tuned to sharp moves, Larsen made the ncessary sacrifice at this point to achieve a winning mate threat.

He directly played 1) RXPch!! After . . . RPxR the game continued with 2) QxP check, K-R1: 3) Q-R6 check, K-N1; and 4) R-Q3 threatening checkmate. The black king is exposed and the black pieces have limited availability for defense.

Byrne was able to stop the mate with . . .Q-N5 check, but lost his queen after 5) R-N3, QxR; and 6) KBPxQ.

Material is now roughly even but black's ordeal, commencing with 1) RxP check, is not over. Larsen's threat of 7) Q-N6 check, K-RI,; 8) BxP with the danger of Q-R6 mate among others compelled back to play . . . B-K5 to control key white squares needed by the black king.

(Diagram 2)
BLACK
Byrne

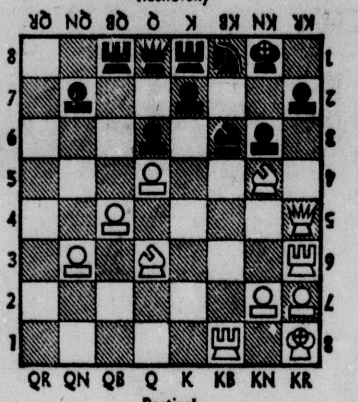


Larsen
WHITE

White was then able to pick up the bishop by a series of checks (7) Q-N5 check, K-R2; 8) Q-R4 check, K-N2; 9) QxB) and black resigned because of his material disa vantage. Black's return of material by the queen sacrifice had not stopped white's threats. It was Byrne who made the ultimate sacirfice.

Even such meager and ultimately futile defense as Byrne had was not available to Sammy Rsheyvsky in the following position reached in the Interzonal tournament at Petropolis, Brazil against Lajos Portisch.

(Diagram 3)
BLACK
Reshevsky



Portisch
WHITE

Portisch, with all his pieces massed against the black king, has an immediate and straightforward win as against the defending pieces are cut off from effective defense of the king.

What is the winning move? Answer: BxP achieves the breakthrough as PxB leads to a forced mate by white. Try to work it out.

Riles schedules 2 fund-raisers for 2nd term

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles has scheduled fund-raising dinners in Los Angeles and San Francisco next month for his planned re-election campaign.

Riles, although not making a formal declaration, has said he probably will seek a second term as the state's top education official.

The $50-a-plate dinners will be held Oct. 16 at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco and Oct. 24 at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles. An aide said they are expected to raise about $500,000.

Riles became the first black in California history to be elected to statewide office when he rose from political obscurity to unseat incumbent Max Rafferty in 1970.

New method may identify those prone to heart attack

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Heart researchers announced that examination of coronary arteries might indicate what persons are most susceptible to instant death from heart attack.

Dr. Meyer Friedman headed a six-member team which examined the habits, behavior patterns and pathological findings of 69 persons who died of coronaries. The findings were reported in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

During the study at Marin General Hospital in Greenbrae and the Harold Brunn Institute of the Mount Zion Hospital and Medical Center, the deaths were broken down for the first time by researchers into "instantaneous" and "sudden."

The 32 instantaneous deaths occurred within 30 seconds of the first symptoms while the 37 sudden deaths ranged from one minute to 24 hours.

In more than half of the instantaneous deaths, Friedman said. The left anterior descending coronary artery of the heart had been totally obstructed "perhaps months or years" before death. And in 44 per cent of the same subjects, two of their four main coronary arteries had been totally blocked.

However only three such old obstructions were found in the 34 sudden death patients.

These findings "have been possible to obtain only in the last several years because of the previous unavailability of precise and safe diagnostic coronary cinearteriography," said Friedman.

"We believe .. that now with the advent of safe coronary angiography and the results of the present pathological findings, foolproof detection and finally truly effective treatment of the subject who is dangerously prone to instantaneous coronary death is at hand."

Clinically, the researchers said the instantaneous deaths differed from sudden coronary arrest by:

—Taking place abruptly and usually without earlier symptoms

—Being far more likely to occur during or immediately after severe or even moderate exertion

—Appearing to be brought on by ventricular fibrillation (rapid uncoordinated contractions of the heart ventricles leading to loss of synchronization between heartbeat and pulsebeat)

The study also suggested that exercise may be particularly and unexpectedly lethal.

"Sixteen (50 per cent) of the instantaneous cardiac arrest cases had been indulging in either severe (jogging 3, carrying heavy objects 3, calisthenics 2, running 1, playing handball 1, digging a ditch 1) or moderate walking 3, golfing 1, gardening 1, physical activity within 120 seconds of their demise," said the study.

"On the other hand, only three (10 per cent) of the sudden cardiac arrest cases had been indulging in either severe or moderate physical activity immediately prior to their demise."

Other elements of the survey indicated

—The majority of the 69 death cases drank little or no alcoholic beverages

—78 per cent of the instantaneous death and 89 per cent of the sudden death cases had been cigarette smokers

—54 per cent of the sudden cardiac cases and 22 per cent of the instantaneous cases had been obese prior to death.

Song lyrics are 'poems'

Bob Dylan really a poet; his book seems to show it

NEW YORK (UPI) —"If I can't please everybody," says singer-composer Bob Dylan, "I might as well not please nobody at all."

So begins a book he has compiled of his own song lyrics dating from the beginnings in 1964 to the album "New Morning," released about three years ago.

It's a cryptic message— followed in parentheses by the words: "There's but so many people and I just can't please them all" —and what it means exactly probably will be bandied about among Dylan's fans and critics for some time to come.

The book —"Writings and Drawings by Bob Dylan" (Knopf, $6.95) —is thick, 8-½ by 10-½ inches in size and more than 300 pages long. The jacket is cerise with one of Dylan's many drawings on the front cover, a picture of him on the back. Inside are the lyrics to all his songs through 1970, liner notes from record jackets and rambling comments on who and what he is.

"Somewheres back I took the time to start playin' the guitar," he writes. "Somewheres back I took time to start singin'. Somewheres back I took the time to start writin'. But I never ever did take the time to find out why..."

Rather than a book of lyrics, really, this is a book of poetry. Those who know Dylan's music will have a difficult time reading the verse without hearing the melody that it accompanies, familiar as the songs are. But the words—his wit, his wisdom—still will stand alone:

"Through the mad mystic hammering of the wind ripping hail the sky cracked its poems in naked wonder..."

"Darkness at the break of noon, shadows even the silver spoon, the handmade blade, the child's balloon eclipses both the sun and moon. To understand, you know too soon. There is no sense in trying..."

And from perhaps his best work to date, "Hey, Mr. Tambourine Man":

"Then take me disappearin' through the smoke rings of my mind, down the foggy ruins of time, far past the frozen leaves, the haunted, frightened trees, out to the windy beach, far from the twisted reach of crazy sorrow..."

One question raised about the book is whether it signals Dylan's self-demise as a folk music hero ("I might as well not please nobody at all"). Why would anyone as gifted and prolific as Dylan lump all his songs into one large volume— quite unlike the "retrospective" books one buys in the music store—unless he is ready to try something new?

One critic, and Dylan aficionado, Peter Knobler, writing in the current edition of the rock magazine Crawdaddy, says Dylan's departure from music is "possible, but not very likely.

European hosts happy to see visitors leave

By DONALD W. REYNOLDS

COSTA DEL SOL, Spain — "Lo peor de la plaga se fue" greets you from the taxi drivers, waiters, bar tenders, sales persons, room clerks and all of the other natives serving the tourist hordes that flood the beaches here.

Not being a very good linguist, I asked for a translation and had surprising difficulty in getting it. Finally found a bilingual waiter that embarrassingly explained that the rather free translation was that "the worst of the locusts have gone." And for more than a week the roads have been bumper to bumper, the buses packed and the "no space available" recording on the airline phones.

I have found that few tourists are happy with the accommodations, food or generacceptance, but had taken it as the normal griping of travelers. It was just a little bit surprising to find that the hosts were even happier to see the guests leaving than were the guests to leave.

One of my favorite stories, told as only the late Joe E. Lewis could tell a story: After quite a buildup Joe would introduce his long-time piano player, Mr. Mack. The audieence perfunctorily applauded, then Lewis with the perfect timing that made him one of the greatest standup comedians of his time, brought the house down as he drawled, "He doesn't like you very much either "

Since the days of the Roman Empire, tourism, under many names, has been an integral part of European history, be it the legions of Caesar or the retired folks on the American Express bus. Almost 2,000 years hasn't truly changed the picture. The guests still make the host doubly glad — twice happy — when they arrive, and when they go. And while the money brought in is accepted, in some instances quite graciously, the sigh of relief on the 'locusts' departure is definitely audible.

So why the travel? I've talked to may almost professional vagabonds that have toured the world. Complaining about everything, but always returning for more. Money hunger stimulates the promotions, travel agents and all of those profiting from the visitors — perhaps the best explanation for the wanderer was given me in answer to the question, "What spot do you like best of all?" And the laconic reply, "The place I prefer is where I haven't been " Got your bag packed?

Her steady opposed to her career

By Jean Adams

18 AND 14: I am 18 and the girl I like is 14. Is there something wrong with me or is it OK to like someone that young and take her out? She likes me too. —Criticized in Connecticut.

(A.) There is nothing wrong with you, but you are likely to run into more problems with a 14-year-old than you would if you liked a girl 18 or 17 or 16 years old.

First, the girl's parents may think she is too young to date, or that you are too old for her.

Second, if you are acceptable to her parents you must be very careful how you treat the girl. You are older than she, stronger. She may think that anything you want is wise and right. You must be very sure to be worthy of her trust in you.

Third, you are far ahead of her in school. Her friends are not your age. Your firends are not her age. Your interests are different from hers.

Unless you are very devoted to each other, it won't be simple.

LIES: (Q.) I have been going to summer school. Last week some other girls and I were caught smoking. The principal told us our parents would be called.

Well, when I got home no one had called my mother so I told her about it. But I changed the truth around a lot. When they called her from school the story was different and, boy, did I catch it.

Now I have decided to stop smoking and lying. I have smoked only a very little but since I was a kid I have told lies. I will never do anything wrong again if I can help it. But how can I get my mother to trust me? —14 in Texas

(A.) It is not easy to stop the habit of lying, and you will have to work hard to do it.

Tell your mother of your resolution and ask her to help you stop both smoking and lying. She wants to help you — I am sure — and she wants to trust you. With her help, I am sure you can make it.

New rules to cut red tape for jobless

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —New regulations designed to trim welfare red tape and allow the state to concentrate on finding jobs for employable recipients were announced Thursday by the Department of Human Resources Development.

Under the change, counties will act on their own in determining welfare eligibility for persons physically unable to work. Presently, the decision of the county must be reviewed at the state level.

Department Director Earl Brian said the change will take a "significant" workload off his staff and allow them to place greater emphasis on finding jobs for those who can work.

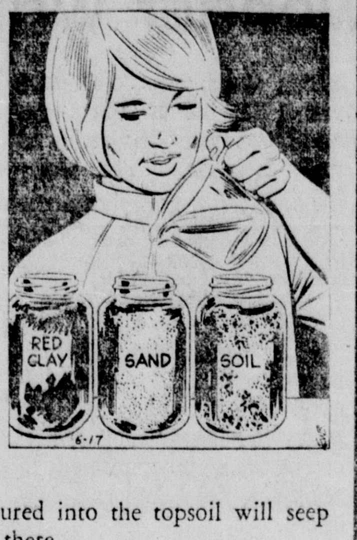
Science for You

By BOB BROWN



PROBLEM: Soil and water.

NEEDED: three cans, one filled with red clay, another with garden topsoil and another filled with sand. Water.

DO THIS: Pack the sand and soil down and pour an equal amount of water on top of each. Watch what happens.

WHAT HAPPENS: The water poured into the sand will pass through it rapidly. Water poured into the clay will stand on top of it a long time. Water poured into the topsoil will seep into it slowly and be held there.

THIS MEANS: When the earth is stripped down to the clay, the rain that falls on it will run off very quickly, and possibly produce flooding. Sandy soil will let the water pass down to harder and more compact layers, possibly too deep to support plant life well. Topsoil holds rain, making it available to plants for good growth.

Once good topsoil is destroyed it cannot be rebuilt easily and quickly. This is good for ecology-minded people to remember.

Batman, Superman cavort on shelves of Library of Congress

By JOSEPH M. CHAPMAN

as an integral part of Ameri-

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Quickly, who's the nation's largest collector of comic books, a reading staple of American kids that ranged from such heroes as Batman and Superman to Captain Marvel?

Shazaam! Would you believe the prestigious and staid Library of Congress?

Barring any evidence to the contrary, the Library of Congress believes that it has more comic books than anyone, a total of about 2,000 separate titles and approximately 37,000 comics.

From this treasure trove of comic books the Library will pull a few select issues for an exhibit in October featuring two great heroes, Batman and Superman.

The exhibit will include Superman comic books from 1943, 1951, 1962 and 1973. It will also feature Batman comics from 1946, the issue of December of 1950-January 1951, 1966, and 1973.

But if that's not enough for comic book fans, the Library of Congress exhibit will also feature full color excerpts from books by an expert in the field, E. Nelson Bridwell —"Superman from the Thirties to the Seventies' and "Batman from the Thirties to the Seventies."

While the exhibit concentrates on Superman and Batman, it is evidence of the importance of the comic book as an integral part of Ameri can culture. Each month, in addition to comics it already has, the library receives from 100 to 200 new issues through copyright deposit.

Sociologists and historians have found comics to be an important part of their study of American life.

The comic strip was first popularized in the 1890s by R. F. Outcault with his "Hogan's Alley" in the New York World and then with his "The Yellow Kid" in the New York Journal.

But it was not until the late 1930s that the first comic books appeared.

Now comic book buffs will pay from $200 to $300 for a 10 cent copy of the first issue of "Action comics" from 1938—which introduced Superman—or as much as $275 for a copy of the 1939 issue of "Detective Comics" that introduced Batman.

"At one time, comic books could be read only in the Rare Book Room of the Library of Congress and usage was restricted to scholars with a serious intention of publishing the results of their research," a spokeswoman said. "Comic books are now available in the Newspaper and Current Periodical Room."

"Only those issues in an advanced state of deterioration are not in service," the spokeswoman said.

Everybody's body needs carbohydrates

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like your opinion on sugar in the diet. I read an article that stated that anyone who eats ordinary meals containing fruits, potatoes and other vegetables, cereals, breads, meats, eggs and milk is getting ample carbohydrates for his needs. He could go through life comfortably without using a spoonful of added sweetening. In fact, this article states some nutritional observers think we'd be better off if our sugar supply were to disappear. What is your opinion? Also, when one is told by his physician that he has low blood sugar, should he add more sugar to his diet or use less.

Dear Reader — It is important to have a sufficient amount of carbohydrates in the diet from foods that contain important vitamins and minerals The body doesn't function well without carbohydrates. This can cause a disturbance in the body chemistry called ketosis. The accumulation of ketone bodies in an untreated diabetic leads to diabetic coma, a serious medical problem. Continued loss of ketones from the urine in this condition also depletes the body of important minerals, including calcium, which accelerates or aggravates the problem of degeneration of the spine and loss of calcium from the bones.

The term carbohydrates includes vegetables, cereals, fruits, as well as the sweets, which include sugar, honey, syrups, jams and jellies. It is perfectly true that a person can get along quite well from a health point of view if they never use any sweets at all, and, instead, got all of their carbohydrates from fresh fruits, vegetables and cereals. Milk, our principal source of calcium, also contains appreciable amounts of carbohydrates.

Earliest man was more of a vegetarian and early fossils show grinding-like teeth of the vegetarian as seen in other primates, as opposed to the canine overhanging teeth seen in carnivores. Those living in the jungle and tropical regions in places where plant food was abundant were more apt to be vegetarians. It is not true that early man did without carbohydrates. Early cave drawings show primitive man obtaining honey from wild bees.

Sugars or sweets are sometimes very useful, particularly if you need to provide large amount of energy in a small amount of bulk for some medical reason. The biggest drawback of most of the sugars and sweets is that they do not contain any significant amounts of vitamins and minerals (blackstrap molasses though is a good source for iron). When true low blood sugar is present and is responsible for the symptoms, then the diet should be one which restricts concentrated sweets, specifically sugars and syrups, jellies and jams. In most instances these individuals can continue to use vegetables and cereals without added sweetners

Not all cases of low blood sugar are rellated specifically to the diet. There are rare examples in which a tumor of the pancreas is the cause. When the tumor is removed this usually will solve the problem.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of the Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on low blood sugar, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Low Blood Sugar" booklet.

Even grandmasters can be checkmated

Although middle-game checkmates are rare in grandmaster chess, threats of checkmate or threats of threats of checkmate appear and reappear in many games. Sometimes the threat will force a weakness in the defender's pawn position and-or the threat will gain time to position an attacking piece.

Infrequently the attacker's checkmate cannot be countered satisfactorily and the defender must lose heavy material to avoid it. The attacker will make a drastic sacrifice or sacrifices if he sees that a costly (for his opponent) mate threat can be achieved.

WHITE

For example, Bent Larsen (white) reached the position in diagram one against Donald Byrne at the San Antonio "Fried Chicken" Tournament last year. Habitually tuned to sharp moves, Larsen made the ncessary sacrifice at this point to achieve a winning mate threat.

He directly played 1) RXPch!! After . . . RPxR the game continued with 2) QxP check, K-R1: 3) Q-R6 check, K-N1; and 4) R-Q3 threatening checkmate. The black king is exposed and the black pieces have limited availability for defense.

Byrne was able to stop the mate with . . .Q-N5 check, but lost his queen after 5) R-N3, QxR; and 6) KBPxQ.

Material is now roughly even but black's ordeal, commencing with 1) RxP check, is not over. Larsen's threat of 7) Q-N6 check, K-RI,; 8) BxP with the danger of Q-R6 mate among others compelled back to play . . . B-K5 to control key white squares needed by the black king.

(Diagram 2)

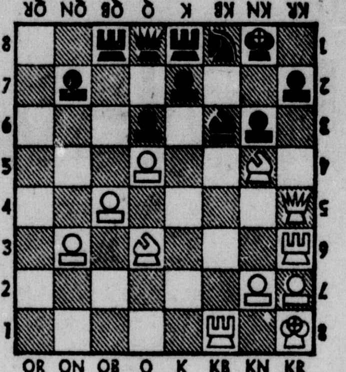
Larsen
WHITE

White was then able to pick up the bishop by a series of checks (7) Q-N5 check, K-R2; 8) Q-R4 check, K-N2; 9) QxB) and black resigned because of his material disavantage. Black's return of material by the queen sacrifice had not stopped white's threats. It was Byrne who made the ultimate sacirfice.

Even such meager and ultimately futile defense as Byrne had was not available to Sammy Rsheyvsky in the following position reached in the Interzonal tournament at Petropolis, Brazil against Lajos Portisch.

(Diagram 3)
BLACK
Reshevsky



Portisch
WHITE

Portisch, with all his pieces massed against the black king, has an immediate and straightforward win as against the defending pieces are cut off from effective defense of the king.

What is the winning move? Answer: BxP achieves the breakthrough as PxB leads to a forced mate by white. Try to work it out.

Riles schedules 2 fund-raisers for 2nd term

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles has scheduled fund-raising dinners in Los Angeles and San Francisco next month for his planned re-election campaign.

Riles, although not making a formal declaration, has said he probably will seek a second term as the state's top education official.

The $50-a-plate dinners will be held Oct. 16 at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco and Oct. 24 at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles. An aide said they are expected to raise about $500,000.

Riles became the first black in California history to be elected to statewide office when he rose from political obscurity to unseat incumbent Max Rafferty in 1970.

New method may identify those prone to heart attack

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Heart researchers announced that examination of coronary arteries might indicate what persons are most susceptible to instant death from heart attack.

Dr. Meyer Friedman headed a six-member team which examined the habits, behavior patterns and pathological findings of 69 persons who died of coronaries. The findings were reported in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

During the study at Marin General Hospital in Greenbrae and the Harold Brunn Institute of the Mount Zion Hospital and Medical Center, the deaths were broken down for the first time by researchers into "instantaneous" and "sudden."

The 32 instantaneous deaths occurred within 30 seconds of the first symptoms while the 37 sudden deaths ranged from one minute to 24 hours.

In more than half of the instantaneous deaths, Friedman said. The left anterior descending coronary artery of the heart had been totally obstructed "perhaps months or years" before death. And in 44 per cent of the same subjects, two of their four main coronary arteries had been totally blocked.

However only three such old obstructions were found in the 34 sudden death patients.

These findings "have been possible to obtain only in the last several years because of the previous unavailability of precise and safe diagnostic coronary cinearteriography," said Friedman.

"We believe .. that now with the advent of safe coronary angiography and the results of the present pathological findings, foolproof detection and finally truly effective treatment of the subject who is dangerously prone to instantaneous coronary death is at hand."

Clinically, the researchers said the instantaneous deaths differed from sudden coronary arrest by:

—Taking place abruptly and usually without earlier symptoms

—Being far more likely to occur during or immediately after severe or even moderate exertion

—Appearing to be brought on by ventricular fibrillation (rapid uncoordinated contractions of the heart ventricles leading to loss of synchronization between heartbeat and pulsebeat)

The study also suggested that exercise may be particularly and unexpectedly lethal.

"Sixteen (50 per cent) of the instantaneous cardiac arrest cases had been indulging in either severe (jogging 3, carrying heavy objects 3, calisthenics 2, running 1, playing handball 1, digging a ditch 1) or moderate walking 3, golfing 1, gardening 1, physical activity within 120 seconds of their demise," said the study.

"On the other hand, only three (10 per cent) of the sudden cardiac arrest cases had been indulging in either severe or moderate physical activity immediately prior to their demise."

Other elements of the survey indicated

—The majority of the 69 death cases drank little or no alcoholic beverages

—78 per cent of the instantaneous death and 89 per cent of the sudden death cases had been cigarette smokers

—54 per cent of the sudden cardiac cases and 22 per cent of the instantaneous cases had been obese prior to death.

Song lyrics are 'poems'

Bob Dylan really a poet; his book seems to show it

NEW YORK (UPI) —"If I can't please everybody," says singer-composer Bob Dylan, "I might as well not please nobody at all."

So begins a book he has compiled of his own song lyrics dating from the beginnings in 1964 to the album "New Morning," released about three years ago.

It's a cryptic message— followed in parentheses by the words: "There's but so many people and I just can't please them all" —and what it means exactly probably will be bandied about among Dylan's fans and critics for some time to come.

The book —"Writings and Drawings by Bob Dylan" (Knopf, $6.95) —is thick, 8-½ by 10-½ inches in size and more than 300 pages long. The jacket is cerise with one of Dylan's many drawings on the front cover, a picture of him on the back. Inside are the lyrics to all his songs through 1970, liner notes from record jackets and rambling comments on who and what he is.

"Somewheres back I took the time to start playin' the guitar," he writes. "Somewheres back I took time to start singin'. Somewheres back I took the time to start writin'. But I never ever did take the time to find out why..."

Rather than a book of lyrics, really, this is a book of poetry. Those who know Dylan's music will have a difficult time reading the verse without hearing the melody that it accompanies, familiar as the songs are. But the words—his wit, his wisdom—still will stand alone:

"Through the mad mystic hammering of the wind ripping hail the sky cracked its poems in naked wonder..."

"Darkness at the break of noon, shadows even the silver spoon, the handmade blade, the child's balloon eclipses both the sun and moon. To understand, you know too soon. There is no sense in trying..."

And from perhaps his best work to date, "Hey, Mr. Tambourine Man":

"Then take me disappearin' through the smoke rings of my mind, down the foggy ruins of time, far past the frozen leaves, the haunted, frightened trees, out to the windy beach, far from the twisted reach of crazy sorrow..."

One question raised about the book is whether it signals Dylan's self-demise as a folk music hero ("I might as well not please nobody at all"). Why would anyone as gifted and prolific as Dylan lump all his songs into one large volume— quite unlike the "retrospective" books one buys in the music store—unless he is ready to try something new?

One critic, and Dylan aficionado, Peter Knobler, writing in the current edition of the rock magazine Crawdaddy, says Dylan's departure from music is "possible, but not very likely.

Los Angeles sewer system is gigantic

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Every day the City of Los Angeles generates 350 million gallons of sewage. That's about 125 gallons for every man, woman and child within its boundaries.

The liquid and solid waste produced in homes, businesses and industry is quietly carried away undergound through more than 5,800 miles of mainline sewers, enough pipeline to reach from here to Washington, D. C. and back again.

The pipelines range in size from about the diameter of a pie tin to the height and width of a train car. The largest sewer pipeline is 10 ½ feet high and 12 ¼ feet wide.

The lines weave in and out through various ventilation chambers, siphons, pumping plants and about 100,000 manholes peeking up out of the street pavement along the city's roadways. Some of the manholes extend 100 feet into the ground and are large enough for inspection boats.

This underground world is under the purview of some 250 public works employes including engineers, chemists, superintendents and mechanics. Their job is to service and maintain the sewer system on a 24 hous a day basis, a $2 million payroll for the city.

Major contributors to the city's waste production are industries. They are permitted to discharge liquid wastes into the sanitary sewers and storm drains provided they are sufficiently pollutant-free to meet water quality control standards.

Industry is inspected regularly for compliance, and the cost of administering the monitoring program is carried through annual inspection fees.

Bureau of Sanitation workers also must constantly inspect and clean the sewer lines and pumping plans which lift the sewage from low-lying areas.

But the sewer lines are only artificial riverways and conduits whose main task is to carry the wastes to three major land outfalls—collecting points for sewage from many incoming lines.

One of these outfalls, which measures some 9 ¼ feet in diameter, is a tunnel built under the Los Angeles International Airport.

The outfalls collect all the material and send it to the treatment plants where the real work of processing the sewage begins.

The main treatment facility is the Hyperion Treatment Plant at Playa del Rey Beach, a few miles southwest of downtown Los Angeles.

The Hyperion plant, built in 1950, was the turning point in efficient waste disposal for the city. Prior to 1950, the Santa Monica Bay and many of the city's beaches were polluted and some condemned.

The plant and the sewer system cost a total of $75 million.

What happens to the waste material at the Hyperion plant involves a series of separation procedures.

Raw waste enters the plant and all types of coarse debris is ground up in seven bar screens and four disintegrators.

Next stop is the grit removal tanks. Sand and mineral matter is allowed to settle, leaving the lighter organic material. The grit is separated in a process which takes about 10 minutes. Then it is washed and taken by truck for use as land fill.

The bulk of the waste continues through the primary treatment process, all the time metered so the flow is steadily controlled.

The primary treatment is like a glass jar filled with mud and water. After a while the mud will settle to the bottom of the jar. In much the same way, solid waste material is allowed to settle to the bottom of 12 primary sedimentation tanks covered by concrete slabs.

It takes about 1 ½ hours for the solid matter to settle and the grease, and floating matter to rise to the top.

Grease skimmers collect the floatable material and wooden cross pieces scrape the bottom for the solid or sludge matter. Both the sludge and the grease are removed to digestion tanks and the rest of the liquid waste is ready to be pumped out to sea.

But the remainder of the flow is sent through an activated sludge process. Activated sludge is organic matter which is combined with oxygen. The oxygen accelerates the natural breakdown of the organic matter by bacteria.

This is accomplished in 32 open seperation tanks, each 300 feet long—about the length of a football field—30 feet wide and 15 feet deep. Compressed air is sent into the tanks which hold the activated sludge for about six and a half hours before it is purified.

Finally, the sludge and the liquidin which it is suspended is piped to one of 20 uncovered final sedimentation tanks. There the sludge is settled out substantially free of organic matter and sent back through the cycling process wither to the seperation tanks or to the primary sedimentation tanks.

What is left is clear water which is pumped out through funnel lines five miles out in the Pacific Ocean. It gushes into a submarine canyon 200 feet deep and is spread over an area about one mile in diameter. Sometimes chlorine is added to control any leftover bacteria at two chlorination stations at sea.

The treatment process goes on at the Hyperion plant and at the Terminal Island plant. Beach waters are tested every day at 17 beach stations for water quality.

Every week the bay waters are tested, and a 65-foot oceanographic vessel cruises the waters to monitor for pollution.

But what about the sludge that isn't clear enough to be sent out to sea?

That sludge is sent through digesters, 18 tanks where the bacteria is nurtured in an oxygen free atmosphere kept at about body temperature. Live steam is shot into the tanks to keep up the heat so that bacteria can break down the organic material.

About half of the sludge is transformed into a gas consiting of two-thirds methane which is then used to fuel the plant's generators and pumps and one-third carbon dioxide. Any leftover fuel is sold to the city's Department of Water and Power Scattergood Steam Plant.

The other half of the sludge is a humus-like substance which is passed through vibrating screens. What doesn't pass through is hauled to land fill sites by truck, and what does is pumped seven miles out to sea.

The plant gets about 94 per cent of its power from gas produced by its own sludge digestion system and much of the sewer line flow moves solely by the force of gravity. The system is almost totally self-sufficient.

In the future, the Bureau of Sanitation hopes to reclaim waste waters for use in the irrigation of golf courses, park lands and greenbelts throughout the semi-arid Southern California area. Reclaimed water could conceivably be drawn directly from the sewer lines and converted at proposed reclamation plants.

San Francisco was linked with the East by the Pony Express in 1860 and by the railroad in 1869.

But Demond Wilson's a star

Redd overshadows 'son'

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Demond Wilson lives in the shadow of Redd Foxx in their weekly television series, "Sanford and Son," but away from work Demond is very much his own, swinging man.

Wilson is a talkative, outgoing bachelor with a string of racial jokes. He pokes gentle fun at the black-white dilemma. But as a black he also feels deeply about civil rights.

Of his role as Lamont Sanford, the actor says: "I like to present blacks in the proper light.

"I grew up in Harlem where there are a lot of Lamonts."

He has written some episodes for the NBC series but hasn't sold any to the producers. Wilson says he is waiting for one he thinks worthy of an Emmy award before he submits them.

Wilson lives in an apartment in the San Fernando valley, about three minutes from the NBC studios where he reports to work at 8 a.m. six times a week.

Unlike many shows, "Sanford and Son" doesn't use cue cards so it is necessary for Demond and Redd to memorize 60 pages of dialogue weekly.

Wilson has decorated his two-bedroom apartment with fastidious care. He bought a combination of French provincial, modern and contemporary furniture in clean, classic lines.

He keeps a second bedroom for visiting friends and relatives. Both his parents and sister continue to live in New York City, but he also has aunts and cousins in his native Valdosta, Ga.

When Wilson moved to Southern California two years ago he brought nothing with him except his clothes. His wardrobe is a great source of pride.

"I'm known as Peter Prep," he says, in reference to his Ivy League image. "I never wear sandals or go out of the house in blue jeans. You can't dress like that when you drive a big Cadillac like I do."

Wilson likes to run three miles a day at the beach to stay trim, a pasttime he enjoys irregularly when the show is in production. When he can't get to the beach he jogs in place in his apartment.

A former college (Hunter College) and high school basketball star, Wilson is unable to play tennis or golf because of a shoulder separation.

Wilson's roots are still in Harlem although he has no plans to return there except to visit family and friends. And his bachelor status may change any day.

He has been dating the same girl for several months and has dinner with her every night.

Happily, he reports, she is the finest cook in the western hemisphere, spoiling him with curry dishes, fetuccini and, he adds with a chuckle, spareribs. There are evenings when Demond dons an apron and does the cooking himself.

On weekends Demond and his girl friend (whom he wants to keep secret until they announce their engagement) attend as many movies as possible. Occasionally they visit Redd Foxx and his wife.

Wilson has no pets and doesn't want any. He's planning, however, to buy a tankful of tropical fish, not so much for their company as the tranquilizing effect of their constant water ballet.

A veteran of Vietnam (1966-67) Demond is content with life, concluding: "I never had it so good."

EDITORIAL Opinion

Jersey Democrats cite win formula

It's a strange sort of political year in New Jersey. Listen to Brendan Byrne, the Democratic nominee for governor, make his case before some conventioners at Atlantic City.

"I've never been a candidate for public office in my life . . . There's nothing that makes me a good politician, a good speaker, or even a good candidate . . .

"I don't know it all. I don't know a lot of things."

With Jersey hip-deep in political scandals, talk like that may go over big. It's a good year to profess inexperience, and even a little ignorance.

Of course Byrne doesn't want that kind of thing taken too literally. He lets the customers know he was an aide for a time to former Gov. Robert Meyner, that he headed the state's Public Utilities Commission, spent nine years as prosecutor in Essex County (Newark), and just quit as Superior Court judge in Morris County.

So the plan is to offer him as clean but not too green. Byrne's strategists don't know any more than do those of his GOP rival, U.S. Rep. Charles Sandman, about the prospective impact of Watergate in this important race. But they figure if it makes New Jersey voters just a little more attentive to character at a time their own state is in a mess, Byrne may be the new face they're looking for.

"Shopworn" is one of the key labels they pin on Sandman.

If Byrne is new, he's also stiff, especially for an Irishman with seven kids. His managers know it, and it makes them a little nervous. Some top Democrats privately fear he'll blow something big before November election day.

But top aides like Richare Leone, a Muskie man last year, and Lew Kaden, once with Robert Kennedy, can't see Byrne giving away what they think is a safe lead. They think Sandman, the veteran legislator from Cape May who himself has six kids, has piled up enough "negatives" in 17 years in office to keep Byrne on the winning side.

In branding the GOP nominee a "rightwinger," a splinter candidate," they'll tell you he's got an incrediby bad labor record — that he's voted against higher minimum wages, better worker safety, food stamps for the poor, even "hot and cold running water" for migrant workers.

Byrne's managers add that if Sandman argues he's done all this as the taxpayer's friend, it amounts to overkill. They think that when they get through laying out Sandman's record, his presumed advantage as the "gut issue" candidate will evaporate. rate.

Says Kaden of Sandman's showing at a recent confrontation of the contenders in Smithville:

"He sounded like he was running for chairman of the board of General Motors."

Well, that's the easy part of a New Jersey report. But, dashing from northern cities to Cape May, you find the total scene and the tons of "facts" baffling. Both the sights and the talk are a shifting montage which eludes definition.

Many gauges say the economy booms, but rail lines totter in or near bankruptcy, high unemployment smothers heavily black Newark, pollution is so bad Sandman dares to say a deepwater port (with threat of oil spills) couldn't hurt. Crime perils the streets.

Bright new houses fill up the long coastline, yet the piney, swampy inland is nearly a human desert. Large areas seem a throwback to the 1940s. Can there be a real New Jersey?

Skylab discovery

One of the most important results of Skylab II, in terms of future life down here on earth, may have been a simple experiment conducted by the crew of the orbiting laboratory.

Using a special furnace, Capt. Alan L. Bean, Maj. Jack R. Lousma and Dr. Owen K. Garriott melted parts of two crystals, then allowed them to cool and reform into new crystals.

On earth, materials that must be melted in their construction, such as metals and electronic crystals, develop impurities or improper mixing because of gravity. This problem does not exist in the weightless environment of space.

By studying how molten materials cool in space, scientists believe they may learn how to construct materials on earth of such purity that their strength and reliability would be increased vastly beyond present standards.

Some of the possibilities are superpure crystals which could perform as many as 750,000 functions compared to the present 200 in a pocket calculator; tiny television cameras that would operate without lights; steel up to 1,000 times stronger, jet engines that could run at higher temperatures, giving more power with less pollution; the efficient conversion of solar energy to electricity.

According to one scientist, Dr. Harry C. Gatos of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the ultimate impact of controlling the chemical composition and structure of materials "is beyond the most far-out-science fiction type of imagination."

Is Nixon backstabbing Agnew?

WASHINGTON — Three major congressional committees have secretly ordered studies of how Congress should respond to the constitutional challenge of ruling on a possible replacement for Vice President Spiro Agnew.

One preliminary study by the Senate Judiciary Committee began more than two weeks ago at a time when Agnew's aides were pooh-poohing any talk of resignation. The other two probes were ordered this week by the House Judiciary and Senate Rules committees.

All three surveys are intended to prepare Congress for possible eventualities. The committees have no positive information that Agnew might actually resign in the wake of the grand jury investigation of Maryland kickback charges.

Although the replacement of a Vice President would be unprecedented in American history, the Senate Judiciary study has already found guidelines in Congress' own rules and in the legislative history of the 25th Amendment. The six-year-old amendment says both houses of Congress must rule on any presidential nominee to succeed a Vice President.

Chairmen

If two sets of hearings are held under the 25th Amendment as is normal on legislation, the Senate Judiciary staff investigation has found it would be headed by Senate Rules chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., and House Judiciary chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J. Both are well-regarded, fair-minded lawyers.

One of the most intriguing precedents discovered by the Senate Judiciary staff has eerie parallels with the present situation. Thirty-six years ago, then-Sen. Hugo Black was picked by Pres. Franklin Roosevelt for the Supreme Court. So highly thought of was Black by his Senate conferees that they skipped committee hearings on the controversial nomination. It went straight to the Senate floor where it was approved.

Today, two of the men mentioned in the speculation as replacements for Agnew are also senators — Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Hugh Scott, R.-Pa., either of whom could conceivably pass the Senate without hearings.

Another possibility is that Cannon's Rules Committee and Rodino's Judiciary group would hold joint hearings. Rodino's legislative sleuths have already discovered that a decade ago the House Judiciary and Senate Finance committees were ordered by an unusual Act of Congress jointly to study a taxation question. Although House Judiciary wound up doing almost all the work, the old act is a clear precedent for joint vice presidential hearings.

Select committees

One of several other possibilities turned up by the studies is that a select committee would be appointed by each House or a joint select committee would be appointed by both houses. However, Senate historians feel any effort by the leadership to dislodge Rodino or Cannon as chairmen would be a flagrant slap.

Presidential taping not new idea

With the first acknowledgment that White House conversations in the Oval Office had been recorded, all of us who have conferred confidentially in that office immediately sought mentally to reconstruct those conversations imagining that they might now be made public.

I didn't sweat — but I "gulped" once or twice. The GSA (General Services Administration) confirms that four former Presidents (F.D.R., Eisenhower, Kennedy and L.B.J.) did have recordings made of at least some of their private conversations without advising the principals taking part in those conversations that they were being recorded.

President Franklin Roosevelt had the telephones tapped in both the offices and homes of some of his closest aides. The libraries of Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson include thousands of tapes of confidential conversations. The Kennedy Library's senior archivist, William Moss, says existing recordings of telephone conversations and face-to-face meetings involving Kennedy and others will not be made public "for a long time," if only for "security reasons."

He implies that military classification is involved in some of the tapes. Certainly some might embarrass foreign chiefs of state — to our diplomatic disadvantage. And it is likely that the reputations of living individuals might be irreparably damaged of those tapes were to include, for example, executive briefings on potential appointees.

When a presidential appointment is pending, there are necessarily some very frank discussions of each appointee's qualifications. The L.B.J. Library includes tapes which are not to be made public before the year 2500.

And tapes made by previous Presidents — perhaps L.B.J. — would likely include such privately harmless but publicly damaging stuff as unbecoming ribald humor and intemperate profanity. On the other hand, a record of unofficial utterances in the Chief Executive's office eventually may have historical significance. Some examples:

When Harry Truman became President he got this advice from former Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn: "From here on you're going to have a lot of people around you. They'll try to put a wall around you and cut you off from any ideas but theirs. They will hypnotize you by telling you what a great man you are. But, Harry, both you and I know you ain't."

When President Nixon was elected, L. B. J. told him to enjoy his Inauguration Day because "that is the only day when you will be President of the United States. Starting the day after inauguration you will be subject to the veto of The Washington Post, the New York Times and three networks."

And to a trusted confident, L.B.J. also had this to say about his protege, Bobby Baker. As Baker faced trial, Lyndon Johnson said, "He knows where all the skeletons are. If he talks, I could be the first President to go to prison — and 20 U.S. congressmen or former congressmen would go with me."

Gossip for today

A newspaper LETTER TO THE EDITOR points out somewhat cynically that:

"Everybody wants a good environment but not at the expense of dependable, around-the-clock electrical service."

Which quite accurately describes the attitude of most Americans today. It is going to take more than just a few brown-outs to convince us that maybe in the interest of a clearer environment and energy conservation, we should give up our electric toothbrushes; electric trash mashers, electric razors, electric garbage disposals, electric carving knives, electric sun tan lamps, combs and hair dryers.

However, if worst comes to worst and we finally get scared enough to decide to do our bit to help correlate the environment and the energy crisis, we can not only give up all those before mentioned goodies but also really show our patriotism by installing old fashioned door knockers in place of electric door bells; by changing over from electric to wind-up clocks; by shutting off the electric blanket and adding a comforter to the bed; by outlawing rock and roll band amplifiers; by insisting that secretaries use manually operated typewriters instead of the electric variety; by disconnecting the electric can opener and knife sharpener; and finally (and greater patriotism than this hath no man, woman or child.) we can shut off our TV sets for the duration.

Yes, we can do all of those things if that is what it is going to take to improve the environment and avoid the brownouts. But my guess is we'll think it all over and finally settle for brown skies, a brown taste in our mouths, possible nuclear fall-out and MORE ELECTRICITY.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

A president needs to be a politician

There were the Democrats, spread all over national television, collecting pledges of some $5.4 million to pay off their party's debt and build campaign funds. And their telethon chairman, John Y. Brown, dropped in one of the worst lines any party man could utter.

He told his listeners and the nation it was time to stop electing politicians and to begin picking "statesmen" for public office. On the scene at Los Angeles, the applause was warm. But Brown could not have been more wrong.

To be sure, he didn't invent this nonsense. Since the days of King George III, Americans have been captivated by the idea that their public offices could best be filled by "non-politicans." The notion has appealed especially with respect to the presidency.

In fact, it's the purest fantasy and has been responsible for more mischief and ineptitude than almost anything else in U.S. public life. Before he went on camera, telethon chariman Brown should have scanned a newspaper written by Thomas E. Cronin, a young scholar currently at the Center for the Sutdy of Democratic Institutions.

Cronin's piece was most specifically applied to President Nixon and his difficulties, but its theme is timeless. Said Cronin:

". . .a president cannot and should not avoid being openly political. . .that is, he must negotiate and mediate between groups, compromise polar differences and find acceptable alternatives."

In Cronin's view, the presidency "is a very political office and political and partisan leadership are as much needed as foreign policy statesmanship and symbolic leadership."

Everything a president does, the scholar added, "has political consequences, and each explicitly political act has consequences for the state of the presidency."

To attempt to divorce this high office from politics presupposes, in Cronin's judgement, a "significantly different political system than ours, which is glued together in such large measure by ambiguity, compromise, and the extensive sharing of powers."

Perceptive historians have thoroughly documented this country's habitual, crippling distaste for politicians. Cronin's thesis is that Richard Nixon practicied this "escape from politics" from the outset of his tenure, with Watergate the most disastrous but not the only damaging result.

For, the easiest way to be "statesmanlike" is to focus heavily upon foreign policy, generally the great unifier. Out of the Nixon administration's own mouth, with the words carefully tracked by Cronin, that is how he has seen his role.

But that concentration, with its inevitable stress upon secret and closed-door dealings, came at the expense of fuller, more open attention to a wide range of domestic problems which are the real heart and stuff of politics. Conflicts in this field, if solvable at all, are resolved largely by presidents acting openly as mediator and as what Cronin called "coalition-builder."

His final pleas include mature recognition that presidents should be not merely political but "vigorous partisan leaders as well." Only in myth has Mr. Nixon so acted.

18-year-olds must still register for the draft

Does an 18-year-old still have to register for the draft? B. N., Pomona.

Yes. If he is within the 30-day grace period after his 18th birthday, he can fill out forms obtainable from the central fire station at Mission Boulevard and Park Avenue, Pomona.

If the 30 days have elapsed, he should go to his Selective Service office. For residents of Pomona and other communities in eastern Los Angeles County, the office is located at 2091 Colorado Blvd., Pasadena. San Bernardino County residents go to 547 N. Sierra Way, San Bernardino.

Although the draft became inactive June 30, Congress has the right to revive it if deemed necessary.

I read an ad in a newspaper about World Wide Systems, a firm that would teach you all about heavy equipment.

I wrote and asked for more information. A few days later they called my home collect and told me if I went through the course, they would get me an operating engineer's card and a job.

They asked a starting fee of $195. I sent the money in. I received a contract from World Wide by mail.

Among statements in the contract was this one: "I further certify that there have been no verbal or written agreements or promises made to the applicant other than those appearing in this agreement."

Upon reading this, I wrote and asked for my money back. They do not want to return it. — J. M., Pomona.

You sent us a copy of the contract. The statement you quoted from was to have been signed by a representative of World Wide Systems.

The contract provides for training only and states that it is unlawful for World Wide officers or representatives to guarantee or promise employment.

It is unfortunate that your telephone conversation cannot be verified but fortunate, since you don't want the course, that you signed no contract. If you had signed up, you would be out $895 instead of $195.

The reply we received to an inquiry addressed to World Wide Systems in Indianapolis was a copy of a letter addressed to you. It was a form letter with a few words and figures filled in where spaces had been left for that purpose.

World Wide claims it submitted to you 20 units of pretraining data, constituting the first 100 hours of the 200 being offered, and that you accepted this material and completed it, as shown by your answer sheets.

The firm says you may keep the 20 units and you will be given full credit for your $195 if you want to complete the training later on.

Ward will be arraigned in Pomona Municipal Court.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A 31-year-old man from North Carolina had only been here a short time and he learned something recently — the hard way.

At 9:40 a.m. Benny Melton donned a stocking mask, pulled out a revolver and rushed the door of a Bank of America branch office, attempting to jar it open with his shoulder.

The door didn't give and Melton bounced back into the arms of a security guard, who had been watching in his car as he waited to come to work.

"In North Carolina the banks open at 9 a.m.," said a confused Melton.

They open at 10 a.m. in Los Angeles.

37 students in running for merit scholarships

Thirty-seven students from 12 Pomona Valley area high schools have been named semifinalists in the 1974 national Merit Scholarship competition.

They will compete for 3,100 merit scholarships to be awarded next spring.

Semifinialists must qualify as finalists to advance in the competition for merit scholarships. To become finalists, they must receive the endorsement of their schools, confirm their high examination scores and provide evidence of their academic and other accomplishments.

Ninety per cent or more of the semifinalists are expected to become finalists. Each finalist will receive a certificate of merit and be considered for a scholarship.

Pomona Valley semifinalists, by their schools, are:

New roles and classes noted as Claremont High classes resume

CLAREMONT — New responsibilities and new courses of study are evident at Claremont High during the start of another school year.

Dan Stevenson has been appointed associate principal. His position includes being the curricular leader as well as the school manager. He will work directly under Principal Alex Hughes.

Stevenson came to the Claremont Unified School District in 1967 to accept the position of dean of boys at Claremont High, and in 1968 was named assistant principal in charge of curriculum and guidance.

Mrs. Barbara Hinkle has changed jobs, too. She came to the district business office in 1966, and a year later became secretary to the assistant principal in charge of business services at Claremont High. A year later she took the job of secretary for Hughes.

Mrs. Hinkle has been attending college classes since 1962, and was a recent graduate at La Verne College. She is enrolled in the intern program at La Verne College and will teach in the business department at Claremont High.

A new course at Claremont High entitled, "Contemporary Studies," is being taken by about 80 students and offers a unique learning experience.

The course is built around the concept of an American city and includes English, history and science courses. The students will study all phases of a city's operation including landscaping, rapid transit, traffic control, government, architectural awareness and environmental impact.

Toward the end of the course, the students will construct a model city, and become involved in the problems of their own community.

Chino student hit by sniper

CHINO — A Chino High student returning to his car in the school parking lot after a football game dance was the target of a sniper early Saturday morning, police reported.

Bruce Peebles, 16, 11804 Vernon Ave., Chino, was treated for bullet wounds in the neck at Chino General Hospital and released.

Peebles told police he was returning to his car about 12:05 a.m. when he heard a shot, and was struck in the back of the neck. The bullet entered and exited from his neck.

Mrs. Landin heads school bilingual unit

POMONA — Mrs. Esther Landin, a parent at Madison Elementary School, is newly elected president of the Community Advisory Committee of the Pomona Unified School District's bilingual education program.

She and other new officers were presented at a program presented in Spanish and English recently in the cafeteria at Hamilton Elementary School.

Those serving with Mrs. Landin are Mrs. Vicky Perez, Hamilton parent, vice president; Mrs. Linda Perez, Hamilton, treasurer; Martha Fisher, Roosevelt, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Doris Morales, Westmont, secretary; Mrs. Guadalupe Sandoval, Simons and Garey, assistant secretary; Mrs. Carla Mindiola, Washington, telephone chairman; Tom Lopez, Westmont, city adviser; and Ken Noonan of the Pomona Unified School District, district adviser.

The district's bilingual education program, which this fall is placing bilingual teachers in 19 classrooms to do part of their teaching in English and part in Sapnish, was explained.

A number of parents attended inservice training sessions at the Hamilton school with the bilingual teachers just before school started.

They elected to form a community advisory committee to support the bilingual program in district schools, Noonan said.

New contact lens 4 times lighter

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A new bifocal contact lens, smaller than the pupil of the eye, has been developed by an optometrist in West Virginia, it was reported recently.

A seven-page report prepared by Dr. Claud A. Kendall of Fairmont, W. Va., for a meeting of the American Optometric Association said the patented lens would be widely available for fittings in 1974.

Twelve years of research produced the lens which is four times thinner than those now on the market, Kendall said. Present bifocal contact lenses have a so-called "ballast," making the close-range segment heavier and causing it to hang on the bottom.

Educational grants available for Spanish-speaking students

Spanish-speaking students needing money to continue their education after high school are urged by a Nixon administration official to apply for Basic Educational Opportunity Grants.

"The program should benefit an estimated one-half million students who might otherwise be unable to continue their education," said Henry M. Ramirez, chairman of the Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for Spanish-Speaking People. He is a former Pomona resident.

Ramirez said more than $122 million is available under the grants program, which is administered by the Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"Although the grants are limited to first-year, full-time postsecondary school students, the program marks a major step in making higher education available to all young people who desire it, especially Spanish-speaking," said Ramirez.

Under the grant program, students in financial need may obtain funds to help pay their educational expenses at any approved college, university, vocational school, technical institute or hospital school of nursing.

How much a student or his family can contribute affects the amount of his basic grant and is determined according to a formula established by the U.S. Office of Education.

To apply for a basic grant, an Application for Determination of Expected Family Contribution must be obtained, filled out, and mailed to Post Office Box 3, Iowa City, Iowa 52240.

Within a month, the student is notified of the amount of his family's expected contribution. He then submits the notification to the school of his choice, which calculates the amount of the basic grant to which he is entitled.

Application forms are available at student financial aid offices at post secondary institutions, high school guidance offices, post offices, state employment offices, county agricultural extension agents, Talent Search, Upward Bound, and Student Special Services projects.

Forms may also be obtained by writing to Box G, Iowa City, Iowa 52240, or the the Cabinet Committee, 1707 H Street, N.W. Washington, D.C. 20506.

Other forms of federal student assistance such as supplemental educational opportunity grants, college work-study, national direct student loans, and guaranteed student loans, are available in addition to basic grants.

For further information on basic grants and other student financial aid programs, students should contact their high school counselor or the financial aid officer at the school in which they expect to enroll.

Jurors react favorably to all-videotape trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Jurors reacted favorably to California's first all-videotape trial and also ruled in favor of a woman who was injured in an automobile accident.

Testimony, taken weeks ago, was presented on two television screens facing jurors, while other screens were in front of the judge and the spectators.

Since attorneys had edited the tapes previously, the jurors were spared courtroom arguments about which evidence was admissable.

All the jurors agreed the TV system was a good approach when the trial ended recently, although two had minor reservations.

A secretary said, "It gets kind of draggy after a while." And a teacher declared, "At least at home we can get up and walk around."

Two immunization clinics to be held for youngsters

POMONA — Two free immunization clinics to protect children against polio, measles, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough will be given at the county health center here during the next month.

Dr. Jonas Naujokaitis, acting district health officer for the Pomona office, said the clinics are offered in place of an immunization program which up to now was conducted in the schools. He said the health department is no longer going out to the schools.

The first of the clinics will be held from 4 to 8 p.m. Wednesday at the health center, 750 S. Park Ave. A subsequent clinic is scheduled for Oct. 24.

Inoculations will be given against diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough—all one shot—for children under 6. For older youngsters the injection against whooping cough must be given separately, the health officer said. Oral vaccines against polio may be taken at the time of the vaccinations.

But, according to Dr. Naujokaitis, inoculations against measles will not be given on the same night as polio vaccines, except in emergency cases, because both carry live cultures.

The Pomona clinic is part of 58 locations offering immunization against diseases on the same dates throughout the county. Health officials have recently voiced concern about the large number of parents who have not kept their youngsters fully immunized.

Another 180,000 children between 1 and 5 have not been immunized against measles, a disease that kills more youngsters in the U.S. than any other communicable disease, he said.

Is Nixon backstabbing Agnew?

While Rodino is new to his blue-ribbon Judiciary post, he has been an articulate veteran chairman of other lesser House units for years. And Cannon's committee, while it generally does fuddy-duddy business on Senate procedures, was the forum for dramatic hearings on former Senate majority secretary Bobby Baker exactly 10 years ago.

Meanwhile, the strain between President Nixon and Vice President Agnew is approaching the breaking point. The rival staffs have become hostile camps, spreading rumors and leaking stories against one another.

Sources close to Agnew believe the President has stirred up the charges against Agnew to divert public attention from his own role in the Watergate scandal.

"The charges against Agnew have created a marvelous distraction," said one source. "Now the President can offer up Agnew as a blood offering to placate the public."

Friends of Agnew tell us he is aware of the White House backstabbing but, nevertheless, refuses to believe the President is personally behind it. Spiro Agnew, said a friend, "has this feeling of awe for the presidency, for the White House, which inhibits him from coming to the inevitable conclusion [illegible] the President is knifing him."

Progress-Bulletin Real Estate

Convention report:

Condominium boom still booming

SAN DIEGO — The condominium boom that California is now experiencing is just the beginning.

"Brokerage opportunities already existing in the condominium resale market are insignificant compared with what they will be in the next five to 10 years," said R. Stanley Dybvig of Dayton, Ohio, president of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers.

He spoke recently at the California Real Estate Association's annual convention being held here.

"The tremendous upsurg in new condominium construction and the condominium conversion market, while not offering great opportunity for the individual Realtor at the present time, does offer possibilities for those who will arm themselves with the knowledge necessary to deal effectively with condominium resales."

Studies have shown the average age of condominium buyers is 50 to 55 years old, he added. "Because of movement to retirement communities, the desire to move closer to their children, and other factors, the condominium market is just beginning to churn."

Other speeches during the week-long conference included:

William R. Schoeffler of Sacramento, president of Schoeffler Investment Co., said too often real estate investments made to secure an income tax advantage or "writeoff" ignore the basic value components of a good investment.

Speaking specifically of real estate syndication, in which a group of small investors pool its money in a common venture, Schoeffler emphasized the importance of cash flow, equity buildup and potential appreciation.

"Unless it is economically viable, it is not a good investment vehicle," he said. Schoeffler suggested that before seeking professional advice, investors judge the investment potential of an offering using the following checklist:

— History and competence of the property manager; Does the investment have cash flow, equity buildup, good location?; What type of financing? Balloon Payment? Due date? Does the investment have cash reserves?; Does it call for assessments.

Charles H. Boxenbaum of Los Angeles, president of Sonnenblick-Goldman Corp. of California, predicted that economic and demographic forces will create a climate in which the demand for mortgage money over the next 10 years will be substantially greater than the supply.

"This imbalance is fueled by the demands of government and industry, the federal government's commitment to promote housing and urban renewal, and the dramatic growth of the family formation segment of our population. We do not see the traditional sources of mortgage money growing at a parallel rate."

Boxenbaum said the mortgage banker views money simply as a commodity. "It is no different from cement, wood, brick or drywall, and what we are doing is renting this commodity. We are interested in renting as much as we can at the lowest possible monthly payments."

Paul G. Reinke of Executive Consulting Services, Inc., Southfield, Mich., said that in its headlong rush to become organized and computerized, business often neglects its most important asset — people.

"The symptoms of this problem are found in the complaints voiced by those most important to the success of any business, its customers," he added.

"Poor workmanship, inconsiderate salespeople, poor service, no one seems to care — these are some of the things one hears repeatedly."

Reinke said the measure of any business is the quality of its personnel, whether measured in per-man sales or work force stability.

"We must refocus our attention on our most important asset — people. If we build organizations with the right people, properly selected, properly trained, and properly managed, we can put quality and craftsmanship back into our business culture."

Unified program for black, white realty groups is announced

SAN DIEGO — Joint meetings, joint educational progrms, and a common voice in the state Legislature are included in a four year plan announced here by black and white leaders of the real estate industry.

The plan was revealed at the California Real Estate Associaiton's annual convention here by Richard Van Valer of San Jose, CREA president and Fred Farley of Oakland, president of the state's black real estate organization, the California Association of Real Estate Brokers. They were joined at a news conference by Robert W. Karpe, California real estate commissioner.

The agreement, titled "Road to a Color-Blind Real Estate Profession—a Long Range Flexible Program," calls for joint real estate educational programs in 1974, a single lobbying office in Sacramento in 1975, and an amalgamation of "organization structure and officerships" in 1976. It makes 1977 the target for "full joint status."

The plan avoids the word "merger" since both groups feel there should be machinery for representing the problems of blacks, perhaps through a black institute within the joint association, officials said.

"CREA is not limited to white Realtors," said Van Valer. "We have many black and other minority group members. But we recognize that some of their interests and problems require special attention."

Farley said the black organization, now with just under 5,000 members, was formed 25 years ago because they felt it was needed.

"But we are all in the same business, serving the same human needs for housing. It was natural that we should eventually discover that black and white real estate professionals had more in common than what separated them."

Karpe said white and black leadership in the real estate industry in California is now agreement on a practical plan of action to bring the two groups closer together over the next several years.

"The public will be the beneficiary as we move a step closer to the American ideal of a color-blind society."

Karpe said he invited leaders of the two real estate groups two years ago to discuss mutual interests and problems, which ended in this program.

Long distance for a short call

NOME, Alaska (UPI) — Alaska's Little Diomede Island, which is just two miles from Soviet territory, has obtained telephone service through a hook-up with RCA Communications, Inc.

But if the Eskimos there want to ring up their neighbors on Russi's Big Diomede, they will have to call around the world to do so. RCA says the village bush phone offers almost the same service available anywhere else, including long distance service. But there is no direct connection across the Bering Strait which separates the two islands.

Course in housing is set at UCLA

LOS ANGELES — A six week course titled "Professional Practices in the Housing Industry," will start Oct. 9 at UCLA.

The six sessions, sponsored by the Young Home Builders Council, will be held from 7 to 9:30 p.m. each Tuesday, Oct. 9 to Nov. 13, in room 2250, Young Hall.

"The course is designed for everyone interested in how builders manage basic programs of land acquisition and use, planning, financing, marketing, and all major elements in real estate developments which affect the builder's success," said John Konwiser, a Newport Beach home builder. He is the program coordinator and will be moderator at each lecture.

The subjects and speakers include: Oct. 9, "Real Estate and Construction Financing," presented by George Smith, vice president of Sonnenblick-Goldman, Inc., Century City; Oct. 16, "Structuring the Joint Venture," presented by Thomas Peckenpaugh, partner in Kalmbach, DeMarco, Knapp and Chillingsworth, Los Angeles; Oct. 23, "Condominium Laws, Financing and Zoning," presented by Konwiser, president of the Konwiser Corp.

Oct. 30, "New Land Planning Developments," presented by Walter Richardson Associates, architects, Costa Mesa; Nov. 6, "Presenting Your Package to the Lender," Konwiser; and Nov. 13, "Marketing with Imagination," presented by Beverly Thompson, president of Beverly Thompson Interiors, Inc., Newport Beach.

Registration can be made at the class at the first session. Application for the course can be made by writing to UCLA Extension, P.O. Box 24901, Dept. K, Los Angeles 90024. The fee of $60 must be paid at the door or accompany the request for enrollment. Enrollment can be made at the UCLA extension offices.

Banks report increases in mortgage financing

WASHINGTON — The gloomy housing outlook has some bright spots, reports Eugene H. Adams, president of the American Bankers Association (ABA).

Citing from the latest report released by the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), Adams pointed to major increases by the nation's 14,000 banks in five areas of mortgage lending for one-to-four family homes.

According to HUD figures, the banks:

— Originated 59 per cent more in long term loans for the first six months of 1973, compared to the first half of 1974.

— Originated 31 per cent ($12.4 billion) of total mortgage loans for the first six months of this year.

—Increased their acquisition of construction loans by 14 per cent over the same 1972 period—from $3.75 billion to $4.28 billion.

— Put new commitments on the block during June, 1973, of $1.5 billion for construction and and long term loans—an increase of 5 per cent.

— Had outstanding commitments of $7.3 billion for construction and long term loans at the end of 1973 — about 38 per cent above the June, 1972, total.

Adams, who is also president of the First National Bank of Denver, said it was particularly gratifying to know that commitments to make future loans are holding up extremely well, since this is a good measure of loans actually being made today.

Banks again rank No. 1 on HUD's compilations of holdings of construction loans through June, 1973

In order were: banks, $14.4 billion; savings and loan associations, $11.7 billion; mortgage investment trusts, $7.2 billion; mutual savings banks, $1.3 billion; state and local credit agencies, $843 million, and life insurance companies, $389 million.

Adams said ABA surveys show that banks have more than $90 billion invested in municipal bonds.

"Some $60 billion of these are bonds for roads, sewers, waste treatment facilities, schools, fire and police departments, city hospitals—all the facilities neccessary for a community to function."

In addition, nearly 10 per cent of banking's $60 billion in commercial loans outstanding at the end of 1972 was in mobile home loans. According to the ABA mobile homes now account for 20 per cent of all single-family housing in the U. S. and 75 per cent of all single-family housing costing less than $20,000.

Each submitted proposal must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check, or a surety bond, payable to the County of Los Angeles in an amount equivalent to at least ten (10) percent of the total aggregate bid price of such proposal, as a guaranty that the bidder, if his proposal be accepted, will enter into and execute the awarded contract, and furnish the required bonds in connection therewith, in accordance with the terms of the aforementioned Specifications and Instructions to Bidders. In the event that a surety bond is submitted in lieu of a check, it shall be subjected to the condition that the surety thereon be approved by the County Auditor and County Counsel.

The Board of Supervisors reserves the right to reject any or all bids, and to waive technical errors and discrepancies, if to do so seems to best serve the interests of the County.

Realty president:

Federal plan needed to protect mortgage market

CHICAGO — Congress and federal agencies should develop a plan whereby the mortgage market will be assured of a proper proportion of funds from the total financial resources of the nation, said J. D. Sawyer, president of the National Association of Realtors.

He spoke in response to a speech by Rep. Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking Committee, in which the Texas Democrat proposed a system of credit rationing to make it possible for "plain people" to borrow money in times of severe inflation, such as the present.

Supporting Patman's advocacy of the allocation of credit resources to the mortgage market, Sawyer suggested a tax incentive program granting new mortgage tax credits to banks and savings and loan associations would be preferable to direct government regulation of credit.

"There has to be some method of allocating funds to make sure the mortgage market is going to receive its fair competitive share," he added.

"This is the third time the real estate industry has gone through the wringer in the past six years. In each credit crunch, the mortgage market has been the first hit and the last to recover.

"We believe that it would be irresponsible for government to permit this to happen a fourth time because the industry can't continue to survive these traumatic rises and falls in the credit market."

In his Washington speech, Chairman Patman was sharply critical of the "tight money" policy of the Federal Reserve Board, which he blamed for high interest rates and a resulting threatened slump in the homebuilding industry as mortage money becomes more costly.

"As a result," Patman said, "the average American—the plain people—have been left to compete with the corporate giants, the speculators, the gamblers and the fast-buck artists for available credit at 9, 10 and 11 per cent . . . In my opinion, we can no longer accept these eighteenth century monetary policies."

The position of the National Association of Realtors, according to Sawyer, is that a tax incentive plan for mortgage bankers should be one of the alternatives considered by Congress in attempting to deal with the problem of "credit crunches" in the mortgage market.

Brisk sales reported at Lewis development

ALTA LOMA — Twenty five of the 31 homes at the Lewis Homes — Alta Loma development have been "spoken for," officials report.

The brisk sales is attributed by the builder to the "total house" package offered the buyers.

"Not only are the kitchen appliances and carpeting of various rooms included in the purchase price, but even the window drapes and front yard lawn and sprinklers are already installed when the buyer moves in," said Edward Lynch, regional sales manager for Lewis Homes of California.

"Keeping our prices frozen at the same figures posted when Lewis Homes — Alta Loma opened 10 weeks ago has also been a strong factor in attracing home seekers," he added.

The three and four bedroom homes are priced from $25,450 to $26,900. Conventional financing and also Cal Vet loans of 4¼ per cent are among the purchasing arrangements available.

The homes also feature two bathrooms, garden kitchens equipped with built-in dishwashers, self cleaning ovens, ranges and disposal units, wall-to-wall carpeting in the living rooms, hallways and master bedrooms, and ceiling lights in all the bedrooms.

The development is located on Eastwood Avenue near Cielito Street. The sales office is open daily and also evenings by appointment.

The three and four bedroom homes are located near Walnut and Ramona avenues. VA, and conventional financing are available.

"We have conventional financing at present at the same interest rate as VA and FHA," said Downum. "We know this is limited, but we hope to have it available for at least for another month. We are also presently paying all the buyers' closing costs."

The development features underground utilities, concrete driveways, and sidewalks.

A sales office and three model homes are open daily from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Forecast's revision sees slowdown, not recession

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A slowdown, but not a recession, will start before the end of the year, bringing a slight easing of inflationary trends and increased unemployment in 1974, the UCLA Graduate School of Management has forecast.

In a quarterly revision of their annual business forecast, the economists said the problem facing government policy-planners now is to tread a narrow line between continued inflation and a full-blown recession.

The UCLA economists said the slowdown would bring lower corporate profits, a drop in housing construction in 1974 and a decline in currently unusually high short and long term interest rates.

Among the predictions in the quarterly revision:

—Unemployment will rise from an average 4.8 per cent this year to 5.2 per cent in 1974.

—Consumer prices will have risen 5.8 per cent by the end of 1973 and will go up 5 per cent during 1974.

—The stock market will "slowly recover" from the lows of the summer but will not surpass the peak levels of last January until the middle of next year.

—Automobile sales, including imports, will be a record 12 million in 1973 but will decline to about 11 million in 1974.

Initial OK on gaming license for Sam Davis

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) —The state gaming control board recently gave preliminary approval for a gambling license for entertainer Sammy Davis Jr., but he still must face more questioning.

Board chairman Philip Hannifin said there must have been recent "allegations reflecting on his (Davis') personal background" and the board will want to quiz Davis at another meeting Sept. 27 in Las Vegas.

Meade Dixon, Davis' attorney, said the entertainer would be present at the Las Vegas meeting but could not make the session because of previous commitments. Davis is seeking to be a director in Hotel Conquistador Inc., which operates the Tropicana Hotel and Country Club in Las Vegas.

Hannifin said these allegations may be "specious" but they must be examined. He would not disclose the exact nature of the allegations which he said came to light ater state officials completed the regular investigation of Davis' background.

Railroad service between the eastern and western parts of the United States was connected at a ceremony at Promontory, Utah, on May 10, 1896.

Gardeners to pay price for lost beehives

CONCORD, Calif. (UPI) —A beekeeper has gone out of business and he says weekend gardeners in his neighborhood will be sorry.

Pancho Bacciglieri sold all of his 42 hives after merchants complained about bee droppings and the City Council ordered him to sell all but 15 of the hives.

Backyard gardeners, Bacciglieri said recently, would be sorry because without the bees for fertilization tomato crops will disappear, string beans will wilt and flowers will fall by the wayside.

New housing declines in California

LOS ANGELES — New housing starts in California dipped in July to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 194,000 units, reports the Bank of America.

This is down almost 10 per cent from June and 15 per cent from a year ago, officials noted.

The major share of the decline was in apartment projects with five or more units. Single family homes increased to over 56 per cent of new starts.

The bank's economists expect the down trend in new starts to continue in the months ahead. They forecast total starts in 1973 of about 200,000 units.

He got wasps, but it cost him $1,200

CINCINNATI (UPI) —Robert Thompson lit a newspaper, climbed a ladder to reach a wasp nest under an eave on his porch—and burned down $1,200 worth of his home.

After responding to the fire alarm, Fire Marshal Thomas Guifoyle said the method worked.

"The wasps were all cleaned out."

Commissioners find way out to get raises

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — City commissioners get embarrassed voting themselves raises. So they found a way around it.

The commission agreed recently to conduct a public hearing on a plan basing the wages of five locally elected officials on the salary of the governor.

"It's to keep us from the embarrassment of having to set our own salaries," Finance Commissioner Jennings Phillips Jr. said.

The plan, if adopted, would give the mayor two-thirds of the governor's salary, commissioners 61.6 per cent, and the city auditor 80 per cent of the mayor's salary.

It would, if the governor's salary remains unchanged, give each city official a raise of about $2,000 per year.

The basis of the term "rap session" is from the French "en rapport," or "in harmony.

Algae halts water flow from north

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Foulsmelling algae in Caustaic Lake has halted the flow of Northern California water along the state's billion-dollar water project into Los Angeles, the department of Water Resources announced.

The blue-green algae occurred in a "small section" of the lake, located north of Los Angeles, a department spokesman said Tuesday. "It's a common thing that happens with new lakes because of all the nutrients."

He said it posed no health problems but was a case of "odor and slight coloring."

The water was turned off at the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California's Jensen Treatment Plant. To make up for the loss, the district which servers greater Los Angeles was using extra Colorado River water. The spokesman said there were no shortages.

The state said Caustaic Lake, which is about 30 per cent filled, was receiving more water at a faster rate in an attempt to alleviate the algae problem. Chemicals were being used in "localized areas" to kill the growth.

"We expect the algae to be cleared up in the next week or two," the spokesman said.

Town recreates Civil War mood

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri Town 1850, located southeast of nearby Independence, depicts a typical Missouri pre-Civil War village.

The town is free from commercialism and is being reconstructed on a 170 acre scenic site contributing to the feeling of remoteness which state officials believe is necessary to the mood of the town.

Dog should not eat pits with his fruit

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Lumpy is one of those dogs who is crazy about fruit. Any kind of fruit, ripe, green, almost rotten, he will still eat it. He seemed to get by pretty well with all the cherries he ate (pits and all) but now he is having quite a bit of trouble with the peaches. He usually throws up the peach pits. Will they hurt him? — O.D.

Dear O.D.: Probably not. It's the peach pits he doesn't throw up which would have the potential for doing him in. Just how hazardous they might be would depend on their size and-or his. Certainly one capable of blocking his intestine, for example, could prove deadly. A peach-pit stomach could cause anything from a simple gastritis to perforation and peritonitis. Your pooch's peaches should be pitted prior to consumption.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Geep, my guinea pig, has lost most of her hair in a long line right down her spine. It looks pretty good but a bit dull over the rest of her body. Is there anything I could give her that wouldn't hurt, to try to get that hair grown back? I know you don't know for sure but I would appreciate any suggestion. — R.B.

Dear R.B.: This type of alopacia (hair loss) in the guinea pig is often due to a fatty acid deficiency. You could try one of the commercial oils containing these essential fatty acids.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Having tried all of the new kitty litter deodorant sprays on the market, I can say they don't work nearly as well as the common, human, household disinfectant-deodorizing spray that I use. Actually, it doesn't work as well as I would like it to. My cat's urine is terribly strong. I wondered if you could suggest a better product? — D.S.

Dear D.S.: For keeping a litter box odors down, it's hard to beat providing a clean box frequently. Of the sprays, it is far safer to stick with those designed for the purpose. The human disinfectant sprays of some types could prove toxic to cats. To reduce the odor at its source avoid fish in your cat's diet and encourage him to drink more. If the odor persists, the doctor might prescribe oral medication to reduce it, but he would first want to check a urine sample — and probably the cat as well — to be sure the problem was not due to disease. You didn't say whether or not your cat is a male but, if so, neutering might solve the problem also.

The fisher is the fastest tree-traveling mammal. It can overtake a red squirrel or a marten and can even outrun a snowshoe hare on the ground.

New First Aid

Book redone from scratch

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) —If someone at your house suffers an avulsion wound, do you know what to do?

Such an injury involves the forcible separation or tearing off of fingers, toes or even a whole limb.

Several hundred-thousand toes and fingers are lost annually in the United States through accidental amputation via powermower. The avulsed wound isn't exactly rare.

That's one reason the new Red Cross First Aid book, redone from scratch, includes avulsion wounds in the index. Also suffocation from plastic bags, another something hazardous on the American scene but not yet invented when the basic standard first aid book came out in 1910.

New editions of that first text came out four times, the most recent in 1957. There are so many what's new items on the accident front now that only a completely new text would do for 1973, according to Charles W. Russell, national director of Red Cross Safety Programs.

Emphasis in the new book is on prevention. Mostly through prevention can the accident toll be lessened.

In the case of an avulsion wound, for example, it would be far better to prevent amputation of a finger or toe by a powermower. But when it happens, dealing with it correctly becomes imperative.

You keep the victim calm, stop the bleeding and call for help—all of which you probably remember from the old first aid instructions. What's in the new text is the added advice: Send or take the detached part to the hospital with the victim. As swiftly as possible. This is so the surgeon can try to sew it back on—if possible. Wrap the part in a sterile dressing.

The Red Cross also is out with a new advanced first aid and emergency care book, the one used in courses for policemen, firemen and others in the frontlines of medical emergencies.

The new standard book, titled "Standard First Aid and Personal Safety," includes for the first time problems created by drugs and their abuse.

The information for both texts and the latest procedures for giving emergency aid was provided by a special committee of the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council. This group says accidents "top all environmental problems."

Russell said in an interview it is hoped that one in every family will take a course based on the new standard book.

The standard first aid course takes from 14 to 21 hours of instruction. For the elementary grade level in schools there is a simplified course. Russell said a pilot instruction project now is under way to teach nonreaders and those whose reading ability is limited.

Russell said one of the most popular of all first aid instruction methods is the eight-hour multi-media course developed in cooperation with the Bell Telephone System. This involves movies, programmed workbooks and instructor-led practice sessions. It is available in Spanish and English. Russell said it accounted for a large part of the almost two million first aid certificates issued by the Red Cross in the past year.

The first aid books are among the top best sellers of all time. More than 33 million copies have been distributed by the Red Cross since 1910 and as many more have been sold to schools and other outlets.

Preventive measures suggested in the new standard first aid book include:

—Use sharp objects only for their intended purpose, handle them with care, and keep them out of reach of children.

—Do not allow children to run with wooden sticks or with articles that may break if the children fall (for example, bottles, glasses or plastic toys).

—Mark or identify large picture walk-through doors so that unsuspecting individuals will see them and not walk into them.

—Evaluate as sources of injury all household appliances and equipment for work or play, including power tools, lawnmowers, and all electrical equipment.

—Unplug electric cords when equipment is not in use.

—Instruct children not to play with or around television sets, electrical devices in the kitchen and bathroom, fans, power tools, household cleaning equipment, sewing machines, lawn tools and other dangerous objects.

—Be a good housekeeper. Check the home frequently for objects that may cause lacerations or puncture wounds.

—Sweep up broken glass promptly. Discard cracked china and glassware. Use nonbreakable dishes and containers for all children and around tile and cement surfaces.

—Remove nails for boards.

—Keep yards, garages, storage rooms, basements and play areas free of trash and bottles.

—Take special precautions with firearms and ammunition and observe safety rules.

—Keep guns and ammuniton in separate places, each protected by lock and key.

—Do not allow children to play with any guns, including pellet and BB guns.

—Assume that all guns, as you handle them, are loaded but never load a gun until you are ready to shoot it. Do not misuse blank cartridges; they can cause serious injury and even death.

—Do not allow children to play with fireworks. Avoid the temptation to show off with fireworks in front of them.

P.S. —Why not clip the list of preventive measures here and paste them on the inside of the bathroom medicine cabinet?

CARPETS AVAILABLE IN ALMOST ANY COLOR

Which colors do you like best? . . . The carpet industry offers an overwhelming array of colors in many designs and price ranges.

Because your carpet is the second largest area of color in your room, selecting a color for it is most important.

To simplify your choice, think in terms of color families. Then look for the exact shade or tint you like most . . . Medium shades are best if you want a minimum of maintenance. Multi-color carpets, such as tweeds, florals and stripes usually wear better and side soil better than solids.

In heavy traffic areas, such as family rooms and halls, you will enjoy carpets that won't show every footprint. Tight, dense texture such as loops and twists give the best service.

Also consider the practical side of carpet color and texture. Choose a color you can live with comfortably for a long time. Your carpet should be a joy to look at as well as feel.

Remember whatever your selection calls for . . . We can assist you in our wide choice of carpets from the finest mills.

Autumn colors

Fall is the time when everyone is reminded of the wonder of changing leaves, with reds, yellows, greens and so many shades of soft brown dominating the landscape. The same colors will dominate the smart woman's new wardrobe—but in ladylike fashion. The accent is on tweeds and plaids, the traditional fall wear, and you'll never go wrong in camel's hair. Tops on the plaid list is glen plaid, the same design so popular again these days in men's wear.

Soloist will present program for women

SUSAN GARNER

A Scripps College music major will present the program at the Women's Club of Claremont annual membership tea on Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the clubhouse, 343 W. 12th St., Claremont.

Soloist Susan Garner is the winner of the John C. Walker upper division award of the Pomona Valley Music Vocal Award. She also received the Gladys Pattison music award from Scripps College. The program soloist is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Garner of Covina.

Chairman of the membership tea is Mrs. Edward Jakowczyk, assisted by Mrs. Charles M. Eakin. Members of the executive board, Mmes. N. A. Weston, Albert W. Clarke, C. C. Castleberry, William Seanor and C. W. Russi, will be hostesses for the event.

New and old members of the Women's Club will be greeted by Mrs. John S. Reynolds, hospitality chairman, and Mrs. Blair Goodlin, vice chairman.

New members to be presented at the meeting are Mmes. Robert D. Sahwvan, James R. Lattin and Ted Mitchell. Guests of honor from the San Gabriel Valley District will be Mmes. Robert J. Renier, president; Henry Boas, first vice president; J. K. Doty, second vice president, and Joel C. Hutto, past district president.

Mrs. Samuel G. Scofield, general curator, will outline the activities of the new club year during the tea.

The class is held Mondays at 8 p.m. at the La Verne Community Building, 1550 Bonita Ave.

What's Going on At Griswold's

Let's 'em eat cake! How'd you like to sample 600 cakes in a day? That's what our Master Bakers did for the L.A. County Fair — from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.! Everyone broke for lunch and Ed laughingly said, "I think I'll go have a beer", much to the horror of the lady in charge as this would ruin his taste buds. He didn't have the beer, but I'd say his taste buds were already in sad shape! Griswold's personnel are giving demonstrations in the Home Arts building at the L.A. County Fair with Merimekko fabrics, use of various coffees of the world, wines, hors d'oeuvres, tortilla making and tips from our cooks and chefs.

Brides-to-be should mark their calendars for the Fall Bridal Seminars to be held Oct. 2 at The Indian Hill in Claremont and Oct. 17 at the Country House in Redlands. Outstanding speakers, displays and fashions make for an interesting evening. There is no charge and reservations are requested.

See You at Griswold's,
Betty

Paintings of horses now at 1st Federal

CLAREMONT — Paintings of horses by Chinese artist Dennis Yeh are on exhibit this month at the Claremont branch of Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association, 393 W. Foothill Blvd.

Yeh, a Ph.D. candidate in political science at Claremont Graduate School, is the son of Gen. Yeh Tsui Pai, a former commander in the nationalist Army, and famous for his own horse paintings. He influenced his son to take up art, starting him with eight years of study in the basis of all Chinese art, calligraphy.

Yeh's paintings are not intended to be photographic likenesses, but to capture what he describes as "the essential quality, the spirit of the horse, the happiness a horse has as a free spirit."

Yeh says his technique, and that of his father, differ from the traditional in that "they use all kinds of brushes, try to paint details right down to the lashes of the eyes." The young artist uses wool brushes which enable him to project a soft, graceful feeling. Yeh's horse paintings, significantly, never show a rider, nor is there every a landscape, true to his feeling that "horses should run free, without limitation of time or space."

TV notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC has changed the air date for Frank Sinatra's one-hour special from Nov. 11 to Nov. 18, 8:30 p.m.

Elvis Presley's 90-minute song special made in Hawaii and initially broadcast by NBC last April will be repeated Nov. 14 at 8:30 p.m.

Sonny Bono of CBS' "The Sonny & Cher Comedy Hour" will be seen this season in his dramatic acting debut in the "Blood Kin" episode of ABC's "Marcus Welby, M.D." series. He has the role of an Italian immigrant.

The air date for Jackie Gleason's return to television in a one-hour special on CBS is Oct. 11 at 9 p.m. Art Carney, his long-time coworker in the old Gleason series, will be back with him.

A CBS Christmas period special will be a two-hour television version of "Miracle on 34th Street," starring Jane Alexander, David Hartman and Sebastian Cabot. The 1947 movie of that title has been shown on the tube several times over the years. The story, about a man who claims to be Santa Claus, also was the basis for a Broadway musical some years ago. The CBS air date is Dec. 14.

Charles M. Schultz's "Peanuts" comic strip kids will appear in three new half-hour specials for CBS during the 1973-74 season. There also will be repeats of three such shows seen in previous seasons. The new ones include a Thanksgiving story, an Easter story and a mystery.

Africa film industry faced with problems

By JANE BERGEROL

London Financial Times—UPI

Africa's infant motion picture industry is charting a trouble course, including an almost complete screen blackout of African productions in African productions in Africa itself and the rest of the world.

The reluctance of Western nations to show African Films is understandable. The U.S. market, for example, is a difficult enough one for any foreign director to crack. And most of the first generation of African film directors come from French-speaking Africa, so make French language films.

If it is naturally more difficult for these predominantly French language films to get a showing on American or British screens, despite growing interest in Africa, what distresses African film-makers is the blackout they get at home.

A glance at the films showing on any one day in Abidjan, the bustling modern capital of Ivory Coast, fails to turn up one African film. The city's 23 cinemas are filled with "spaghetti" westerns, Indian romances, Japanese adventures and a handful of the latest French box office successes. And Abidjan is no exception.

"These things are of no value to the people. They don't even understand the humor," says Lionel N'Gakane, one of the few African directors to have won a solid reputation. "African television is the same. It is the dumping grounds for all the old American serials."

To fight back and limit the power of the two or three international distributors who, they claim have a stranglehold on the African market, the Federation of African Film Makers is appealing to African governments to give them a share in cinema programs, even if they do not all go as far as Upper Volta, which nationalized the country's cinemas.

But some action at government level is essential, they feel, to impose regular showing of African films.

One problem they face is the reluctance of some governments to show films that are often critical of present-day Africa. Med Hondo, whose "Soleil O" is an irreverent and uncompromising exposure of racism and posturing by white and black alike, knows this well. For three years the film lay unused in his Paris flat.

"No one in France would come out of a showing shaking with fury. I said 'you flatter me'," he says. Now it has been playing to full houses in Paris and has collected wide acclaim. But its attack on the French in Africa today, and on some of N'Gakane's "black Frenchmen" have made several African countries reluctant to give it a screening and one government has banned it as "inflammatory".

U.S. will sell entire Hunters Point shipyard

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) Mayor Joseph Alioto announced that Hunters Point Naval Shipyard can be converted to civilian shipbuilding activities.

The Navy had insisted previously that it would retain 110 acres of the 963-acre installation, including one major drydock and ship repair facilities.

Alioto said the Department of Defense now is open to bids on the entire shipyard.

Alioto made his announcement after a closed-door meeting with Assistant Secretary of Defense Arthur Mendolia.

The Navy has been phasing out its ship repair operations at Hunters Point and proposed putting it in mothballs after next June 30th.

Bruins roar back for 55-18 victory

LOS ANGELES — UCLA fans needn't worry about the Bruins.

There is no question UCLA has a solid football team after it roared from behind to blister Iowa 55-18, Saturday night to rebound nicely from its opening loss to Nebraska two weeks ago.

Faced with a 10-3 deficit to the Hawkeyes after the first quarter, the Bruins outscored the Big Ten visitors, 21-0, in the second period to start the rout.

Iowa, a 31-7 loser to Michigan last week, was never a factor in the second half as UCLA enjoyed a picnic with sophomore John Sciarra at the controls.

Obviously, Iowa isn't in the same class as Nebraska but the Bruins are encouraged after the doubts expressed following their 40-13 defeat in Lincoln.

Sciarra, who alternated with senior Mark Harmon, scored two touchdowns and passed for another on a spectacular 46-yard play to freshman tight end Raymond Burks to earn Offensive Co-Player of the Game honors with fullback James McAlister.

The UCLA Wishbone blew apart as the Bruins ran for 405 yards with the Blair High twins Kermit Johnson and McAlister, doing most of the damaging.

Johnson became the Bruins' fifth all-time ground carrier as he ran for 87 yards on 12 carries to push his career total to 1,535. McAlister topped the statistics by gaining 101 yards on 18 tries.

Kicker Efren Herrera of La Puente also moved up in the UCLA record books by booting two field goals and seven extra points for a career 12 points, sixth on the all-time Bruin list.

Adding 61 yards on two completed passes in 12 attempts, the Bruins totaled 466 net yards to Iowa's 359. The Hawkeyes did most of their work through the air, completing 14 of 32 passes for 177 yards, but UCLA picked off four interceptions.

Defensively, UCLA was led by end Fulton Kuikendall with 14 unassisted tackles and one assist, but linebacker Rick Baska was named the Defensive Player of the Game for his interception, fumble recovery and three tackles.

It didn't take long for Iowa to get into the fumbling mood. On the third play of the game, quarterback Kyle Skogman's fumble on a pitch-out was recovered by safety Kent Pearce on the Hawkeye 24.

Five plays later, the Bruins settled for a 24-yard field goal by Herrera to light the scoreboard.

For the only time of the game, Iowa gave its fans something to cheer about. Harry Kokolus kicked a 45-yard field goal to tie the score and Skogman passed 11 yards to Brian Rollins for a touchdown and a 10-3 lead.

UCLA didn't trail for long. The Bruins drove 80 yards after the Iowa kickoff with McAlister scoring from the one to make it 10-10.

The Bruins struck again after Rick Baska recovered a Hawkeye fumble on the Iowa 27. After seven plays, Harmon dove over the line from the one to give UCLA a permanent lead.

Sciarra scored from the two with 4:38 left in the half to climax a 34-yard drive started when Pearce returned an interception 40 yards.

UCLA added 10 more points in the third quarter when Johnson ran nine yards around his left end for a touchdown to climax an 80-yard drive in 12 plays. Later in the period, Herrera kicked a 44-yard field goal to up the lead to 34-10.

L.A. goes wild but can't win

By BILL LANGLEY

LOS ANGELES — It was a big day for the Los Angeles Dodgers at the plate.

They banged out a hit every inning with four home runs against the Cincinnati Reds in the middle game of the crucial weekend series.

But the lack of pitching and fielding is causing the Dodgers to be thinking about second place and 1974.

Oh, there is still the slimmest chance the Dodgers will win the National League West but it's too far-fetched for anybody to seriously consider it.

Cincinnati, which goes for a weekend sweep today, cinched at least a tie for the West crown with its 11-9 victory Saturday, increasing its lead to 6½ games over the second-place Dodgers.

Sparky Anderson's Reds can wrap it up today as the champagne is on ice. Even if the Reds lose today, they still have six more games at home, needing only one victory, while the Dodgers close the campaign with a five-game trip to Atlanta and San Diego.

It was an early knockout Saturday as Cincy chased Don Sutton with seven runs in the first inning and added an eighth in the second for a giant 8-0 advantage.

Even with all that, Cincinnati lefthander Don Gullett couldn't record his 19th win as he was tagged for seven runs in 4 1-3 innings with Steve Garvey's three-run homer in the fifth—his second of the game—being the crushing blow.

Joe Ferguson matched Garvey with a two-run blast in the third and a solo drive in the ninth for his 24th and 25th—the highest for a Dodger since Frank Howard hit 28 in 1963—plus a double and single to increase his season RBI total to 88.

But the nine runs and 14 hits weren't enough to overtake the Reds, who used Pete Rose's two-run homer in the fifth and a final tally in the seventh to stay safely ahead.

The Dodgers still had hopes of pulling it out in the bottom of the ninth when Ferguson opened the inning with his second homer and Ron Cey singled.

But winning pitcher Pedro Borbon retired Garvey with Anderson going to his bullpen for the final two outs. Tom Hall got Willie Davis on a long fly to right and Clay Carroll did the job in getting Bill Russell on a force play.

The Dodgers gave the the Reds the game in the first inning on two official errors and several others which weren't put in the official box.

Rose's lead-off double should have been caught by leftfielder Manny Mota and rightfielder Ferguson misplayed Gullett's triple. Besides those, catcher Steve Yeager was charged with an error when second baseman Davey Lopes couldn't handle his throw on Joe Morgan's steal.

Shortstop Russell completed the inning by muffing Rose's grounders as the 32,343 customers booed.

"We didn't catch the ball very well," Dodger skipper Walt Alston admitted. "We made two errors but it should have been four of five. It was probably our worst played game of the whole season."

But Alston has some answers. "We came pretty far this season considering the inexperience of our catchers and infielders. Lopes played today with a bad back and was really hurting," he added.

There wasn't a lot of excitement in the Reds' clubhouse and Anderson still won't admit it's all over.

"I guess we have at least a tie," Sparky asked?

Demonstrating this is a week for records at Dodger Stadium, Rose's three hits made him the top switch-hitter in baseball history with 225 safeties, breaking the mark of 223 set by Frankie Frisco in 1923.

It seems most of the records have been set by the visitors.

DODGERS NOTES — In the home finale today, (2 p.m.) the Dodgers will pitch Tommy John (14-7) against Cincinnati's Fred Norman, 12-12 overall but 11-5 since joining the Reds on June 12 in what shapes up as the deal of the year for Cincy . . .

Many prizes, ranging from campers to bicycles, will be given out today on Fan Appreciation Day . . .

It will also be Autograph Day with 16 Dodgers scheduled to sign autographs between 12:50 and 1:20 p.m. at booths located throughout the stadium . . .

The Dodgers have hit 104 home runs this season for their highest total since 1966 when they hit 108 . . . Third base coach Tommy Lasorda celebrated his 46th birthday and tipped his cap to the fans.

Aaron pockets homer No. 712 against Houston

HOUSTON (UPI) — Hank Aaron, carrying his assault on Babe Ruth's career home run record down to the wire, belted No. 712 Saturday night—a three-run homer that gave the Atlanta Braves a 4-2 victory over the Houston Astros.

Aaron's sixth-inning shot, which stood 17,381 cheering fans on their feet even before he reached first base, pulled him to within two of Babe Ruth's mark of 714. Marty Perez and Darrell Evans singled before Aaron stroked the first pitch off loser Dave Roberts, 15-11, into the second row of the second deck 400-feet from home in leftfield.

Aaron wasn't originally supposed to play in the game. His name was left off the first Atlanta lineup but he said he felt so good when he came to the park he decided to play. Aaron will not decide until just before game time whether he will play Sunday.

The ball was worth $712, a bonus given by the Braves' ball club for returning Aaron's homers, but the fans fumbled the ball and it bounced back onto the playing field. Leftfielder Bob Watson retrieved it and tossed it to an Atlanta coach.

The other Atlanta run came on a homer by Paul Casanova in the third inning.

BRUNT OF THE ATTACK

Sacramento State's Bob Martinez makes a gain en route to a 117 yard evening against Cal Poly Saturday. Despite Martinez' strong running, which included one touchdown, the Broncos won, 31-17.

Zorn's passing paces Poly

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — It's been a restless week for head coach Roy Anderson. The Cal Poly skipper has been anxious to find out which Bronco team was going to show up to play Sacramento State.

Would it be the team that shocked Fresno State two weeks ago or the squad that played so horribly against Southern Utah last week.

Anderson found out Saturday night at Kellogg Field before 2,200 partisan fans. He got both teams.

In the first half Poly played like the team that traveled to Cedar City a week ago. But in the second half, Poly regained the form that beat Fresno State.

The Broncos overcame a 17-3 deficit and quarterback Jim Zorn fired four touchdowns passes to spark Poly to a 31-17 win over the Hornets from Sacramento State.

Trailing by 14-points late in the second period, the southpaw signal-caller spotted flanker Joe Fabian in the end zone for a five-yard TD pass. Klaus Trettin kicked his first of four extra points, to run his '73 string to seven, and the Broncos trailed 17-10.

The turning point of the game came midway through the third stanza when Poly turned down a 27-yard field goal by Trettin to try for a touchdown.

On the three pointer, the Hornets were guilty of off-sides and the five-yard penalty gave CP a fourth-and-one at the S. S. five-yard line.

On the next play Zorn hit Ron Tatum on a down-and out for the five yards and six points. This score tied the contest at 17-all with 3:36 left in the quarter.

The Broncos continued to take advantage of their momentum the rest of the way.

Defensive back Allen Wong intercepted a Hornet pass on Poly's 14-yard line.

On the next play, Zorn lofted an airball which Fabian ran under at the 48 and then outraced three defenders to complete the 86-yard score giving CP a 24-17 lead with nine seconds left in the third period.

The Broncs had already taken the sting out of the Hornets when defensive end Bill Embree recovered a bad snap from center on a punting situation at the Hornet eight.

Zorn then hit Fabian on an eight-yard score to complete the scoring.

Sacramento State amassed 220 yards rushing in the first half to lead it to a 17-point second quarter.

Roy Arregue booted a 27-yard field goal to tie the game at 3-3 early in the second quarter. Four minutes later, halfback Bob Martinez scooted around end for a 12-yard TD jaunt. Jack Myers concluded the Hornets' scoring with a three yard run with 3:29 before intermission.

The Broncs got on the scoreboard with 4:07 left in the opening stanza on Trettin's 21 yard field goal.

Linebacker Lonnie Mahi set up the score by knifing through the Hornet line to block a punt. Back Louie Perez picked up the loose ball at the 23 and raced to the nine. Four plays later Trettin split the uprights.

Zorn ended the evening with 13 of 35 completions and five interceptions to go along with four TD tosses. Fabian was on the receiving end on eight of those aerials for 199 yards and three scores. Tatum hauled in three for 32 yards and one score.

In 23-6 victory

SC depends on defense

ATLANTA (UPI) —It's beginning to appear that Southern Cal's hopes of repeating as national collegiate football champions will depend upon its defense.

The top-ranked Trojans, for the second Saturday in a row, failed to show the dazzling offense of a year ago in their 23-6 victory over Georgia Tech, a three-touchdown underdog.

With the heralded Anthony Davis averaging barely three yards per carry against the tougher-than-expected Tech defense, the Trojans were successful on only two scoring drives all afternoon.

The Southern Cal defense was something else. Four pass interceptions, three by Artimus Parker, a 48-yard punt return for a touchdown by Lynn Swann and a fumble recovery at the Georgia Tech 6 kept the pressure on the Yellow Jackets throughout the game.

"I had trouble seeing over all those huge defensive linemen while trying to pass down the middle," said Georgia Tech quarterback Jim Stevens, who completed only nine of 23 passes.

"The big difference was that Southern Cal never made a mistake, no interceptions, no fumbles," said Georgia Tech Coach Bill Fulcher. "I wish we could have said the same for us."

Swann scored the game's first touchdown on that punt return in the closing minute of the first period, and also scored the second, with 17 seconds left in the first half, on a 15-yard pass reception to pace the Trojans against the outmanned Yellow Jackets.

The Trojans, three-touchdown favorites, led only 17-6 until John McKay, the coach's son, caught a 15-yard touchdown pass with barely three minutes left to play.

The Trojans didn't get the first touchdown until the final minute of the first period and the offense could claim no credit for that. It came on Swann's 48-yard return after the out-manned Yellow Jackets were forced to kick from their own seven-yard line.

Georgia Tech actually trailed only 7-3 with 4:53 left in the first half, thanks to a 40-yard field goal by Cam Bonifay. But Swann widened the lead to 14-3 with only 17 seconds left in the half when he caught a 15-yard strike from quarterback Pat Haden who also threw the late game touchdown pass to McKay.

Georgia Tech marched 44 yards after the second half kickoff but bogged down at the Southern Cal 23 and Bonifay kicked his second 40-yard field goal to make the score 14-6 with five minutes gone in the third period.

The Trojans got a big break midway through the final period when James Sims recovered a Tech fumble at the host six one play after Jim Lance had kicked out of bounds on the Tech two-yard line. But the Yellow Jacket defense which had played over its head all afternoon, allowed the Trojans only three yards in three plays and Southern Cal had to settle for a 20-yard field goal by Chris Lamihelu.

The Trojans' final drive was started by the second of three pass interceptions by Artimus Parker and Southern Cal drove 62 yards with the pitch to McKay coming with 3:09 left on the clock.

The Southern Cal defense dominated play Saturday just as it did a week ago when the Trojans opened their season with a 17-0 victory over Arkansas. In addition to Parker's three interceptions, Marvin Cobb also had an interception and the Trojan forward wall kept Georgia Tech passer Jim Stevens off balance most of the afternoon.

Tech didn't even get its first first down until the final play of the first period and only got inside the Southern Cal 20-yard line once during the entire game.

Rams battle Falcons in Coliseum today

LOS ANGELES — It has been eight years since the city of Atlanta was granted an expansion franchise in the National Football League, and since that time the Falcons have become a title contender.

Rated to battle San Francisco for the NFC West championship by most national publications, the Falcons of coach Norm Van Brocklin had their best-ever season last year, finishing second with a 7-7 record.

It was a year in which the Los Angeles Rams slipped to 6-7-1 and third place, prompting owner Carroll Rosenbloom to hire a new head coach, a young perfectionist named Chuck Knox.

Both the Falcons and Rams had so-so pre-seasons in '73. But when the NFL campaign began last Sunday both were ready. While the Rams were upsetting Kansas City, 23-13, the Falcons flexed their muscles and routed New Orleans, 62-7.

Thus the stage is set for L.A.'s home opener against Atlanta today in the Coliseum. A crowd of more than 60,000 is expected to witness the 1 p.m. kickoff.

The two teams have played each other every year since '66 with the Rams winning 10 times, losing only once and tying twice. That loss, however, came last season in Georgia and it will be remembered for a long time. The score was a lopsided 31-3 as the Falcons set one club record with 297 yards rushing and another with six interceptions.

Dave Hampton and Art Malone were the Falcons backs that day, gaining 161 and 103 yards respectively. Last week against New Orleans, Hampton went 104 and Malone 57, and this pair is scheduled to start today.

Starting pitchers have changed, however, for both the Rams and Falcons. In that '72 game Pete Beathard opened in place of injured Roman Gabriel, who relieved and played the second half, while Bob Berry hurled for Atlanta. Beathard has since been dispatched to Kansas City, Gabriel to Philadelphia and Berry is in Minnesota.

John Hadl is now the Rams quarterback and although he wasn't pressed to throw at Kansas City, he was effective when he did, completing seven of nine for 95 yards and two touchdowns.

Meanwhile, Van Brocklin looked at his three quarterbacks during the preseason, then settled on 10-year veteran Dick Shiner over Bob Lee and young Pat Sullivan.

Shiner, who has been with five different NFL clubs, completed 13 of 15 for 227 yards and three touchdowns.

The Falcon quarterback is one of only two new faces in the Atlanta starting 22. The other is defensive tackle Mike Tilleman, the former Houston Oiler, who missed last week with a knee injury, but who is expected to return for the Rams.

Otherwide, it's a group of familiar faces who have become fixtures in Atlanta. They include a pair of stars at defensive ends (Claude Humphrey and John Zook), one of the premier middle linebackers (Tommy Nobis) and a secondary that may be the best in the NFL (corners Ken Reaves and Tom Hayes and safeties Ray Brown and Clarence Ellis).

Offensively, the Falcons like to run with Hampton (995 yards in '72) and Malone, but Shiner also has capable receivers in star tight end Jim Mitchell, who caught seven for 111 yards against New Orleans, and wide receivers Wes Chesson and Ken Burrow, who combined for three TDs in the Saints game.

Knox counters with a potent running attack of his own. Jim Bertelsen and Lawrence McCutcheon each went over the 100-yard rushing mark last week behind the crisp blocking of L.A.'s veteran offensive line.

Defensively, the Rams allowed two second-half touchdown passes, but otherwise contained the Chiefs. Led by Jack Youngblood, who had three, the Rams recorded five "sacks" on the Kansas City quarterbacks.

Knox also had words of praise for the play of linebackers Jack Reynolds, Isiah Robertson and Ken Geddes. Reynolds, in his first regular season start, recorded four tackles, five assists, one fumble recovery and one interception for 49 yards.

Following the Falcons game, the Rams hit the road for two weeks, visiting San Francisco and Houston before returning to the Coliseum to meet Dallas on Oct. 14.

Braves win, 35-6

A.L. buries Cavs

By SCOTT POINDEXTER
P-B Correspondent

UPLAND The Alta Loma High Braves broke open a 7-0 first quarter score with a 28-point second period, to bury the Montclair Cavaliers 35-6, Saturday night at Upland High.

The Braves rolled up 335 total yards to open their season on a devastating show of offensive strength. Jamie Broecker led Alta Loma on five consecutive scoring drives, passing for 77 yards and running 52. Kula Kuresa led the Braves in ground gaining with 80 yards in 12 carries.

Ted Pedvin opened up the scoring by taking a Montclair punt 69 yards back for the tally. On Alta Loma's next possession, Broecker drove the Braves down to the one-yard line and took it in from there.

Led by Bill Houtz, the Alta Loma defense utterly stopped the Cavalier offense on the next three times Montclair got the ball. In the second period, the Cavaliers were held to 23 yards rushing.

Bob Branchetti was the next hero for the Braves, taking a handoff on the Cavs 17 and running around end to up the score to 21-0. Three minutes later, Broecker hit Kuresa with a pass into the flat, and Kuresa took it 20 yards for the fourth score in as many possessions.

One minute later, Branchetti put the icing on the cake with 15-yard run up the middle of the field. At the halftime gun, Alta Loma had a sizable 35-0 lead.

Montclair had been held to a small 68 yard total both passing and rushing, while the Braves had close to 200. Kuresa had half of those yards. Branchetti had 44 yards in four carries.

The second half started with a gleam of hope for the Cavaliers, the first time the Braves got the ball, they didn't score, in fact, they couldn't even get a first down forcing a punt.

Montcclair took possession of the ball on their own 49, and in 15 plays went down to score on a one yard dive by Filbert Gonzales. The Braves were almost able to pull off a shutout, nearly holding Gonzales on a fourth and goal situation.

Gonzales was able to rush for 54 yards to lead the Cavaliers in rushing meanwhile Brent Jetton, left-handed quarterback for Montclair passes for 57 yards in 13 attempts, yet had two picked off.

Next Friday night, Alta Loma will take on another San Antonio League team when they face the Upland Highlanders in the warmup game to league play. Montclair will return the favor and take on Hacienda League's Ontario Jaguars at Chaffey High.

'Hens tied 14-all in wild, wild finish

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT—In as wild a windup as anyone could imagine, Whitman College came back to tie Pomona-Pitzer 14-14 Saturday night at Alumni Field.

A total of 15 points were scored in the final two minutes and 20 seconds, eight of them by the visiting Shockers from the state of Washington.

The Sagehens had scored on a 10-yard Larry Cenotto to Biff Sherman pass play in the second quarter. Steve Dewindt's kick made it 7-0, Pomona.

Whitman came back to score a touchdown a minute and 25 seconds into the second half on a 40-yard pass play from Ashley Miller to end Kelvin Spillman. But Mike Guisti's kick was wide and the 'Hens held a 7-6 edge down to the closing minutes of the game.

A break gave the Sagehens the ball on the Whitman 17. A bad pass from center to punter Frank Hanson turned the ball over to the Sagehens.

On the first play, Tony Soter burst through the right side of the Shocker line and scooted 17 yards for the touchdown. Again, DeWindt's kick was good and it looked like the 'Hens were home free, 14-6 with 2:20 remaining.

Whitman put the ball into play on its own 20-yard line after the kickoff. A Miller to Spillman pass was incomplete. But on the second play from scrimmage, the junior quarterback hit Spillman at the Pomona 30 where the 6-4, 170-pound sophomore eluded a host of tacklers and twisted and turned the remaining 30 yards for a 60-yard bomb.

It was obvious the visitors would go for the two-point conversion. Miller took the snap and faded back. And there wide open in the left side of the end zone was Spillman. He took the pass the score was tied 14-14 with a minute and half left.

But that wasn't all. Starting on his own 19, Cenotto took Pomona-Pitzer 76 yards in seven plays to give the Sagehens a second and goal on the Whitman five yard line.

A delay of game penalty moved the ball back to the 10. With no timeouts left, and 13 seconds remaining Cenotta passed to George Benson at the three, but Benson could go nowhere.

The 'Hens hurriedly lined up to try to kick a field goal. With players scrambling all over the field, the center snap came rolling end over end to DeWindt who tried to get off a pass as the clock ran out.

Officials called a penalty on Whitman but ruled that the foul occurred after the clock had run out.

One of the wildest openers in years had ended although Pomona coach Walt Ambord didn't think the game should have ended.

"How can you end the game on a penalty without giving us another play," he demanded.

But there was no one to answer his question.

Twin singles dump Angels

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—Back-to-back two-run singles by Larry Hisle and George Mitterwald in the third inning Saturday led the Minnesota Twins to a 6-3 victory over the California Angels.

With the bases loaded in the third, Hisle singled to to score Danny Monzon and Glenn Borgmann. Mitterwald then followed with his single.

Burt Blyleven scattered six Angel hits in recording his 19th victory of the season against 16 losses. California starter Rudy May lost his 16th game in 23 decisions.

The Angels made it 4-2 in the fourth when Mickey Rivers and Frank Robinson scored on Bob Oliver's double to center field.

Minnesota added two more runs in the fifth. Rod Carew and Hisle scored when Angels catcher John Stevenson threw the ball past third baseman Oliver trying to catch Carew stealing third base.

California scored its third run in the sixth on Robinson's 28th home run into the right-centerfield bleachers.

Grossmont wins Mission polo crown

AZUSA — Grossmont won the championship of the Mission Conference Water Polo Tournament Saturday at Citrus College, outscoring Orange Coast, 10-4 in the final game.

Host Citrus was sixth, losing to Southwestern, 14-3 in the consolation game. Chaffey was third, beating Palomar 8-6.

John Wolf and Harry Hinman scored three goals apiece to lead Chaffey's victory. John Hobson, Jim Currier and Bob Schneider accounted Citrus scores in the loss to Southwestern. Currier threw in the winning goal in a 7-6 victory over San Bernardino, sending the Owls into the final round of play.

MSAC was beaten in the finals of the Gaucho Invitational, 12-4, by Golden West. Henry Rodriguez was credited with two goals for the Mounties.

MSAC beat Ventura, 7-4, in the opener to advance to the finals. Bill Carlton put in three goals in that encounter.

Citrus will host the Citrus Invitational next Saturday, while MSAC hosts the second Mountie Invitational Friday and Saturday in a full weekend of water polo competition.

Citrus whips Palomar, Chaffey loses, 35-21

Citrus College started off the Mission Conference schedule with flourish Saturday evening, while Chaffey incurred a 0-1 dificit in its conference opener.

The Owls literally ran past Palomar, 20-7; while Chaffey was losing to Saddleback, 35-21.

Citrus picked up a total of 330 yards on the ground, along with 46 in the air. Palomar, meanwhile, ran for a minus 10 yards and could gain only 25 passing.

Doug Hopper gained 188 yards in 23 carries for the Owls, while Bill Strycula, son of Citrus coach John, scored a pair of touchdowns on keepers.

Strycula sent the Owls ahead in the second quarter with a one-yard plunge, while Palomar came back on a punt return by Ken Iacuaniello that brought the ball to the one.

Hopper put the Owls ahead for good with a 57 yard run in the third and Strycula iced the cake with another TD in the fourth.

Mounties outclass Golden West, 34-10

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT — Mt. San Antonio is apparently for real, a team not to be taken lightly.

The Mounties won their second in a row of the young season Saturday night, outclassing Golden West College of Huntington Beach, 34-10, at Memorial Stadium.

With a balanced offensive attack, 156 rushing and 149 passing, the Mounties put the game away late in the third period on a 24-yard field goal by Tom MacKenzie for a 20-10 lead.

Two fourth period TD passes of seven and 16 yards by quarterback Steve Myer and Bruce Alley only added icing to the cake.

Myer, the poised, young sophomore who led the nation's community college quarterbacks in completions a year ago, completed 14 of 28 passes for 149 yards and two scores. He mixed his calls nicely, using tailback Teddy Farmer on runs which totaled 124 yards on 27 carries. Six other runners carried nine times for 32 yards.

After spotting the visitors a three-point lead early in the first period, the Mounties scored on a 12-yard pass from Myer to Art Escajeda, a booming 48-yard field goal by McKenzie and Myer to John McIntyre pass which covered three yards, for a 17-10 halftime advantage.

Pat Thorpe's five-yard touchdown run near the end of the half accounted for Golden West's only touchdown.

Defensively, the Mounties capitalized on five fumbles and two pass interceptions by defensive back Larry Burrell.

Burrell's first theft setup MacKenzie's 24-yard field goal in the third period. His second interception and 16-yard return in the final period snuffed a Rustler drive which had penetrated to the MSAC 40-yard line.

But that was the story for Rustlers. Quarterback Danny Accamando worried the Mounties on the option, completing 10 of 20 for 107 yards passing, and an additional 57 yards on seven carries rushing. The fumbles and the pass interceptions nullified his efforts.

Both teams were penalized heavily — the Mounties 79 yards on nine infractions, and Golden West 69 yards on eight pealties.

Myer's main targets were split end Gil Stewart and Farmer. Both caught four passes. Stewart gained 61 yards. Farmer totaled 36 yards for 160 yards total offense.

In a tightly-contested first half the outcome at intermission 17-10, was decided on a Golden West fumble.

Walt Maddox fumbled Bruce Alley's' punt with little time left in the half and the Mounties had the ball with a first down at their own 46.

Myer completed a 29-yard pass to Stewart and followed that up with a 20-yard pass play on a screen pass to Farmer who carried the ball to the Golden West five. An offsides penalty on the Rustlers made it first and goal on the three and Myer hit McIntyre in the end zone for a touchdown and a 17-10 lead after McKenzie's extra point.

Myer completed eight of 14 for 100 yards and two touchdowns—the first one to Art Escajeda in the first period which covered 12 yards and gave MSAC a 7-3 lead.

Leopards fall in SCIAC opener, 20-7

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

WHITTIER — The 1973 edition of Roland Ortmayer's La Verne Leopards opened play here Saturday night with a Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference battle against the host Whittier Poets and a la Bobby Riggs, the Leos proved that a good defense is not enough without any offensive punch as Whittier scored a 20-7 victory.

It was the second game of the season for the Poets who wrote off Azusa Pacific last week, 16-6. That one-game experience showed early as Whittier converted two La Verne fumbles into scoring drives of 20 and 39 yards for a 13-0 first period lead.

Poet quarterback Jim Macdonald snuck over from the one for the first score and hit tight end Jim Lota on a 20-yard slant for the two scores as the Leos buried themselves in a hole early.

And as in years past, the La Verne squad simply does not have the offensive power to play catch-up football.

A spotty Leopard secondary placed La Verne in a deeper hole at halftime as Macdonald passed Whittier to a 51-yard scoring drive in the second quarter, covering final 20 yards himself on a scramble for a 2-0 cushion.

La Verne had a glorious opportunity late in the first half when Casey O'Groman recovered a Whittier fumble on the Poet 13. An off-side infraction helped La Verne get a first and goal at the two yard line. But then the frustration started.

Curtis Frick ran twice for a total gain of one yard, quarterback Marty Mercurio couldn't sneak it over and on fourth down from the one-foot line, Frick was stacked up again completing the Whittier goal-line stance.

Golden opportunity No. 2 popped up again as the Leo defense created another turnover at the start of the second half. Gus Newson intercepted a Macdonald pass on the Whittier 18, but La Verne fumbled on the first play.

In fact, the second half was all defensive with the only one able to move the ball being the officials. A total of 224 in penalties were assessed during the spirited battle, 87 against La Verne.

The Leos' only score was fittingly set up by the defense as Dave Long scampered 40 yards with an interception, giving La Verne first and goal at the eight.

Stags routed in opener

By TOM FAHEY
P-B Correspondent

CLAREMONT — The University of San Diego used a balanced attack to score 35 points in the first half, and hung on to defeat Claremont-Mudd, 35-7 Saturday at Claremont.

It was the season opener for the Claremont-Mudd Stags, who helped show it by fumbling seven times and throwing away three interceptions.

The first fumble came on the opening kickoff when Mike Graber couldn't find the handle, and the San Diego Toreros pounced on it at the 17-yard line.

The Toreros scored two plays later when Rich Paulson ran it in from the 14.

The rest of the first half was exactly the same. The Toreros marched up and down the field at will, scoring five more touchdowns.

The Stags could not move the ball in the first half as the Toreros defense continually came up with the big play.

The second half proved to be a different ball game. The Stags found themselves trailing 35-0, and they were determined to score. After the Toreros fumbled, the Stags had the ball in good position at the 40.

The drive was halted however and so Tony Bailey attempted a 50 yard field goal, but it sailed just to the left.

The Toreros tried to keep up their first half antics, but success was not to be found. The Stag defense led by defensive end San Reece, continually stifled any attemptted drive.

The lone score by Claremont-Mudd came after Terry Robertson intercepted a Torero pass at the Torero 20-yard line.

After two running plays produced only one yard, Stag quarterback Jamie Opatrny rolled out on third down looking to pass. All of his receivers were covered so he scampered for nine yards, and a first down at the the nine.

From there it took Bill Nash three times to score—the score coming on a one-yard plunge.

Nash proved to the Stag's most effective runner, picking up 68 yards on 15 carries.

The Stags had one other scoring opportunity, but Larry Caudillo intercepted Opatrny's pass in the end zone.

The final stats were overwhelmingly in San Diego's favor, as the Toreros gained 378 yards to the Stags' 197.

Top 10 come away victors

By United Press International

All of the nation's top 10 teams who were in action Saturday came through with victories but most of them had tougher times than expected.

No. 1 Southern California, successful on only two scoring drives, had to rely on its defense before nailing down a 23-6 triumph over George Tech; second ranked Nebraska needed a 21-point final quarter in order to whip 16th ranked North Carolina State 31-14; and fourth ranked Alabama found itself trailing 14-0 at halftime against Kentucky before rallying for a 28-14 Southeastern Conference victory.

Three other highly ranked teams, No. 6 Michigan, No. 7 Penn State and No. 10 Teneesee had things pretty much their own way. Michigan scored the first four times it had the ball to beat Stanford 47-10; quarterback Tom Shuman passed for two touchdowns and scored one himself to lead Penn State past Navy 39-0; and Tennessee whipped Army 37-18.

Flanker Lynn Swann score on a 48-yard punt return and 15-yard pass reception to lead Southern Cal past Georgia Tech. The Trojans, three-touchdown favorites, led only 17-6 until John McKay, the coach's son, caught a 15-yard touchdown pass with barely three minutes left to play.

Trailing 17-14 and facing a fourth and 17 situation in the final quarter, North Carolina State elected to try a fake punt which backfired when Bob Martin tackled Eddie Poole on the State 21. Five plays later Nebraska's sophomore I-back sensation, Tony Davis, crashed into the end zone from two yards out. The score came after quarterback David Humm had rammed one yard to put Nebraska ahead 24-14.

Alabama, stung into fury by two first-half Kentucky touchdowns, stormed back on a 100-yard second-half kickoff return by Willy Shelby. Trailing 14-0 at the half, Bama scored the first three times it had the ball in the third period. Quarterback Gary Rutledge directed the Crimson Tide on marcnes of 59 and 75 yards for its second and third touchdowns to save Bama from a monumental upset.

Michigan rushed for 257 yards and got two touchdowns from Ed Shuttleworth in its win over Stanford and Tennessee got three field goals from Ricky Townsend and a 29-yard touchdown pass from Condredge Holloway to Dan Morgan to whip Army.

Fifth-ranked Texas lost to Miami of Fla. 20-15 and 16th ranked Houston beat South Carolina 27-19 in Friday night action.

Eleventh ranked Notre Dame opened its campaign with a 44-0 thrashing of Northwestern, 12th ranked Auburn crushed Chattanooga 31-0, 15th ranked Oklahoma State throttled Arkansas 38-6, 18th ranked Missouri beat Virginia 31-7 and Maryland upset 19th ranked North Carolina 23-3.

Elsewhere, Illinois downed California 27-7, Miami of Ohio stunned Purdue 24-19, Michigan State upended Syracuse 14-8, Baylor held off Pitsburgh 20-14, West Virginia downed Virginia Tech 24-10, Duke got by Washington 23-21, Georgia stopped Clemson 31-14, Mississippi State thrashed Vanderbilt 52-21, Memphis State surprised Mississippi 17-13, Colorado edged Wisconsin 28-25, Southern Methodist beat Oregon State 35-16, Air Force squeezed past Oregon 24-17 and top ranked small college Delaware crushed Gettysburg 60-18.

Hubie Green jumps to five-stroke lead

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (UPI) Hubie Green tied the course record of six-under-par 65 for the second day in a row Saturday as he jumped out to a five-stroke lead in the rain-dampened $100,000 Broome County Open.

Green, of Panama City Beach, Fla., fired eight birdies en route to a three-round total of 199, 14 under par. He narrowly missed a putt on the 18th green which would have set a new course record of 64.

Tied for the lead with two other players after Friday's second round, Green now leads Burt Greene of Hattiesburgh, Miss., who shot a three-under-par 68 for the third day in a row for a three-round-score of 204, nine under par.

The two other leaders after Friday's round, Dwight Nevil of Newburgh, N.Y., and Bob E. Smith of Sacramento, Calif., both floundered, finishing with one-over-par 72's and three round totals of 206, seven under par.

Leonard Thompson of Lumberton, N.C., finished behind Nevil and Smith with a two-under-par 69 for a three-round score of 207.

Mike Wynn of Crittendon, Va., was next at 208, followed by three others at 209 and four at 210.

A threat of fog and rain prompted PGA officials to move back Saturday's starting time to 11 a.m. Overnight showers left the course soggy in many spots.

"I hate could weather, but right now I'm digging it more than I usually do," said Green, who said he played his first tournament in the pros in cold weather. In that tournament, he said he chipped from ice-frozen ground on many holes en route to a 65.

Green bogyed the first and 14th holes and he said "those bogeys really bothered me a lot."

But he scored four birdies on the front nine before consecutive birds on the ninth, 10th, 11th and 12th catapulted him into a big lead.

He putted carefully all day, especially on the 18th, when he had the shot to break the record. He sank putts ranging from 12 to 25 feet after good iron shots onto the greens.

"I've got a five-shot cushion and I'll probably be a little more conservative than I would be," Green said about Sunday's final round at the En-Joie C Golf Club.

Bert Greene was pleased with his third straight 68.

"Anytime I shoot better than 70 it will always make me happy," said Greene, 49th on the PGA's money-winning list.

"The hardest thing was putting because we hadn't played in cold weather like this all year. One swing and you're numb."

"I'm very happy because I'm not playing that well. I haven't been hitting tee shots well all week," said Greene, who had seven birdies and three bogeys on the day.

APC Cougars collect first win of '73 season, 32-14

AZUSA — Azusa-Pacific evened its season record to 1-1 Saturday afternoon by rolling over Occidental, 32-14. The Cougars posted a 20-0 lead before Oxy retaliated with a second quarter touchdown.

Azusa quarterback John Tully compleetd 10 of 13 passing attempts for 101 yards including a first quarter touchdown toss to Bryan[illegible]vens.

UCLA transfer Jim Farmer iced the game for all intents and purposes when he broke off a 27-yard run in the second quarter.

Oxy was charged with a safety in the third quarter, and a Dennis Koupal touchdown and Keith Harltey field goal pushed the score completely out of reach in the final quarter.

Farmer gained 110 yards on 13 carries.

The Cougars will try to one over .500 next week when they travel to Pomona for a game with the Sagehens.

Mounties place fourth in Moorpark x-country meet

THOUSAND OAKS — Mt. San Antonio College placed fourth Saturday in the Moorpark Invitational Cross Country Meet here.

The Mounties scored 70 points to finish behind first place Palomar (44), second place El Camino (57) and third place L. A. Valley (62). The MSAC 'B' team was sixth with 155 points.

Palomar's Dick Lee won the race in 20:09. MSAC's Steve Koenig, a letterman from two years ago who recently was discharged from the Army, was the only Mountie in the top 10, finishing eighth with a time of 20:54.

Host Moorpark was first and Citrus was second in the small schools division of the invitational. Citrus runner Ed Chaidez was the winner in 20:37.

The Mounties opened South Coast Conference play Friday with a 15-50 sweep of Orange Coast. MSAC hosts Cerritos in conference action next Friday. Cerritos lost to Santa Ana, 15-50, and Fullerton swept San Diego Mesa 15-48 in other conference meets this week.

Napoles scores unanimous win

TORONTO (UPI) — World welterweight champion Jose Napoles Saturday retained his title with a unanimous 15-round decision over Canada's Clyde Gray at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The 33-year old Cuban native, who emigrated to Mexico in 1960, won the fight on the tallies of the two ringside judges, 71-67 and 71-65. Referee Jay Edson scored it 70-67.

Earlier, Edson's tally was added incorrectly at 69-69 and the fight was declared a split decision for Napoles.

Gray was able to recover after a mandatory eight-count but on the whole was only able to maintain a defensive battle.

Gray, the Canadian and Commonwealth champion, had his best round in the 15th when he rallied strongly and stunned Napoles with a left hook.

The win was the 72nd in 78 fights for the champion and his 10th successful title defense. He won the title originally in 1969 from Curtis Cokes.

"I knew that it would be a good fight," Napoles said after the victory. "Clyde is a good fighter."

"He didn't hurt me but if he wants a return match he can have one. One thing I'll say is he's as good as the other guys I fought in the division," Napoles said.

Napoles said it was a left-hook that put Gray down in the fifth round as the Canadian was coming to him.

Alfredo Cruz, Napoles' trainer, said, "Napoles could have been better. He missed a lot of punches and he needed least another 15 days of training."

Gray, a native of Halifax, N.S., said he thought the fight was "close. I thought it could have gone either way. I'd fight him again."

An estimated crowd of 10,000 was on hand for the fight, the first in a series of 10 bouts to be promoted here during the fall and winter by Top-Rank Inc. and two Canadian companies.

Former world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, who is part of the promotion behind the series, introduced the fighters and was given a standing ovation.

an important message from Earl Scheib
... For over 30 years you've heard me say, "I'll paint any car for $29.95." Unfortunately, the rising cost of labor and materials has finally forced me into a position where I can no longer do so. But you can still take advantage of, what I think is, the biggest bargain in America. I guarantee to hold my price of $29.95 'til October first of this year. Remember that date . . . October first. I will still paint any car for $29.95 . . . 'til October 1st.

Quarter horses to highlight racing

POMONA — The spotlight will shift from the Thoroughbreds to the quarter horses Monday at the County Fair in Pomona as 10 of the fastest two-year-olds in the country battle in the $72,000 Pomona Quarter Horse Futurity, richest race ever run at the track.

Heading the field for the 350-yard dash are three horses owned by the Vessels Stallion Farm, and that trio is topped by Timeto Thinkrich, the brown colt who scored by one length in the $766,000 All American Futurity at Ruidoso in New Mexico.

Go Fartherfaster, fourth in the All American, and Tiny Be Mine, winner of the Juvenile Invitational at Los Alamitos the same day, will also represent Frank Vessels, Jr. in the Pomona Race.

Five divisions of the Futurity Trials were held last Monday to determine the 10 horses eligible to compete in the Futurity, and although all three of Vessels' horses qualified, Timeto Thinkrich did so while finishing second as a 1-5 favorite.

Fastest qualifier was Willett Barton's Cape Etta who scored by three quarters of a length in 17.80 seconds for the 350 yards. Winds of Spring, Sky of Diamond and I'ma On—the latter was the favorite in that division—also qualified.

Danny Cardoza will again ride Cape Etta who was posting her third career victory in six starts when she took a division of the trials.

Robert Adair has the call on Impressivley, another filly, who ran in 17.84 to upset Timeto Thinkrich and score the first win of her career.

Timeto Thinkrich, clocked in 17.92, will have John Watson in the saddle. Terry Lipham was named to ride Tiny Be Mine who took her division in 17.94, and Stanley Treasure will be aboard Go Fartherfaster, a winner in 18.01.

Lane's Red Hawk and Witchin' Hour complete the field. Kiptymy-Lou, Brandy's Star, Tita Mia and Captain Crunch are on the also-eligible list.

Top Thoroughbred race of the day is a mile and one-sixteenth allowance race for fillies and mares. Sea's Up, a contestant in the recent Bangles and Beads Stakes, will try to stretch out her speed against a field that will include Victorian Battler, Gaelic Coffee and Ruby Satan.

Lewis, Chacon sign for bouts

INGLEWOOD — World rated boxers Hedgemon Lewis and Bobby Chacon have been signed to box 10-rounders on the Rafael Herrera-Venice Borkorsor bantamweight title card at the Forum, October 13.

Lewis, holder of the New York version of the welterweight championship and the No. 1 contender, will meet tough Chucho Garcia of Reynosa, Mexico.

Chacon, the No. 6 ranking featherweight, returns to action against Famoso Gomez of Mexico City.

This will be Hedgemon's first Southland ring appearance since he decisioned Ruben Vasquez at the Forum, May 8, 1972.

The 21-year-old Chacon will be making his first local start since losing to Ruben Olivares, June 23 at the Forum.

Tickets are now on sale at the Forum box office and all Ticketron agencies for this outstanding program. They are priced at $15, $10, $7.50 and $5.

Pro football roundup

Miami, Dallas in spotlight

By United Press International

The numbers to watch in the National Football League this weekend are 19 and 100.

The Miami Dolphins will attempt to become the first team ever to win 19 consecutive games when they take on the Oakland Raiders at Berkeley Sunday while the Dallas Cowboys will go for the 100th victory in the history of the franchise when they host the New Orleans Saints Monday night.

If previous form means anything, the Dolphins are going to have the tougher task.

After Miami posted a perfect 17-0 record last year, the Dolphins rallied to beat San Francisco last Sunday to stretch the streak to 18.

If they can beat the Raiders at Berkeley—the game was shifted to the University of California campus because of a conflict with the A's at Oakland Stadium—the Dolphins will set one mark and tie another.

The Chicago Bears in 1933-34 and 1941-42 posted 18 straight triumphs but no team has won 19. It would also be the Dolphins 17th straight regular season triumph—tying the record of the 1933-34 Bears.

The Dolphins won their final regular season game of 1971 plus all 14 last season.

But the Raiders, after losing a tough test to Minnesota last week, will be determined to bounce back. It'll be the first time the clubs have met since the Raiders beat the Dolphins 21-14 in the playoffs at the end of Don Shula's first season at Miami in 1971.

Shula thinks the Dolphins have improved since then—which is certainly true. But, speaking like a coach, he adds, "Oakland has to be improved this year because of the addition of Bubba Smith and what he's capable of doing for their front four. We're well aware of Oakland's potential. Year in and year out, they're one of the best teams in football."

Shrugging off the winning streak, Shula says, "I'm not thinking about winning streaks. Our intention is to win every week—and let the historians do the talking about streaks."

But he was impressed with his team's comeback against the Forty-Niners. "I can't tell you how proud I am of this team for its second half performance. I think the Dolphins should be recognized as one of the alltime teams for their second half performances."

Dallas and Tom Landry—the only coach in the history of the franchise—will be shooting for their 100th win against New Orleans. Only nine other coaches have posted 100 wins. Dallas won only six games in its first six years but the Cowboys have won 74 since 1966 —the most for any team.

Beating New Orleans should be easy considering how the Saints were routed by Atlanta last week. But Landry will have trouble keeping the team interested in the game and the Cowboys weren't that impressive in beating Chicago last week.

There are 11 other games scheduled Sunday. Washington is at St. Louis, Cleveland is at Pittsburgh, Atlanta is at Los Angeles, Minnesota is at Chicago, Detroit is at Green Bay, San Francisco is at Denver, Philadelphia is at the New York Giants, Buffalo is at San Diego, Houston is at Cincinnati, Kansas City is at New England and the New York Jets are at Baltimore.

St. Louis displayed its new passing offense under coach Don Coryell last week as Jim Hart completed 17 of 29 passes for 203 yards to beat Philadelphia. But the defense will be much tougher Sunday when Hart goes against George Allen's Redskin defense. The Redskins picked off four passes while routing San Diego last week.

It's time to start thinking about the AFC Central title already Sunday when Cleveland takes on Pittsburgh. Both clubs made the playoffs last year and are trying to do it again. Mike Phipps, who stung Baltimore with a pair of TD passes to Frank Pitts last week, will try to test the Pittsburgh defense. Cleveland hasn't won at Pittsburgh since 1969.

Since San Francisco lost its opener, the winner of the Atlanta-Los Angeles game will get a jump in the NFC West. Atlanta was supposed to have an erratic defense but Dick Shiner completed 13 of 15 passes for 227 yards last week—but it was against New Orleans. The L.A. defense will be tougher.

Chicago, which blew a chance for tie against Dallas last week with a fourth down gamble that backfired, will attempt to stop Minnesota—which was impressive in the victory over Oakland last week. Minnesota coach Bud Grant is playing rookies these days and one of the most impressive is Chuck Foreman, who has added a new dimension to the attack.

Super prizes for Scouting benefit event

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

About 150 Pomona Valley golfers will tee it up Oct. 17 in the first annual Swing-A-Club for Scouting Golf Tournament at Los Serranos.

Chairman Bob Culp of the Old Baldy Council Boy Scouts has lined up some prizes for the event which are just out of sight.

They include a weekend for two in San Diego and San Francisco and the use of a replica Cal 500 pace car, a Datsun 240Z, for a month. Air California is sponsoring the weekend for two in San Diego vacation and the San Francisco trip is courtesy of PSA.

Entry fee for the event is only $20, which includes use of a cart, green fees and a steak dinner following the tournament.

If you're a golfer with a yen to travel, you can't beat this deal. And you'll be helping a worthy cause at the same time.

Two Pomona teams return with 'gold'

Two of Pomona's 15 entries in last month's S.C.M.A.F. softball tournaments came home with "gold" as they say. However, for the first time in recent years there were no winners among the local teams.

There were participants in all seven of the S.C.M.A.F events with Harris Taven and Pomona First Baptist managing second place finishes. One advantage is being number two instead of one in a S.C.M.A.F. tournament is the trophy will probably fit on the mantle. The first place award is too big for that, a problem we would all like.

First Baptist knocked off Harbor Trinity of Costa Mesa, 6-3, and Bethany Baptist from Conejo, 7-3, to reach the finals. San Bernardino's First Christian team left little doubt who was the better in the championship game winning 11-2.

Twelve squads were entered in the S.C.M.A.F. Church Tournament hosted by the Santa Ana Recreation Department. The local Baptist squad led by coach Art Keough is always near the top in this event.

The Harris Tavern outfit made their first appearance in S.C.M.A.F. Slo-pitch Minor Division Finals an impressive one. They had to capture the tough San Gabriel Valley tournament to qualify.

In the finals the Sam DiCarlo coached outfit defeated Nicholson's Aces of Los Angeles, 21-15, and Kaenjo Bar from Norwalk, 7-2. The bubble burst in the championship game.

Tavern fell behind the Presidents from Anaheim at the very start. The winners scored eight runs their first time up and never trailed. However the locals did give them a scare.

Trailing 15-0 in the bottom of the third, Harris' started a two out rally that was sparked by Bill O'Brien's two run homer and accounted for seven runs. Mike Libolt's three run round tripper moved the score to 15-10 at the end of five.

However the Presidents pushed across seven runs of their own in the sixth and added two in the final frame to take a 24-10 lead. The Tavern rallied for six in the bottom of the seventh but it wasn't enough as they lost 24-16.

Fall tennis classes

Now that Bobby Riggs has fallen to Billie Jean King, some might think that tennis will once again move into the background. The feeling here is that even before the outspoken Mr. Riggs began making his challenges, tennis was one of the fastest growing participation sports in the country.

Riggs' antics have just added impetus to the game's growth. More people than ever have taken interest in the game.

Pomona's fall recreation tennis classes will begin on Oct. 8. Miss Marsha Miller will again be in charge of instruction.

Registration takes place on the Washington Park tennis courts on Wednesday, Oct. 3 from 7 p.m. until 9 and Saturday, Oct. 6 from 10 a.m. until noon. Adult instruction is planned for Monday and Wednesday evenings at Washington Park.

Youth classes will be held Saturday mornings at Garey High School. Participants will be given their session times at the registration.

Players must provide their own rackers, Marsha supplies the balls. The cost of the instruction is eight dollars for eight lessons.

A couple final thoughts on the Riggs-King match. It probably won't shut the male chauvinist up, for more than anything he is a hustler.

It could, however, do a lot for women's tennis is Ms. King and her friends will get off the lib kick and realize that there are greater gains to be made off the match.

There were some excellent volleys in the match. It was very entertaining with some outstanding shots. This is always true in the top flight women's tournaments.

Suicide barrier urged by man who lost son in leap

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The lieutenant governor of Maryland, whose son jumped to his death from Golden Gate Bridge, has urged construction of a suicide barrier on the famous span.

Pierre Lee, 27, son of Lt. Gov. Blair Lee III, died Aug. 17, the bridge's 493rd suicide victim. The suicide toll has since climbed to 497.

"I firmly believe my son would be alive today with a good prospect of remaining that way, if a suicide barrier had been in existence," Lee said in a letter to bridge directors. "The Golden Gate Bridge is the most beautiful I have ever seen. It should not be blemished by a suicide mystique that hangs over it."

Boys circus from Spain tours U.S.

BENPOSTA, Spain (UPI) —Benposta is not a place to be found on most maps. It is the "capital" of La Nacion de los Muchachos—"The Nation of the Boys"—near Orense in northwest Spain.

An entry in an encyclopedia about this "nation" might read: "Capital: Benposta. Area: 200,000 sq. yards. Pop.: 800. Flag: Orange and White. Founder-President: Father Jesus Silva. Government: constitutional democracy."

"And it's a practical, true democracy," said Father Silva, 39, who has given most of his years of priesthood to building this enclave inside authoritarian Spain.

"The boys elect their own representatives and officers. With some guidance, they assume full responsibility for running Benposta—its finances, public order and educational system."

There is no visible sign of Spanish authority in the boys' country. The 800 boys, aged five to 21, are fully self-supporting.

American Tour

To meet their annual budget of $500,000 they sell their leather, pottery, carpentry and machine shop products. They run a service station and are building a hotel. They also have a 100-member circus—Los Muchachos, the International Boys Circus—that regularly tours Europe and that is now touring the United States.

(Editor's Note: Beginning Sept. 6 the Boys Circus will tour the U.S., Canada and Mexico for four months. Cities it is visiting are: September— Philadelphia, New York, Providence, N.Y., Toronto, Ont., Syracuse, N.Y., Troy, N.Y., Springfield, Mass., Boston, Hampton, Va., San Antonio, Tex., Mexico City. November— El Paso, Tex., Tucson, Ariz., San Diego, Calif. December— Los Angeles, Oakland, Calif., San Francisco, Chicago, Washington, D.C.)

"I come from an old circus family," Father Silva said, "and when I became a priest I ministered to circus people, first in Spain and then in Europe."

In 1956, Father Silva moved some Orense slum kids, a few orphans and some abandoned farm boys into his mother's house. They soon started a circus, and more boys arrived. Today there are boys from 33 countries and "branches" in Hamburg, West Germany, and Guinea in Africa.

"Our aim is to forge a boy's personality, to stimulate his dignity and humanism within an ideal society of responsibility and liberty," Father Silva said.

The boys breakfast at 7, then attend classes where the emphasis is on individual learning projects. After lunch each boy works at his job.

"We get paid for going to classes and working, and we pay for our meals," said Jose Maria Sanchez Butos, a young trapeze artist. "If you don't earn you don't eat—unless you want to beg."

The whole "nation" comes together each evesing in the assembly, where the day's problems are thrashed out under Benposta's 18-year-old mayor, a recording secretary and the boys responsible for the civic spirit, finances and public order.

Each assembly ends with a recitation of the "nation's" 10 fundamental law, which urge a boy to honor God and his fellow citizens, and, with arms joined, a song that asks God for an end to war, avarice and vice. The boys who want to may then attend an informal Mass.

On Paper, Perfect

"On paper the system is perfect," said Manolo Martin, the curriculum coordinator, "though we don't always live up to it." He says students and teachers have staged an occasional strike when they didn't think the other side was pulling its weight.

And what does the Spanish government think of the system under which the enclave works?

"They don't tax us, which is nice, and they're even slightly proud of our circus, but they don't take us seriously," Father Silva said. "They think we're playing some kind of game."

South Carolina lures Hollywood film maker

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —If you get the urge to produce a motion picture, don't come to Hollywood, call Columbia, S.C. and ask for Gov. John West.

You might get lucky.

Composer Jack Lawrence decided to make a movie about a boy and a horse during the Civil War—or the war between the states if you live in the deep South.

He bought a property titled "Sieze the Day" and decided it would work out best if the movie was filmed entirely on location in the South.

"I didn't know which of the six southern states would be best," said Lawrence, a distinguished looking man who composed "Tenderly," "All Or Nothing At All," "If I Didn't Care" and other long-time hits.

A friend told me that South Carolina was interested in luring film production to the East. At that time I didn't even know who the governor of the state was. But my brother knew a man close to the South Carolina political scene and contacted the governor's office.

"It wasn't long before I heard from Governor West. He invited me down there to discuss my project. I didn't waste any time getting there."

Lawrence was met at the airport by a limousine. He checked into a hotel in Columbia, but after dinner at the governor's mansion and singing some of his songs, West insisted he spend the night at the mansion—and sleep in the same bed once occupied by John C. Calhoun.

Lawrence vouchsafed his friendship by singing his own composition, "Linda." which also happens to be the governor's daughter's name.

"The next day I toured South Carolina's educational television setup. It's the best I've seen anywhere," said Lawrence. "The men are all young, bright and educated. The facilities are great for making movies.

"They were all intrigued by my story. I had a list of required locations—rivers, bridges, buildings, country roads. The governor said it could all be organized for me.

"After I got back to California they sent me a book of 100 photographs of locations that were perfect. I was offered the use of a helicopter during filming.

"When I said Civil War costumes would be expensive, they told me I could use the ones they had left over from a centennial celebration.

"They sent me a breakdown of all the little theaters, college drama clubs and acting societies in the state. It was like having a special casting department.

"I learned that South Carolina can save a producer time and money. Burt Lancaster made 'The Midnight Man' down there and shaved six days off his shooting schedule, not to mention thousands from his budget."

In return for the state's largess, South Carolina hopes the publicity will encourage tourism. It also welcomes the payroll of the production company, much of which would be spent in the state.

"I had hoped to start shooting down there this month," Lawrence concluded. "But now it looks as if we won't get started until spring."

The hangup is financial. But as soon as the bankroll is assured Lawrence will head for South Carolina, movie capital of the old South.

At 26, Polonsky relates his feelings and emotions through the form, color and texture of graphic media.

Beginning with a childhood interest in drawings, Polonsky became an engineering student with an art major at Santa Monica City College. He graduated from Art Center College of Design in Los Angeles with a B.S. in industrial design, and then began working as a serious artist. Believing he has something to contribute to the art world, he feels abstract art is often taken too lightly.

"I am trying to relate to an abstract emotion and so I let my work say what I would rather not put into words," he says. "Everything I do is spontaneous. I start and it develops."

The artist has entered a number of juried shows, including a recent showing in Laguna Beach. He has also participated in outdoor shows at Fashion Isle and Century City and currently has work in the Artisan Workshop in Palm Springs.

Polonsky has 18 pieces on display at the Pomona Library. His work in acrylic uses imagainative placement of color and form in juxtaposition with rough texture and frame lines which are intentionally broken.

The principal known mineral deposits in Oregon are sand and gravel, stone, limestone, asbestos, clays, gold, -cury, lead, uranium, zinc and silver, copper, platinum, mercury, lead, uranium, zinc and nickel.

New Guinea anniversary stamps set

By GUSTAV DETJEN JR.

A set of six stamps will be issued by Papua New Guinea on Oct. 24 to commemorate the 75th anniversary of postage stamps in that country. All six stamps are reproductions of original stamps issued at various times under different administrations. The values and designs are:

One cent — shows reproduction of the 3 and 5 Pfennig stamps overprinted with "Deutsch New-Guinea" and issued by the German Administration in 1897; Six cents — reproduction of the original 2 Mark stamp first issued by the German Administration in 1900; Seven cents — reproduction of the original German registration label which was overprinted by the Australian Military Administration and issued as a registered stamp in 1914; Nine cents — the one shilling stamp first issued in British Fuinea in 1901 is shown on this value; 25 cents — reproduction of the halfpenny stamp first released by the Mandated Territory of New Guinea in 1925; 30 cents — reproduction of the original ten shilling value first issued in Papua in 1932.

Fiji will release a set of four stamps depicting festivals of joy as follows: 3 cents — Christmas (Christian holiday); 10 cents — Diwali (Hindu); 20 cents — Id-ul-Fiter (Moslem); 25 cents — Chinese New Year.

Bob Warlich is president of The United States Postal Stationery Society, Box 615, Bloomington, Ill. 61701. If you are interested in postal stationery, you should join this group. Write for further information.

The second edition of Sports and Recreation Checklist Handbook will soon be published by the American Topical Association, 3308 North 50th St., Milwaukee, Wis. 53216. This 48-page book lists stamps for all adult competitive sports with catalog numbers. Illustrated. Priced to sell at $4, but pre-publication orders accepted at $3.

Philatelic Consultants Ltd., 403 S. Main St., Providence, R.I. 02903 has been appointed as philatelic agents for the stamps of India.

H. E. Harris and Co., Inc., Dept. TBP, Boston, Mass. 02117 announced its new 1973-74 edition of their "Top Buying Prices" booklet. More than 2.600 price increases make this a must for collectors, accumulators and dealers. Over 100 new listings are included of prices Harris is willing to pay. This 48-page booklet may be ordered by sending 25 cents for handling.

Chases' Calendar of Annual Events lists special days, weeks and months to be observed during 1974, together with the names of sponsors. A treasury of startling information and a wonderful reference book. Price $5, but may be ordered at a pre-publication price of $4 from Philatelic Supply Co., Clinton Corners, N.Y. 12514.

The British North America Philatelic Society, Box 849-D, Bulington, Ontario, Canada, has available a list of about 30 publications on the stamps of Canada which are, of course, of assistance to collectors of Canada. Send your order to the attention of David M. Verity, BNAPS Book Department.

Offshore catering

MORGAN CITY, La. (UPI) — Women have taken to the seas off Louisiana's coast.

Five women became the first of their sex to work on an offshore drilling rig in the Gulf of Mexico when they took over cooking and cleaning jobs offered by a catering firm. The women work seven days offshore, then have a week off.

Prospects bright

Boom in U.S. shipbuilding

NEW YORK (UPI) —American shipbuilders are experiencing their first peace time boom in this century and appear to have the brightest prospects since the days of sail.

This opinion comes from such shipbuilding executives as Ed Paden of Ingalls division at Pascagoula, Miss., of Litton Industries, Tom Batman of Todd Shipyards Corp. in New York and President Edwin M. Hood of the Shipbuilders Council of America in Washington.

As of June 1, there were 83 merchant vessels totaling 4.136 million deadweight tons under construction in American yards. Orders for eight more tankers totaling 1.114 million tons were received in June. During 1972, American yards obtained orders for more than $3 billion worth of new ships, and at year-end the industry order backlog for both merchant and naval craft was $5.7 billion.

The commercial yards currently are working 135,000 men and the Navy yards 65,000 more. Nearly one million people worked in American shipyards to turn out the vessels that helped achieve victory in World War II. But today's figures reflect the industry's healthiest condition in years.

The shipbuilding boom is worldwide, and the surge of business in American yards still leaves the United States ranking ninth among the world's shipbuilding nations as of June 30, according to Lloyds Register. Lloyds also says the global boom waned somewhat in the second quarter of 1973. Both the Organization for Economic Cooperation in Paris and the Brussels-based European Economic Community have warned about overbuilding.

Nevertheless, the scramble for petroleum, grain, ores and other commodities has all the shipbuilding nations expanding their yards to build supertankers, carriers of liquified natural gas and other bulk cargoes. Batman, at Todd, notes Portugal is building two giant yards to enter the competition and "France has quietly staked out a claim in the sophisticated technology of cryogenics with LNG carriers."

The American boom has its own national cause. The United States is the world's biggest customer for petroleum and potentially the biggest exporter of grains and other food products as well as cotton and general merchandise. The United States also is preparing to expand its trade with Russia and China.

The economics of shipbuilding and operating ships is turning in the United States' favor to some degree for the first time in this century except during the two world wars. Devaluations of the dollar and the rapid rise of wages and other costs in foreign shipyards and in foreign shipping fleets are eroding the high cost differentials that for so long relegated the Stars and Stripes to a minor role in ocean shipping.

The federal government says large ships such as LNG carriers can be built in American yards for only 15 per cent more than in foreign yards.

At that rate, the overall advantages of the American built ship to the U.S. economy become overwhelming. Even when the government pays a 35 per cent differential construction subsidy on a ship, it is calculated the total benefits to the national economy from shipbuilding activity amount to two and a half times as much as the subsidy. That was the theory on which Congress enacted the Merchant Marine Act of 1970, which helped start the current shipbuilding boom.

Economic benefits include national, state and local tax recovery amounting to roughly 25 per cent of the price of the ship plus wage and supplier payments and a host of other items.

In recent years a more urgent reason has developed for building American ships. For several years the nation has had a disturbing balance of payments deficit fed by the growing need for foreign oil and gas. Shipping industry experts calculate if the country were to depend on foreign ships to carry this petroleum, $25 billion would have to be expended on foreign exchange to pay for the transport alone.

Unlike old fashioned ships that had to find and carry cargo in both directions, the supertanker and the LNG carrier are one-way ships. That means the customer for the oil and gas pays the whole operating cost in both directions. Therefore a large consumer nation like the United States can specify carriage in its own ships if that is economically and politically advantageous.

Considering all these factors it is not surprising that last October Congress passed a law authorizing construction of 300 new subsidized merchant ships in the next 10 years. This will require the yards to turn out tonnage three times as fast as they are now. However, this law imposes a gradual reduction in maximum building subsidies from 55 per cent to 35 per cent of the value of the ship to cover the difference between costs in American yards and foreign yards.

This 1972 law clearly was aimed at speeding construction of LNG carriers and the type of supertanker called VLCC—very large crude carriers.

The Shipbuilders Council has set as a reasonable goal for the near future the building in American yards each year of eight to 10 LNG carriers plus more than three million deadweight tons of tankers, including six or seven VLCC's of more than 200,000 tons each. Robert J. Blackwell, assistant secretary of commerce for maritime affairs, estimates that from 30 to 35 cryogenic LNG carriers, American and foreign built, will be needed to supply the U.S. market by 1980. President Hood of the Shipbuilders Council says it appears a minimum of 25 to 30 of those LNG carriers costing more than $100 million each will be built in U.S. yards by 1885.

Dr. Armand Hammer of Occidental Petroleum Corp. says his 20-year trade and development agreements with the Russians will require construction of at least $2 billion worth of large new ocean bulk carriers to handle the trade. Hammer has predicted that most of this shipping will be built in American yards will fly the Stars and Stripes.

Such a shipbuilding program will force enormous expansion of the shipbuilding and shipping industries. Last March, President Nixon urged Congress to appropriate money and authorize building of offshore terminals for tankers of up to 250,000 tons. Late in July the administration began to push for passage of this measure but ran into objections from lawmakers from coastal states fearful about the ecological consequences of oil spills.

Nevertheless, this bill is expected ultimately to pass. President Hood of the Shipbuilders Council expects the first such offshore terminal to be built in the Gulf of Mexico within three years. He doesn't expect one on the Atlantic Coast before 1980.

Contracts for expansions of shipyards have been let in recent weeks. Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. of Newport News, Va., a subsidiary of Tenneco Corp., has let a $50 million contract for new drydocks and landfill and plans to spend another $50 million on expansion.

New styling, engines noted in Dodge line

New styling, new engines, new engineering innovations and new options are evident throughout the Dodge line for 1974, which includes the Monaco, Challenger, Coronet, Charger, Dart, Colt and a complete line of Dodge trucks.

The line of large Dodges for 1974 offers a selection of 13 Monaco models completely redesigned with the user in mind. "We feel thay buyers will find in Monaco the appeal and features they want in a big car,' said George A. Bilque, Dodge Division general sales manager.

The basic Monaco models include two-door hardtop, four-door sedan and two-seat station wagon Both the Monaco Custom and luxury Monaco Brougham trim levels come in two and four-door hardtops, four-door sedans and two and three-seat wagons.

Clean, attractive youthful styling is still the trademark of the Dodge Challenger said Bilgue. The Callenger is entering its fifth model year with improvements in safety features, a new engine option, some new exterior colors and a new tire option.

The Rally Challenger package includes a performance hood, black-out painted grille, fender scoops and side strobe tape stripes, ralley instrument cluster, heavy-duty shocks, ralley suspension with front sway bar and white sidewall bias-belted tires.

Other Dodge favorites are the Charger and Coronet, Bilque said. Charger, in coupe and hardtop versions, has three levels of trim: coupe, Charger and the top of the line Charger SE. Coronet comes in basic sedan and two-seat wagon, Coronet Custom sedan and two and three-seat wagons, and two-and-three-seat station wagons.

Dodge Dart for 1974 comes into a new model year with six basic models, new equipment offerings and added value. "The value is measured in economy of operation as a compact, stability of the overall design and quality, versatility and more room than many people might expect," said Bilque.

The Dart line for 1974 will not be extensively changed, but one of the more significant differences will be in the new hydraulic bumper system as standard equipment, a new rear bumper and unibelt passenger restraint system with starter interlock.

Car shoppers will have a lineup of five models to select from in the Colt subcompact family: a four-door sedan, two-door coupe, two-door hardtop, hardtop GT and a two-seat wagon. All are on a 95.3 inch wheelbase.

State agency gives OK on smog devices

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The California Air Resources Board ended a two-year controversy this week by voting to require owners of the state's 4.5 million 1966-1970 model cars to install $35 antismog devices.

The board decision, which faces another vote after a public hearing Oct. 30, would require owners to have the devices installed between January and October of next year.

The board approved a similar program in 1971 but delayed action pending the outcome of a dispute regarding the efficiency of the smog devices to be used.

The goal of the program, according to the board, is to reduce the output of oxides of nitrogen, a pollutant that reacts with hydrocarbons to produce smog. Cars made in 1966-70 are heavy emitters of the oxides.

Auto manufacturers have indicated they'll be ready to market the smog devices Jan. 1. The state plan calls for motorists with license plate digits ending with "1" to equip their cars by the end of next February. Licenses ending in "2" must be equipped by March, and so on until all of the 1966-70 cars are equipped by October.

The United States is Chile's major trade partner. Chile imports about $349 million a year in U.S. goods, while exporting $185 million worth to the United States.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — Two screws fell out of a cabinet door. Having no plastic wood on hand, I dipped the screws in all-purpose white glue and then I screwed them back in very quickly. This worked wonderfully. — LILIAN.

DEAR POLLY — A good way to store spools of thread is to glue golf tees, evenly spaced, to the bottom of a cigar box and put the spools on the tees after the glue has dried. — L. L. P.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for those who like to be sure their dogs are always cozy and warm. We tacked a piece of rubber inner-tubing across the doorway of our dog's house and cut a vertical slit in the center. This stretches nicely so the dog can go in and out, but closes tightly enough to keep out the cold winds and moisture. — ANNA.

DEAR POLLY — I had a piece of perforated board framed on the back, painted it the color of the kitchen walls and hung it near the stove. Many small utensils are kept hanging there so the needed one can be grabbed in an instant. — RUTH T.

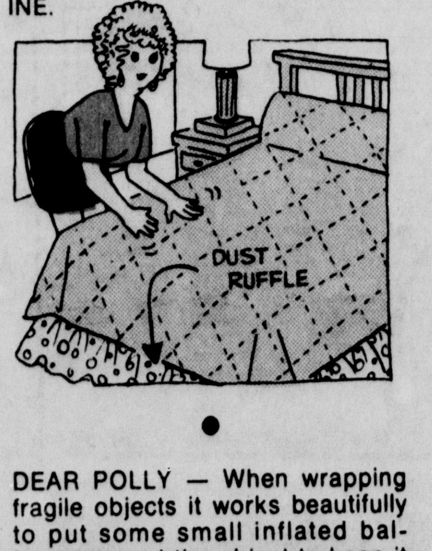
DEAR POLLY — I needed a large trivet to put under a roast to keep it out of the drippings. I used a 10-inch round aluminum pan. Holes were pierced to make a circle around the bottom of the pan and it was inverted under the roast in the roaster. The pan's rim helped give the needed height and it worked like magic. — RUTH.

DEAR POLLY — I have found that I can often use a twin-size spread as a coverlet on a full-size bed if a dust ruffle is also used. — MAXINE.



DUST RUFFLE

DEAR POLLY — When wrapping fragile objects it works beautifully to put some small inflated balloons around the object to keep it from jarring around in the box.—KATHY

DEAR POLLY — If you want to make pretty and different coasters or patches, cut a desired shape out of felt. The piece would be larger for coasters than for patches. Stitch around the edges with a blanket stitch and then use an outline stitch to embroider your last initial in the middle.—LEANNA.

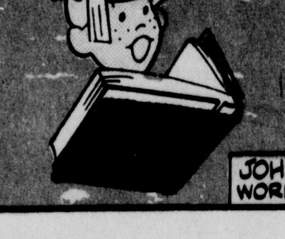
THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

DANA ADAMS OF PINE BLUFF, AR, ASKS: "HOW IS WHEAT PUFFED INTO PUFFED WHEAT?"



CEREAL MAKERS MAKE PUFFED WHEAT IN SPECIAL OVENS THAT LOOK LIKE METAL TUBES. WHEAT KERNELS ARE SEALED IN THE TUBES AND HEATED UNTIL THEY ARE VERY HOT. THE HEAT CHANGES THE MOISTURE IN THE KERNELS INTO STEAM. THE PRESSURE OF THE HOT AIR IN THE SEALED TUBES KEEPS THE STEAM FROM BURSTING OUT OF EACH KERNEL. WHEN THE KERNELS ARE JUST HOT ENOUGH, THE CEREAL MAKERS QUICKLY OPEN THE TUBES TO LET OUT THE HOT AIR. THE HOT KERNELS SUDDENLY EXPLODE AND PUFF INTO "PUFFED" WHEAT.

FOCUS '73 on THE COVER

WEDNESDAY MYSTERY
NBC 8:30PM

A rotating series of four shows: Banacek (returning); Faraday & Company, starring Dan Dailey as Frank Faraday, a man wrongly imprisoned in South America for 28 years, who has a lot of catching up to do—including getting acquainted with a 27-year-old son he didn't know he had. Steve Faraday (James Naughton) is a private detective, as was his father at the time of his imprisonment, and the pair now decide to pool their talents. The Snoop Sisters stars Helen Hayes (as Ernestine) and Mildred Natwick (as Gwendolyn), a pair of nosey sisters who write mystery novels and who frequently become involved in real murders. Tenafly stars James McEachin as Harry Tenafly, a black private investigator who's a harried middle-class American and a solid family man trying to pay off the 30-year mortgage. There are no gorgeous girls chasing him and most of his cases are just routine and unglamorous. He's no superman, but don't try to push him too far. Lillian Lehman co-stars as his wife.

Shaft will share the CBS Tuesday movie timeslot with the movies and Hawkins for the season. Richard Roundtree recreates his role from the movie of the same title, but the television version will stress action instead of violence. "I don't believe in violence for Violence's sake," says Roundtree. "In the series, Shaft relies on his razor sharp wit more than his gun." Ed Barth co-stars as Police Lt. Rossi, Shaft's unofficial friend and occasional confidant.

BOB & CAROL & TED & ALICE
ABC WEDNESDAYS 8PM

A half-hour comedy series starring Robert Urich and Anne Archer as Bob and Carol, a "with-it" married couple in their late 20s, and David Spielberg and Anita Gillette are Ted and Alice, a more cautious middle class married couple in their early 30s. Bob and Carol believe in talking out their problems, while Ted and Alice tend toward putting up with them. Bob and Carol are constantly seeking new approaches, new challenges and new trends, and frequently involve their more cautious friends in their schemes.

LOVE STORY (NOT PICTURED)
NBC WEDNESDAYS 10PM

This anthology series will have no regular cast. Each week it will feature different guest stars in a series of romantic tales following the concept of great romantic novels, stories and even motion pictures, with each presentation focusing on the start, the problems and the resolution of a romance. Varied plots may range from modern day romance in a big-city apartment to some of literature's more memorable classics. This series will premiere in October.

What Is the Spell Of the "Born Leader"? By Vance Bourjaily

"I Lost My Daughter, Tuesday Weld, When I Helped Her to Stardom"

A Great Chicken And Beef Stew —For Dieters

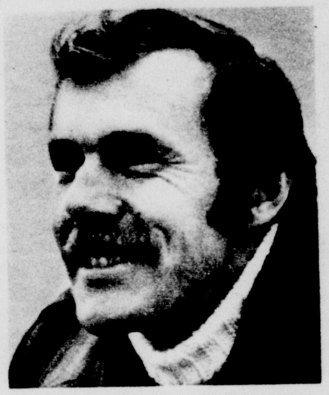
Child Crises: Which Ones Are Serious— Which Are Not?

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR RICHARD BACH,

author of "Jonathan Livingston Seagull"



I thought "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" was about everlasting life and even wondered if you are a Christian Scientist. My friend thinks you wrote about reincarnation. Is either of us right?—Mrs. Wayne Figg, Dimondale, Mich.

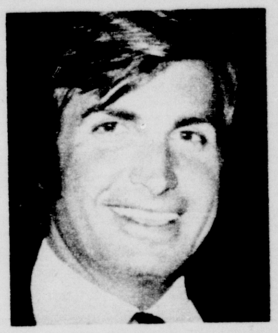
● One thing that Jonathan isn't, apparently, is a Christian Scientist, since the only newspaper in the world that does not accept advertising for the book has been The Christian Science Monitor. If by "reincarnation," your friend means the living of many life experiences for the purpose of learning the nature of reality, the book is at least in part about reincarnation. If by "religious," you mean "a way of finding what is true," Jonathan can be quite a religious book indeed. I saw the story happen in what appeared to be a rather vivid dream before I slept. The book was not, as some accounts have suggested, dictated to me by a vaporous talking seagull.

FOR TERRY ANNE MEEUWSEN, 1973 Miss America

What advice did you give the new Miss America when she was crowned this September?—M. L. A., Mahopac, N.Y.

● That she make it a point to take five minutes out every day to sit down quietly by herself and get her head on straight. It's hard to keep from getting swept up in the rat race. No one can imagine the constant pressures Miss America is under. It would be all too easy to lose one's identity.

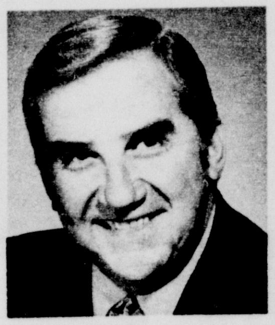
FOR GEORGE HAMILTON



You used to go with Lynda Robb, President Johnson's daughter. Do you still hear from her?—Paula Gabhardt, Norwood, Ohio

● The last time I heard from her was about a year ago. Lynda and her husband came to Los Angeles and we had dinner together at the time. Yes, we are still friends.

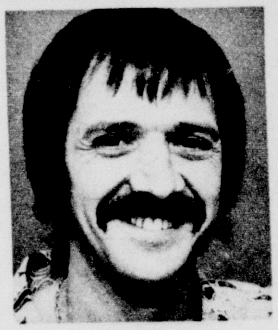
FOR ED McMAHON



Who is your favorite replacement host on the "Tonight" show? Also, how and why do you and other celebrities put up with the abuse heaped on you by Don Rickles?—Mrs. Walter Doll, Quincy, Mass.

● Joey Bishop is my favorite replacement host. He's done the job more than any other person, and I feel comfortable with him. Those of us who know Don Rickles are very aware that "Mr. Warmth" really is a warm human being. He's only acting and wouldn't deliberately hurt anyone.

FOR SONNY BONO



What was the first hit song that you recorded? And do you write all of your own songs?—Tina Thomas, Pueblo, Colo.

● Our first "big" hit was "I Got You Babe," which I wrote. I write songs for many other performers besides Cher. And Cher has had several hits that I didn't write.

FOR SEN. JAMES B. PEARSON (R-Kans.)

How could the Amateur Athletic Union suspend athletes and officials for joining a swimming team that toured Red China? I thought the trip had U.S. approval.—J. Rankin, Gary, Ind.

● It has been apparent for some time that these groups that govern amateur athletes are more concerned about the protection of their own rules and regulations and the perpetuation of their power than about the welfare and success of amateur athletes. We cannot continue to allow these self-appointed sports bureaucrats to interfere with our athletes, or with our foreign policy.

FOR JULIET PROWSE

Is it true that you married your nephew, who is ten years younger than you are?—A. C., Rome, Ga.

● Not exactly. My husband is eight years younger than I am, and we met when I played his aunt in "Auntie Mame," so only in that way is he my "nephew." Incidentally, we have a beautiful little boy named Seth who is one year old.

FOR SEN. ROBERT TAFT, JR. (R-Ohio)

Could better rail service help relieve the energy crisis, or do trains gobble up as much fuel as everything else?—N. Pierce, Reno, Nev.

● The average passenger miles per gallon of fuel for a jet plane is between 21 and 22. For an automobile it is about 32, as compared to 80 for cross-country passenger-train service and 200 for suburban train, two-deck service. These figures, I think, certainly point to the advantages of using trains.

FOR MARY TYLER MOORE, actress

I read recently that you are a diabetic. So am I, and I was wondering if you find it difficult to keep your diabetes under control with your busy schedule?—Penny Holmes, Great Falls, Mont.

● Yes, I am a diabetic, but I don't consider it a handicap in any way. As a matter of fact, I think the fact that I have to organize and regulate my diet and exercise gives me more pep and energy. I feel great.

FOR RICHARD THOMAS of "The Waltons"

Is it true that on your way to the Shubert Theatre for the Emmy Awards program you destroyed your car?—Regina Philips, Austin, Texas

● It's true. I didn't expect to win, but on the way to the theater I thought, "But what if I should win?" So I began thinking about an acceptance speech and ran my car into a pole. [Editor's note: Richard did win the Emmy.]

When a Great Leader Charms Us—Is It Really Only "Charm"?

> "I cannot guarantee that I will always like the way I behave with men who have these various degrees of magnetism. This feeling is not unusual in the men around Harold Hughes. I remember one of his staff saying to me . . . , 'When I go in to make a pitch to him, I always get myself up for it. . . . But he always takes me. I may get to make my point after he does, but he always has to take me first.' "

Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa with an aide in his Washington, D.C., office.

My subjects are examples of human magnetism, Tony, and Harold Hughes.

Let me start with Tony, who is still vivid to me from the time we were ninth graders together, 36 years ago. I changed schools in tenth grade, and saw him only once again afterward, before he was killed in the Second World War. He had a lot of charm.

At the age of 14, Tony could cause anybody—man, woman, boy and especially girl—to like him immediately and forgive him eventually. Tony was incorrigibly, sometimes offensively, mischievous, and needed a lot of forgiving. It didn't occur to me then, as another boy, reacting with pleasure or with hurt feelings, depending on whether I found myself in or out of Tony's favor, that the purpose of the offense might be to test the charm.

Using Tony as my example of magnetism at the tricky level of charm, I can begin to see both what produced and what limited it. It seemed to be a product of vitality, physical attractiveness, great verbal ability and warmth—or, at least, the appearance of warmth. When you felt that Tony liked you, you felt that liking you was the center of his life. That wasn't so, of course, so one limit of his magnetism was dishonesty, and there were others like it: Tony was amoral, unstable and full of self-doubt.

Nevertheless, I think he could have made his mother walk off a cliff with one sparkling, blue-eyed glance, and his stepfather was just plain scared of the kid. His smile would have melted anything except, I guess, the Luftwaffe bullets that knocked his P-40 into the English Channel in 1943.

But about charm: I have learned since, as I don't suppose I did with Tony, that while one may have a good time with a charming person, and perhaps be persuaded by him or by her for a time, the insecurity and instability and lack of moral center sooner or later offset the charm. One learns, then, after a while, to handle charming people. Or rather one learns to handle oneself around them, to resist their need to be loved, rejected, loved again.

And then there is the case of Harold Hughes, senior senator from Iowa, where I live. His degree of magnetism is to charm as a jet engine is to a firecracker.

Harold Hughes first saw me about 18 months after his election as governor of Iowa. That was in 1964, when I appeared in his office in Des Moines, from Iowa City 110 miles away, as a constituent, one of a solemn-faced group come to demand an accounting on conservation matters.

Harold Hughes was 46 then. So was I.

In 1968, Governor Hughes took me on as a member of the staff in his campaign for the U.S. Senate, which he won—in spite, so the party professionals out here still say, of his having nominated Eugene McCarthy for the Presidency in Chicago. Since then I've either seen, or exchanged letters, or talked on the phone with Senator Hughes two or three times a year.

Somewhere, I have a letter from him apologizing for his delay in answering one of mine, in which he remarks that secretaries had shuffled it around, "not realizing that you are a personal friend." I would feel quite content to accept the phrase, but not quite honest.

I take it to be part of the particular loneliness of public life that when a man reaches a certain level in it he can no longer make new friends in any full sense of the word, unless it be with others at the same level, and only then if both men have decided against competing to rise to the next level. For all the rest of us, he finds himself the prisoner-king of a realm of jockeys and sharpshooters, wherein the highest rank a new acquaintance may attain, except by some miracle of affinity, is something short of friendship—an honorable and useful courtier, perhaps, a favorite jester; at best a trusted counselor and confidant who, taking the risk of independence, may deserve knighthood or dismissal, depending on how things turn out. But it is only with an old friend, from the time before it all began, that the public man need never be on guard; so be it.

There were one or two times in the 1968 campaign when Harold Hughes and I were close; but they came when he indicated a need for someone to talk to, and I was at hand, and it would have been stupid of me to presume that the tone of an evening's dialogue would carry over to our work next day.

It's as simple as this. In hot weather, and if there's no one else to do it, and no matter how big and strong the candidate may be, you carry the suitcase to the motel room. You know what breaking into a sweat would do to his shirt collar. I remember Harold Hughes saying to me quite ruefully on a day like that, as we started out campaigning, "You've got to take care of the product if you want to show it, don't you?"

I am, then, no more than one of a

WHY PLANT A GROUND COVER?

In many areas and situations, ground covers are more appropriate and more satisfactory than turf. They are able to grow and thrive in sun OR shade, and in poor soil.

On steep slopes where mowing is difficult, ground cover is much more effective and much less laborious to maintain than grass. Ground covers hold the soil as well as turf and the textures are far more interesting.

Small areas of grass are a continual chore to keep mown and trimmed but ground covers require almost no care. They are excellent protection and soil conditioners. They hold the fallen leaves from blowing away, thus helping to add annually to the humus content.

WHY CREEPING RED SEDUM?

One of Sedum's most valuable assets is its full time beauty. Lush foliage begins in early spring, and star-shaped wine red flowers delight the viewer from late June through September. The attractive semi-evergreen foliage lasts well into winter, maintaining its rich green and bronze color nearly all year round.

Besides being one of the loveliest of the ground covers, Sedum also rates high on the other requirements. It is hardy, grows well in sun or partial shade, in sandy soil, clay soil, or good soil.

Its thick foliage and root system hold the soil on slopes or banks. The neat 3-4" cover forms a dense perennial mat to bring green and wine red beauty to slopes, borders, rocky areas, anywhere beauty and durability are needed.

Each plant will easily and quickly spread to fill one sq. ft. Sedum spreads evenly, maintains its uniform smooth beauty at all stages of growth. Unlike some other ground covers, Sedum, also called "Dragon's Blood," stays where you put it — does not straggle out into places where it doesn't belong. Sedum is almost indestructible, enduring and persisting against heavy climatic and nutritional odds.

FULLY GUARANTEED

All items guaranteed to be of high quality, exactly as advertised and to arrive in good healthy condition or purchase price will be refunded. RETURN SHIPPING LABEL ONLY —you may keep the plants. (One year limit).

Now is a Good Time to Order RED SEDUM!

Your young Sedum plants will establish themselves and begin to spread a few days after planting. In a month or so they will already be 3-4 inches in diameter. They may lose their foliage as the first winter progresses but will leaf out again in early spring. During a long growing season they may reach 12" in diameter, always maintaining their neat regulated shape.

I lost 79 pounds and turned into Casanova's dream girl.

by Donna Arnold — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

At 205 pounds, I had a fat chance of dating the one fire fighter I'd really set my sights for. That's when I decided I'd better find a way to lose weight.

It took me eighteen years to get up to 205 pounds. Then I got a glimpse of the Casanova of the Fire Department, Ricky Arnold, and it took me only nine months to come down off that peak and turn his head. But of course, I needed a little help.

Fortunately, I found it soon after I went to work for the Department in Savannah, Georgia. That was the only place I could get a job, thanks to the kindliness of the Fire Chief.

He saw something beneath all those years of custards, cookies, fried chicken, potatoes and gravy — which is more than they did at another place where I was interviewed. You see, a girl friend and I had tried to get telephone operator positions there, but the supervisor said we were so fat, neither one of us would be able to get between the seats at the switchboard. This upset us so, we both went out and ate away our frustrations.

But to get back to the Fire Department, the girls who worked in the investigation division, like me, were put on the second floor. And I'll tell you, those fire fighters had a ball watching our legs going up the stairs. Why, they never missed a pair — of slim ones anyway.

As for mine, if they bothered to look up, all they saw was oversized knees, rubbing together. That didn't stop me, however, from looking down and developing a crush on Ricky.

At this point, I'd like to say that in every overweight person's life, there comes a moment of decision, motivated by desire or shame or ambition or fear. A moment when a person knows it's time to lose weight. And I knew when I saw Ricky that the only way I was going to get his attention was to take off those pounds.

Past experience told me that reducing pills weren't for me. A girl friend at work, however, had some of those reducing-plan candies, Ayds®, so I tried them. And I liked them so much, I bought a box of the chocolate fudge kind and started on the Ayds plan right away. Incidentally, I read the contents on the box and it was reassuring to learn Ayds contain vitamins and minerals but no drugs.

I'd never been a breakfast eater, even though I know that's an important meal. But before lunch, I'd have two Ayds with hot coffee, as the directions say, and they really helped curb my appetite. I was completely satisfied with a salad and maybe meat. For supper, I'd have two more Ayds with coffee, followed by broiled meat, salad again, a vegetable and perhaps fruit. But Ayds were the biggest help to me in the evening, because they kept me from filling up on tons of calories while I watched television. And for someone who was used to eating a hundred miles an hour, that's doing something.

Well, even the first month on the Ayds plan, that weight really started to come off. It must have shown, too, because Ricky actually asked me for a date. He took me to the beach and I felt so wonderful, I refused to eat even a custard. Love had completely taken me over! I was determined that the Ayds plan and I were going to get me my man.

Of course, Ricky still played the field while I was going down, but I was getting to him. When I dropped below 150 pounds, one of his friends asked me out and I went just to make him jealous. And to get back at him for once saying I looked like I had inner tubes under my chin. Well, Rick got so furious at my dating another man, I knew I'd turned the tide.

Anyway, the happy ending is that Rick and I got married a little better than nine months after I'd been on the Ayds plan. I was just below 125 pounds.

Don't think I've given up the plan entirely, though, even now. There is always a box of Ayds ready, if I need them. You see, Rick insists that I get weighed every single day. He checks on me, too, because he won't tolerate my being over 130 pounds. So I know I have to stay between 125 and 130. And the Ayds plan helps keep me there.

As you can see, I've lost just about half of me. I'm now down to 126 pounds and, girls, losing those 79 pounds has won me my man – the Casanova of the firehouse.

Believe me, this is a true story. There are plenty of witnesses. The fire fighters Ricky worked with, thirty men per shift with three shifts, all saw how the Ayds plan worked for me.

Is It Only Charm?

"Harold Hughes is, quite simply, an overpowering man. I sometimes wonder if he realizes the strength of his magnetism."

number of men Harold Hughes seems to have found more useful than irritating, likes pretty well (I think I can say that), and can count on.

Nor have I, to be wholly truthful, set forth one final awkwardness; to do it, I've got to confess that many of the times I've felt less than comfortable with Senator Hughes have had nothing to do with his position, but were rather a consequence of the personality that put him into the position. Harold Hughes is, quite simply, an overpowering man. I sometimes wonder if he realizes the strength of his magnetism.

This is the thing I continue to ponder, for the phenomenon of human magnetism seems to me a central mystery to be solved in trying to understand how certain men alter history. It is a quality to which we give different names at its different levels of strength.

At a low level—Tony's level, I suppose—we call it charm. At the next we recognize it, perhaps, with an old-fashioned term like character. At a still higher level we call it personal authority, and can be awed (and discomfited) by it. Yet it causes some rebellion in me, too, and some cynicism—I cannot guarantee that I will always like the way I behave with men who have these various degrees of magnetism. This feeling is not unusual in the men around Harold Hughes. I remember one of his staff saying to me, during the '68 campaign:

"You know, I think I'm pretty good. When I go in to make a pitch to him, I always get myself up for it. I'm going to get him this time. But he always takes me. I may get to make my point after he does, but he always has to take me first."

"God," I had to say. "He even takes me over the telephone."

Once I failed to see that magnetism might exist at levels more potent than charm, a degree that we more often associate with harm politically than good, learning finally to prefer the intelligent, conscientious officeholder who gets his work done. Probably it should have been obvious to me that magnetism at the higher levels is the most essential of the various qualities that combine as leadership, and therefore find myself involuntarily sympathetic with Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon, who have seemed to lack magnetism or even to hold it in negative quantities. "When Nixon comes in green on color TV," my wife said once, "I don't even pink him."

But whatever its origins in personal security, in ego, in great physical and intellectual energy, in moral wholeness, a grown man's degree of magnetism is probably inalterable, like his shoe size or the color of his eyes.

Harold Hughes has more of it than any other man I ever met.

Senator Hughes' voice is a strong, clear bass ("I can't get within an octave of baritone," Harold Hughes once told another writer). The only other American voice I know that resembles it belongs to Johnny Cash, the country singer, but as a speaking voice, Cash's is second best.

Energy is the constant quality in magnetism at every level. But rarest of all, even in the kings and emperors who are supposedly bred and educated for it, is magnetism in its highest degree: dominance.

An actor like George C. Scott sometimes conveys it and I feel it in Senator Hughes. With this kind of person (I'd be more confident in saying so if I knew more than one example) I think the moral certainty has been raised to moral commitment. The emotional certainty is now emotional commitment—yet, oddly enough, the totality of the self-confidence seems somewhat diminished. There is in Hughes (and I would guess other men and women like him) an undisguised strain of humility. I think what has been added to the other qualities, besides commitment, is the kind of intelligence that will not allow any conclusion to be foregone. It reflects. It broods. It asks.

It may not, perhaps, suffer fools gladly, at least not for very long. But genuine dominance, if that is what I've encountered, is not arrogant; it doesn't need to be.

Want to Break Those Bad Habits? A New Approach

"Since neurotic behavior originates in learning, its elimination is probably a matter of 'unlearning.' "

"Don't be silly, I've taken them every night now for 20 years, and they haven't become a habit yet!"

By Richard Allen Stull

A tempestuous Broadway star once cajoled her doctor into allowing her to order some sleeping pills. "Be careful how you take these," he cautioned. "First thing you know they'll become a habit with you." "Don't be silly," she scoffed. "I've taken them every night now for 20 years, and they haven't become a habit yet!"

Every one of us is a creature of habit. "Habit is a cable," observed Horace Mann. "We weave a thread of it every day and at last we cannot break it." Each New Year we reflect on our good and bad habits and make resolutions to do something about the latter. We usually fail. This is because habits are so strong. Perhaps what is needed is a new approach. Instead of being so concerned with the elimination of bad habits, perhaps we should spend our time thinking about the formation of good habits.

Psychologists suggest the following rules for breaking involuntary habits and establishing new ones:

1. Make an old involuntary habit voluntary. Deliberate exercise of a bad habit can give us control over the undesirable response, so we can inhibit it at will. Typists, for example, often correct the bad habit of typing "hte" for "the" by consciously practicing "hte."
2. Substitute a new response for the older one. The best way to overcome a bad habit is to replace it by a good one. A new response must be associated with a given stimulus by reconditioning. Dieters often replace the chain of "take, unwrap and eat candy," with "take, wash and eat celery."
3. Start the new habit with all possible initiative. Commit yourself publicly to a new course so that fear of ridicule will strengthen the incentive.
4. Permit no return to the old habit. Refuse every temptation leading to use of the rejected behavior.
5. Exercise the new habit voluntarily as often as possible. Repetition provides regular reinforcement. Unreinforced habits tend to become extinct.

A golf professional, hired by a big department store to give golf lessons, was approached by two women. "Do you wish to learn to play golf, madam?" he asked one. "Oh, no," she replied. "It's my friend who wants to learn. I learned yesterday."

A relatively new psychological concept is the method of treatment known as the learning-maturity concept. Stated simply, this means that emotional stress is the result of mis-education, or lack of proper education, and that emotional stability can be achieved by learning the qualities that comprise maturity. This concept is in direct opposition to Freudian analysis, which is anchored in the concept that emotional stress is conditioned early in life by some unacceptable experience that is relegated to the dark depths of the subconscious where it preys on its host forever.

The learning-maturity concept insists that, regardless of the omissions and commissions of the past, we have to start in the present, here and now, to acquire some maturity so that the future may be better than the past. The present and the future depend on learning new habits and new ways of looking at old problems.

The best presentation of this new theory of psychotherapy as a serious alternative to the repression theory of Freudian psychoanalysis is that of Dr. Joseph Wolpe. In his work, Dr. Wolpe has applied the known laws of learning to the special problems of neurosis and developed new techniques of therapy.

Dr. Wolpe calls his method "psychotherapy by reciprocal inhibition." Briefly, this means that in general it is possible to overcome a habit by forming a new and antagonistic habit when you are faced with a similar situation. For example, an overly dependent adult is encouraged and taught to assert himself in practice situations until he can reach out and take a stand on his own. Since neurotic behavior originates in learning, its elimination is probably a matter of "unlearning." What distinguishes this new method of treatment is the much shorter span of time required for what may be an even more successful approach than the lengthy and expensive exploration of a hidden past.

In earlier days, America's pioneering psychologist, William James, anticipated this approach when he said: "The sovereign voluntary path to cheerfulness, if our spontaneous cheerfulness be lost, is to sit up cheerfully, look around cheerfully, and act and speak as if cheerfulness were already there. If we act as if from some better feeling, the bad feeling soon silently steals away."

In this old and new theory, effect becomes more important than cause, and emphasis is in doing and practicing the new rather than exploring the reasons for the old. If this principle is, indeed, a master key to the cure of neurosis, a much brighter future lies ahead for the victims of neurotic suffering.

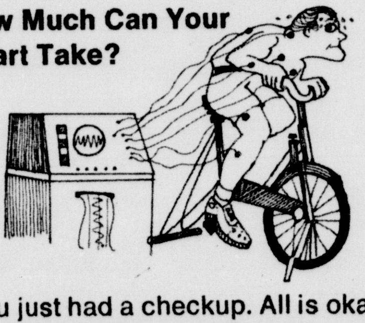
Did You Know Cats Are Born Deaf?

It's true—cats are born deaf. But they soon develop a hearing range of from 20,000 to 25,000 vibrations per second. And, because their ears are much more intricate than ours, they can harbor trouble. When you groom your cat, wipe the ear flaps clean with baby oil and look inside. Never probe with a sharp instrument. If your cat is always pawing and scratching at his ear he may have ear mites, a pesky problem (common to strays) that usually needs a vet's attention. If your cat develops bare patches on the outside of his ears, he may have Notoedric Mange. This will respond to a prescription ointment, but keep your hands clean when applying. Blood blisters, caused by scratching, can collect between the layers of skin. Don't try operating; let your vet do it. Meniere's Disease is an infection of the inner ear that will cause your cat to roll drunkenly from side to side. It's an unpleasant disease, but it does respond to antibiotics.

The Doctor Lets You In

How Much Can Your Heart Take?



You just had a checkup. All is okay—even the electrocardiogram (EKG), in which you lay with electrodes plastered over your chest and leg. Yes, but how does your heart react when you are not lying down? Now methods have been devised to show heart action as it is under stress. Called Heart Stress Tests (HST), they come in a variety of forms. One is the Master 2-step test, in which the patient walks up and down a two-step stool with electrodes on his chest and leg. Another is the stationary bicycle test, in which the patient pedals while his heart action is recorded. The HST does two things: It shows heart action as it is under daily stress, and it tells how much exercise your heart can take without getting hurt. As part of your regular health examination, ask your doctor to send you for a stress test. It's one of the best ways we have of predicting proneness to heart attack.

Tuesday Weld's Mother Says:

"When I Helped Tuesday Become a Star—I Also Lost My Daughter"

By Yosene Ker Weld

Pictorial Parade

Tuesday, as she appeared at recent "Play It as It Lays" cast party: Some compare her with Marilyn Monroe.

Mrs. Weld is coauthor of a forthcoming book about her daughter and herself, "Tuesday Says I'm Dead," scheduled to be published next year by Curtis Books.

This is addressed to all mothers—and fathers—who ever wondered if perhaps their precious little Susie or Johnnie might not be destined for Hollywood fame. Who, in other words, have considered joining that most infamous and maligned club—the "Backstage Mothers."

I am writing because I have "been there." I know. Today, at 29, my daughter Tuesday has attained much of the success I always dreamed of for her. She recently won the Best Actress Award at the Venice Film Festival for her role in "Play It as It Lays," and some profess to see her as the new Marilyn Monroe or Liz Taylor.

Let me tell you what it has been like for Tuesday and me.

As a baby and as a little girl, Tuesday was all love and kisses for her "Mommy." She was so possessive that she demanded most of my time, even pushed aside her sister and brother, to their bewilderment and anger.

I think she was pleased when I introduced her to modeling because it meant she could be with me and have my full attention focused on her.

For me, however, it was the job of a workhorse. After my chores with the other children, I'd get Tuesday ready, then lug heavy suitcases full of clothes from interview to interview, carrying a large portfolio of pictures and résumes, and often toting Tuesday as well. When Tuesday was first getting started modeling in New York, I'd sometimes be so tired and disappointed at the end of the day, I'd feel like sitting on a curbstone and crying.

But of course, I didn't, I couldn't. For the last thing I wanted to do was destroy my child's morale. If a child's deep desire to succeed and great faith in itself is destroyed, there's no use trying. It's utterly senseless for a mother to "push" a child. If the child doesn't want it, there's no way.

For instance, when Tuesday and I first started on our "go-see's," as we called interviews, she sometimes refused to be the little girl I knew she could be. Her shyness would give her a "set" look, and she would become withdrawn around the other chattering children and confident mothers.

But don't get me wrong. Despite a few "disasters," Tuesday took naturally to modeling. Even at three-and-a-half, when she had her first job at Best & Co., she loved the work because it involved getting dressed up and having special attention. Tuesday was as good as gold. She took direction without question and had the stamina to continue long after the other children had started crying and had been taken home. She might get stubborn, but she never tired on the job.

One thing a mother of an especially talented child must watch out for is the demands that talent and ambition can make. Tuesday wanted all of the attention, all of the time. But I had two other children to think about. When Tuesday was eight-and-a-half and at the peak of her young career, I took the family to Florida for a quieter life and healthier climate, but especially so the older children could have the best swimming coach in the country. Earlier, both Sally and David had developed into championship swimmers. For those two years Tuesday lived like other girls her age. But with attention focused on her brother and sister, she was bored. We moved back to New York, and soon little girl friends, now the smart young models and budding actresses, came to welcome Tuesday back to the city. It was obvious that Tuesday would want to get back to work again.

"Would I advise others to join the 'Backstage Mothers' Club? I think not. The initiation fee is terribly high—and you'll be paying dues the rest of your life."

It's hard to imagine, considering how beautiful Tuesday was as a youngster and as a teenager, that she was ever an "ugly duckling." But she went through an awkward stage between 10½ and 12, suffering from skin problems and overweight. Worst of all, her hair, once long, blonde and silky, came in frizzy curls, brunette and unmanageable. I went to the top hair specialists, had it straightened and made her a blonde again. I concentrated on diets and complexion care. Tuesday came out of it beautifully. All it took was time, some money, constant care, and just plain growing up.

Mothers often ask me how they can tell if their child has a chance. I think the mother's own instinct has a lot to do with the decision. One can tell quite early if a child is musical and has a sense of timing. Timing is fundamental to success, I believe. But the most important thing to look for is a depth and quality of sensitivity. I knew from the beginning, when Tuesday was a little baby, that she had a special awareness. But I always felt she was holding something back.

Another route in which I don't believe is too much special coaching—acting lessons, acting schools. Tuesday received her training by starting at the bottom. From the very beginning, I encouraged her to listen and to observe, particularly the director and the feature players' work of any kind, even as a standby or as an extra in a mob scene. Tuesday had all the exposure to the business of acting that I could manage to get for her.

The greatest heartaches were yet to come. For, like so many actors and actresses who have had "Backstage Mothers," Tuesday grew resentful as she grew older. The pulling away began when she was working in Elia Kazan's "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs" on Broadway. Tuesday was just 13, but the people in the cast, most of them in their twenties, accepted Tuesday. And she reached out to them, too.

When we came to Hollywood, she wooed friendships with older and older show biz people, and because she had them, she felt she needed her mother less and less. Soon she completely disregarded any advice or counsel and stayed away from home most of the time. Several years ago she began to talk about me, outrageously, to the press.

I have had job offers to be an agent for other children. But Tuesday's lack of understanding has been such a bitter disappointment to me that I just cannot bear to put myself in that position again. The joy and pride have been great, but I cannot honestly say they outweigh the sacrifice and pain. I fear when I helped Tuesday become a star—I also lost my daughter.

It's a terrible shame that the only communication between parent and child is what they say about each other in print. But I don't know if it's possible for Tuesday and me ever to resume a natural mother-daughter relationship.

Perhaps, someday . . . but it's not very likely.

In the meantime, I live with my regrets. Would I advise others to join the "Backstage Mothers" Club? I think not. The initiation fee is terribly high—and you'll be paying dues the rest of your life.

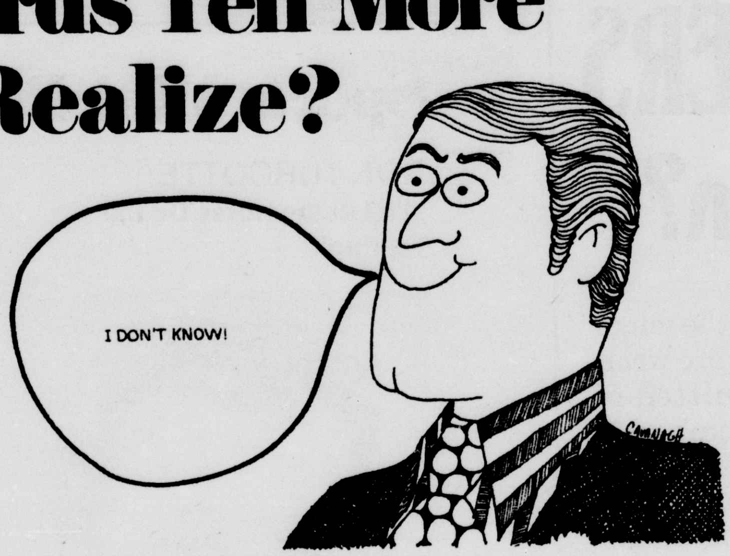
Do Your Words Tell More Than You Realize?

By John E. Gibson



True or False: The silent, taciturn, man-of-few-words, who seldom gives voice to his thoughts, isn't likely to have many. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you have a fluent command of language and are seldom at a loss for words, you may be envied—but it won't make it any easier for you to get along with people.

2. If your language "turns the air blue" occasionally, it can cut down on your chances of being stricken by stress-ailments.

3. The silent, taciturn, man-of-few-words, who seldom gives voice to his thoughts, isn't likely to have many.

4. Frequent use of the phrases "To be perfectly frank . . . ," "To be honest with you . . . ," etc., is an indication that the speaker is basically an honest person.

5. Silence is often far more expressive than speech.

ANSWERS

1. False. Studies show that fluency in speech and "skill and ease in interpersonal relations" tend to go hand in hand. The more articulate you are in expressing yourself, the more it facilitates mutual understanding.

2. True—according to findings of research at Britain's University of Manchester, which show swearing to be highly effective as an emotional safety valve for all sorts of pent-up tensions. It's pointed out that the alternative to swearing—i.e., "swallowing a bellyful of resentment without protest"—may implant the seeds of a duodenal ulcer. It's also observed that: "If the disposition to swear is as deeply ingrained in human life as it appears to be, it could be put to further good use in international affairs as a substitute for war!"

3. True. As one human-behavior specialist has observed: "If a man has no free communication with others, his internal thinking tends to grow inhibited. Thinking demands discussion and conversation, test and confrontation. When it is denied these things, it suffers."

4. False—according to the findings of psychiatrist Sandor S. Feldman. "Habitual use of such phrases as 'Frankly speaking' or 'To be honest,' " he finds, "indicates that the person is not always frank and honest." It's pointed out that if it were characteristic of the person to speak nothing but the truth, he would not feel it necessary to emphasize the fact that he is being honest in this instance.

5. True. "Silent language," when judiciously employed, can be one of the most effective forms of communication. It can say things and convey feelings that could be put into words only with greatest difficulty—if at all. For example, a significant pause before replying—or not answering at all—can have a far more telling effect on the other person than anything you can possibly say. Silence, as one authority has observed, is a powerful and often unanswerable figure of speech. It is also noted that "Silence is one of the hardest arguments to refute." fw

Two New Nonfattening Snacks

Grated Cheese
YOGURT

Yes, snacking can be nonfattening and satisfying. A delicious snack is a cup of popped corn (25 calories). Instead of pouring butter over it (at 40 calories a teaspoonful), sprinkle it with a teaspoonful of grated cheese (about ten calories), for a total of only 35 delicious calories! By contrast, a skimpy snack of five potato chips runs about 60 calories. . . . From Hollywood comes word of a popular low-calorie healthful lunch or supper that fills you up: Slice half a cucumber into a soup plate, add a dash of lemon, a half-cup of yogurt and a teaspoonful of dried onion soup. Stir up and dine on a fresh-as-spring meal at a cost of about 90 calories. You can also mix in four or five leaves of cut-up romaine, which adds about ten calories and at least three times as much vitamin A as ordinary lettuce.

RON TURCOTTE:

"I'll Let the Horse Do the Talking"

Wide World

Ron Turcotte, who rode Secretariat to his spectacular "Triple Crown" victories this year, thanks his lucky stars he was born small and remained that way instead of developing into an average-size specimen like everyone else. Turcotte's small stature enabled him to latch on to a career as a jockey when he lost his job in a Canadian lumber camp, and his victories aboard Secretariat and other top thoroughbreds have hoisted him into the $250,000-a-year bracket. . . . Turcotte, a French-Canadian, followed his dad into work as a lumber-cutter. But when hard times forced the lumber camp to close in 1960, Ron went to a nearby racetrack to search for a job and was hired as a $35-a-week "hot-walker"—a boy who walks racehorses around the track to cool them off after they've been exercised. Because of his size and because he'd had experience aboard workhorses, he decided to become a jockey. He apprenticed first as a rider of yearlings and gradually acquired the skill to handle mature thoroughbreds. Unlike such colorful jockeys as Willie Shoemaker and Eddie Arcaro, Turcotte disdains a showy style. "I've been lucky enough to have ridden horses with a lot of personality and spirit, so it doesn't matter if I'm not colorful myself," he says. (After dinner, he and his wife Gaetane, a childhood sweetheart, play cribbage, and are in bed by ten.) The 31-year-old Turcotte has been winning consistently for several years, but reached the jackpot with his victories in the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes last year and his "Triple" success this year aboard Secretariat.

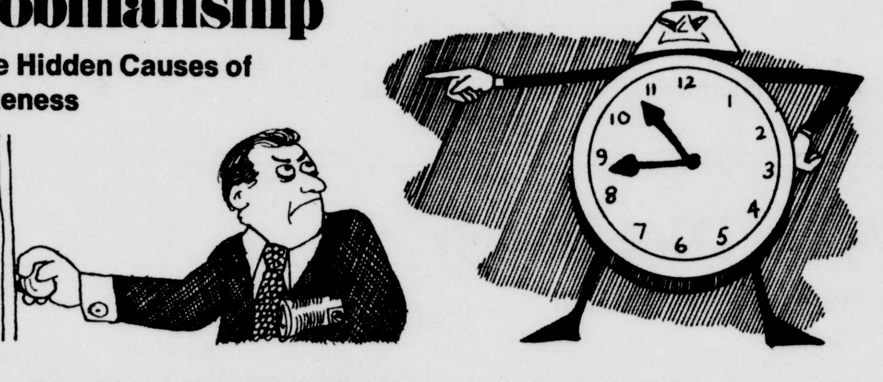
Jobmanship

The Hidden Causes of Lateness



Even though you're a good worker, you'll eventually strain your boss's patience if you're frequently late. When it's an emergency or serious family illness, everyone understands. But if you are often late, you may be able to help yourself. (1) Perhaps you should alter your personal schedule to face the facts. You'll often hear people say, "It only takes me half an hour in the morning to dress and eat." Some people do manage in half an hour, but many others really require 40 minutes or an hour. Till they face the truth and set the alarm clock accordingly, they'll be late. In considering your schedule, also examine the possibility that you're trying to accomplish too much in the morning. You may have developed the "I'll just do one more little thing before I leave for work" habit. (2) Perhaps you're still fighting long-gone battles. Psychologists say that much chronic lateness is due to resentment. This resentment, which may have begun with parents or some person who currently controls your life, may be turned toward all authority. Since the time clock represents authority, you may find it hard to conform to it.—By S. R. Redford

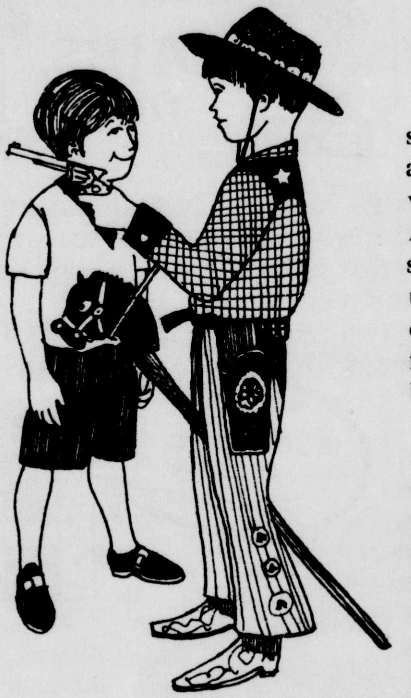
Child Crises: Which Ones Are Normal-Which Are Not?

By Grace W. Weinstein



Bobby sucks his thumb. Laura is afraid of the dark. Andrew is always biting and kicking other children. Eric won't eat dinner until a place has been set for his imaginary playmate.

Some parents can accept such behavior calmly, others are driven frantic. But child-development specialists agree that every one of these things is normal: at the appropriate age and stage of development.

No one objects to an eight-month-old needing a bottle, wetting his bed or relying on a security blanket. But many parents become upset when a four-year-old still sucks his thumb or has trouble staying dry through the night. When can you reasonably expect a child to grow out of infantile behavior patterns? When does this behavior reflect emotional disturbance and become a signal for help?

> "The intensity of involvement is the issue. . . . The child who puts on a cowboy suit for Halloween and can't stop being a cowboy for three weeks after Halloween is over may need help."

New York child psychiatrist Abraham Chaplan offers two guides for anxious parents: (1) Is the action appropriate to the child's stage of development? (2) Does he carry it to extremes? Says Dr. Chaplan, "If a five-year-old sucks his thumb or has a security blanket but is otherwise involved in normal activities, leave him alone. If he also talks baby talk and plays only with stuffed animals instead of with friends or the toys appropriate to his age, then be concerned and seek help."

A normally active first grader who still sucks his thumb but is getting along well in school and at home may be offering you a valuable clue to his emotional state. When Bobby is tense and anxious and sucks his thumb more often than usual, it's an indication that he needs parental comfort and support—maybe an older child bullied him in school, maybe he lost a game for his team, maybe he's just overtired. "It's good to have such a barometer of the child's emotional needs," Dr. Chaplan points out. "The same needs, if suppressed, might show up later as more serious problems."

Laura, completely fearless as an infant, is afraid of the dark. But Laura is four years old now and her fear is natural. Fears—of animals, of fire engines, of separation from mother—are all completely normal in preschool children. A normal youngster will be able to accept comfort for his fears—and overcome them as he grows up. An eight-year-old should no longer be so afraid of the dark that he won't go to bed, although he may still be happier with a night-light. A six-year-old should be able to leave his mother and stay in school, even though he is still dependent on her.

Andrew is aggressive. He bites and kicks his playmates in the sand pile, and lashes out at his mother, too. Andrew is two years old and can't put his feelings into words very well yet. By the time Andrew is four he should be able to express his anger, at least part of the time, verbally rather than physically. At the same time, as part of the socialization process of growing up, he learns the give and take of getting along with others, family and friends, and should be angry less often.

Many children like Eric lead a rich fantasy life in the preschool years, complete with imaginary playmates. Try to accept the invisible friend gracefully—and not sit on him when he occupies your chair—unless this behavior, too, goes to extremes.

The key question here is: Is the line between fantasy and reality blurred? Most children with imaginary friends are pretty clearly aware that they are imaginary. Ask yourself: Can the child tolerate an interruption of his fantasy? How large a part does it play in his life? Will he play only with an imaginary friend and never with real friends? Can he cope with the real world?

"The intensity of involvement is the issue," according to Dr. Chaplan, "and an inability to stop. The child who puts on a cowboy suit for Halloween and can't stop being a cowboy for three weeks after Halloween is over may need help."

The same applies to adolescents. "It's perfectly normal for a 14-year-old to daydream in his room," says Martin Adler, Director of the Dumont (New Jersey) Community Center for Mental Health, "but if he can't snap out of it when you call him for dinner, something is wrong."

From infancy through adolescence, try to know your child. Learn to recognize his patterns of behavior, and watch for sudden dramatic changes in behavior.

But don't worry excessively. Most childhood problems are temporary, a normal—if unsettling—part of growing up. fw

Some Verse—Written in Love for Some People I Know

By Marjorie Western Riley

Reminiscences of a Grandmother

I remember . . . I remember . . .
The babies, one and all,
Once so dear and round and
dimpled,
Now so wise and straight and
tall.

I've always pinned on babies
Every hope I have for
Heaven—
And that's a lot of pinning
Because there were—well—
SEVEN!

For twenty years the kitchen floor
Was covered, ankle deep,
With applesauce and
Campbell's soup,
And also Cream of Wheat.

One little lad I knew quite well,
When once he had been fed,
Would place his blue bowl
upside down
Upon his flaxen head.

Another smeared his egg-and-
toast
Like paint upon the table,
And all in all, the scene recalled
A filthy, ill-kept stable.

A third young man would often hurl
His pudding to the floor,
And roll in it remorselessly
The while he yelled for more.

Yes I remember . . . I remember . . .
The babies, sweet and wet.
And I'll baby-sit YOURS,
darling,
Just as soon as I forget.

Temperature: Wintry

The gentle words, "I'm sorry,
dear,"
Fall very softly on the ear,
Melting ice and cold
resentment,
Reinstating sweet
contentment.

I said them to my mate last night
(Although, of course, I HAD been right).
I said my line; he had his cue
To say, "Dear, I am sorry,
too."

He spoke the words, but not in quite
(And I am sure I heard them right)
The way I longed so much to hear.
He said: "I'm glad you're sorry, dear."

The snow drifts high outside
the door,
The ice is very thin. . . .
Although the calendar says
June,
The cold war's on again.

To My Husband, with Love

For thirty-one relentless
years,
Through, well, inclement
weather,
Though we were adults when
we met,
We have grown up together.

And though my verse is often aimed
At you in little phrases
More tart than sweet—you
only laugh,
The acid never fazes.

So look upon my poems,
Love,
As tribute to the strong—
We both know that a laughing
time
Can only last so long.

And, darling, from that circled day
When you and I shall part,
Should I remain, no poems
will Come laughing from my heart.

Great Chicken and Beef Stew—for Dieters

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares a scientifically measured diet recipe. Says Marilyn: "I picked this recipe out of 'The Ladies' Home Journal Family Diet Book,' by Evan Frances (Macmillan, $6.95). It was so good, I wanted to share it with you!"

CHICKEN AND BEEF STEW
360 Calories Per Serving*

2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 (3 lb.) broiler-fryer, cut up
1 teaspoon unseasoned meat tenderizer
2 lbs. boneless beef chuck, cubed
3 cans (10½-oz. size) beef bouillon
2 cups water
12 peppercorns, cracked
4 parsley sprigs
4 whole cloves garlic, crushed
2 bay leaves
6 whole carrots, peeled
12 small white onions, peeled
6 leeks, trimmed
6 stalks celery (cut in 2-inch pieces)
2 teaspoons salt
Chopped parsley

1. Slowly heat oil in Dutch oven until hot. Brown chicken a few pieces at a time, until golden. Remove when browned, set aside.

2. Sprinkle meat tenderizer over beef cubes according to label directions.

3. Brown beef on all sides, a few cubes at a time. Drain all fat from pan.

4. Return beef to pan. Add bouillon, water, peppercorns, parsley, garlic, bay leaves. Bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, 30 minutes.

5. Add chicken. Simmer, covered, 45 minutes. Take out meats with slotted spoon. Strain broth into a bowl. Let stand 5 minutes; skim off all fat.

6. Return beef cubes and broth to Dutch oven, together with carrots, onions, leeks, celery and salt. Simmer, covered, 30 minutes. Add chicken pieces and simmer 15 minutes longer.

7. Let stand 5 minutes off heat; skim fat. Place in tureen. Sprinkle with chopped parsley. *Makes 6 servings

*1 serving is 1/6 of the meat, 1 carrot and 2 onions or 1 carrot and 1 leek, 1 cup celery and ⅓ cup broth.

TAKE YOUR PICK—
Modern Dress Boot...
...High Style Shoe
Selling at retail for as much as $42.95
YOURS FREE

Plus a regular depression proof income of up to $200 a month for spare time hours just for showing friends how they can save as much as 50% on shoes and you can buy shoes for yourself and your family at wholesale prices.

I've given away thousands of boots and shoes like these to men who were fed up with the hopeless job of trying to make their income stretch over constantly increasing prices. They faced up to the fact that there was only one answer—more money—and they got a free pair of shoes or boots for just making that simple decision.

Offer Hanover shoes to your friends and you'll find hard times and high prices working with you instead of against you. Men who have taken Hanover's offer are showing earnings of as much as $200—$250—and more each month. When you can show a man that he can save as much as 50% on high quality shoes; when you can prove that point for point the Hanover shoe that sells for $24.95 is equal or superior to a shoe that sells nationally for $42.95, they not only jump at the chance to buy, they come back to you time and time again for more.

Or to put it another way, you can show a friend now wearing "bargain counter" shoes that he can wear high quality, finely styled Hanover shoes—probably better shoes than he has ever worn in his life—for less money than he now pays.

Jumping on the Hanover bandwagon is the simplest thing you can imagine—and doesn't cost you a cent. Just mail the coupon below to me right now while you're thinking of it. I'll mail you—entirely free—a full selling kit including the full color Hanover catalog of nearly 200 styles of shoes. You'll find dress boots, dress shoes, casual shoes, slip-ons, work shoes, fleece-lined boots for working outdoors or hunting. You'll have more shoes at your finger tips than the largest shoe store in the country. Show the catalog to your friends and neighbors and let them take their pick. And you get a liberal commission on every pair.

And how do you get the free shoes or boots? Get your selling kit and let your friends see it. If you take orders for ten pairs of shoes in the first 30 days you can select any shoe or boot in the catalog selling for no more than $24.95—and we'll send them to you free. And remember, a shoe of like quality to the Hanover shoe you select will sell for as much as $42.95 in shoe stores over the country.

If you need extra money; if you are sick and tired of trying to make ends meet, mail the coupon below to me right away. It doesn't even cost you a stamp—just fold it over and drop it in the mail. The information I'll send you could be the most hopeful uplifting story you have heard in years.

HERE'S WHAT OTHER HANOVER MEN HAVE TO SAY

R.F.H., Pa: Spent one hour in a barber shop discussing shoes...and bass fishing. I left with a total order for $95.80 with commission for me of $19.25.

A.K.K., Conn: Biggest individual sale of my entire shoe career. 18 pairs in one hour. The secret was the marvelous styles and prices Hanover has to offer. My total commission was $64.50. Not hard to take for an hour.

J.R.S., Texas: Enclosed is an order for two pairs of alligator shoes for the same customer. Made $30 in commissions. Not bad for 20 minutes work.

NO STAMP NEEDED Cut out and fold over business reply card. Staple, glue or tape and drop it in the mail.

O.K., Mr. King.

I'd like to have information on the opportunity to make money spare time with Hanover Shoe. I agree to show the Hanover catalog to at least ten friends.

I understand that if I sell ten pairs of Hanover Shoes in the first 30 days I get a free pair of shoes—any shoe or boot in the Hanover Catalog selling for up to $24.95.

What in the World!

TRUMPETER AL HIRT
Weight loss by surgery

Don't you wish you could just "cut that fat away"? Perhaps you can—sort of. In a new surgical operation called an ileo-bypass, fat is not actually cut away, but part of the small intestine is bypassed, thus cutting off a portion of the digestive system that absorbs nutrients. In the course of seven years, Drs. Burton Bergman and Leonard Waldman have performed more than 60 of these procedures. One woman lost 140 pounds after her ileo-bypass. Trumpeter Al Hirt underwent the operation with great success. Dr. Waldman says, "This is a radical way to lose weight. Nobody becomes thin, but the weight eventually stabilizes somewhere around the person's normal optimum. And as time goes by, eating habits change and self-confidence and personality improvements are seen." Although this is a drastic way to lose, if a person's health or life is in danger because of overweight, this may be the answer.

ACTRESS SIMI GAREWAL
Nudity vs. Marriage

Consider the plight of Simi Garewal, Indian costar of the new film "Siddhartha." The film was shot in India, where hand-holding is the most film censors allow. But it features a love scene on the balcony of a gleaming white palace. "There were about 10,000 onlookers watching as we shot and reshot this scene," Simi recalls, "and the crowd was so delighted that it roared its approval after each take!" But Simi has a problem, in that the movie has a nude scene. She says: "By playing such scenes, which will certainly be cut from the version shown in my country, my chances of getting married are probably reduced. Even though the scenes are artistic, they create an image that is not exactly what even the most sophisticated Indian man could easily accept." Simi also confides that the ultimate and most important goal in her life is rather old-fashioned: to become a wife and mother.

Car racing at 250 mph? With "wings" mounted on their sides only four inches above the ground to create 1,000 pounds of downward force, racing cars today are rocketing along at speeds well above 200 miles per hour. Even so redoubtable a charger as A. J. Foyt warns that the quest for ever-greater speeds may lead to greater danger in races where 25 or more cars are approaching record velocities. But champion Mark Donohue feels that "We haven't come anywhere near the limit for speed. The mechanical work is getting more and more advanced all the time, and the drivers are going to be able to respond to it, just as they always have. Back when the first cars were going over 100 mph, there were people warning that it was too dangerous. Two hundred miles an hour? Pretty soon we'll be coming close to 250 mph at Indy."

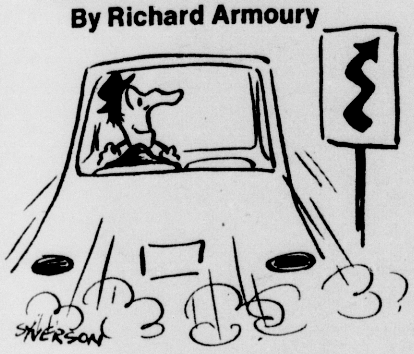
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armoury



DO YOU FOLLOW ME?

Some people are skillful at following maps.
There's a compass built into them somewhere perhaps.
They know where to turn—if it's left, they are right;
If it's right they should turn, they're not left, day or night.

But maps aren't for me, I just follow my nose,
And I'm lucky I get there at all, I suppose.
For my nose has a curve and a twist and a hollow
That most would find harder than road maps to follow.

It's ridiculous calling the Kennedy half dollar a sandwich coin. Did you ever try to buy a sandwich with one?

I had decided to bake a cake one day. I don't usually bake cakes unless it is someone's birthday. So naturally when my young son saw me frosting a cake, he asked me whose birthday it was. We decided to ask an expert, Dave Prowse, 3-times British Weightlifting champion and leading fitness expert. Here are his answers.

Q. What does it take to build muscles?

A. Basically, it takes exercise. Almost any exercise will help to develop at least some of your muscles if you keep at it long enough and hard enough.

Q. Isn't there an easier way?

A. Yes. There is one outstandingly effective training method that is also fast and easy—the one I use and recommend—the new Bullworker system.

Q. What's that?

A. The Bullworker is a revolutionary new muscle-building exerciser based on Isometrics, the science that increases strength up to four times faster than conventional methods. In my opinion, it's the most advanced training system in the world today. Many leading athletes use it: World-famous Heavyweight Boxer Muhammad Ali, World Heavyweight Judo Champion Wim Ruska, and Cycling Champion Eddy Merckx, to name only a few.

Q. How long does Bullworker training take?

A. Bullworker provides absolutely the fastest kind of exercise possible. In fact, an introduction training program takes only 70 seconds a day. No other system—weightlifting, pulleys, or strenuous calisthenics—can give you results so quickly and easily. On the contrary, many old-fashioned methods take hours of sweaty, boring work each day . . . and it's often months before you begin to see improvements. Busy professional athletes and champions don't have time for that. Nobody does.

Q. How long does it take before you begin getting results?

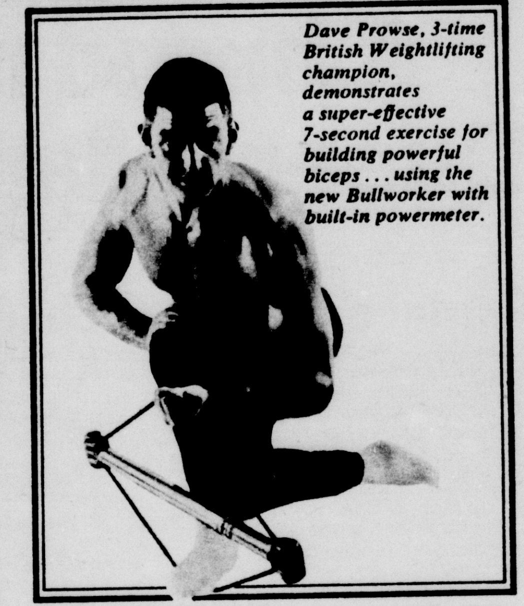
Jack Barclay, junior Mr. Europe shows the kind of results he achieved with Isometric Bullworker training.



Dave Prowse, 3-time British Weightlifting champion, demonstrates a super-effective 7-second exercise for building powerful biceps . . . using the new Bullworker with built-in powermeter.

A. With the Bullworker, you can actually begin to see and measure the positive results right from the very first day! Thanks to a built-in measuring device called the Powermeter. After every exercise you just check the reading to see exactly how much your strength has increased from the day before. There's no guesswork involved. Isometric Bullworker training can increase your power at the amazing rate of up to 4% per week! That means a 50% increase in strength in the first three months alone. And I've known many young men who have gone on to double and even triple their strength.

50

Q. What do those figures mean in visual terms?

A. They mean that in as little as 14 days you can actually begin to see muscle growth in a mirror and verify it with a tape measure. Every week thereafter brings ever faster growth.

Q. But to get such impressive results, don't you have to work very hard?

A. Absolutely not. That's the outstanding advantage of Isometric training . . . it's so amazingly easy! Each "Static-power" Isometric exercise takes only 7 seconds, and you barely have to move. It's not even necessary to disrobe. The Bullworker is so light and compact, it can be used at home, in the office, anywhere . . . even while watching TV! It's a great improvement over bulky, expensive weights, bicycle machines, pulleys, etc.

Q. Can Bullworker training even develop bodies which are weak and skinny, or fat and flabby?

A. Definitely! It's been proven by thousands of men of every shape, size and age all over the world. Bullworker training helps transform weak, thin arms into rippling, muscular pillars of strength, build broad, powerful shoulders, turn flat, shallow chests into deep, manly ones, forge loose stomach flab into steel-hard, well-defined muscle . . . build that "V" shape of a real athlete, develop sturdy, contoured thighs and calves. . . . And all this in record time!

What's more, I've known skinny, shy fellows who, after just a few short weeks with Bullworker, turned into real go-getters . . . every inch a man . . . bowling girls over with their dynamism, confidence, and new found power! You really have to see the remarkable effects of Bullworker for yourself to believe them!

Q. How can our readers find out more about the Bullworker, perhaps actually try it for themselves?

A. I understand that the Bullworker distributor in the USA is now making it available—free —on a two week home-trial basis in order to introduce it to the general public. If your readers are interested in developing their bodies, in building muscles and strength faster than ever before possible, I suggest that they contact the US distributor for full details.

For $1, you get 4 Erle Stanley Gardner thrillers, including the brand new Perry Mason; Agatha Christie's latest "Jane Marple" mystery; the new Dick Francis and "Maigret" books; plus 4 more outstanding mysteries by Marric, Eberhart, Creasey and Queen!

These 11 whodunits in the publishers' original editions cost $62.45. But you get all 11, full-length and handsomely hardbound, for only $1, by joining The Detective Book Club.

What's the catch? You are. Only when you become a member, can we prove to you that The Detective Book Club gives more and asks less of you than any other club. Hence, the irresistible bribe.

You pay no membership fee. There is no minimum number of books you must buy. You get free the Club's Preview which describes each month's selections. You may reject any volume before or after receiving it. And you may cancel at any time.

When you do accept a Club selection, you get three complete, unabridged detective novels in one handsome, hardbound volume (like the one shown on this page) for only $3.89. That's less than you'd have to pay for any one of these novels in a bookstore.

The Club's editors select from more than 300 mystery books published each year. Their choices are so outstanding that many mystery writers are members, too. As a member, you'll be offered the cream of the crime books by top names like those featured above — plus Ed McBain, Ross Macdonald, Richard Lockridge, Leslie Charteris, Rae Foley, and others.

Accept our bribe, now. Send the coupon to get these 11 mysteries for $1.

The Detective Book Club Roslyn, New York 11576

Please enroll me as a member and send at once the 4 double volumes of full-length Gardner thrillers and 4 more great mysteries. Plus a specially selected triple volume including new thrillers by Dick Francis, Georges Simenon, and a Mignon Eberhart classic.

I enclose no money in advance. Within a week after receiving my books, I will either return them and owe nothing, or keep all 5 volumes for the special new member price of only $1 (plus a small shipping charge).

As a member, I am to receive advance descriptions of all future selections, but I'm not obligated to buy any. For each 3-in-1 volume I keep, I will send you only $3.89 (plus a small shipping charge). I may reject any volume before or after I receive it and may cancel my membership at any time.

U.S. massed tanks on Canada border in 1970 crisis?

TORONTO (UPI) — The Toronto Star reported Saturday that the U.S. massed tanks and heavy equipment near the Canadian border in preparation to move into Quebec at the height of the separatist crisis in 1970.

Both the U.S. and Canadian governments denied the report.

The newspaper in a copyrighted story quoted Leslie J. Bennet, a former chief of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) anti-espionage operations, as saying that U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) agents had infiltrated Montreal on a large scale during the Front de Liberation Quebecois (flq) crisis and tanks and heavy equipment were massed just south of the border.

Bennet said the federal government was informed that should the Quebec government fall or fail to preserve order, the Americans would move into southern Quebec to protect vital U.S. interests in the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, who was defense minister at the time of the crisis, denied the story. In Washington, a spokesman for the State Department said the story was "absolutely false."

Bennet, a 53-year-old career intelligence officer was quoted as saying "during the separatist crisis of October, 1970, in Montreal, the Canadian security service had to assign investigators to shadow agents of the CIA who had infiltrated Montreal on a large scale and were carrying on operations without the approval of the Canadian government.

"During the same crisis, the Canadian government moved tanks and other heavy equipment into position just south of Ottawa to offset a buildup of American tanks and heavy equipment just south of the U.S. border."

Bennet, who retired from the RCMP last year, is now employed by a prithat security firm in South Africa.

Macdonald, in denying the story, said: "Frankly the story doesn't accord with any experiences I had as minister of defense. I just don't believe it."

Macdonald sad he could see no reason why the U.S. Army would put troops on the border. "It would have been political insanity on their part to have planned that," he added.

Agnew reported willing to deal

Gas dealers to mobilize in war council

By United Press International

A nationwide shutdown of service stations will be one of the major topics of discussion today at a "war council" called for gasoline dealers from 40 states, a spokesman said Saturday.

Robert Jacobs, a leading official of the Illinois and Indiana Gasoline Dealers Associations, said "other forms of activity" also will be discussed at the noon meeting scheduled at a hotel at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport but he declined to describe them.

The meeting today was the latest in a series of protests by gasoline dealers across the country over the Phase IV guidelines. The dealers object to the freeze on retail prices while wholesale prices are allowed to rise.

There already have been a number of localized shutdowns of service station but so far no nationwide action.

Independent service station dealers in the Baltimore and Washington metropolitan areas Saturday reaffirmed their intentions to close Monday to protest Phase IV.

A spokesman for the Maryland Independent Dealers Association predicted most of the agency' 400 members would observe the shutdown. In Washington, organizers estimated that 60 per cent of the area's 2,000 independent dealers would close, but individual station managers indicated they would wait and see what neighboring competitors would do before deciding.

The California State Automobile Association reported that 90 per cent of the stations there were closed.

GASOLINE LINE

These motorists are not queued up for a major sporting event. Instead, they are waiting patiently to get gasoline at one of few open gas stations in San Francisco after a majority of Northern California retail gasoline dealers decided to close for all or part of four-day protest against Phase IV price controls. The protest, through Monday, is reportedly being strongly supported by dealers.

Source says he'd quit to face minor charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's lawyers are bargaining with the Justice Department toward a possible deal in which he could resign and be charged only with a minor offense in a Maryland political corruption case, a congressional source said Saturday.

The source, who declined to be identified, said Agnew was expected to decide his course of action within a week —with his decision possibly hanging on prospects for his indictment by a federal grand jury in Baltimore that may start hearing evidence against him next week.

The highly secretive negotiations between attorneys for Agnew and top Justice Department officials reportedly began Thursday.

Justice Department spokesmen had no comment.

Agnew's office announced Saturday that he is forming a legal "defense fund" and denied reports that his lawyers were trying to arrange a deal.

Agnew's press secretary, Marsh Thomson, said the defense fund was being established to cover all "legal costs" growing from an investigation of the vice president in connection with an alleged scheme of political kickbacks in his home state of Maryland.

There were conflicting reports about the exact nature of the negotiations. The congressional source described them as "plea bargaining" based on the assumption that, if Agnew resigned, the Justice Department would use any evidence against him only to charge him with a minor offense.

Agnew has been under federal investigation for possible violations of conspiracy, extortion, bribery and tax fraud laws in connection with an alleged arrangement in which Maryland politicians accepted kickbacks from architectural and engineering contractors.

The grand jury investigation stretches back to the years when Agnew served as Baltimore county executive and Maryland governor before becoming vice president in 1969.

The Washington Post reported Saturday that Lester Matz, a Baltimore County consulting engineer who has received limited immunity from prosecution, told federal investigators that he gave Agnew between $25,000 and $50,000 over the last decade.

It was not known whether Agnew or the Justice Department initiated the reported plea bargaining —a common judicial maneuver in which a defendant agrees to plead guilty to a lesser than the maximum charge which evidence could warrant. There also was no indication what possible charges were being discussed.

Both the Post and CBS News reported that Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen was inisting that Agnew plead guilty to some offense rather than let the vice president escape all charges by resigning.

The Baltimore Sun said one of the vice president's lawyers, Judah Best, planned to file suit next week to try to stop federal prosecutors from presenting the Agnew evidence to the Baltimore grand jury, which thus far has focused on other aspects of the kickback case.

Agnew denied the allegations soon after he was formally told of them Aug. 1, and has continued to maintain a fairly normal schedule of appearances. The Kissinger swearing-in was one of the first official events Agnew has skipped since the investigation became known.

New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who attended the Kissinger ceremony, told reporters that President Nixon had not consulted with him about the Agnew situation. Rockefeller has been mentioned as one of the possible successors to Agnew if he decides to resign.

Sources said that when Agnew conferred with Nixon for an hour Thursday, he sought assurances from the President that he would not be pressured into resigning by the White House.

Monorail stalls, power line burns

POMONA — Firemen were kept busy Friday and Saturday with a rescue operation at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds here and a high-voltage power line that burned away partially Saturday afternoon.

Sixty persons were removed from stalled monorail cars at the fairgrounds Friday evening, department spokesmen related. Although no one was injured, it took about 45 minutes to clear the eight cars halted by an electrical problem.

Traffic around Foothill Boulevard and Garey Avenue was routed away from the intersection during a three-hour period Saturday afternoon, said the fire department. Power lines carrying 12,000 volts were left dangling from the northeast corner of the intersection, causing not only a hazard to traffic, but also a fire danger to a gas station below.

Electrical service to some commercial customers in the area was out for a time, related department spokesmen. They said the problem occurred shortly before 2 p.m. when static electricity caused a fire which burned off about 10 feet of the pole some 50 to 60 feet above ground.

Youth, 16, killed crossing freeway

INDUSTRY — A 16-year-old youth was killed as he attempted to dash across the Pomona Freeway east of Azusa Avenue Friday afternoon, the California Highway Patrol reported.

John C. Mock, 18709 Villa Park, La Puente, died three hours after the 12:40 p.m. accident in Doctor's Hospital in San Gabriel.

Driving the auto which struck the youth was Dowsan Metcalf, 26, of West Covina.

Rock singer's body cremated

Hunt on for coffin snatchers

JOSHUA TREE NATIONAL MONUMENT, Calif. (UPI) — The FBI and three Southern California law agencies Saturday hunted a pair of bearded coffin-snatchers who stole the body of rock singer Gram Parsons and cremated it in a ritual ceremony Friday in boulder-strewn Desert National Park here.

The charred remains of the 27-year-old singer-composer were found in the ashes of the coffin, which had been stolen Thursday from Los Angeles International Airport by two men driving a vintage hearse.

Airport officials who mistakenly released the coffin prior to a flight to New Orleans, where Parsons was to be buried, said the fake mortuary attendants wore long hair, one with western boots and a cowboy hat, the other with a heavy black beard.

The men told Western Airline attendants that Parson's family in New Orleans had authorized them to take the body to suburban Van Nuys Airport for a private flight to the Gulf Coast. They signed receipts and were given the coffin.

Parson, a guitar player formerly with "The Byrds," died of an apparent heart attack Wednesday outside the desert park at a motel where he was vacationing for a week. The results of an autopsy will be made known early next week.

The popular, longhaired musician was vacationing with a Los Angeles couple. Parson's wife, Gretchen, was not along on the trip. She was not available for comment.

The morning after the coffin was snatched from the airport, the two men in the old hearse sped down Interstate 15 some 200 miles to the huge desert park, where they set fire to Parson's wooden coffin in a bizarre predawn rite.

Asked if the circumstances appeared ritualistic, Los Angeles homicide detective, Sgt. John Hamilton, said, "It kind of looks like that."

Chief Park Ranger Don Colville, who was on the scene within hours of the coffin's discovery, said the stark cremation scene reminded him of a "Viking funeral, the kind the Norsemen got when they died at sea."

Francis Fox elected to Chino Hills airport board

SANTA ANA — Francis T. Fox, former general manager of the Los Angeles Department of Airports, has been elected to the board of directors and appointed principal consultant to the Chino Hills Airport Complex, Inc.

Fox had served as aviation director for the Hughes Tool Co. since Nov. 1, 1968, when he resigned his airport position. He is currently a consultant to Howard Hughes' Summa Corp., formerly Hughes Tool Co.

His election and appointment were announced by Reg Wood, chairman of the corporation's board of directors. This is viewed as further solidifying efforts to create the jetport.

The airport company is seeking to create an "airport in a park" development on 25,000 acres of unoccupied land in the Chino Hills. The site straddles Orange and San Bernardino Counties.

A recent state survey indicated this as a possible site for a major new airport to serve Southern California.

"There is an obvious need for an airport in this area to meet the demands of the traveling and shipping public. Because of the uninhabited area under consideration, I am sure the proposed detailed environmental impact report and master plan will show a minimal amount of noise or other ecological problems to the neighboring communities," Fox said.

The enormous buffer zone around the proposed two runway system will provide protection for neighboring residents, and the runways will be 1,000 feet above the level of area communities, he added.

"This will be an environmentally controlled airport where only those aircraft meeting the rigid Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) noise standards of the future, as well as safety standards, will be permitted to operate."

Most aviation experts have agreed this is a a feasible airport site since the FAA gave airspace clearance last year, Fox said.

"It is expected the airport will commence operation about 1978. Meanwhile, the air transportation needs of the public can be taken care of at Los Angeles International Airport and a greatly expanded Ontario International Airport."

While with the Los Angeles Department of Airports, Fox was instrumental in that agency acquiring the Ontario airport, then under Ontario City control.

Since joining the Hughes Tool Co., his duties included supervision of activities relating to airports, airlines, corporate aircraft and related aviation projects.

The proposed Chino Hills airport site is four miles northeast of Yorba Linda and four miles southwest of Los Serranos.

The airport company proposes building two 12,000-foot runways to handle 100,000 commercial operations and 20,000 general aviation operations a year.

The airport would occupy about 4,000 acres, with an adjoining 21,500 acres to be controlled through purchase, leasing or easements to prevent any noncompatible development.

Reporter claims Allende was killed by attacking soldiers

OFFENBURG, Germany (UPI) — A West German reporter said in a report published Saturday he saw the body of deposed Chilean President Salvador Allende the day of his death and Allende had been shot in the back, shoulders and head.

Gerhard Eisenkolb, a reporter for Bunte Illustrierte magazine, said in the story:

"Allende did not surrender" during the Sept 11 military coup. "About three hours after the ultimatum (by troops to Allende to surrender) soldiers stormed the government palace.

"Together with two Chilean journalists, I ran after them. There was shooting everywhere.

"We came upon Allende's body in the Red Hall. His head had been mutilated beyond identification. I saw several bullet wounds in the dead man's back and in his shoulders."

Bunte Illustrierte said Eisenkolb had been in Chile for an interview with Allende the day of the coup and had left the country last Thursday.

Anytime they want to, says Tunisia president

Israel able to roll over Arabs unopposed?

By United Press International

President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia said in an interview published Saturday that Israel could roll over Arab lands from the Nile to the Euphrates anytime it wanted, even against united Arab opposition.

Bourguiba said time favors Israel, not the Arabs, and he doubted peace negotiations could begin soon because neither side will drop its preconditions for such talks.

"Israel is in the position to fulfill the old Jewish dream, the dream of a state that stretches from the Nile to the Euphrates," Bourguiba was quoted as saying in an interview with a correspondent for West Germany's Die Welt newspaper.

"The Israelis can do that. They have the might to do it and the Arabs and all the underdeveloped countries can do nothing to stop it, even if they were united."

While Bourguiba's remarks were printed, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was meeting with Soviet Ambassador Valdimir Vinogradov in Cairo as part of a renewed dialogue between Cairo and Moscow aimed at improving relations. The meeting followed a Soviet-initiated exchange of letters between Sadat and Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The Cairo newspaper Al Gomhouriya said Saturday Egypt has no objection to any new American peace initiative in the Middle East provided it takes full account of Arab rights and proposes specific practical steps.

The newspaper was commenting on reports from Israel that U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger might launch a new initiative for a peaceful settlement later this year.

The newspaper said any new initiative would have to include two main principles on which Arab policy is based:

—The necessity of Israel's withdrawal from all occupied Arab territories.

—Guarantees for the legal rights of the Arabs of Palestine, including the right to determine their destiny and return to their homeland.

In his interview with Die Welt, Bourguiba said Israel was now so strong it could get along without U.S. military support.

"Israel can even ignore the pressures of the United States (as a potential mediator) because it can build its tanks, aircraft, cannon and warships itself," he said.

Food prices leveling off across nation

By United Press International

While the price of food showed a definite jump after the price freeze was lifted, a spot survey Saturday indicated that prices have generally leveled off and in some cases declined since last month.

The government announced Friday that retail prices for food went up 6 per cent in August, the largest increase in 27 years.

But a UPI check of selected supermarkets in cities across the country showed that in many cases items had dropped in price since a similar survey Aug. 24.

A Dallas supermarket is a typical example.

A loaf of bread that sold for 39 cents under the price freeze which was lifted July 18 rose to 42 cents in August but is now down to 36. A dozen large AA eggs that jumped from 75 cents under the freeze to 91 cents is selling for 83 cents.

Milk jumped from 52 cents a half gallon to 74 and was back to 57, while uncut chicken selling at 55 cents during the freeze was back at that price after rising to 63 cents.

Eggs were one food item that showed a spectacular rise after the ceiling was lifted. Although still selling at a dime to a quarter above freeze levels, egg prices have fallen from their August level.

A dozen large grade AA eggs was selling for 10 cents less than in August in New York, eight cents less in Boston, seven cents less in San Francisco, six less in Washington, four less in Columbus, Ohio, and Los Angeles and two cents less in Chicago.

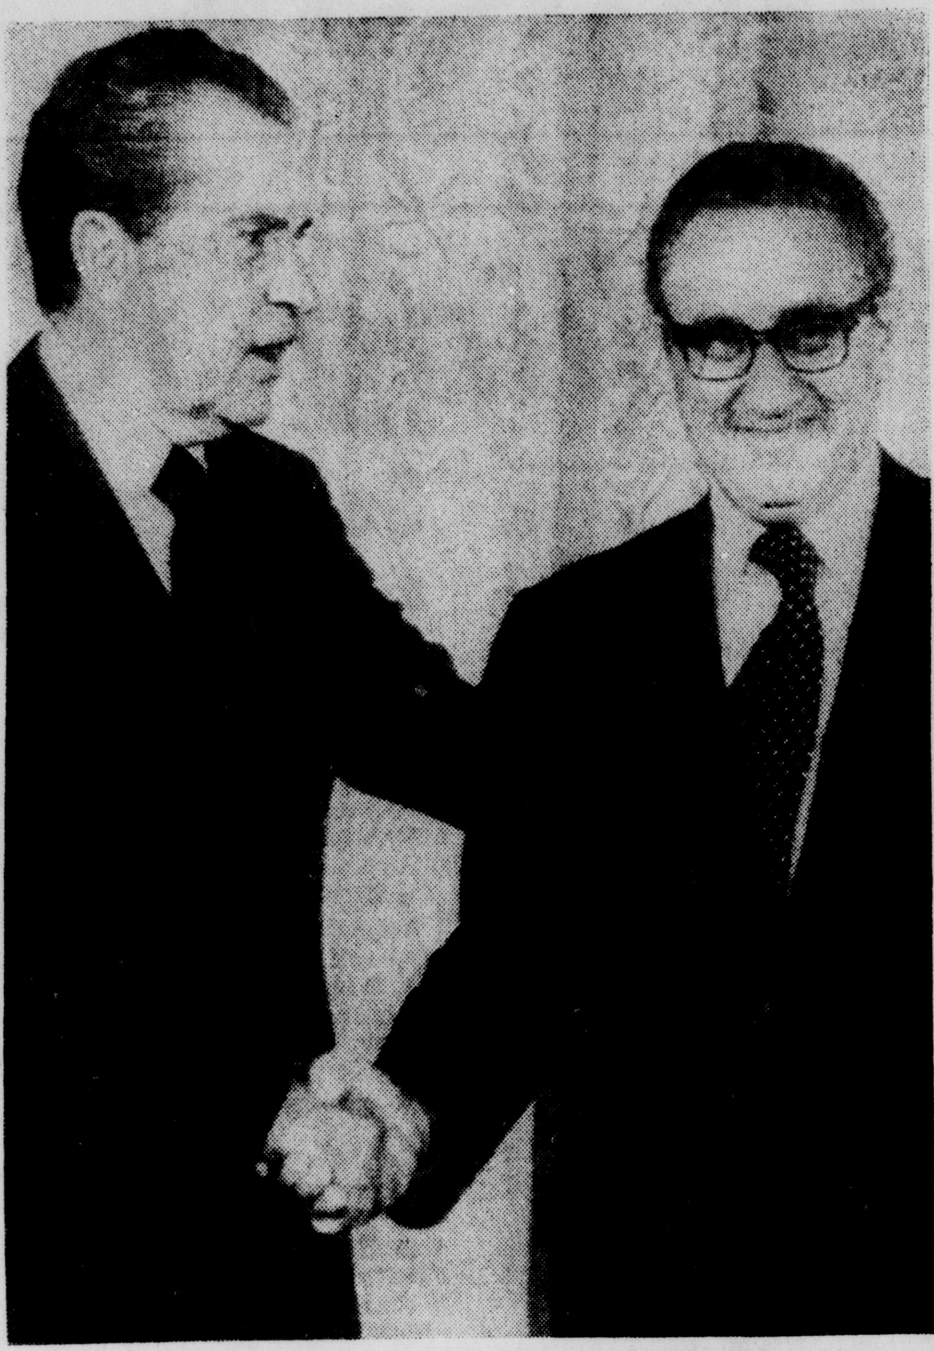
Uncut fryers showed a similar trend, going for 24 cents less a pound in Washington, 17 cents less in San Francisco eight cents less in Columbus and six cents less in Chicago. Chicken did show a jump in New York, going up 24 cents a pound and in Boston, up five cents.

The American Meat Institute in Chicago said meat prices will go lower. A spokesman said the average cost of live cattle had dropped 25 per cent and live hogs 31 per cent since the August highs on which the Consumer Price Index (CPI) figures were based.

"It is meaningless to report percentage increases in CPI on meat prices when they are based on the record high prices of mid-August caused by the pressures of the artificial ceiling price on beef," institute president Herrell DeGraff said.

"Already wholesale meat prices are close to or below the same levels which prevailed on March 29 when the government placed ceiling prices on all meat.

"Because of current large runs of livestock, consumers can expect ample supplies of beef and pork to be available soon at retail prices comparable to those of last winter."



CONGRATULATIONS, HENRY

President Nixon congratulates Henry Kissinger after he was sworn in as Secretary of State Saturday in ceremonies at the White House. Kissinger is the first foreign-born citizen of the United States to become the country's top diplomat.

They're all drinking milk

First diaper for oldest of surviving sextuplets

DENVER (UPI) —For the first time since their birth all five surviving Stanek sextuplets drank milk Saturday and John, the oldest, became the recipient of the infants' first diaper.

Doctors said three of the babies had won their fight against a lung disease that killed their tiny sister.

"We're encouraged about all five infants," said pediatrician Dr. James Strain. "Their conditions are continuing to improve and they're steadily gaining strength. Three of them seem to have shaken the disease that killed Julia."

John, the first of the infants born last Sunday night seven weeks premature, received the first diaper, and his mother, Mrs. Eugene Stanek, 34, held Jeffrey for the first time.

Strain and pediatrician Dr. Tibor Engel, who had administered a fertility drug to Mrs. Stanek, said it was too soon to tell when she and her husband might be able to take the infants home. Mrs. Stanek was expected to be released next week.

"I've had lots of offers from friends and neighbors so I don't think I'll have much of a problem feeding them," she said. "I don't know what this will mean to our 4-year-old son. I haven't seen him yet. I don't believe it will mean that much to him until they are home.

"The babies are not too individual looking right now. There are tubes and wires connected to them helping them along but John's pretty lively."

Mrs. Stanek said she believed insurance would pay for the majority of the $100 per day hospital cost.

"I'm not looking for a part-time job yet," she said. "Everyone, including Eugene and me, is hopeful for the future."

Eugene Stanek, 31, a suburban Denver junior accountant, turned down a chance to lift his children "because they look so tiny." He talked with his wife and then went home to sleep.

Strain said that Catherine, Nathan and Stephen were looking so healthy that they might be taken off respirators helping them breathe by Monday. The respirators were used to dilute the effects of hyaline membrane disease.

Western governors face energy crisis pressures

GLENEDEN BEACH, Ore. (UPI) —Western governors, faced with an energy crisis that could black out much of the Pacific Northwest, Sunday begin there annual conference under pressure to find solutions or face federal intervention.

Their concerted effort to find ways of saving electricity now could avert a major shortage later when water stored behind hydroelectric power plants may fall below already frighteningly low levels.

Among those scheduled to address the governors during the four day session at the Salishan Lodge are John Love, special adviser on energy to President Nixon; Interior Secretary Rodgers C.B. Morton and consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

The big problem confronting the governors is how to coordinate their individual state efforts to conserve and if necessary curtail electricity to avoid a system-wide power failure.

They will have to act quickly.

With the usually wet Pacific Northwest in the midst of one of the worst dry spells in more than 30 years, hydroelectric reservoirs which supply more than 85 per cent of the power supply are far short of meeting projected needs.

Heavy rains in the coming months would help but there is no such guarantee.

Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and parts of Montana and California are particularly affected by the water shortage.

Washington Gov. Dan Evans, chairman of the National Governors Conference this year, wants to get right down to business as soon as the meeting is officially opened by Oregon Gov. Tom McCall, Western conference chairman and host.

Evans was given broad authority to curtail electricity by a special session of the Washington legislature earlier this month. But he was directed to make every effort to coordinate possible mandatory curtailments with other states.

When he asked for the standby authority, Evans said it would take a concerted effort by all of the states to prevent a major power failure during the coming winter months when demand peaks.

He said if one state fails to act, it could cripple all the others in the multistate power system.

Spacewalk by two in Skylab

HOUSTON (UPI) —Two Skylab astronauts whizzed through a simple spacewalk Saturday collecting six rolls of precious pictures of the sun that could hold the key to man's understanding of earth's energy source.

Moonwalking veteran Alan L. Bean, and scientist Owen K. Garriott, clad in cumbersome white spacesuits, waltzed outside the station that has been their home for 56 days to replace the film cassettes in the powerful solar telescopes.

Jack R. Lousma, who has made two outside journeys in two months, stayed in the station to monitor vital spacecraft systems while his crewmates spent two hours and 41 minutes in the starkness of space.

It was the third and shortest spacewalk for the Skylab 2 astronauts who will end history's longest spaceflight Tuesday. Garriott, making his third walk of the flight, captured the record for the most time spent outside an orbiting craft—13 hours and 43 minutes.

The pilots will splashdown about 224 miles southwest of San Diego at 3:20 p.m. PDT after 59 days, 11 hours and nine minutes in space.

It was Bean's first trip outside a spacecraft since walking on the moon on Apollo 12 in November, 1969, and he reacted like a typical tourist with not enough time to see everything.

"Golly, what a place to visit. Whooee," Bean marveled as he moved around suspended in weightlessness with the grace of a ballet dancer. "You sure can get around easy out here. Everything's turning sort of reddish pink as the sun goes down.

"The EVA (spacewalk) went very smoothly, just ground along," the mission commander reported afterwards.

DIANA SANDS

Black stage star dies of cancer

NEW YORK (UPI) —Diana Sands, the black actress who rose to stardom with her role in "Raisin in the Sun," died Friday night of cancer at the age of 39, it was announced Saturday.

Miss Sands had been at the Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Disease for several weeks following an unsuccessful operation to remove a tumor. She had a starring role in the movie "Claudine" but was replaced in the part when the operation became necessary.

A native of New York, Miss Sands began her career as part of a dance team called Twan and Diana in which she wore bells and veils.

She appeared in a number of plays but her big break came in 1959 when she landed a role in the Broadway play "Raisin in the Sun" written by black playwright Lorraine Hansberry.

Miss Hansberry also died of cancer at a young age, 34, in 1965.

Miss Sands' performance won her the "Outer Circle" critics award for the best supporting actress and launched her career.

A veteran of movies and numerous television shows, she also won the Off-Broadway magazine award in 1958, the International Artist award in 1961, the Theatre World award in 1963, an Obie Award in 1964, as well as Toni and Emmy Award nominations.

Her mother said funeral services would be private but there would be a memorial service which will be announced at a later date.

Italy says apology is acceptable

ROME (UPI) —Italy has accepted a Libyan apology for the strafing of an Italian warship by Libyan jet fighters and considers the incident closed, a government source said Saturday.

The source said no further protest was planned over Friday's machine gun attack by Libyan Mirage jets on the Italian corvette De Cristofaro in international waters 33 miles off Libya. The corvette was on routine patrol accompanying Italian fishing boats.

Two Italian sailors were slightly injured and the De Cristofaro lightly damaged in the incident, Italian officials said. None of the fishing boats was harmed.

Libyan Premier Maj. Abdel Salam Jalloud expressed his country's "profound regret" to Italian Ambassador Aldo Conte Marotta, who had delivered a strong protest, a foreign ministry communique said.

Jalloud also offered Libya's immediate assistance in whatever form was needed, the communique said.

The government source said Italy accepted Jalloud's explanation that the incident was "a deplorable mistake."

The attack was one of a series of incidents involving Italian fishing boats. A Libyan coast guard vessel captured five Sicilian fishing boats and took their captains prisoner Wednesday.

Navy awards Gen. Dynamics $2 million pact

POMONA — General Dynamics' Electrodynamics Division has won a Navy contract to modernize the printed circuit board manufacturing facility of the Naval Industrial Reserve Ordnance Plant here.

Value of the pact, according to the office of Rep. Jerry Pettis, is $1,915,583. The company will provide all labor, material, service and equipment to upgrade the facility to meet pollution control and Occupational Safety Hazards Act standards.

According to a company spokesman, the facility at this time is not in violation of pollution standards. The contract, he stated, merely provides for latest equipment to be installed, thus anticipating any future tightening of standards.

Little cigars join advertising ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon signed legislation Saturday banning broadcast advertisements for so-called little cigars.

The bill amends the federal Cigarette Labeling and Advertising Act of 1965 to bring little cigars under the prohibition on advertising of cigarettes over radio, television and other broadcast media.

The "little cigar" was described by Congress in the legislation as any roll of tobacco wrapped in leaf tobacco or any substance containing other than cigarette tobacco which weighs not more than three pounds per 1,000 units.

The bill was passed on the basis of a report to Congress on the consequences of smoking, in which the Public Health Service warned that little cigars are as dangerous as cigarettes if the smoke is inhaled.

2 women slain in robbery of hotel for lovers

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Two women suspects were shot to death early Saturday in a gun battle between police and three couples staging a holdup at a hotel catering to trysting lovers, police reported.

One police officer and a chambermaid at the hotel were wounded in the shooting. The third woman suspect was arrested, but all three men escaped, according to police.

Police said the three couples showed up at the Grand Hotel Alojamiento in a southwestern Buenos Aires neighborhood shortly after 5 a.m. and subdued two employes at gunpoint. They then proceeded to rob the occupants of the hotel.

Alojamiento hotels are establishments that specialize in renting rooms on a short-term basis for lovers' rendezvous. The word alojamiento (lodging) in the name serves to warn married couples and families to seek accomodations elsewhere.

Police said a radio patrol car arrived at the hotel while the robbery was in progress and ordered the suspects to surrender. The women opened fire on the officers whie the men fled, police said.

Public thinks Nixon not treating him fairly

Undercurrent of suspicion in Agnew poll

NEW YORK (UPI) —Two-thirds of the American public are opposed to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew resigning now, but 58 per cent would approve his leaving office if he is indicted, a Newsweek-Gallup poll reported Saturday.

The poll findings, scheduled to appear in the magazine's Oct. 1 edition, disclosed an "undercurrent of suspicion" that President Nixon may not be treating Agnew fairly, Newsweek said. Only 40 per cent agree that Nixon is being fair to the vice president, while 35 per cent, says he is not, and 25 per cent voiced no opinion.

The poll was the result of a Newsweek-sponsored telephone survey of a cross section of 631 Americans conducted by the The Gallup Organizaition late this week.

Asked if they thought the vice president should resign if he is indicted 58 per cent said he should, 30 per cent said he should not and 12 per cent had no opinion. Only 16 per cent thought Agnew should resign now while 66 per cent said he should not.

Former Secretary of the Treasury John Connally (24 percentage points) headed the list of six potential candidates to succeed Agnew if he resigned, followed by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., with 19 per cent, and Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., 15 per cent.

The others included New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, 14 per cent; Attorney General Elliott Richardson, 5 per cent, and former Secretary of State William Rogers, 4 per cent.

Middle-age paunch vs. the 10-speed bike

REPORTER ON WHEELS — Roland Lindsey, UPI's Austin, Texas, bureau manager, checks out a new 10-speed bicycle. Lindsey, who admits to being a little overweight and a little over 35, thought the bicycle would oe a good way to get back in shape. However, both he and the cycle were bent out of shape in a crash in his own driveway. Lindsey suffered only a few minor cuts and bruise.

By ROLAND LINDSEY

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Physical fitness isn't all it's cracked up to be.

Especially if you're on the downhill side of 35, overweight, spend about eight hours a day punching a typewriter and aren't accustomed to lifting anything heavier than that bothersome paunch that materialized around your midsection over the years.

My choices were (1) to cut down on my eating; or (2) to increase my exercise.

Recalling my penchant for food, especially the fattening kind, I mistakenly chose exercise. That proved to be a pain in the neck—and knee, and legs, and shoulders ...

For two weeks, I got up at the crack of dawn, pulled on some jogging shorts, and drove a few blocks to a nearby high school track to begin the regimen of becoming a truly fine physical speciman.

By the end of the first week, the soreness in the leg muscles was about gone. But the spring that I remembered from a few years back—it was really almost 20 years now that I count it up—still wasn't there.

So I came up with the perfect solution—a bicycle! One of those classy, 10-speed foreign jobs. Bike riding was always fun, and like they say, once you learn how you never forget it.

So on I rolled the shiny $100 jewel into the garage and announced to a somewhat skeptical wife that cycling had now replaced jogging. She said I should have used the money to buy some bookshelves she wanted for the house.

Despite jeering from the neighborhood kids, on the first day I toured several blocks in fine fashion, and made it back home without incident.

Then came the second day. I straddled that impossibly hard and pointed seat that 10-speed bikes are cursed with, pushed off down the hill of my front lawn toward the driveway. Instant humiliation.

My front wheel hit the edge of the driveway and turned crossways, spilling me and the bike down the rough concrete drive.

Right in front of my son and another laughing kid, I had crashed. I mean bad. Not only did it break my glasses, skin my knees and hands and bruise a shoulder—it bent the front wheel of my new exercise machine!

The bike repairman managed to straighten out the bent parts with hardly a smirk.

So now I can again peddle through the neighborhood. And this time the kids aren't so eager to spend their time chasing the old man around.

The excitement just isn't there for them. They know there's no way I could top that first crash. And besides, I think they're afraid I'll take them down with me in the next one.

Martha denies she has mental ills

NEW YORK (UPI) —Martha Mitchell, in her first television interview since she left Washington, denies that she is suffering from a mental condition and complains of "the torture I'm being put through."

In the interview with NBC, taped Friday for broadcast today, an obviously distraught Mrs. Mitchell said she wanted to counter rumors that she is in a mental institution.

She said she has received letters from persons who "say they're sorry I'm in the hospital, to please take care of myself and they're going to send me this and send me that and where can they contact me?

"So I decided it was time for me to tell the American public that I am sitting in my apartment...I'm perfectly capable of doing anything I want to do and there's absolutely nothing wrong with me except I'm mentally tortured from the torture I'm being put through," she said.

Mrs. Mitchell denied she and her husband, John, were getting divorced, and blamed the news media for spreading the rumor. Former Attorney General Mitchell moved out of the apartment last week.

Asked why her husband hadn't contacted her, she replied, "Well I guess he's mad at me for throwing his clothes out for one thing...and then, I think that he just thinks that I'm overly wrought and that I should have some kind of care...I think they are terribly frightened I'm going to say something...I don't know what I could say...." Mrs. Mitchell said she threw some of her husband's clothes out of their apartment because she was angry she wasn't notified of the postponement of Mitchell's trial on charges of purjury and conspiracy to obstruct justice.

"I got mad and like any woman does...if you get mad you do something. He's not here, you can't hit him on the head, so I've got to do something, so I took his clothes...a few ties and a few shirts and threw them out there in the foyer," she said.

"You know when you're under pressure and under strain you say things and do things that you wouldn't do ordinarily—it's just a state that you get in that you can't explain and you'd have to go through something like this before you know what it's like."

Mrs. Mitchell denied she has ever been in a mental institution. "I've never been committed to anything but...except the good of my country...and that's all."

Mrs. Mitchell claimed that she did not make many of the phone calls attributed to her.

"These phone calls that I get credit for, they've got somebody that mimics me so well...somebody mimics my voice all the time," she said.

McGovern not sure about '76

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential nominee, said Saturday he had not decided yet "either privately or publicly" whether he would make another bid for the White House in 1976.

McGovern issued a statement responding to a report by columnist Tom Braden, who said the South Dakota senator had told financial advisers he would run again despite his overwhelming loss last year to President Nixon.

"I do not know who the unnamed supporters are who told Mr. Braden that they believed I would run again in 1976," McGovern said. "But I do know that no such decision has been made. I have my hands full with responsibilities in the Senate and in South Dakota.

"Although I intend to speak out on national and international questions, I have made no decisions either privately or publicly to run for the Presidency again."

Ten Pomona Valley cities will receive a total $934,233.27 of the $91.9 million to be allocated to California cities and counties in the Sept. 1973 distribution of local sales and use tax funds, the State Board of Equalization reported Friday.

Better than half of the total amount to be allocated to Valley cities will go to the communities of Pomona, Ontario, and Montclair. Pomona will receive the biggest chunk, $311,775.69, while Ontario will get $163,124.96, and Montclair, $145,679.75.

The $91.9 million comes from "cleanup payments" for the second quarter of 1973 totaling $51.4 million, and advance payment for the third quarter 1973 of $40.5 million.

The combined totals of second quarter cleanup payments and third quarter advance payments and the sources of the funds are:

Bradley-Burns 1 per cent local sales and use tax payments to cities and counties, $71 million.

— Bradley-Burns 1 per cent cent local sales and use tax payment to counties for the County Local Transporation Fund, $17.1 million.

Blind Brazilians

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — There are 400,000 blind Brazilians, according to the Getulio Vargas Foundation here. Only 3,000 of the blind children in Brazil attend school, the foundation said in a recent report urging better education for the blind.

Private tour that guard didn't enjoy

CINCINNATI (UPI) —An art lover, armed with a machete, forced a guard at the Cincinnati Art Museum to give him a private, hour-long tour.

Bruce Riley, 19, climbed a wall on the east side of the museum and dropped down an elevator shaft to the main floor of the building where he accosted guard McKinely Smith.

He told Smith he was just "very interested in art and wanted to look at the paintings."

Police were alerted to the break-in when Smith did not report at a scheduled time.

Riley was charged with assault with a deadly weapon and burglary. He allegedly took two black folders of miscellaneous art materials valued at $25.

NEW ADDITION—Buick's new entry in the intermediate line for 1974 is the Regal four-door colonnade sedan. The new addition combines improved ride and handling qualities plus new interior selections. Buick's 1974 line is now in dealer showrooms.

1974 Buick line

Changes occur in mechanical system, styling

Now on display in dealer showrooms are the new Riviera and LeSabre coupes and a four-door Regal sedan in the Buick 1974 line.

Both the Riviera and LeSabre coupes feature their own distinctive version of the colonnade-style roof which was featured on the Century series last year. The 1974 models also feature a new pillared roof design with a fixed rear side window.

Mechanical changes in the Buick line include a new high-energy ignition sysem, energy-absorbing bumpers in the rear and steel-belted radial ply tires built to General Motors specifications.

All Buick models for 1974 are equipped with the interlock ignition system which prevents the engine from being started until both outboard front seat occupants have their lap and shoulder belts fastened.

New Buick interiors in a wider variety of cloth and vinyl designs are offered as well as a leather interior on the Riviera and Limited. The number of trim sets has been increased from 258 last year to 460.

General Motors' new unitized high-energy ignition system is standard on all Stage I engines and optional on all V-8s. The new system produces greater voltage than regular breaker or conventional solid-state ignition systems and firing is more precise because distribution of the charge is accomplished electronically rather than mechanically. According to company officials, the system also aids starting in cold or wet weather and minimizes ignition tune-ups because there are no points or rubbing block to wear out.

Open Door Pomona

Rape crisis assistance offered

POMONA — A rape crisis intervention service has been initiated by Open Door Pomona, 1107 N. Gordon St.

The telephone number to dial is 623-6017. It will be answered 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Director John C. Hinze said Open Door is equipped to make medical referrals for attack victims, provide trained women as escorts and transportation, not only for medical examination or treatment, but also to file complaints with the police department and to help with interpersonal problems that might arise in the victim's family.

Should it be necessary, Hinze said Open Door also is equipped to provide referrals for treatment of venereal disease or problem pregnancy following rape.

"We are compiling statistics and information on how courts and hospitals are treating rape victims," said Hinze, a Cal Poly senior majoring in social services.

According to Hinze, Pomona Open Door is one of the first agencies in Southern California, and one of a few in the United States, to offer rape crisis intervention service.

Trained psychologists and nurses have consented to serve as consultants in providing the service, Hinze said.

Open Door Pomona, founded in June of 1970 as a multi-service center for youth, places primary emphasis on serving those 14 to 24 but, as the name implies, opens its services to any individual in time of crisis or emergency.

Ten services and programs provided include the 24-hour, seven-day hotline for crisis (623-6017); individual counseling, suicide intervention, outreach programs, group rap sessions, juvenile diversion programs, a speakers bureau, public information service, limited emergency housing, extensive referral service and emergency transportation.

The last is provided by volunteers who use their own cars. Hinze said plans are to add a station wagon and provide service within a 50-mile radius of all emergency situations encountered by Pomona agencies.

Hinze lists as "proposed services" for Open Door Pomona, a nonmedical detoxification program utilizing a resident staff of ex-addicts, and an emergency clothing bank, whereby those in crisis might receive clothing.

'Insight' producer to lead fall film course at Theology School

CLAREMONT — "Teaching Theology Through Film" will be added to the fall curriculum at the School of Theology. Father Ellwood Keiser, C.S.P., creator and executive producer of the award-winning dramatic TV series, "Insight," will lead the course beginning Thursday.

The course will center on methods of sharing the gospel through film. Students will learn how to incorporate film into the worship, adult education and teen-age programs of the local congregation, how to select and use film and lead discussions on the topics presented. Father Kieser describes the course as "Cinematic treatments of the great Christian realities—God, Jeus, community—and of the principle Christian values — love, faith and trust."

Father Keiser is a member of the Paulist Fathers, a Roman Catholic order, which specializes in serving those outside their church. Twelve years ago, he was teaching theology and philosophy to college students. Today, he is working with the top writers, directors and actors in the entertainment community to reach more than 150 million people each year. "You show me any other way to communicate human values to that number of people and I'll use it," says Father Kieser.

Now called the freest producer in Hollywood, the 44-year-old Father Kieser has created an imaginative type of TV theater through his series that has attracted many big stars.

These actors, along with top directors and writers, work without pay. "People will do things for God they won't do for money," Father Kieser explains.

"Insight" plays each week on 200 commercial stations and 70 educational channels in the United States. Hailed by civic leaders and critics for its artistic and educational excellence, it is described as the most widely seen TV series of its kind in the world.

Registration still open for publicity class

WALNUT Registration for a publicity workshop at Mt. San Antonio College, designed for those who want to sharpen their writing skills and gain a better understanding of the news media, will close Wednesday night.

The 12-week course began last week and is being given Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. in Room 9 Building 15 by Bob Nagey, a staff writer for the Progress-Bulletin.

The format calls for practice writing, criticism and suggestions for improvements as well as for guest appearances by editors of the local news media. There are no fees under the college's adult education program.

Nagey has had extensive experience in reporting, writing, editing and public relations work.

Those who want to join the workshop may register at the beginning of the class or may contact the college's evening division, 595-2211, ext. 214.

Volunteers to drive blind to events needed

POMONA — Volunteer drivers are needed in the Pomona area to transport visually handicapped young people to and from Foundation for the Junior Blind activities in Los Angeles.

These include Friday night socials for teen-agers and Saturday recreation-educational programs during the school year.

The foundation center is located at 5300 Angeles Vista Blvd. between Crenshaw and La Brea, off Slauson.

Foundation executive director Norman Kaplan said without volunteer drivers the foundation has no way of bringing the blind young people together.

Volunteers, he said, are under no obligation to drive any set number of times.

"Once a week, twice a month or even once a month," he explained. "We will be grateful for whatever help an individual can give."

Those wishing to assist may contact the foundation at 213 295-4555.

Comet comment

NEW YORK (UPI) — Comets are sky spectaculars but contrary to what some believe they are not burning, but rather are frozen. Their light comes from the reflection of sunlight off the frozen nucleus. Gases eliminated from the nucleus expand into what is called the coma and together they form the head of the comet.

While the nucleus of a comet may be about five miles across, nucleus and coma together may reach 100,000 miles in diameter. The tail is tens of millions miles long—the record is about 200 million miles.

The area of the United States known as the Mountain States Region includes Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, Idaho, Montana, Arizona, New Mexico and Nevada.

Pomona council asked to open mall to traffic

POMONA — The City Council Monday night will consider a request that the Pomona Mall be opened to vehicle traffic.

Officials, however, may delay a decision pending the return of the city's public works director.

The Pomona Mall has been restricted to pedestrian traffic since a major improvement project about 10 years ago.

The request to allow vehicles is included in a letter from the Central Business District's board of directors, signed by George W. Beamon, chairman, and John A. Evans, co-chairman.

"Due to almost total lack of activity on the mall, on Sept. 13, 1973, the board of directors of the Central Business District voted unanimously to respectfully request that the city restore one-way, no parking, automobile traffic on the mall. There would be no cross-Garey traffic.

"It is further requested that this action be taken as soon as possible, certainly, at least to be effective on or before Thanksgiving day, 1973.

"Since Ron Kranzer (public works director) is out of town, we feel any discussions or debate in council chambers should be delayed until he and staff have had an opportunity to go over the Central Business District's board request.

"The CBD board feels this is a last ditch stand to restore some activity on the mall, so please place the letter on calendar and then request the city engineer to consult with the undersigned CBD committee prior to Friday, Sept. 28." the letter concludes.

The City Council will meet at 8 p.m. in the City Council chambers. There is no afternoon session scheduled.

In another item, the City Council will consider a resolution authorizing the city's purchase from the Historical Society of Pomona Valley, Inc., of the La Casa Primera de Rancho San Jose. It is located at the southwest corner of Park and McKinley avenues.

The total cost to the city will be $82,667, which includes $21,400 for return of down payment; $58,837, trust deed balance; $1,830 for back payments; and $600 for reserve for taxes.

The City Council will also be asked to approve plans and specifications for a pedestrian overcrossing on Valley Boulevard near Omar Street.

The cost is estimated at $75,000, with the project being eligible for gasoline tax improvement funding. Bids may be opened on Oct. 10.

Officials will hold a public hearing regarding a proposal that the hillside overlay zone be applied to a section of the Ganesha Hills located east of Ganesha Boulevard, north of Gillette Road and south of McKinley Avenue.

The 37 acres now contains two reservoir sites, a restaurant, four homes and vacant land. The Pomona Plenning Commission had recommended the overlay at its Sept. 12 meeting.

The city planning staff said the overlay would give the city additional controls over development by limiting the amount of "cut and fill" and specify the type of ground cover to prevent erosion.

GOOEY, ISN'T IT—A Claremont School District patron donated her small truck to the kindergarten students of Mrs. Gay Collins at Sycamore School Thursday, and the children painted every inch of the outside of the truck with poster paint. They used brushes at first, then resorted to finger painting. Even the tail pipe and the inside of the gasoline cover received attention. Showing off her poster paint hands is Diana Gray, an artist at 6. The truck owner hopes the paint will come off.

Old man river keeps on rollin'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The mighty Mississippi River, which bubbles to life from little Lake Itasca in Minnesota, is the world's third longest river.

The river travels 2,340 miles from Lake Itasca to where it empties billions of gallons of muddy water into the Gulf of Mexico near New Orleans daily. For comparison purposes, however, the total length of the Mississippi is considered to be 3,484. This includes the length of its longest tributary, the Missouri River.

The other day I shuffled over to a saleswoman with a stack of dresses over my arm and inquired, "Where's your crying room?"

"I beg your pardon," she said.

"Your crying room. I want to try these on."

She directed me to a small room marked "Fitting."

"Do you have one without mirrors?" I asked.

"No," she said stiffly. "This is it. Now, let's see what we have here. Oh, one of our new tent dresses."

The tent dress went over my head easily and when it was belted looked like someone had slipcovered Vermont.

"Do we have these in any other styles?" I asked.

"We have one in canvas with a floor and a screened-in room, but we sold it this morning," she said. "How about our trying on one of our new dresses with a fanny sweater?"

"If it gets that cold, I'll stay at home," I said.

"We certainly can't leave without trying on the new satin slip dress, can we?" She returned with a sleek, sleeveless length of satin that looked like trousseau underwear.

"Surely," I said, "we aren't going to attempt to wear that, are we? I have always felt in my heart that satin was flattering only to pin cushions and women born without stomachs."

She slid the dress over my head and by sheer force brought it to rest over my hips. Neither of us said anything for a full minute.

Then I spoke. "I feel like a mannequin in a Mr. Fredericks window."

"Nonsense," she said. "We just have to learn to suck in."

"What do we wear under it?" I asked.

"Fear," she answered, then added, "maybe we'd like to try on something from the layered look collection."

"I am already into the layered look," I said. "I grew my own this summer."

After I dressed in my own clothes, I wandered off to a corner of the department where a rack of suits caught my eye. "Now we're talking," I said. "Are these career dresses?"

"It depends on how we feel about maternity clothes," she sniffed.

"Are we going to cry now?" I asked.

"I think so," she said, biting her lip.

Men's wear

Time has arrived for wonder watch

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — They are bulky, usually less than beautiful, sometimes hard to read at night, and expensive — $150 to more than $1,000—but they are the hottest status item in men's jewelry today. They are quartz crystal watches which print out the time in digits, i.e.: 12:48.

Aside from the newness of such watches, accuracy is the biggest selling feature—plus the status symbol thing. They are accurate to one minute a year and the people who make them say they will become even more accurate and small enough to be beautiful.

One of the people who makes them is Kenneth Hollandsworth, president of Jules Jurgensen, the 200-year-old Danish watchmaking firm. He produces an all-electronic quartz crystal watch called Optcom I, so we asked him what makes them tick.

Well, for one thing, they don't tick. They don't even hum. About the only thing you have to do is put in a tiny battery from time to time. They are really mini-computers but Hollandsworth couldn't say that because a rival firm has registered the world "computer" as applied to watches.

To start at the beginning, there was the sun dial, the hour glass and the pendulum. After that the balance wheel remained the source of movement in clocks and watches for 300 years. The balance wheel was powered by a hand wound mainspring which oscillated at 2½ times per second to turn the gears that moved the watch hands. In recent years this developed into a self-wind watch where the movement of the wearer's arm wound the spring.

In the early 50s the electric watch came out, replacing the mainspring with a tiny battery. In the 1960s, the first electric watch came out utilizing a battery powered "tuning fork" which oscillated at the rate of 360 times a second.

The latest

Most recently in the last year or so, an electronic quartz watch was developed with a tiny bar of quartz crystal that vibrates thousands of times a second. The faster the oscillation, the more accurate the watch. With such solid state construction all gears and springs are unnecessary.

A solid state watch has no moving parts. The computerized timepiece has the capacity to perform mathematic calculations, programmed to maintain time keeping functions.

Currently bulky looking, the development is so rapid that ultra-miniaturization will make thinner watches (and women's models) available before the end of the year.

The prices range from $150 to above $1,000 and the average is around $250-300. The Optcom [illegible] is $[illegible]. Some solid state watches should be selling for around $100 in a couple of years.

Two types of quartz movements are on the market, both of which have all-electron circuitry for digital readouts of the exact time.

1. The LED (light emitting diode) gives time on demand. You push a button and the time appears in glowing red numbers. The disadvantage is that lighting up the digits takes more battery drain than the movement itself and the battery must be replaced more often.

2. The LCD liquid crystal device) which shows the time on a constant basis, and is the one use by Optcom. Here, a liquid is sandwiched between two pieces of plastic. Sub-miniature electrodes inserted into the liquid cause the liquid's molecules to take the form of digits through the pulsating charges of electricity. The advantage is long life and less battery drain. The disvantage is long life and less battery drain. The disadvantage is that it is hard to [illegible].

In the rush to put out [illegible], which the industry says will completely change the market, some makes have added a quartz crystal to an "ordinary" watch with mechanical movement. This adds a little accuracy but does not do away with moving parts.

Engineer's oath is recommended

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Engineers should take an oath similar to the Hippocratic Oath taken by physicians, says an engineering educator at the University of California.

Prof. Charles Susskind argues that engineers increasingly resemble physicians in their concern for the human condition, but the engineering code of ethics still deals mainly with business relations.

"[illegible] of the responsibility for the uses of technology lies with society, not engineers," Susskind said. "Blaming engineers for the shortcomings of technology makes about as much sense as blaming the failure of a new play on the stagehands."

European hosts happy to see visitors leave

By DONALD W. REYNOLDS

COSTA DEL SOL, Spain — "Lo peor de la plaga se fue" greets you from the taxi drivers, waiters, bar tenders, sales persons, room clerks and all of the other natives serving the tourist hordes that flood the beaches here.

Not being a very good linguist, I asked for a translation and had surprising difficulty in getting it. Finally found a bilingual waiter that embarrassingly explained that the rather free translation was that "the worst of the locusts have gone." And for more than a week the roads have been bumper to bumper, the buses packed and the "no space available" recording on the airline phones.

I have found that few tourists are happy with the accommodations, food or gener-acceptance, but had taken it as the normal griping of travelers. It was just a little bit surprising to find that the hosts were even happier to see the guests leaving than were the guests to leave.

One of my favorite stories, told as only the late Joe E. Lewis could tell a story: After quite a buildup Joe would introduce his long-time piano player, Mr. Mack. The audieence perfunctorily applauded, then Lewis with the perfect timing that made him one of the greatest standup comedians of his time, brought the house down as he drawled, "He doesn't like you very much either "

Since the days of the Roman Empire, tourism, under many names, has been an integral part of European history, be it the legions of Caesar or the retired folks on the American Express bus. Almost 2,000 years hasn't truly changed the picture. The guests still make the host doubly glad — twice happy — when they arrive, and when they go. And while the money brought in is accepted, in some instances quite graciously, the sigh of relief on the 'locusts' departure is definitely audible.

So why the travel? I've talked to may almost professional vagabonds that have toured the world. Complaining about everything, but always returning for more. Money hunger stimulates the promotions, travel agents and all of those profiting from the visitors — perhaps the best explanation for the wanderer was given me in answer to the question, "What spot do you like best of all?" And the laconic reply, "The place I prefer is where I haven't been " Got your bag packed?

Her steady opposed to her career

By Jean Adams

18 AND 14: I am 18 and the girl I like is 14. Is there something wrong with me or is it OK to like someone that young and take her out? She likes me too. —Criticized in Connecticut.

(A.) There is nothing wrong with you, but you are likely to run into more problems with a 14-year-old than you would if you liked a girl 18 or 17 or 16 years old.

First, the girl's parents may think she is too young to date, or that you are too old for her.

Second, if you are acceptable to her parents you must be very careful how you treat the girl. You are older than she, stronger. She may think that anything you want is wise and right. You must be very sure to be worthy of her trust in you.

Third, you are far ahead of her in school. Her friends are not your age. Your firends are not her age. Your interests are different from hers.

Unless you are very devoted to each other, it won't be simple.

LIES: (Q.) I have been going to summer school. Last week some other girls and I were caught smoking. The principal told us our parents would be called.

Well, when I got home no one had called my mother so I told her about it. But I changed the truth around a lot. When they called her from school the story was different and, boy, did I catch it.

Now I have decided to stop smoking and lying. I have smoked only a very little but since I was a kid I have told lies. I will never do anything wrong again if I can help it. But how can I get my mother to trust me? —14 in Texas

(A.) It is not easy to stop the habit of lying, and you will have to work hard to do it.

Tell your mother of your resolution and ask her to help you stop both smoking and lying. She wants to help you — I am sure — and she wants to trust you. With her help, I am sure you can make it.

New rules to cut red tape for jobless

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —New regulations designed to trim welfare red tape and allow the state to concentrate on finding jobs for employable recipients were announced Thursday by the Department of Human Resources Development.

Under the change, counties will act on their own in determining welfare eligibility for persons physically unable to work. Presently, the decision of the county must be reviewed at the state level.

Department Director Earl Brian said the change will take a "significant" workload off his staff and allow them to place greater emphasis on finding jobs for those who can work.

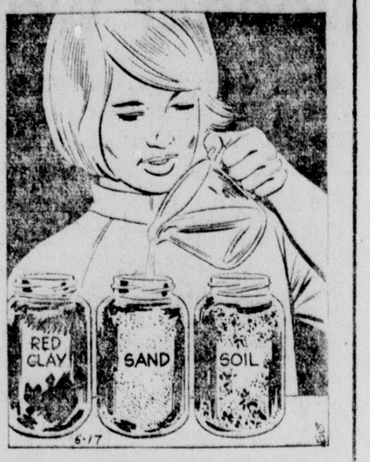
Science for You

By BOB BROWN



PROBLEM: Soil and water.
NEEDED: three cans, one filled with red clay, another with garden topsoil and another filled with sand. Water.
DO THIS: Pack the sand and soil down and pour an equal amount of water on top of each. Watch what happens.
WHAT HAPPENS: The water poured into the sand will pass through it rapidly. Water poured into the clay will stand on top of it a long time. Water poured into the topsoil will seep into it slowly and be held there.
THIS MEANS: When the earth is stripped down to the clay, the rain that falls on it will run off very quickly, and possibly produce flooding. Sandy soil will let the water pass down to harder and more compact layers, possibly too deep to support plant life well. Topsoil holds rain, making it available to plants for good growth.

Once good topsoil is destroyed it cannot be rebuilt easily and quickly. This is good for ecology-minded people to remember.

Batman, Superman cavort on shelves of Library of Congress

By JOSEPH M. CHAPMAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Quickly, who's the nation's largest collector of comic books, a reading staple of American kids that ranged from such heroes as Batman and Superman to Captain Marvel?

Shazaam! Would you believe the prestigious and staid Library of Congress?

Barring any evidence to the contrary, the Library of Congress believes that it has more comic books than anyone, a total of about 2,000 separate titles and approximately 37,000 comics.

From this treasure trove of comic books the Library will pull a few select issues for an exhibit in October featuring two great heroes, Batman and Superman.

The exhibit will include Superman comic books from 1943, 1951, 1962 and 1973. It will also feature Batman comics from 1946, the issue of December of 1950-January 1951, 1966, and 1973.

But if that's not enough for comic book fans, the Library of Congress exhibit will also feature full color excerpts from books by an expert in the field, E. Nelson Bridwell —"Superman from the Thirties to the Seventies' and "Batman from the Thirties to the Seventies."

While the exhibit concentrates on Superman and Batman, it is evidence of the importance of the comic book as an integral part of American culture. Each month, in addition to comics it already has, the library receives from 100 to 200 new issues through copyright deposit.

Sociologists and historians have found comics to be an important part of their study of American life.

The comic strip was first popularized in the 1890s by R. F. Outcault with his "Hogan's Alley" in the New York World and then with his "The Yellow Kid" in the New York Journal.

But it was not until the late 1930s that the first comic books appeared.

Now comic book buffs will pay from $200 to $300 for a 10 cent copy of the first issue of "Action comics" from 1938—which introduced Superman—or as much as $275 for a copy of the 1939 issue of "Detective Comics" that introduced Batman.

"At one time, comic books could be read only in the Rare Book Room of the Library of Congress and usage was restricted to scholars with a serious intention of publishing the results of their research," a spokeswoman said. "Comic books are now available in the Newspaper and Current Periodical Room."

"Only those issues in an advanced state of deterioration are not in service," the spokeswoman said.

Everybody's body needs carbohydrates

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like your opinion on sugar in the diet. I read an article that stated that anyone who eats ordinary meals containing fruits, potatoes and other vegetables, cereals, breads, meats, eggs and milk is getting ample carbohydrates for his needs. He could go through life comfortably without using a spoonful of added sweetening. In fact, this article states some nutritional observers think we'd be better off if our sugar supply were to disappear. What is your opinion? Also, when one is told by his physician that he has low blood sugar, should he add more sugar to his diet or use less.

Dear Reader — It is important to have a sufficient amount of carbohydrates in the diet from foods that contain important vitamins and minerals The body doesn't function well without carbohydrates. This can cause a disturbance in the body chemistry called ketosis. The accumulation of ketone bodies in an untreated diabetic leads to diabetic coma, a serious medical problem. Continued loss of ketones from the urine in this condition also depletes the body of important minerals, including calcium, which accelerates or aggravates the problem of degeneration of the spine and loss of calcium from the bones.

The term carbohydrates includes vegetables, cereals, fruits, as well as the sweets, which include sugar, honey, syrups, jams and jellies. It is perfectly true that a person can get along quite well from a health point of view if they never use any sweets at all, and, instead, got all of their carbohydrates from fresh fruits, vegetables and cereals. Milk, our principal source of calcium, also contains appreciable amounts of carbohydrates.

Earliest man was more of a vegetarian and early fossils show grinding-like teeth of the vegetarian as seen in other primates, as opposed to the canine overhanging teeth seen in carnivores. Those living in the jungle and tropical regions in places where plant food was abundant were more apt to be vegetarians. It is not true that early man did without carbohydrates. Early cave drawings show primitive man obtaining honey from wild bees.

Sugars or sweets are sometimes very useful, particularly if you need to provide large amount of energy in a small amount of bulk for some medical reason. The biggest drawback of most of the sugars and sweets is that they do not contain any significant amounts of vitamins and minerals (blackstrap molasses though is a good source for iron). When true low blood sugar is present and is responsible for the symptoms, then the diet should be one which restricts concentrated sweets, specifically sugars and syrups, jellies and jams. In most instances these individuals can continue to use vegetables and cereals without added sweetners

Not all cases of low blood sugar are rellated specifically to the diet. There are rare examples in which a tumor of the pancreas is the cause. When the tumor is removed this usually will solve the problem.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of the Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on low blood sugar, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Low Blood Sugar" booklet.

Even grandmasters can be checkmated

Although middle-game checkmates are rare in grandmaster chess, threats of checkmate or threats of threats of checkmate appear and reappear in many games. Sometimes the threat will force a weakness in the defender's pawn position and-or the threat will gain time to position an attacking piece.

Infrequently the attacker's checkmate cannot be countered satisfactorily and the defender must lose heavy material to avoid it. The attacker will make a drastic sacrifice or sacrifices if he sees that a costly (for his opponent) mate threat can be achieved.

WHITE

For example, Bent Larsen (white) reached the position in diagram one against Donald Byrne at the San Antonio "Fried Chicken" Tournament last year. Habitually tuned to sharp moves, Larsen made the ncessary sacrifice at this point to achieve a winning mate threat.

He directly played 1) RXPch!! After . . . RPxR the game continued with 2) QxP check, K-R1: 3) Q-R6 check, K-N1; and 4) R-Q3 threatening checkmate. The black king is exposed and the black pieces have limited availability for defense.

Byrne was able to stop the mate with . . .Q-N5 check, but lost his queen after 5) R-N3, QxR; and 6) KBPxQ.

Material is now roughly even but black's ordeal, commencing with 1) RxP check, is not over. Larsen's threat of 7) Q-N6 check, K-RI,; 8) BxP with the danger of Q-R6 mate among others compelled back to play . . . B-K5 to control key white squares needed by the black king.

White was then able to pick up the bishop by a series of checks (7) Q-N5 check, K-R2; 8) Q-R4 check, K-N2; 9) QxB) and black resigned because of his material disa vantage. Black's return of material by the queen sacrifice had not stopped white's threats. It was Byrne who made the ultimate sacirfice.

Even such meager and ultimately futile defense as Byrne had was not available to Sammy Rsheyvsky in the following position reached in the Interzonal tournament at Petropolis, Brazil against Lajos Portisch.

(Diagram 3)

Portisch
WHITE

Portisch, with all his pieces massed against the black king, has an immediate and straightforward win as against the defending pieces are cut off from effective defense of the king.

What is the winning move? Answer: BxP achieves the breakthrough as PxB leads to a forced mate by white. Try to work it out.

Riles schedules 2 fund-raisers for 2nd term

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles has scheduled fund-raising dinners in Los Angeles and San Francisco next month for his planned re-election campaign.

Riles, although not making a formal declaration, has said he probably will seek a second term as the state's top education official.

The $50-a-plate dinners will be held Oct. 16 at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco and Oct. 24 at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles. An aide said they are expected to raise about $500,000.

Riles became the first black in California history to be elected to statewide office when he rose from political obscurity to unseat incumbent Max Rafferty in 1970.

New method may identify those prone to heart attack

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Heart researchers announced that examination of coronary arteries might indicate what persons are most susceptible to instant death from heart attack.

Dr. Meyer Friedman headed a six-member team which examined the habits, behavior patterns and pathological findings of 69 persons who died of coronaries. The findings were reported in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

During the study at Marin General Hospital in Greenbrae and the Harold Brunn Institute of the Mount Zion Hospital and Medical Center, the deaths were broken down for the first time by researchers into "instantaneous" and "sudden."

The 32 instantaneous deaths occurred within 30 seconds of the first symptoms while the 37 sudden deaths ranged from one minute to 24 hours.

In more than half of the instantaneous deaths, Friedman said. The left anterior descending coronary artery of the heart had been totally obstructed "perhaps months or years" before death. And in 44 per cent of the same subjects, two of their four main coronary arteries had been totally blocked.

However only three such old obstructions were found in the 34 sudden death patients.

These findings "have been possible to obtain only in the last several years because of the previous unavailability of precise and safe diagnostic coronary cinearteriography," said Friedman.

"We believe .. that now with the advent of safe coronary angiography and the results of the present pathological findings, foolproof detection and finally truly effective treatment of the subject who is dangerously prone to instantaneous coronary death is at hand."

Clinically, the researchers said the instantaneous deaths differed from sudden coronary arrest by:

—Taking place abruptly and usually without earlier symptoms

—Being far more likely to occur during or immediately after severe or even moderate exertion

—Appearing to be brought on by ventricular fibrillation (rapid uncoordinated contractions of the heart ventricles leading to loss of synchronization between heartbeat and pulsebeat)

The study also suggested that exercise may be particularly and unexpectedly lethal.

"Sixteen (50 per cent) of the instantaneous cardiac arrest cases had been indulging in either severe (jogging 3, carrying heavy objects 3, calisthenics 2, running 1, playing handball 1, digging a ditch 1) or moderate walking 3, golfing 1, gardening 1, physical activity within 120 seconds of their demise," said the study.

"On the other hand, only three (10 per cent) of the sudden cardiac arrest cases had been indulging in either severe or moderate physical activity immediately prior to their demise."

Other elements of the survey indicated

—The majority of the 69 death cases drank little or no alcoholic beverages

—78 per cent of the instantaneous death and 89 per cent of the sudden death cases had been cigarette smokers

—54 per cent of the sudden cardiac cases and 22 per cent of the instantaneous cases had been obese prior to death.

Song lyrics are 'poems'

Bob Dylan really a poet; his book seems to show it

NEW YORK (UPI) —"If I can't please everybody," says singer-composer Bob Dylan, "I might as well not please nobody at all."

So begins a book he has compiled of his own song lyrics dating from the begin nings in 1964 to the album "New Morning," released about three years ago.

It's a cryptic message— followed in parentheses by the words: "There's but so many people and I just can't please them all" —and what it means exactly probably will be bandied about among Dylan's fans and critics for some time to come.

The book —"Writings and Drawings by Bob Dylan" (Knopf, $6.95) —is thick, 8-½ by 10-½ inches in size and more than 300 pages long. The jacket is cerise with one of Dylan's many drawings on the front cover, a picture of him on the back. Inside are the lyrics to all his songs through 1970, liner notes from record jackets and rambling comments on who and what he is.

"Somewheres back I took the time to start playin' the guitar," he writes. "Somewheres back I took time to start singin'. Somewheres back I took the time to start writin'. But I never ever did take the time to find out why..."

Rather than a book of lyrics, really, this is a book of poetry. Those who know Dylan's music will have a difficult time reading the verse without hearing the melody that it accompanies, familiar as the songs are. But the words—his wit, his wisdom—still will stand alone:

"Through the mad mystic hammering of the wind ripping hail the sky cracked its poems in naked wonder..."

"Darkness at the break of noon, shadows even the silver spoon, the handmade blade, the child's balloon eclipses both the sun and moon. To understand, you know too soon. There is no sense in trying..."

And from perhaps his best work to date, "Hey, Mr. Tambourine Man":

"Then take me disappearin' through the smoke rings of my mind, down the foggy ruins of time, far past the frozen leaves, the haunted, frightened trees, out to the windy beach, far from the twisted reach of crazy sorrow..."

One question raised about the book is whether it signals Dylan's self-demise as a folk music hero ("I might as well not please nobody at all"). Why would anyone as gifted and prolific as Dylan lump all his songs into one large volume— quite unlike the "retrospective" books one buys in the music store—unless he is ready to try something new?

One critic, and Dylan aficionado, Peter Knobler, writing in the current edition of the rock magazine Crawdaddy, says Dylan's departure from music is "possible, but not very likely.

Los Angeles sewer system is gigantic

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Every day the City of Los Angeles generates 350 million gallons of sewage. That's about 125 gallons for every man, woman and child within its boundaries.

The liquid and solid waste produced in homes, businesses and industry is quietly carried away undergound through more than 5,800 miles of mainline sewers, enough pipeline to reach from here to Washington, D. C. and back again.

The pipelines range in size from about the diameter of a pie tin to the height and width of a train car. The largest sewer pipeline is 10 ½ feet high and 12 ¼ feet wide.

The lines weave in and out through various ventilation chambers, siphons, pumping plants and about 100,000 manholes peeking up out of the street pavement along the city's roadways. Some of the manholes extend 100 feet into the ground and are large enough for inspection boats.

This underground world is under the purview of some 250 public works employes including engineers, chemists, superintendents and mechanics. Their job is to service and maintain the sewer system on a 24 hous a day basis, a $2 million payroll for the city.

Major contributors to the city's waste production are industries. They are permitted to discharge liquid wastes into the sanitary sewers and storm drains provided they are sufficiently pollutant-free to meet water quality control standards.

Industry is inspected regularly for compliance, and the cost of administering the monitoring program is carried through annual inspection fees.

Bureau of Sanitation workers also must constantly inspect and clean the sewer lines and pumping plans which lift the sewage from low-lying areas.

But the sewer lines are only artificial riverways and conduits whose main task is to carry the wastes to three major land outfalls—collecting points for sewage from many incoming lines.

One of these outfalls, which measures some 9 ¼ feet in diameter, is a tunnel built under the Los Angeles International Airport.

The outfalls collect all the material and send it to the treatment plants where the real work of processing the sewage begins.

The main treatment facility is the Hyperion Treatment Plant at Playa del Rey Beach, a few miles southwest of downtown Los Angeles.

The Hyperion plant, built in 1950, was the turning point in efficient waste disposal for the city. Prior to 1950, the Santa Monica Bay and many of the city's beaches were polluted and some condemned.

The plant and the sewer system cost a total of $75 million.

What happens to the waste material at the Hyperion plant involves a series of separation procedures.

Raw waste enters the plant and all types of coarse debris is ground up in seven bar screens and four disintegrators.

Next stop is the grit removal tanks. Sand and mineral matter is allowed to settle, leaving the lighter organic material. The grit is separated in a process which takes about 10 minutes. Then it is washed and taken by truck for use as land fill.

The bulk of the waste continues through the primary treatment process, all the time metered so the flow is steadily controlled.

The primary treatment is like a glass jar filled with mud and water. After a while the mud will settle to the bottom of the jar. In much the same way, solid waste material is allowed to settle to the bottom of 12 primary sedimentation tanks covered by concrete slabs.

It takes about 1 ½ hours for the solid matter to settle and the grease, and floating matter to rise to the top.

Grease skimmers collect the floatable material and wooden cross pieces scrape the bottom for the solid or sludge matter. Both the sludge and the grease are removed to digestion tanks and the rest of the liquid waste is ready to be pumped out to sea.

But the remainder of the flow is sent through an activated sludge process. Activated sludge is organic matter which is combined with oxygen. The oxygen accelerates the natural breakdown of the organic matter by bacteria.

This is accomplished in 32 open seperation tanks, each 300 feet long—about the length of a football field—30 feet wide and 15 feet deep. Compressed air is sent into the tanks which hold the activated sludge for about six and a half hours before it is purified.

Finally, the sludge and the liquidin which it is suspended is piped to one of 20 uncovered final sedimentation tanks. There the sludge is settled out substantially free of organic matter and sent back through the cycling process wither to the seperation tanks or to the primary sedimentation tanks.

What is left is clear water which is pumped out through funnel lines five miles out in the Pacific Ocean. It gushes into a submarine canyon 200 feet deep and is spread over an area about one mile in diameter. Sometimes chlorine is added to control any leftover bacteria at two chlorination stations at sea.

The treatment process goes on at the Hyperion plant and at the Terminal Island plant. Beach waters are tested every day at 17 beach stations for water quality.

Every week the bay waters are tested, and a 65-foot oceanographic vessel cruises the waters to monitor for pollution.

But what about the sludge that isn't clear enough to be sent out to sea?

That sludge is sent through digesters, 18 tanks where the bacteria is nurtured in an oxygen free atmosphere kept at about body temperature. Live steam is shot into the tanks to keep up the heat so that bacteria can break down the organic material.

About half of the sludge is transformed into a gas consiting of two-thirds methane which is then used to fuel the plant's generators and pumps and one-third carbon dioxide. Any leftover fuel is sold to the city's Department of Water and Power Scattergood Steam Plant.

The other half of the sludge is a humus-like substance which is passed through vibrating screens. What doesn't pass through is hauled to land fill sites by truck, and what does is pumped seven miles out to sea.

The plant gets about 94 per cent of its power from gas produced by its own sludge digestion system and much of the sewer line flow moves solely by the force of gravity. The system is almost totally self-sufficient.

In the future, the Bureau of Sanitation hopes to reclaim waste waters for use in the irrigation of golf courses, park lands and greenbelts throughout the semi-arid Southern California area. Reclaimed water could conceivably be drawn directly from the sewer lines and converted at proposed reclamation plants.

San Francisco was linked with the East by the Pony Express in 1860 and by the railroad in 1869.

But Demond Wilson's a star

Redd overshadows 'son'

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Demond Wilson lives in the shadow of Redd Foxx in their weekly television series, "Sanford and Son," but away from work Demond is very much his own, swinging man.

Wilson is a talkative, outgoing bachelor with a string of racial jokes. He pokes gentle fun at the black-white dilemma. But as a black he also feels deeply about civil rights.

Of his role as Lamont Sanford, the actor says: "I like to present blacks in the proper light.

"I grew up in Harlem where there are a lot of Lamonts."

He has written some episodes for the NBC series but hasn't sold any to the producers. Wilson says he is waiting for one he thinks worthy of an Emmy award before he submits them.

Wilson lives in an apartment in the San Fernando valley, about three minutes from the NBC studios where he reports to work at 8 a.m. six times a week.

Unlike many shows, "Sanford and Son" doesn't use cue cards so it is necessary for Demond and Redd to memorize 60 pages of dialogue weekly.

Wilson has decorated his two-bedroom apartment with fastidious care. He bought a combination of French provincial, modern and contemporary furniture in clean, classic lines.

He keeps a second bedroom for visiting friends and relatives. Both his parents and sister continue to live in New York City, but he also has aunts and cousins in his native Valdosta, Ga.

When Wilson moved to Southern California two years ago he brought nothing with him except his clothes. His wardrobe is a great source of pride.

"I'm known as Peter Prep," he says, in reference to his Ivy League image. "I never wear sandals or go out of the house in blue jeans. You can't dress like that when you drive a big Cadillac like I do."

Wilson likes to run three miles a day at the beach to stay trim, a pasttime he enjoys irregularly when the show is in production. When he can't get to the beach he jogs in place in his apartment.

A former college (Hunter College) and high school basketball star, Wilson is unable to play tennis or golf because of a shoulder separation.

Wilson's roots are still in Harlem although he has no plans to return there except to visit family and friends. And his bachelor status may change any day.

He has been dating the same girl for several months and has dinner with her every night.

Happily, he reports, she is the finest cook in the western hemisphere, spoiling him with curry dishes, fetuccini and, he adds with a chuckle, spareribs. There are evenings when Demond dons an apron and does the cooking himself.

On weekends Demond and his girl friend (whom he wants to keep secret until they announce their engagement) attend as many movies as possible. Occasionally they visit Redd Foxx and his wife.

Wilson has no pets and doesn't want any. He's planning, however, to buy a tankful of tropical fish, not so much for their company as the tranquilizing effect of their constant water ballet.

A veteran of Vietnam (1966-67) Demond is content with life, concluding: "I never had it so good."

Jersey Democrats cite win formula

It's a strange sort of political year in New Jersey. Listen to Brendan Byrne, the Democratic nominee for governor, make his case before some conventioners at Atlantic City.

"I've never been a candidate for public office in my life . . . There's nothing that makes me a good politician, a good speaker, or even a good candidate . . .

"I don't know it all. I don't know a lot of things."

With Jersey hip-deep in political scandals, talk like that may go over big. It's a good year to profess inexperience, and even a little ignorance.

Of course Byrne doesn't want that kind of thing taken too literally. He lets the customers know he was an aide for a time to former Gov. Robert Meyner, that he headed the state's Public Utilities Commission, spent nine years as prosecutor in Essex County (Newark), and just quit as Superior Court judge in Morris County.

So the plan is to offer him as clean but not too green. Byrne's strategists don't know any more than do those of his GOP rival, U.S. Rep. Charles Sandman, about the prospective impact of Watergate in this important race. But they figure if it makes New Jersey voters just a little more attentive to character at a time their own state is in a mess, Byrne may be the new face they're looking for.

"Shopworn" is one of the key labels they pin on Sandman.

If Byrne is new, he's also stiff, especially for an Irishman with seven kids. His managers know it, and it makes them a little nervous. Some top Democrats privately fear he'll blow something big before November election day.

But top aides like Richare Leone, a Muskie man last year, and Lew Kaden, once with Robert Kennedy, can't see Byrne giving away what they think is a safe lead. They think Sandman, the veteran legislator from Cape May who himself has six kids, has piled up enough "negatives" in 17 years in office to keep Byrne on the winning side.

In branding the GOP nominee a "rightwinger," a splinter candidate," they'll tell you he's got an incrediby bad labor record — that he's voted against higher minimum wages, better worker safety, food stamps for the poor, even "hot and cold running water" for migrant workers.

Byrne's managers add that if Sandman argues he's done all this as the taxpayer's friend, it amounts to overkill. They think that when they get through laying out Sandman's record, his presumed advantage as the "gut issue" candidate will evaporate. rate.

Says Kaden of Sandman's showing at a recent confrontation of the contenders in Smithville:

"He sounded like he was running for chairman of the board of General Motors."

Well, that's the easy part of a New Jersey report. But, dashing from northern cities to Cape May, you find the total scene and the tons of "facts" baffling. Both the sights and the talk are a shifting montage which eludes definition.

Many gauges say the economy booms, but rail lines totter in or near bankruptcy, high unemployment smothers heavily black Newark, pollution is so bad Sandman dares to say a deepwater port (with threat of oil spills) couldn't hurt. Crime perils the streets.

Bright new houses fill up the long coastline, yet the piney, swampy inland is nearly a human desert. Large areas seem a throwback to the 1940s. Can there be a real New Jersey?

Skylab discovery

One of the most important results of Skylab II, in terms of future life down here on earth, may have been a simple experiment conducted by the crew of the orbiting laboratory.

Using a special furnace, Capt. Alan L. Bean, Maj. Jack R. Lousma and Dr. Owen K. Garriott melted parts of two crystals, then allowed them to cool and reform into new crystals.

On earth, materials that must be melted in their construction, such as metals and electronic crystals, develop impurities or improper mixing because of gravity. This problem does not exist in the weightless environment of space.

By studying how molten materials cool in space, scientists believe they may learn how to construct materials on earth of such purity that their strength and reliability would be increased vastly beyond present standards.

Some of the possibilities are superpure crystals which could perform as many as 750,000 functions compared to the present 200 in a pocket calculator; tiny television cameras that would operate without lights; steel up to 1,000 times stronger, jet engines that could run at higher temperatures, giving more power with less pollution; the efficient conversion of solar energy to electricity.

According to one scientist, Dr. Harry C. Gatos of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the ultimate impact of controlling the chemical composition and structure of materials "is beyond the most far-out science fiction type of imagination."

Thought for today

A happy life must be to a great extent a quiet life, for it is only in an atmosphere of quiet that true joy can live. — Bertrand Russell, English philosopher.

Is Nixon backstabbing Agnew?

WASHINGTON — Three major congressional committees have secretly ordered studies of how Congress should respond to the constitutional challenge of ruling on a possible replacement for Vice President Spiro Agnew.

One preliminary study by the Senate Judiciary Committee began more than two weeks ago at a time when Agnew's aides were pooh-poohing any talk of resignation. The other two probes were ordered this week by the House Judiciary and Senate Rules committees.

All three surveys are intended to prepare Congress for possible eventualities. The committees have no positive information that Agnew might actually resign in the wake of the grand jury investigation of Maryland kickback charges.

Although the replacement of a Vice President would be unprecedented in American history, the Senate Judiciary study has already found guidelines in Congress' own rules and in the legislative history of the 25th Amendment. The six-year-old amendment says both houses of Congress must rule on any presidential nominee to succeed a Vice President.

Chairmen

If two sets of hearings are held under the 25th Amendment as is normai on legislation, the Senate Judiciary staff investigation has found it would be headed by Senate Rules chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., and House Judiciary chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J. Both are well-regarded, fair-minded lawyers.

One of the most intriguing precedents discovered by the Senate Judiciary staff has eerie parallels with the present situation. Thirty-six years ago, then-Sen. Hugo Black was picked by Pres. Franklin Roosevelt for the Supreme Court. So highly thought of was Black by his Senate conferees that they skipped committee hearings on the controversial nomination. It went straight to the Senate floor where it was approved.

Today, two of the men mentioned in the speculation as replacements for Agnew are also senators — Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Hugh Scott, R.-Pa., either of whom could conceivably pass the Senate without hearings.

Another possibility is that Cannon's Rules Committee and Rodino's Judiciary group would hold joint hearings. Rodino's legislative sleuths have already discovered that a decade ago the House Judiciary and Senate Finance committees were ordered by an unusual Act of Congress jointly to study a taxation question. Although House Judiciary wound up doing almost all the work, the old act is a clear precedent for joint vice presidential hearings.

Select committees

One of several other possibilities turned up by the studies is that a select committee would be appointed by each House or a joint select committee would be appointed by both houses. However, Senate historians feel any effort by the leadership to dislodge Rodino or Cannon as chairmen would be a flagrant slap.

Presidential taping not new idea

With the first acknowledgment that White House conversations in the Oval Office had been recorded, all of us who have conferred confidentially in that office immediately sought mentally to reconstruct those conversations imagining that they might now be made public.

I didn't sweat — but I "gulped" once or twice. The GSA (General Services Administration) confirms that four former Presidents (F.D.R., Eisenhower, Kennedy and L.B.J.) did have recordings made of at least some of their private conversations without advising the principals taking part in those conversations that they were being recorded.

President Franklin Roosevelt had the telephones tapped in both the offices and homes of some of his closest aides. The libraries of Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson include thousands of tapes of confidential conversations. The Kennedy Library's senior archivist, William Moss, says existing recordings of telephone conversations and face-to-face meetings involving Kennedy and others will not be made public "for a long time," if only for "security reasons."

He implies that military classification is involved in some of the tapes. Certainly some might embarrass foreign chiefs of state — to our diplomatic disadvantage. And it is likely that the reputations of living individuals might be irreparably damaged of those tapes were to include, for example, executive briefings on potential appointees.

When a presidential appointment is pending, there are necessarily some very frank discussions of each appointee's qualifications. The L.B.J. Library includes tapes which are not to be made public before the year 2500.

And tapes made by previous Presidents — perhaps L.B.J. — would likely include such privately harmless but publicly damaging stuff as unbecoming ribald humor and intemperate profanity. On the other hand, a record of unofficial utterances in the Chief Executive's office eventually may have historical significance. Some examples:

When Harry Truman became President he got this advice from former Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn: "From here on you're going to have a lot of people around you. They'll try to put a wall around you and cut you off from any ideas but theirs. They will hypnotize you by telling you what a great man you are. But, Harry, both you and I know you ain't."

When President Nixon was elected, L. B. J. told him to enjoy his Inauguration Day because "that is the only day when you will be President of the United States. Starting the day after inauguration you will be subject to the veto of The Washington Post, the New York Times and three networks."

And to a trusted confident, L.B.J. also had this to say about his protege, Bobby Baker. As Baker faced trial, Lyndon Johnson said, "He knows where all the skeletons are. If he talks, I could be the first President to go to prison — and 20 U.S. congressmen or former congressmen would go with me."

Gossip for today

A newspaper LETTER TO THE EDITOR points out somewhat cynically that:

"Everybody wants a good environment but not at the expense of dependable, around-the-clock electrical service."

Which quite accurately describes the attitude of most Americans today. It is going to take more than just a few brown-outs to convince us that maybe in the interest of a clearer environment and energy conservation, we should give up our electric toothbrushes; electric trash mashers, electric razors, electric garbage disposals, electric carving knives, electric sun tan lamps, combs and hair dryers.

However, if worst comes to worst and we finally get scared enough to decide to do our bit to help correlate the environment and the energy crisis, we can not only give up all those before mentioned goodies but also really show our patriotism by installing old fashioned door knockers in place of electric door bells; by changing over from electric to wind-up clocks; by shutting off the electric blanket and adding a comforter to the bed; by outlawing rock and roll band amplifiers; by insisting that secretaries use manually operated typewriters instead of the electric variety; by disconnecting the electric can opener and knife sharpener; and finally (and greater patriotism than this hath no man, woman or child.) we can shut off our TV sets for the duration.

Yes, we can do all of those things if that is what it is going to take to improve the environment and avoid the brownouts. But my guess is we'll think it all over and finally settle for brown skies, a brown taste in our mouths, possible nuclear fall-out and MORE ELECTRICITY.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

A president needs to be a politician

There were the Democrats, spread all over national television, collecting pledges of some $5.4 million to pay off their party's debt and build campaign funds. And their telethon chairman, John Y. Brown, dropped in one of the worst lines any party man could utter.

He told his listeners and the nation it was time to stop electing politicians and to begin picking "statesmen" for public office. On the scene at Los Angeles, the applause was warm. But Brown could not have been more wrong.

To be sure, he didn't invent this nonsense. Since the days of King George III, Americans have been captivated by the idea that their public offices could best be filled by "non-politicans." The notion has appealed especially with respect to the presidency.

In fact, it's the purest fantasy and has been responsible for more mischief and ineptitude than almost anything else in U.S. public life. Before he went on camera, telethon chariman Brown should have scanned a newspaper written by Thomas E. Cronin, a young scholar currently at the Center for the Sutdy of Democratic Institutions.

Cronin's piece was most specifically applied to President Nixon and his difficulties, but its theme is timeless. Said Cronin:

". . .a president cannot and should not avoid being openly political. . .that is, he must negotiate and mediate between groups, compromise polar differences and find acceptable alternatives."

In Cronin's view, the presidency "is a very political office and political and partisan leadership are as much needed as foreign policy statesmanship and symbolic leadership."

Everything a president does, the scholar added, "has political consequences, and each explicitly political act has consequences for the state of the presidency."

To attempt to divorce this high office from politics presupposes, in Cronin's judgement, a "significantly different political system than ours, which is glued together in such large measure by ambiguity, compromise, and the extensive sharing of powers."

Perceptive historians have thoroughly documented this country's habitual, crippling distaste for politicians. Cronin's thesis is that Richard Nixon practicied this "escape from politics" from the outset of his tenure, with Watergate the most disastrous but not the only damaging result.

For, the easiest way to be "statesmanlike" is to focus heavily upon foreign policy, generally the great unifier. Out of the Nixon administration's own mouth, with the words carefully tracked by Cronin, that is how he has seen his role.

But that concentration, with its inevitable stress upon secret and closed-door dealings, came at the expense of fuller, more open attention to a wide range of domestic problems which are the real heart and stuff of politics. Conflicts in this field, if solvable at all, are resolved largely by presidents acting openly as mediator and as what Cronin called "coalition-builder."

His final pleas include mature recognition that presidents should be not merely political but "vigorous partisan leaders as well." Only in myth has Mr. Nixon so acted.

I read an ad in a newspaper about World Wide Systems, a firm that would teach you all about heavy equipment.

I wrote and asked for more information. A few days later they called my home collect and told me if I went through the course, they would get me an operating engineer's card and a job.

They asked a starting fee of $195. I sent the money in. I received a contract from World Wide by mail.

Among statements in the contract was this one: "I further certify that there have been no verbal or written agreements or promises made to the applicant other than those appearing in this agreement."

Upon reading this, I wrote and asked for my money back. They do not want to return it. — J. M., Pomona.

You sent us a copy of the contract. The statement you quoted from was to have been signed by a representative of World Wide Systems.

The contract provides for training only and states that it is unlawful for World Wide officers or representatives to guarantee or promise employment.

It is unfortunate that your telephone conversation cannot be verified but fortunate, since you don't want the course, that you signed no contract. If you had signed up, you would be out $895 instead of $195.

The reply we received to an inquiry addressed to World Wide Systems in Indianapolis was a copy of a letter addressed to you. It was a form letter with a few words and figures filled in where spaces had been left for that purpose.

World Wide claims it submitted to you 20 units of pretraining data, constituting the first 100 hours of the 200 being offered, and that you accepted this material and completed it, as shown by your answer sheets.

The firm says you may keep the 20 units and you will be given full credit for your $195 if you want to complete the training later on.

More than seven months ago I ordered a blender from Stur-Dee Health Products, Inc., in New York, enclosing a check for $27.95.

The blender did not arrive. When I wrote to ask why, a letter came to me saying that it had been reshipped.

Last month I wrote three letters to Stur-Dee but no answer came. Please help me get my blender. — E. K., Chino.

We wrote to Stur-Dee and also were told that a duplicate had been shipped. This time you got it.

Early bird didn't get his worms

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A 31-year-old man from North Carolina had only been here a short time and he learned something recently — the hard way.

At 9:40 a.m. Benny Melton donned a stocking mask, pulled out a revolver and rushed the door of a Bank of America branch office, attempting to jar it open with his shoulder.

The door didn't give and Melton bounced back into the arms of a security guard, who had been watching in his car as he waited to come to work.

"In North Carolina the banks open at 9 a.m.," said a confused Melton.

They open at 10 a.m. in Los Angeles.

P.C. magazine, editor praised for excellence

CLAREMONT — Pomona Today, the quarterly alumni magazine of Pomona College, and Gordon J. Hazlitt, coordinator of publications and editor of the magazine, were honored recently by the American Alumni Council and two national magazines for general excellence.

The council named the magazine "a publication of distinction" among the top 25 alumni publications in the nation and later chose it as one of the top 10 alumni magazines.

The magazine was also honored with a citation from Newsweek for its April issue on the effects of the population explosion.

Hazlitt, editor of the publication since 1968, was honored for excellence in writing along with five other collegiate writers by Atlantic magazine.

New roles and classes noted as Claremont High classes resume

CLAREMONT — New responsibilities and new courses of study are evident at Claremont High during the start of another school year.

Dan Stevenson has been appointed associate principal. His position includes being the curricular leader as well as the school manager. He will work directly under Principal Alex Hughes.

Stevenson came to the Claremont Unified School District in 1967 to accept the position of dean of boys at Claremont High, and in 1968 was named assistant principal in charge of curriculum and guidance.

Mrs. Barbara Hinkle has changed jobs, too. She came to the district business office in 1966, and a year later became secretary to the assistant principal in charge of business services at Claremont High. A year later she took the job of secretary for Hughes.

Mrs. Hinkle has been attending college classes since 1962, and was a recent graduate at La Verne College. She is enrolled in the intern program at La Verne College and will teach in the business department at Claremont High.

A new course at Claremont High entitled, "Contemporary Studies," is being taken by about 80 students and offers a unique learning experience.

The course is built around the concept of an American city and includes English, history and science courses. The students will study all phases of a city's operation including landscaping, rapid transit, traffic control, government, architectural awareness and environmental impact.

Toward the end of the course, the students will construct a model city, and become involved in the problems of their own community.

Two immunization clinics to be held for youngsters

POMONA — Two free immunization clinics to protect children against polio, measles, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough will be given at the county health center here during the next month.

Dr. Jonas Naujokaitis, acting district health officer for the Pomona office, said the clinics are offered in place of an immunization program which up to now was conducted in the schools. He said the health department is no longer going out to the schools.

The first of the clinics will be held from 4 to 8 p.m. Wednesday at the health center, 750 S. Park Ave. A subsequent clinic is scheduled for Oct. 24.

Inoculations will be given against diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough—all one shot—for children under 6. For older youngsters the injection against whooping cough must be given separately, the health officer said. Oral vaccines against polio may be taken at the time of the vaccinations.

But, according to Dr. Naujokaitis, inoculations against measles will not be given on the same night as polio vaccines, except in emergency cases, because both carry live cultures.

The Pomona clinic is part of 58 locations offering immunization against diseases on the same dates throughout the county. Health officials have recently voiced concern about the large number of parents who have not kept their youngsters fully immunized.

Another 180,000 children between 1 and 5 have not been immunized against measles, a disease that kills more youngsters in the U.S. than any other communicable disease, he said.

Mrs. Landin heads school bilingual unit

POMONA — Mrs. Esther Landin, a parent at Madison Elementary School, is newly elected president of the Community Advisory Committee of the Pomona Unified School District's bilingual education program.

She and other new officers were presented at a program presented in Spanish and English recently in the cafeteria at Hamilton Elementary School.

Those serving with Mrs. Landin are Mrs. Vicky Perez, Hamilton parent, vice president; Mrs. Linda Perez, Hamilton, treasurer; Martha Fisher, Roosevelt, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Doris Morales, Westmont, secretary; Mrs. Guadalupe Sandoval, Simons and Garey, assistant secretary; Mrs. Carla Mindiola, Washington, telephone chairman; Tom Lopez, Westmont, city adviser; and Ken Noonan of the Pomona Unified School District, district adviser.

The district's bilingual education program, which this fall is placing bilingual teachers in 19 classrooms to do part of their teaching in English and part in Sapnish, was explained.

A number of parents attended inservice training sessions at the Hamilton school with the bilingual teachers just before school started.

They elected to form a community advisory committee to support the bilingual program in district schools, Noonan said.

Educational grants available for Spanish-speaking students

Spanish-speaking students needing money to continue their education after high school are urged by a Nixon administration official to apply for Basic Educational Opportunity Grants.

"The program should benefit an estimated one-half million students who might otherwise be unable to continue their education," said Henry M. Ramirez, chairman of the Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for Spanish-Speaking People. He is a former Pomona resident.

Ramirez said more than $122 million is available under the grants program, which is administered by the Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"Although the grants are limited to first-year, full-time postsecondary school students, the program marks a major step in making higher education available to all young people who desire it, especially Spanish-speaking," said Ramirez.

Under the grant program, students in financial need may obtain funds to help pay their educational expenses at any approved college, university, vocational school, technical institute or hospital school of nursing.

How much a student or his family can contribute affects the amount of his basic grant and is determined according to a formula established by the U.S. Office of Education.

To apply for a basic grant, an Application for Determination of Expected Family Contribution must be obtained, filled out, and mailed to Post Office Box 3, Iowa City, Iowa 52240.

Within a month, the student is notified of the amount of his family's expected contribution. He then submits the notification to the school of his choice, which calculates the amount of the basic grant to which he is entitled.

Application forms are available at student financial aid offices at post secondary institutions, high school guidance offices, post offices, state employment offices, county agricultural extension agents, Talent Search, Upward Bound, and Student Special Services projects.

Forms may also be obtained by writing to Box G, Iowa City, Iowa 52240, or the the Cabinet Committee, 1707 H Street, N.W. Washington, D.C. 20506.

Other forms of federal student assistance such as supplemental educational opportunity grants, college work-study, national direct student loans, and guaranteed student loans, are available in addition to basic grants.

For further information on basic grants and other student financial aid programs, students should contact their high school counselor or the financial aid officer at the school in which they expect to enroll.

Jurors react favorably to all-videotape trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Jurors reacted favorably to California's first all-videotape trial and also ruled in favor of a woman who was injured in an automobile accident.

Testimony, taken weeks ago, was presented on two television screens facing jurors, while other screens were in front of the judge and the spectators.

Since attorneys had edited the tapes previously, the jurors were spared courtroom arguments about which evidence was admissable.

All the jurors agreed the TV system was a good approach when the trial ended recently, although two had minor reservations.

A secretary said, "It gets kind of draggy after a while." And a teacher declared, "At least at home we can get up and walk around."

Is Nixon backstabbing Agnew?

While Rodino is new to his blue-ribbon Judiciary post, he has been an articulate veteran chairman of other lesser House units for years. And Cannon's committee, while it generally does fuddy-duddy business on Senate procedures, was the forum for dramatic hearings on former Senate majority secretary Bobby Baker exactly 10 years ago.

Meanwhile, the strain between President Nixon and Vice President Agnew is approaching the breaking point. The rival staffs have become hostile camps, spreading rumors and leaking stories against one another.

Sources close to Agnew believe the President has stirred up the charges against Agnew to divert public attention from his own role in the Watergate scandal.

"The charges against Agnew have created a marvelous distraction," said one source. "Now the President can offer up Agnew as a blood offering to placate the public."

Friends of Agnew tell us he is aware of the White House backstabbing but, nevertheless, refuses to believe the President is personally behind it. Spiro Agnew, said a friend, "has this feeling of awe for the presidency, for the White House, which inhibits him from coming to the inevitable conclusion the President is knifing him."

New contact lens 4 times lighter

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A new bifocal contact lens, smaller than the pupil of the eye, has been developed by an optometrist in West Virginia, it was reported recently.

A seven-page report prepared by Dr. Claud A. Kendall of Fairmont, W. Va., for a meeting of the American Optometric Association said the patented lens would be widely available for fittings in 1974.

Twelve years of research produced the lens which is four times thinner than those now on the market, Kendall said. Present bifocal contact lenses have a so-called "ballast," making the close-range segment heavier and causing it to hang on the bottom.

Convention report:

Condominium boom still booming

SAN DIEGO — The condominium boom that California is now experiencing is just the beginning.

"Brokerage opportunities already existing in the condominium resale market are insignificant compared with what they will be in the next five to 10 years," said R. Stanley Dybvig of Dayton, Ohio, president of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers.

He spoke recently at the California Real Estate Association's annual convention being held here.

"The tremendous upsurg in new condominium construction and the condominium conversion market, while not offering great opportunity for the individual Realtor at the present time, does offer possibilities for those who will arm themselves with the knowledge necessary to deal effectively with condominium resales."

Studies have shown the average age of condominium buyers is 50 to 55 years old, he added. "Because of movement to retirement communities, the desire to move closer to their children, and other factors, the condominium market is just beginning to churn."

Other speeches during the week-long conference included:

William R. Schoeffler of Sacramento, president of Schoeffler Investment Co., said too often real estate investments made to secure an income tax advantage or "writeoff" ignore the basic value components of a good investment.

Speaking specifically of real estate syndication, in which a group of small investors pool its money in a common venture, Schoeffler emphasized the importance of cash flow, equity buildup and potential appreciation.

"Unless it is economically viable, it is not a good investment vehicle," he said. Schoeffler suggested that before seeking professional advice, investors judge the investment potential of an offering using the following checklist:

— History and competence of the property manager; Does the investment have cash flow, equity buildup, good location?; What type of financing? Balloon Payment? Due date? Does the investment have cash reserves?; Does it call for assessments.

Charles H. Boxenbaum of Los Angeles, president of Sonnenblick-Goldman Corp. of California, predicted that economic and demographic forces will create a climate in which the demand for mortgage money over the next 10 years will be substantially greater than the supply.

"This imbalance is fueled by the demands of government and industry, the federal government's commitment to promote housing and urban renewal, and the dramatic growth of the family formation segment of our population. We do not see the traditional sources of mortgage money growing at a parallel rate."

Boxenbaum said the mortgage banker views money simply as a commodity. "It is no different from cement, wood, brick or drywall, and what we are doing is renting this commodity. We are interested in renting as much as we can at the lowest possible monthly payments."

Paul G. Reinke of Executive Consulting Services, Inc., Southfield, Mich., said that in its headlong rush to become organized and computerized, business often neglects its most important asset — people.

"The symptoms of this problem are found in the complaints voiced by those most important to the success of any business, its customers," he added.

"Poor workmanship, inconsiderate salespeople, poor service, no one seems to care — these are some of the things one hears repeatedly."

Reinke said the measure of any business is the quality of its personnel, whether measured in per-man sales or work force stability.

"We must refocus our attention on our most important asset — people. If we build organizations with the right people, properly selected, properly trained, and properly managed, we can put quality and craftsmanship back into our business culture."

Course in housing is set at UCLA

LOS ANGELES — A six week course titled "Professional Practices in the Housing Industry," will start Oct. 9 at UCLA.

The six sessions, sponsored by the Young Home Builders Council, will be held from 7 to 9:30 p.m. each Tuesday, Oct. 9 to Nov. 13, in room 2250, Young Hall.

"The course is designed for everyone interested in how builders manage basic programs of land acquisition and use, planning, financing, marketing, and all major elements in real estate developments which affect the builder's success," said John Konwiser, a Newport Beach home builder. He is the program coordinator and will be moderator at each lecture.

The subjects and speakers include: Oct. 9, "Real Estate and Construction Financing," presented by George Smith, vice president of Sonnenblick-Goldman, Inc., Century City; Oct. 16, "Structuring the Joint Venture," presented by Thomas Peckenpaugh, partner in Kalmbach, DeMarco, Knapp and Chillingsworth, Los Angeles; Oct. 23, "Condominium Laws, Financing and Zoning," presented by Konwiser, president of the Konwiser Corp.

Oct. 30, "New Land Planning Developments," presented by Walter Richardson Associates, architects, Costa Mesa; Nov. 6, "Presenting Your Package to the Lender," Konwiser; and Nov. 13, "Marketing with Imagination," presented by Beverly Thompson, president of Beverly Thompson Interiors, Inc., Newport Beach.

Registration can be made at the class at the first session. Application for the course can be made by writing to UCLA Extension, P.O. Box 24901, Dept. K, Los Angeles 90024. The fee of $60 must be paid at the door or accompany the request for enrollment. Enrollment can be made at the UCLA extension offices.

Unified program for black, white realty groups is announced

SAN DIEGO — Joint meetings, joint educational progrms, and a common voice in the state Legislature are included in a four year plan announced here by black and white leaders of the real estate industry.

The plan was revealed at the California Real Estate Associaiton's annual convention here by Richard Van Valer of San Jose, CREA president and Fred Farley of Oakland, president of the state's black real estate organization, the California Association of Real Estate Brokers. They were joined at a news conference by Robert W. Karpe, California real estate commissioner.

The agreement, titled "Road to a Color-Blind Real Estate Profession—a Long Range Flexible Program," calls for joint real estate educational programs in 1974, a single lobbying office in Sacramento in 1975, and an amalgamation of "organization structure and officerships" in 1976. It makes 1977 the target for "full joint status."

The plan avoids the word "merger" since both groups feel there should be machinery for representing the problems of blacks, perhaps through a black institute within the joint association, officials said.

"CREA is not limited to white Realtors," said Van Valer. "We have many black and other minority group members. But we recognize that some of their interests and problems require special attention."

Farley said the black organization, now with just under 5,000 members, was formed 25 years ago because they felt it was needed.

"But we are all in the same business, serving the same human needs for housing. It was natural that we should eventually discover that black and white real estate professionals had more in common than what separated them."

Karpe said white and black leadership in the real estate industry in California is now agreement on a practical plan of action to bring the two groups closer together over the next several years.

"The public will be the beneficiary as we move a step closer to the American ideal of a color-blind society."

Karpe said he invited leaders of the two real estate groups two years ago to discuss mutual interests and problems, which ended in this program.

Long distance for a short call

NOME, Alaska (UPI) — Alaska's Little Diomede Island, which is just two miles from Soviet territory, has obtained telephone service through a hook-up with RCA Communications, Inc.

But if the Eskimos there want to ring up their neighbors on Russi's Big Diomede, they will have to call around the world to do so. RCA says the village bush phone offers almost the same service available anywhere else, including long distance service. But there is no direct connection across the Bering Strait which separates the two islands.

Banks report increases in mortgage financing

WASHINGTON — The gloomy housing outlook has some bright spots, reports Eugene H. Adams, president of the American Bankers Association (ABA).

Citing from the latest report released by the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), Adams pointed to major increases by the nation's 14,000 banks in five areas of mortgage lending for one-to-four family homes.

According to HUD figures, the banks:

— Originated 59 per cent more in long term loans for the first six months of 1973, compared to the first half of 1974.

— Originated 31 per cent ($12.4 billion) of total mortgage loans for the first six months of this year.

—Increased their acquisition of construction loans by 14 per cent over the same 1972 period—from $3.75 billion to $4.28 billion.

— Put new commitments on the block during June, 1973, of $1.5 billion for construction and and long term loans—an increase of 5 per cent.

— Had outstanding commitments of $7.3 billion for construction and long term loans at the end of 1973 — about 38 per cent above the June, 1972, total.

Adams, who is also president of the First National Bank of Denver, said it was particularly gratifying to know that commitments to make future loans are holding up extremely well, since this is a good measure of loans actually being made today.

Banks again rank No. 1 on HUD's compilations of holdings of construction loans through June, 1973

In order were: banks, $14.4 billion; savings and loan associations, $11.7 billion; mortgage investment trusts, $7.2 billion; mutual savings banks, $1.3 billion; state and local credit agencies, $843 million, and life insurance companies, $389 million.

Adams said ABA surveys show that banks have more than $90 billion invested in municipal bonds.

"Some $60 billion of these are bonds for roads, sewers, waste treatment facilities, schools, fire and police departments, city hospitals—all the facilities neccessary for a community to function."

In addition, nearly 10 per cent of banking's $60 billion in commercial loans outstanding at the end of 1972 was in mobile home loans. According to the ABA, mobile homes now account for 20 per cent of all single-family housing in the U. S. and 75 per cent of all single-family housing costing less than $20,000.

Realty president:

Federal plan needed to protect mortgage market

CHICAGO — Congress and federal agencies should develop a plan whereby the mortgage market will be assured of a proper proportion of funds from the total financial resources of the nation, said J. D. Sawyer, president of the National Association of Realtors.

He spoke in response to a speech by Rep. Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking Committee, in which the Texas Democrat proposed a system of credit rationing to make it possible for "plain people" to borrow money in times of severe inflation, such as the present.

Supporting Patman's advocacy of the allocation of credit resources to the mortgage market, Sawyer suggested a tax incentive program granting new mortgage tax credits to banks and savings and loan associations would be preferable to direct government regulation of credit.

"There has to be some method of allocating funds to make sure the mortgage market is going to receive its fair competitive share," he added.

"This is the third time the real estate industry has gone through the wringer in the past six years. In each credit crunch, the mortgage market has been the first hit and the last to recover.

"We believe that it would be irresponsible for government to permit this to happen a fourth time because the industry can't continue to survive these traumatic rises and falls in the credit market."

In his Washington speech, Chairman Patman was sharply critical of the "tight money" policy of the Federal Reserve Board, which he blamed for high interest rates and a resulting threatened slump in the homebuilding industry as mortage money becomes more costly.

"As a result," Patman said, "the average American—the plain people—have been left to compete with the corporate giants, the speculators, the gamblers and the fast-buck artists for available credit at 9, 10 and 11 per cent . . . In my opinion, we can no longer accept these eighteenth century monetary policies."

The position of the National Association of Realtors, according to Sawyer, is that a tax incentive plan for mortgage bankers should be one of the alternatives considered by Congress in attempting to deal with the problem of "credit crunches" in the mortgage market.

New York State stretches 500 miles from the top of Long Island to Niagara Falls and is the only state that touches both the Atlantic Ocean and the Great Lakes.

Brisk sales reported at Lewis development

ALTA LOMA — Twenty five of the [illegible] homes at the Lewis Homes — Alta Loma development have been "spoken for," officials report.

The brisk sales is attributed by the builder to the "total house" package offered the buyers.

"Not only are the kitchen appliances and carpeting of various rooms included in the purchase price, but even the window drapes and front yard lawn and sprinklers are already installed when the buyer moves in," said Edward Lynch, regional sales manager for Lewis Homes of California.

"Keeping our prices frozen at the same figures posted when Lewis Homes — Alta Loma opened 10 weeks ago has also been a strong factor in attracing home seekers," he added.

The three and four bedroom homes are priced from $25,450 to $26,900. Conventional financing and also Cal Vet loans of 4¼ per cent are among the purchasing arrangements available.

The homes also feature two bathrooms, garden kitchens equipped with built-in dishwashers, self cleaning ovens, ranges and disposal units, wall-to-wall carpeting in the living rooms, hallways and master bedrooms, and ceiling lights in all the bedrooms.

The development features underground utilities, concrete driveways, and sidewalks.

A sales office and three model homes are open daily from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Forecast's revision sees slowdown, not recession

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A slowdown, but not a recession, will start before the end of the year, bringing a slight easing of inflationary trends and increased unemployment in 1974, the UCLA Graduate School of Management has forecast.

In a quarterly revision of their annual business forecast, the economists said the problem facing government policy-planners now is to tread a narrow line between continued inflation and a full-blown recession.

The UCLA economists said the slowdown would bring lower corporate profits, a drop in housing construction in 1974 and a decline in currently unusually high short and long term interest rates.

Among the predictions in the quarterly revision:

—Unemployment will rise from an average 4.8 per cent this year to 5.2 per cent in 1974.

—Consumer prices will have risen 5.8 per cent by the end of 1973 and will go up 5 per cent during 1974.

—The stock market will "slowly recover" from the lows of the summer but will not surpass the peak levels of last January until the middle of next year.

—Automobile sales, including imports, will be a record 12 million in 1973 but will decline to about 11 million in 1974.

New housing declines in California

LOS ANGELES — New housing starts in California dipped in July to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 194,000 units, reports the Bank of America.

This is down almost 10 per cent from June and 15 per cent from a year ago, officials noted.

The major share of the decline was in apartment projects with five or more units. Single family homes increased to over 56 per cent of new starts.

The bank's economists expect the down trend in new starts to continue in the months ahead. They forecast total starts in 1973 of about 200,000 units.

Initial OK on gaming license for Sam Davis

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) —The state gaming control board recently gave preliminary approval for a gambling license for entertainer Sammy Davis Jr., but he still must face more questioning.

Board chairman Philip Hannifin said there must have been recent "allegations reflecting on his (Davis') personal background" and the board will want to quiz Davis at another meeting Sept. 27 in Las Vegas.

Meade Dixon, Davis' attorney, said the entertainer would be present at the Las Vegas meeting but could not make the session because of previous commitments. Davis is seeking to be a director in Hotel Conquistador Inc., which operates the Tropicana Hotel and Country Club in Las Vegas.

Hannifin said these allegations may be "specious" but they must be examined. He would not disclose the exact nature of the allegations which he said came to light ater state officials completed the regular investigation of Davis' background.

Gardeners to pay price for lost beehives

CONCORD, Calif. (UPI) —A beekeeper has gone out of business and he says weekend gardeners in his neighborhood will be sorry.

Pancho Bacciglieri sold all of his 42 hives after merchants complained about bee droppings and the City Council ordered him to sell all but 15 of the hives.

Backyard gardeners, Baccieglieri said recently, would be sorry because without the bees for fertilization tomato crops will disappear, string beans will wilt and flowers will fall by the wayside.

"The wasps were all cleaned out."

U.S. massed tanks on Canada border in 1970 crisis?

TORONTO (UPI) — The Toronto Star reported Saturday that the U.S. massed tanks and heavy equipment near the Canadian border in preparation to move into Quebec at the height of the separatist crisis in 1970.

Both the U.S. and Canadian governments denied the report.

The newspaper in a copyrighted story quoted Leslie J. Bennet, a former chief of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) anti-espionage operations, as saying that U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) agents had infiltrated Montreal on a large scale during the Front de Liberation Quebecois (flq) crisis and tanks and heavy equipment were massed just south of the border.

Bennet said the federal government was informed that should the Quebec government fall or fail to preserve order, the Americans would move into southern Quebec to protect vital U.S. interests in the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, who was defense minister at the time of the crisis, denied the story. In Washington, a spokesman for the State Department said the story was "absolutely false."

Bennet, a 53-year-old career intelligence officer was quoted as saying "during the separatist crisis of October, 1970, in Montreal, the Canadian security service had to assign investigators to shadow agents of the CIA who had infiltrated Montreal on a large scale and were carrying on operations without the approval of the Canadian government.

"During the same crisis, the Canadian government moved tanks and other heavy equipment into position just south of Ottawa to offset a buildup of American tanks and heavy equipment just south of the U.S. border."

Bennet, who retired from the RCMP last year, is now employed by a pri- that security firm in South Africa.

Macdonald, in denying the story, said: "Frankly the story doesn't accord with any experiences I had as minister of defense. I just don't believe it."

Macdonald sad he could see no reason why the U.S. Army would put troops on the border. "It would have been political insanity on their part to have planned that," he added.

Agnew reported willing to deal

Gas dealers to mobilize in war council

By United Press International

A nationwide shutdown of service stations will be one of the major topics of discussion today at a "war council" called for gasoline dealers from 40 states, a spokesman said Saturday.

Robert Jacobs, a leading official of the Illinois and Indiana Gasoline Dealers Associations, said "other forms of activity" also will be discussed at the noon meeting scheduled at a hotel at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport but he declined to describe them.

The meeting today was the latest in a series of protests by gasoline dealers across the country over the Phase IV guidelines. The dealers object to the freeze on retail prices while wholesale prices are allowed to rise.

There already have been a number of localized shutdowns of service station but so far no nationwide action.

Independent service station dealers in the Baltimore and Washington metropolitan areas Saturday reaffirmed their intentions to close Monday to protest Phase IV.

A spokesman for the Maryland Independent Dealers Association predicted most of the agency' 400 members would observe the shutdown. In Washington, organizers estimated that 60 per cent of the area's 2,000 independent dealers would close, but individual station managers indicated they would wait and see what neighboring competitors would do before deciding.

The California State Automobile Association reported that 90 per cent of the stations there were closed.

GASOLINE LINE

These motorists are not queued up for a major sporting event. Instead, they are waiting patiently to get gasoline at one of few open gas stations in San Francisco after a majority of Northern California retail gasoline dealers decided to close for all or part of four-day protest against Phase IV price controls. The protest, through Monday, is reportedly being strongly supported by dealers.

Source says he'd quit to face minor charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's lawyers are bargaining with the Justice Department toward a possible deal in which he could resign and be charged only with a minor offense in a Maryland political corruption case, a congressional source said Saturday.

The source, who declined to be identified, said Agnew was expected to decide his course of action within a week—with his decision possibly hanging on prospects for his indictment by a federal grand jury in Baltimore that may start hearing evidence against him next week.

The highly secretive negotiations between attorneys for Agnew and top Justice Department officials reportedly began Thursday.

Justice Department spokesmen had no comment.

Agnew's office announced Saturday that he is forming a legal "defense fund" and denied reports that his lawyers were trying to arrange a deal.

Agnew's press secretary, Marsh Thomson, said the defense fund was being established to cover all "legal costs" growing from an investigation of the vice president in connection with an alleged scheme of political kickbacks in his home state of Maryland.

There were conflicting reports about the exact nature of the negotiations. The congressional source described them as "plea bargaining" based on the assumption that, if Agnew resigned, the Justice Department would use any evidence against him only to charge him with a minor offense.

Agnew has been under federal investigation for possible violations of conspiracy, extortion, bribery and tax fraud laws in connection with an alleged arrangement in which Maryland politicians accepted kickbacks from architectural and engineering contractors.

The grand jury investigation stretches back to the years when Agnew served as Baltimore county executive and Maryland governor before becoming vice president in 1969.

The Washington Post reported Saturday that Lester Matz, a Baltimore County consulting engineer who has received limited immunity from prosecution, told federal investigators that he gave Agnew between $25,000 and $50,000 over the last decade.

It was not known whether Agnew or the Justice Department initiated the reported plea bargaining —a common judicial maneuver in which a defendant agrees to plead guilty to a lesser than the maximum charge which evidence could warrant. There also was no indication what possible charges were being discussed.

Both the Post and CBS News reported that Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen was inisting that Agnew plead guilty to some offense rather than let the vice president escape all charges by resigning.

The Baltimore Sun said one of the vice president's lawyers, Judah Best, planned to file suit next week to try to stop federal prosecutors from presenting the Agnew evidence to the Baltimore grand jury, which thus far has focused on other aspects of the kickback case.

Agnew denied the allegations soon after he was formally told of them Aug. 1, and has continued to maintain a fairly normal schedule of appearances. The Kissinger swearing-in was one of the first official events Agnew has skipped since the investigation became known.

New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who attended the Kissinger ceremony, told reporters that President Nixon had not consulted with him about the Agnew situation. Rockefeller has been mentioned as one of the possible successors to Agnew if he decides to resign.

Sources said that when Agnew conferred with Nixon for an hour Thursday, he sought assurances from the President that he would not be pressured into resigning by the White House.

Monorail stalls, power line burns

POMONA — Firemen were kept busy Friday and Saturday with a rescue operation at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds here and a high-voltage power line that burned away partially Saturday afternoon.

Sixty persons were removed from stalled monorail cars at the fairgrounds Friday evening, department spokesmen related. Although no one was injured, it took about 45 minutes to clear the eight cars halted by an electrical problem.

Traffic around Foothill Boulevard and Garey Avenue was routed away from the intersection during a three-hour period Saturday afternoon, said the fire department. Power lines carrying 12,000 volts were left dangling from the northeast corner of the intersection, causing not only a hazard to traffic, but also a fire danger to a gas station below.

Electrical service to some commercial customers in the area was out for a time, related department spokesmen. They said the problem occurred shortly before 2 p.m. when static electricity caused a fire which burned off about 10 feet of the pole some 50 to 60 feet above ground.

Youth, 16, killed crossing freeway

INDUSTRY — A 16-year-old youth was killed as he attempted to dash across the Pomona Freeway east of Azusa Avenue Friday afternoon, the California Highway Patrol reported.

John C. Mock, 18709 Villa Park, La Puente, died three hours after the 12:40 p.m. accident in Doctor's Hospital in San Gabriel.

Driving the auto which struck the youth was Dowsan Metcalf, 26, of West Covina.

Rock singer's body cremated

Hunt on for coffin snatchers

JOSHUA TREE NATIONAL MONUMENT, Calif. (UPI) — The FBI and three Southern California law agencies Saturday hunted a pair of bearded coffin-snatchers who stole the body of rock singer Gram Parsons and cremated it in a ritual ceremony Friday in boulder-strewn Desert National Park here.

The charred remains of the 27-year-old singer-composer were found in the ashes of the coffin, which had been stolen Thursday from Los Angeles International Airport by two men driving a vintage hearse.

Airport officials who mistakenly released the coffin prior to a flight to New Orleans, where Parsons was to be buried, said the fake mortuary attendants wore long hair, one with western boots and a cowboy hat, the other with a heavy black beard.

The men told Western Airline attendants that Parson's family in New Orleans had authorized them to take the body to suburban Van Nuys Airport for a private flight to the Gulf Coast. They signed receipts and were given the coffin.

Parson, a guitar player formerly with "The Byrds," died of an apparent heart attack Wednesday outside the desert park at a motel where he was vacationing for a week. The results of an autopsy will be made known early next week.

The popular, longhaired musician was vacationing with a Los Angeles couple. Parson's wife, Gretchen, was not along on the trip. She was not available for comment.

The morning after the coffin was snatched from the airport, the two men in the old hearse sped down Interstate 15 some 200 miles to the huge desert park, where they set fire to Parson's wooden coffin in a bizarre predawn rite.

Asked if the circumstances appeared ritualistic, Los Angeles homicide detective, Sgt. John Hamilton, said, "It kind of looks like that."

Chief Park Ranger Don Colville, who was on the scene within hours of the coffin's discovery, said the stark cremation scene reminded him of a "Viking funeral, the kind the Norsemen got when they died at sea."

Francis Fox elected to Chino Hills airport board

SANTA ANA — Francis T. Fox, former general manager of the Los Angeles Department of Airports, has been elected to the board of directors and appointed principal consultant to the Chino Hills Airport Complex, Inc.

Fox had served as aviation director for the Hughes Tool Co. since Nov. 1, 1968, when he resigned his airport position. He is currently a consultant to Howard Hughes' Summa Corp., formerly Hughes Tool Co.

His election and appointment were announced by Reg Wood, chairman of the corporation's board of directors. This is viewed as further solidifying efforts to create the jetport.

The airport company is seeking to create an "airport in a park" development on 25,000 acres of unoccupied land in the Chino Hills. The site straddles Orange and San Bernardino Counties.

A recent state survey indicated this as a possible site for a major new airport to serve Southern California.

"There is an obvious need for an airport in this area to meet the demands of the traveling and shipping public. Because of the uninhabited area under consideration, I am sure the proposed detailed environmental impact report and master plan will show a minimal amount of noise or other ecological problems to the neighboring communities," Fox said.

The enormous buffer zone around the proposed two runway system will provide protection for neighboring residents, and the runways will be 1,000 feet above the level of area communities, he added.

"This will be an environmentally controlled airport where only those aircraft meeting the rigid Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) noise standards of the future, as well as safety standards, will be permitted to operate."

Most aviation experts have agreed this is a a feasible airport site since the FAA gave airspace clearance last year, Fox said.

"It is expected the airport will commence operation about 1978. Meanwhile, the air transportation needs of the public can be taken care of at Los Angeles International Airport and a greatly expanded Ontario International Airport."

While with the Los Angeles Department of Airports, Fox was instrumental in that agency acquiring the Ontario airport, then under Ontario City control.

Since joining the Hughes Tool Co., his duties included supervision of activities relating to airports, airlines, corporate aircraft and related aviation projects.

The proposed Chino Hills airport site is four miles northeast of Yorba Linda and four miles southwest of Los Serranos.

The airport company proposes building two 12,000-foot runways to handle 100,000 commercial operations and 20,000 general aviation operations a year.

The airport would occupy about 4,000 acres, with an adjoining 21,500 acres to be controlled through purchase, leasing or easements to prevent any non-compatible development.

Reporter claims Allende was killed by attacking soldiers

OFFENBURG, Germany (UPI) — A West German reporter said in a report published Saturday he saw the body of deposed Chilean President Salvador Allende the day of his death and Allende had been shot in the back, shoulders and head.

Gerhard Eisenkolb, a reporter for Bunte Illustrierte magazine, said in the story:

"Allende did not surrender" during the Sept 11 military coup. "About three hours after the ultimatum (by troops to Allende to surrender) soldiers stormed the government palace.

"Together with two Chilean journalists, I ran after them. There was shooting everywhere.

"We came upon Allende's body in the Red Hall. His head had been mutilated beyond identification. I saw several bullet wounds in the dead man's back and in his shoulders."

Bunte Illustrierte said Eisenkolb had been in Chile for an interview with Allende the day of the coup and had left the country last Thursday.

Anytime they want to, says Tunisia president

Israel able to roll over Arabs unopposed?

By United Press International

President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia said in an interview published Saturday that Israel could roll over Arab lands from the Nile to the Euphrates anytime it wanted, even against united Arab opposition.

Bourguiba said time favors Israel, not the Arabs, and he doubted peace negotiations could begin soon because neither side will drop its preconditions for such talks.

"Israel is in the position to fulfill the old Jewish dream, the dream of a state that stretches from the Nile to the Euphrates," Bourguiba was quoted as saying in an interview with a correspondent for West Germany's Die Welt newspaper.

"The Israelis can do that. They have the might to do it and the Arabs and all the underdeveloped countries can do nothing to stop it, even if they were united."

While Bourguiba's remarks were printed, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was meeting with Soviet Ambassador Valdimir Vinogradov in Cairo as part of a renewed dialogue between Cairo and Moscow aimed at improving relations. The meeting followed a Soviet-initiated exchange of letters between Sadat and Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The Cairo newspaper Al Gomhouriya said Saturday Egypt has no objection to any new American peace initiative in the Middle East provided it takes full account of Arab rights and proposes specific practical steps.

The newspaper was commenting on reports from Israel that U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger might launch a new initiative for a peaceful settlement later this year.

The newspaper said any new initiative would have to include two main principles on which Arab policy is based:

—The necessity of Israel's withdrawal from all occupied Arab territories.

—Guarantees for the legal rights of the Arabs of Palestine, including the right to determine their destiny and return to their homeland.

In his interview with Die Welt, Bourguiba said Israel was now so strong it could get along without U.S. military support.

"Israel can even ignore the pressures of the United States (as a potential mediator) because it can build its tanks, aircraft, cannon and warships itself," he said.

Food prices leveling off across nation

By United Press International

While the price of food showed a definite jump after the price freeze was lifted, a spot survey Saturday indicated that prices have generally leveled off and in some cases declined since last month.

The government announced Friday that retail prices for food went up 6 per cent in August, the largest increase in 27 years.

But a UPI check of selected supermarkets in cities across the country showed that in many cases items had dropped in price since a similar survey Aug. 24.

A Dallas supermarket is a typical example.

A loaf of bread that sold for 39 cents under the price freeze which was lifted July 18 rose to 42 cents in August but is now down to 36. A dozen large AA eggs that jumped from 75 cents under the freeze to 91 cents is selling for 83 cents.

Milk jumped from 52 cents a half gallon to 74 and was back to 57, while uncut chicken selling at 55 cents during the freeze was back at that price after rising to 63 cents.

Eggs were one food item that showed a spectacular rise after the ceiling was lifted. Although still selling at a dime to a quarter above freeze levels, egg prices have fallen from their August level.

A dozen large grade AA eggs was selling for 10 cents less than in August in New York, eight cents less in Boston, seven cents less in San Francisco, six less in Washington, four less in Columbus, Ohio, and Los Angeles and two cents less in Chicago.

Uncut fryers showed a similar trend, going for 24 cents less a pound in Washington, 17 cents less in San Francisco eight cents less in Columbus and six cents less in Chicago. Chicken did show a jump in New York, going up 24 cents a pound and in Boston, up five cents.

The American Meat Institute in Chicago said meat prices will go lower. A spokesman said the average cost of live cattle had dropped 25 per cent and live hogs 31 per cent since the August highs on which the Consumer Price Index (CPI) figures were based.

"It is meaningless to report percentage increases in CPI on meat prices when they are based on the record high prices of mid-August caused by the pressures of the artificial ceiling price on beef," institute president Herrell DeGraff said.

"Already wholesale meat prices are close to or below the same levels which prevailed on March 29 when the government placed ceiling prices on all meat.

"Because of current large runs of livestock, consumers can expect ample supplies of beef and pork to be available soon at retail prices comparable to those of last winter."

2 women slain in robbery of hotel for lovers

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Two women suspects were shot to death early Saturday in a gun battle between police and three couples staging a holdup at a hotel catering to trysting lovers, police reported.

One police officer and a chambermaid at the hotel were wounded in the shooting. The third woman suspect was arrested, but all three men escaped, according to police.

Police said the three couples showed up at the Grand Hotel Alojamiento in a southwestern Buenos Aires neighborhood shortly after 5 a.m. and subdued two employes at gunpoint. They then proceeded to rob the occupants of the hotel.

Alojamiento hotels are establishments that specialize in renting rooms on a short-term basis for lovers' rendezvous. The word alojamiento (lodging) in the name serves to warn married couples and families to seek accomodations elsewhere.

Police said a radio patrol car arrived at the hotel while the robbery was in progress and ordered the suspects to surrender. The women opened fire on the officers whie the men fled, police said.

First diaper for oldest of surviving sextuplets

DENVER (UPI) —For the first time since their birth all five surviving Stanek sextuplets drank milk Saturday and John, the oldest, became the recipient of the infants' first diaper.

Doctors said three of the babies had won their fight against a lung disease that killed their tiny sister.

"We're encouraged about all five infants," said pediatrician Dr. James Strain. "Their conditions are continuing to improve and they're steadily gaining strength. Three of them seem to have shaken the disease that killed Julia."

John, the first of the infants born last Sunday night seven weeks premature, received the first diaper, and his mother, Mrs. Eugene Stanek, 34, held Jeffrey for the first time.

Strain and pediatrician Dr. Tibor Engel, who had administered a fertility drug to Mrs. Stanek, said it was too soon to tell when she and her husband might be able to take the infants home. Mrs. Stanek was expected to be released next week.

"I've had lots of offers from friends and neighbors so I don't think I'll have much of a problem feeding them," she said. "I don't know what this will mean to our 4-year-old son. I haven't seen him yet. I don't believe it will mean that much to him until they are home.

"The babies are not too individual looking right now. There are tubes and wires connected to them helping them along but John's pretty lively."

Mrs. Stanek said she believed insurance would pay for the majority of the $100 per day hospital cost.

"I'm not looking for a part-time job yet," she said. "Everyone, including Eugene and me, is hopeful for the future."

Eugene Stanek, 31, a suburban Denver junior accountant, turned down a chance to lift his children "because they look so tiny." He talked with his wife and then went home to sleep.

Strain said that Catherine, Nathan and Stephen were looking so healthy that they might be taken off respirators helping them breathe by Monday. The respirators were used to dilute the effects of hyaline membrane disease.

Western governors face energy crisis pressures

GLENEDEN BEACH, Ore. (UPI) —Western governors, faced with an energy crisis that could black out much of the Pacific Northwest, Sunday begin there annual conference under pressure to find solutions or face federal intervention.

Their concerted effort to find ways of saving electricity now could avert a major shortage later when water stored behind hydroelectric power plants may fall below already frighteningly low levels.

Among those scheduled to address the governors during the four day session at the Salishan Lodge are John Love, special adviser on energy to President Nixon; Interior Secretary Rodgers C.B. Morton and consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

The big problem confronting the governors is how to coordinate their individual state efforts to conserve and if necessary curtail electricity to avoid a system-wide power failure.

They will have to act quickly.

With the usually wet Pacific Northwest in the midst of one of the worst dry spells in more than 30 years, hydroelectric reservoirs which supply more than 85 per cent of the power supply are far short of meeting projected needs.

Heavy rains in the coming months would help but there is no such guarantee.

Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and parts of Montana and California are particularly affected by the water shortage.

Washington Gov. Dan Evans, chairman of the National Governors Conference this year, wants to get right down to business as soon as the meeting is officially opened by Oregon Gov. Tom McCall, Western conference chairman and host.

Evans was given broad authority to curtail electricity by a special session of the Washington legislature earlier this month. But he was directed to make every effort to coordinate possible mandatory curtailments with other states.

When he asked for the standby authority, Evans said it would take a concerted effort by all of the states to prevent a major power failure during the coming winter months when demand peaks.

He said if one state fails to act, it could cripple all the others in the multistate power system.

Spacewalk by two in Skylab

HOUSTON (UPI) —Two Skylab astronauts whizzed through a simple spacewalk Saturday collecting six rolls of precious pictures of the sun that could hold the key to man's understanding of earth's energy source.

Moonwalking veteran Alan L. Bean, and scientist Owen K. Garriott, clad in cumbersome white spacesuits, waltzed outside the station that has been their home for 56 days to replace the film cassettes in the powerful solar telescopes.

Jack R. Lousma, who has made two outside journeys in two months, stayed in the station to monitor vital spacecraft systems while his crewmates spent two hours and 41 minutes in the starkness of space.

It was the third and shortest spacewalk for the Skylab 2 astronauts who will end history's longest spaceflight Tuesday. Garriott, making his third walk of the flight, captured the record for the most time spent outside an orbiting craft—13 hours and 43 minutes.

The pilots will splashdown about 224 miles southwest of San Diego at 3:20 p.m. PDT after 59 days, 11 hours and nine minutes in space.

It was Bean's first trip outside a spacecraft since walking on the moon on Apollo 12 in November, 1969, and he reacted like a typical tourist with not enough time to see everything.

"Golly, what a place to visit. Whooee," Bean marveled as he moved around suspended in weightlessness with the grace of a ballet dancer. "You sure can get around easy out here. Everything's turning sort of reddish pink as the sun goes down.

"The EVA (spacewalk) went very smoothly, just ground along," the mission commander reported afterwards.

DIANA SANDS

Black stage star dies of cancer

NEW YORK (UPI) —Diana Sands, the black actress who rose to stardom with her role in "Raisin in the Sun," died Friday night of cancer at the age of 39, it was announced Saturday.

Miss Sands had been at the Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Disease for several weeks following an unsuccessful operation to remove a tumor. She had a starring role in the movie "Claudine" but was replaced in the part when the operation became necessary.

A native of New York, Miss Sands began her career as part of a dance team called Twan and Diana in which she wore bells and veils.

She appeared in a number of plays but her big break came in 1959 when she landed a role in the Broadway play "Raisin in the Sun" written by black playwright Lorraine Hansberry.

Miss Hansberry also died of cancer at a young age, 34, in 1965.

Miss Sands' performance won her the "Outer Circle" critics award for the best supporting actress and launched her career.

A veteran of movies and numerous television shows, she also won the Off-Broadway magazine award in 1958, the International Artist award in 1961, the Theatre World award in 1963, an Obie Award in 1964, as well as Toni and Emmy Award nominations.

Her mother said funeral services would be private but there would be a memorial service which will be announced at a later date.

Italy says apology is acceptable

ROME (UPI) —Italy has accepted a Libyan apology for the strafing of an Italian warship by Libyan jet fighters and considers the incident closed, a government source said Saturday.

The source said no further protest was planned over Friday's machine gun attack by Libyan Mirage jets on the Italian corvette De Cristofaro in international waters 33 miles off Libya. The corvette was on routine patrol accompanying Italian fishing boats.

Two Italian sailors were slightly injured and the De Cristofaro lightly damaged in the incident, Italian officials said. None of the fishing boats was harmed.

Libyan Premier Maj. Abdel Salam Jalloud expressed his country's "profound regret" to Italian Ambassador Aldo Conte Marotta, who had delivered a strong protest, a foreign ministry communique said.

Jalloud also offered Libya's immediate assistance in whatever form was needed, the communique said.

The government source said Italy accepted Jalloud's explanation that the incident was "a deplorable mistake."

The attack was one of a series of incidents involving Italian fishing boats. A Libyan coast guard vessel captured five Sicilian fishing boats and took their captains prisoner Wednesday.

Navy awards Gen. Dynamics $2 million pact

POMONA — General Dynamics' Electrodynamics Division has won a Navy contract to modernize the printed circuit board manufacturing facility of the Naval Industrial Reserve Ordnance Plant here.

Value of the pact, according to the office of Rep. Jerry Pettis, is $1,915,583. The company will provide all labor, material, service and equipment to upgrade the facility to meet pollution control and Occupational Safety Hazards Act standards.

According to a company spokesman, the facility at this time is not in violation of pollution standards. The contract, he stated, merely provides for latest equipment to be installed, thus anticipating any future tightening of standards.

Little cigars join advertising ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon signed legislation Saturday banning broadcast advertisements for so-called little cigars.

The bill amends the federal Cigarette Labeling and Advertising Act of 1965 to bring little cigars under the prohibition on advertising of cigarettes over radio, television and other broadcast media.

The "little cigar" was described by Congress in the legislation as any roll of tobacco wrapped in leaf tobacco or any substance containing other than cigarette tobacco which weighs not more than three pounds per 1,000 units.

The bill was passed on the basis of a report to Congress on the consequences of smoking, in which the Public Health Service warned that little cigars are as dangerous as cigarettes if the smoke is inhaled.

Public thinks Nixon not treating him fairly

Undercurrent of suspicion in Agnew poll

NEW YORK (UPI) —Two-thirds of the American public are opposed to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew resigning now, but 58 per cent would approve his leaving office if he is indicted, a Newsweek-Gallup poll reported Saturday.

The poll findings, scheduled to appear in the magazine's Oct. 1 edition, disclosed an "undercurrent of suspicion" that President Nixon may not be treating Agnew fairly, Newsweek said. Only 40 per cent agree that Nixon is being fair to the vice president, while 35 per cent, says he is not, and 25 per cent voiced no opinion.

The poll was the result of a Newsweek-sponsored telephone survey of a cross section of 631 Americans conducted by the The Gallup Organizaition late this week.

Asked if they thought the vice president should resign if he is indicted 58 per cent said he should, 30 per cent said he should not and 12 per cent had no opinion. Only 16 per cent thought Agnew should resign now while 66 per cent said he should not.

Former Secretary of the Treasury John Connally (24 percentage points) headed the list of six potential candidates to succeed Agnew if he resigned, followed by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., with 19 per cent, and Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., 15 per cent.

The others included New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, 14 per cent; Attorney General Elliott Richardson, 5 per cent, and former Secretary of State William Rogers, 4 per cent.

Middle-age paunch vs. the 10-speed bike

REPORTER ON WHEELS — Roland Lindsey, UPI's Austin, Texas, bureau manager, checks out a new 10-speed bicycle. Lindsey, who admits to being a little overweight and a little over 35, thought the bicycle would oe a good way to get back in shape. However, both he and the cycle were bent out of shape in a crash in his own driveway. Lindsey suffered only a few minor cuts and bruise.

By ROLAND LINDSEY

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Physical fitness isn't all it's cracked up to be.

Especially if you're on the downhill side of 35, overweight, spend about eight hours a day punching a typewriter and aren't accustomed to lifting anything heavier than that bothersome paunch that materialized around your midsection over the years.

My choices were (1) to cut down on my eating; or (2) to increase my exercise.

Recalling my penchant for food, especially the fattening kind, I mistakenly chose exercise. That proved to be a pain in the neck—and knee, and legs, and shoulders ...

For two weeks, I got up at the crack of dawn, pulled on some jogging shorts, and drove a few blocks to a nearby high school track to begin the regimen of becoming a truly fine physical speciman.

By the end of the first week, the soreness in the leg muscles was about gone. But the spring that I remembered from a few years back—it was really almost 20 years now that I count it up—still wasn't there.

So I came up with the perfect solution—a bicycle! One of those classy, 10-speed foreign jobs. Bike riding was always fun, and like they say, once you learn how you never forget it.

So on I rolled the shiny $100 jewel into the garage and announced to a somewhat skeptical wife that cycling had now replaced jogging. She said I should have used the money to buy some bookshelves she wanted for the house.

Despite jeering from the neighborhood kids, on the first day I toured several blocks in fine fashion, and made it back home without incident.

Then came the second day. I straddled that impossibly hard and pointed seat that 10-speed bikes are cursed with, pushed off down the hill of my front lawn toward the driveway. Instant humiliation.

My front wheel hit the edge of the driveway and turned crossways, spilling me and the bike down the rough concrete drive.

Right in front of my son and another laughing kid, I had crashed. I mean bad. Not only did it break my glasses, skin my knees and hands and bruise a shoulder—it bent the front wheel of my new exercise machine!

The bike repairman managed to straighten out the bent parts with hardly a smirk.

So now I can again peddle through the neighborhood. And this time the kids aren't so eager to spend their time chasing the old man around.

The excitement just isn't there for them. They know there's no way I could top that first crash. And besides, I think they're afraid I'll take them down with me in the next one.

Martha denies she has mental ills

NEW YORK (UPI) —Martha Mitchell, in her first television interview since she left Washington, denies that she is suffering from a mental condition and complains of "the torture I'm being put through."

In the interview with NBC, taped Friday for broadcast today, an obviously distraught Mrs. Mitchell said she wanted to counter rumors that she is in a mental institution.

She said she has received letters from persons who "say they're sorry I'm in the hospital, to please take care of myself and they're going to send me this and send me that and where can they contact me?

"So I decided it was time for me to tell the American public that I am sitting in my apartment...I'm perfectly capable of doing anything I want to do and there's absolutely nothing wrong with me except I'm mentally tortured from the torture I'm being put through," she said.

Mrs. Mitchell denied she and her husband, John, were getting divorced, and blamed the news media for spreading the rumor. Former Attorney General Mitchell moved out of the apartment last week.

Asked why her husband hadn't contacted her, she replied, "Well I guess he's mad at me for throwing his clothes out for one thing...and then, I think that he just thinks that I'm overly wrought and that I should have some kind of care...I think they are terribly frightened I'm going to say something...I don't know what I could say...." Mrs. Mitchell said she threw some of her husband's clothes out of their apartment because she was angry she wasn't notified of the postponement of Mitchell's trial on charges of purjury and conspiracy to obstruct justice.

"I got mad and like any woman does...if you get mad you do something. He's not here, you can't hit him on the head, so I've got to do something, so I took his clothes...a few ties and a few shirts and threw them out there in the foyer," she said.

"You know when you're under pressure and under strain you say things and do things that you wouldn't do ordinarily—it's just a state that you get in that you can't explain and you'd have to go through something like this before you know what it's like."

Mrs. Mitchell denied she has ever been in a mental institution. "I've never been committed to anything but...except the good of my country...and that's all."

Mrs. Mitchell claimed that she did not make many of the phone calls attributed to her.

"These phone calls that I get credit for, they've got somebody that mimics me so well...somebody mimics my voice all the time," she said.

McGovern not sure about '76

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential nominee, said Saturday he had not decided yet "either privately or publicly" whether he would make another bid for the White House in 1976.

McGovern issued a statement responding to a report by columnist Tom Braden, who said the South Dakota senator had told financial advisers he would run again despite his overwhelming loss last year to President Nixon.

"I do not know who the unnamed supporters are who told Mr. Braden that they believed I would run again in 1976," McGovern said. "But I do know that no such decision has been made. I have my hands full with responsibilities in the Senate and in South Dakota.

"Although I intend to speak out on national and international questions, I have made no decisions either privately or publicly to run for the Presidency again."

Ten Pomona Valley cities will receive a total $934,233.27 of the $91.9 million to be allocated to California cities and counties in the Sept. 1973 distribution of local sales and use tax funds, the State Board of Equalization reported Friday.

Better than half of the total amount to be allocated to Valley cities will go to the communities of Pomona, Ontario, and Montclair. Pomona will receive the biggest chunk, $311,775.69, while Ontario will get $163,124.96, and Montclair, $145,679.75.

The $91.9 million comes from "cleanup payments" for the second quarter of 1973 totaling $51.4 million, and advance payment for the third quarter 1973 of $40.5 million.

The combined totals of second quarter cleanup payments and third quarter advance payments and the sources of the funds are:

Bradley-Burns 1 per cent local sales and use tax payments to cities and counties, $71 million.

— Bradley-Burns 1 per cent cent local sales and use tax payment to counties for the County Local Transporation Fund, $17.1 million.

Blind Brazilians

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — There are 400,000 blind Brazilians, according to the Getulio Vargas Foundation here. Only 3,000 of the blind children in Brazil attend school, the foundation said in a recent report urging better education for the blind.

Private tour that guard didn't enjoy

CINCINNATI (UPI) —An art lover, armed with a machete, forced a guard at the Cincinnati Art Museum to give him a private, hour-long tour.

Bruce Riley, 19, climbed a wall on the east side of the museum and dropped down an elevator shaft to the main floor of the building where he accosted guard McKinely Smith.

He told Smith he was just "very interested in art and wanted to look at the paintings."

Police were alerted to the break-in when Smith did not report at a scheduled time.

Riley was charged with assault with a deadly weapon and burglary. He allegedly took two black folders of miscellaneous art materials valued at $25.

NEW ADDITION—Buick's new entry in the intermediate line for 1974 is the Regal four-door colonnade sedan. The new addition combines improved ride and handling qualities plus new interior selections. Buick's 1974 line is now in dealer showrooms.

1974 Buick line

Changes occur in mechanical system, styling

Now on display in dealer showrooms are the new Riviera and LeSabre coupes and a four-door Regal sedan in the Buick 1974 line.

Both the Riviera and LeSabre coupes feature their own distinctive version of the colonnade-style roof which was featured on the Century series last year. The 1974 models also feature a new pillared roof design with a fixed rear side window.

Mechanical changes in the Buick line include a new high-energy ignition sysem, energy-absorbing bumpers in the rear and steel-belted radial ply tires built to General Motors specifications.

All Buick models for 1974 are equipped with the interlock ignition system which prevents the engine from being started until both outboard front seat occupants have their lap and shoulder belts fastened.

New Buick interiors in a wider variety of cloth and vinyl designs are offered as well as a leather interior on the Riviera and Limited. The number of trim sets has been increased from 258 last year to 460.

General Motors' new unitized high-energy ignition system is standard on all Stage I engines and optional on all V-8s. The new system produces greater voltage than regular breaker or conventional solid-state ignition systems and firing is more precise because distribution of the charge is accomplished electronically rather than mechanically. According to company officials, the system also aids starting in cold or wet weather and minimizes ignition tune-ups because there are no points or rubbing block to wear out.

Pomona council asked to open mall to traffic

POMONA — The City Council Monday night will consider a request that the Pomona Mall be opened to vehicle traffic.

Officials, however, may delay a decision pending the return of the city's public works director.

The Pomona Mall has been restricted to pedestrian traffic since a major improvement project about 10 years ago.

The request to allow vehicles is included in a letter from the Central Business District's board of directors, signed by George W. Beamon, chairman, and John A. Evans, co-chairman.

"Due to almost total lack of activity on the mall, on Sept. 13, 1973, the board of directors of the Central Business District voted unanimously to respectfully request that the city restore one-way, no parking, automobile traffic on the mall. There would be no cross-Garey traffic.

"It is further requested that this action be taken as soon as possible, certainly, at least to be effective on or before Thanksgiving day, 1973.

"Since Ron Kranzer (public works director) is out of town, we feel any discussions or debate in council chambers should be delayed until he and staff have had an opportunity to go over the Central Business District's board request.

"The CBD board feels this is a last ditch stand to restore some activity on the mall, so please place the letter on calendar and then request the city engineer to consult with the undersigned CBD committee prior to Friday, Sept. 28," the letter concludes.

The City Council will meet at 8 p.m. in the City Council chambers. There is no afternoon session scheduled.

In another item, the City Council will consider a resolution authorizing the city's purchase from the Historical Society of Pomona Valley, Inc., of the La Casa Primera de Rancho San Jose. It is located at the southwest corner of Park and McKinley avenues.

The total cost to the city will be $82,667, which includes $21,400 for return of down payment; $58,837, trust deed balance; $1,830 for back payments; and $600 for reserve for taxes.

The City Council will also be asked to approve plans and specifications for a pedestrian overcrossing on Valley Boulevard near Omar Street.

The cost is estimated at $75,000, with the project being eligible for gasoline tax improvement funding. Bids may be opened on Oct. 10.

Officials will hold a public hearing regarding a proposal that the hillside overlay zone be applied to a section of the Ganesha Hills located east of Ganesha Boulevard, north of Gillette Road and south of McKinley Avenue.

The 37 acres now contains two reservoir sites, a restaurant, four homes and vacant land. The Pomona Plenning Commission had recommended the overlay at its Sept. 12 meeting.

The city planning staff said the overlay would give the city additional controls over development by limiting the amount of "cut and fill" and specify the type of ground cover to prevent erosion.

Open Door Pomona

Rape crisis assistance offered

POMONA — A rape crisis intervention service has been initiated by Open Door Pomona, 1107 N. Gordon St.

The telephone number to dial is 623-6017. It will be answered 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Director John C. Hinze said Open Door is equipped to make medical referrals for attack victims, provide trained women as escorts and transportation, not only for medical examination or treatment, but also to file complaints with the police department and to help with interpersonal problems that might arise in the victim's family.

Should it be necessary, Hinze said Open Door also is equipped to provide referrals for treatment of venereal disease or problem pregnancy following rape.

"We are compiling statistics and information on how courts and hospitals are treating rape victims," said Hinze, a Cal Poly senior majoring in social services.

According to Hinze, Pomona Open Door is one of the first agencies in Southern California, and one of a few in the United States, to offer rape crisis intervention service.

Trained psychologists and nurses have consented to serve as consultants in providing the service, Hinze said.

Open Door Pomona, founded in June of 1970 as a multi-service center for youth, places primary emphasis on serving those 14 to 24 but, as the name implies, opens its services to any individual in time of crisis or emergency.

Ten services and programs provided include the 24-hour, seven-day hotline for crisis (623-6017); individual counseling, suicide intervention, outreach programs, group rap sessions, juvenile diversion programs, a speakers bureau, public information service, limited emergency housing, extensive referral service and emergency transportation.

The last is provided by volunteers who use their own cars. Hinze said plans are to add a station wagon and provide service within a 50-mile radius of all emergency situations encountered by Pomona agencies.

Hinze lists as "proposed services" for Open Door Pomona, a nonmedical detoxification program utilizing a resident staff of ex-addicts, and an emergency clothing bank, whereby those in crisis might receive clothing.

'Insight' producer to lead fall film course at Theology School

CLAREMONT — "Teaching Theology Through Film" will be added to the fall curriculum at the School of Theology. Father Ellwood Keiser, C.S.P., creator and executive producer of the award-winning dramatic TV series, "Insight," will lead the course beginning Thursday.

The course will center on methods of sharing the gospel through film. Students will learn how to incorporate film into the worship, adult education and teen-age programs of the local congregation, how to select and use film and lead discussions on the topics presented. Father Kieser describes the course as "Cinematic treatments of the great Christian realities—God, Jeus, community—and of the principle Christian values — love, faith and trust."

Father Keiser is a member of the Paulist Fathers, a Roman Catholic order, which specializes in serving those outside their church. Twelve years ago, he was teaching theology and philosophy to college students. Today, he is working with the top writers, directors and actors in the entertainment community to reach more than 150 million people each year. "You show me any other way to communicate human values to that number of people and I'll use it," says Father Kieser.

Now called the freest producer in Hollywood, the 44-year-old Father Kieser has created an imaginative type of TV theater through his series that has attracted many big stars.

These actors, along with top directors and writers, work without pay. "People will do things for God they won't do for money," Father Kieser explains.

"Insight" plays each week on 200 commercial stations and 70 educational channels in the United States. Hailed by civic leaders and critics for its artistic and educational excellence, it is described as the most widely seen TV series of its kind in the world.

Registration still open for publicity class

WALNUT Registration for a publicity workshop at Mt. San Antonio College, designed for those who want to sharpen their writing skills and gain a better understanding of the news media, will close Wednesday night.

The 12-week course began last week and is being given Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. in Room 9 Building 15 by Bob Nagey, a staff writer for the Progress-Bulletin.

Volunteers to drive blind to events needed

POMONA — Volunteer drivers are needed in the Pomona area to transport visually handicapped young people to and from Foundation for the Junior Blind activities in Los Angeles.

These include Friday night socials for teen-agers and Saturday recreation-educational programs during the school year.

The foundation center is located at 5300 Angeles Vista Blvd. between Crenshaw and La Brea, off Slauson.

Foundation executive director Norman Kaplan said without volunteer drivers the foundation has no way of bringing the blind young people together.

Volunteers, he said, are under no obligation to drive any set number of times.

"Once a week, twice a month or even once a month," he explained. "We will be grateful for whatever help an individual can give."

Those wishing to assist may contact the foundation at 213 295-4555.

Comet comment

NEW YORK (UPI) — Comets are sky spectaculars but contrary to what some believe they are not burning, but rather are frozen. Their light comes from the reflection of sunlight off the frozen nucleus. 'Gases eliminated from the nucleus expand into what is called the coma and together they form the head of the comet.

While the nucleus of a comet may be about five miles across, nucleus and coma together may reach 100,000 miles in diameter. The tail is tens of millions miles long—the record is about 200 million miles.

GOOEY, ISN'T IT—A Claremont School District patron donated her small truck to the kindergarten students of Mrs. Gay Collins at Sycamore School Thursday, and the children painted every inch of the outside of the truck with poster paint. They used brushes at first, then resorted to finger painting. Even the tail pipe and the inside of the gasoline cover received attention. Showing off her poster paint hands is Diana Gray, an artist at 6. The truck owner hopes the paint will come off.

Old man river keeps on rollin'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The mighty Mississippi River, which bubbles to life from little Lake Itasca in Minnesota, is the world's third longest river.

The river travels 2,340 miles from Lake Itasca to where it empties billions of gallons of muddy water into the Gulf of Mexico near New Orleans daily. For comparison purposes, however, the total length of the Mississippi is considered to be 3,484. This includes the length of its longest tributary, the Missouri River.

The other day I shuffled over to a saleswoman with a stack of dresses over my arm and inquired, "Where's your crying room?"

"I beg your pardon," she said.

"Your crying room. I want to try these on."
She directed me to a small room marked "Fitting."

"Do you have one without mirrors?" I asked.

"No," she said stiffly. "This is it. Now, let's see what we have here. Oh, one of our new tent dresses."

The tent dress went over my head easily and when it was belted looked like someone had slipcovered Vermont.

"Do we have these in any other styles?" I asked.

"We have one in canvas with a floor and a screened-in room, but we sold it this morning," she said. "How about our trying on one of our new dresses with a fanny sweater?"

"If it gets that cold, I'll stay at home," I said.

"We certainly can't leave without trying on the new satin slip dress, can we?" She returned with a sleek, sleeveless length of satin that looked like trousseau underwear.

"Surely," I said, "we aren't going to attempt to wear that, are we? I have always felt in my heart that satin was flattering only to pin cushions and women born without stomachs."

She slid the dress over my head and by sheer force brought it to rest over my hips. Neither of us said anything for a full minute.

Then I spoke. "I feel like a mannequin in a Mr. Fredericks window."

"Nonsense," she said. "We just have to learn to suck in."

"What do we wear under it?" I asked.

"Fear," she answered, then added, "maybe we'd like to try on something from the layered look collection."

"I am already into the layered look," I said. "I grew my own this summer."

After I dressed in my own clothes, I wandered off to a corner of the department where a rack of suits caught my eye. "Now we're talking," I said. "Are these career dresses?"

"It depends on how we feel about maternity clothes," she sniffed.

"Are we going to cry now?" I asked.

"I think so," she said, biting her lip.

Men's wear

Time has arrived for wonder watch

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — They are bulky, usually less than beautiful, sometimes hard to read at night, and expensive — $150 to more than $1,000—but they are the hottest status item in men's jewelry today. They are quartz crystal watches which print out the time in digits, i.e.: 12:48.

Aside from the newness of such watches, accuracy is the biggest selling feature—plus the status symbol thing. They are accurate to one minute a year and the people who make them say they will become even more accurate and small enough to be beautiful.

One of the people who makes them is Kenneth Hollandsworth, president of Jules Jurgensen, the 200-year-old Danish watchmaking firm. He produces an all-electronic quartz crystal watch called Optcom I, so we asked him what makes them tick.

Well, for one thing, they don't tick. They don't even hum. About the only thing you have to do is put in a tiny battery from time to time. They are really mini-computers but Hollandsworth couldn't say that because a rival firm has registered the world "computer" as applied to watches.

To start at the beginning, there was the sun dial, the hour glass and the pendulum. After that the balance wheel remained the source of movement in clocks and watches for 300 years. The balance wheel was powered by a hand wound mainspring which oscillated at 2½ times per second to turn the gears that moved the watch hands. In recent years this developed into a self-wind watch where the movement of the wearer's arm wound the spring.

In the early 50s the electric watch came out, replacing the mainspring with a tiny battery. In the 1960s, the first electric watch came out utilizing a battery powered "tuning fork" which oscillated at the rate of 360 times a second.

The latest

Most recently in the last year or so, an electronic quartz watch was developed with a tiny bar of quartz crystal that vibrates thousands of times a second. The faster the oscillation, the more accurate the watch. With such solid state construction all gears and springs are unnecessary.

A solid state watch has no moving parts. The computerized timepiece has the capacity to perform mathematic calculations, programmed to maintain time keeping functions.

Currently bulky looking, the development is so rapid that ultra-miniaturization will make thinner watches (and women's models) available before the end of the year. The prices range from $150 to above $1,000 and the average is around $250-300. The Optcom [illegible] is $[illegible]. Some solid state watches should be selling for around $100 in a couple of years.

Two types of quartz movements are on the market, both of which have all-electron circuitry for digital readouts of the exact time.

1. The LED (light emitting diode) gives time on demand. You push a button and the time appears in glowing red numbers. The disadvantage is that lighting up the digits takes more battery drain than the movement itself and the battery must be replaced more often.

2. The LCD liquid crystal device) which shows the time on a constant basis, and is the one use by Optcom. Here, a liquid is sandwiched between two pieces of plastic. Sub-miniature electrodes inserted into the liquid cause the liquid's molecules to take the form of digits through the pulsating charges of electricity. The advantage is long life and less battery drain. The disvantage is long life and less battery drain. The disadvantage is that it is hard to see at night.

In the rush to put out [illegible] watches, which the industry says will completely change the market, some makes have added a quartz crystal to an "ordinary" watch with mechanical movement. This adds a little accuracy but does not do away with moving parts.

Engineer's oath is recommended

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Engineers should take an oath similar to the Hippocratic Oath taken by physicians, says an engineering educator at the University of California.

Prof. Charles Susskind argues that engineers increasingly resemble physicians in their concern for the human condition, but the engineering code of ethics still deals mainly with business relations.

"[illegible] of the responsibility for the uses of technology lies with society, not engineers," Susskind said. "Blaming engineers for the shortcomings of technology makes about as much sense as blaming the failure of a new play on the stagehands."

European hosts happy to see visitors leave

By DONALD W. REYNOLDS

COSTA DEL SOL, Spain — "Lo peor de la plaga se fue" greets you from the taxi drivers, waiters, bar tenders, sales persons, room clerks and all of the other natives serving the tourist hordes that flood the beaches here.

Not being a very good linguist, I asked for a translation and had surprising difficulty in getting it. Finally found a bilingual waiter that embarrassingly explained that the rather free translation was that "the worst of the locusts have gone." And for more than a week the roads have been bumper to bumper, the buses packed and the "no space available" recording on the airline phones.

I have found that few tourists are happy with the accommodations, food or gener-acceptance, but had taken it as the normal griping of travelers. It was just a little bit surprising to find that the hosts were even happier to see the guests leaving than were the guests to leave.

One of my favorite stories, told as only the late Joe E. Lewis could tell a story: After quite a buildup Joe would introduce his long-time piano player, Mr. Mack. The audieence perfunctorily applauded, then Lewis with the perfect timing that made him one of the greatest standup comedians of his time, brought the house down as he drawled, "He doesn't like you very much either "

Since the days of the Roman Empire, tourism, under many names, has been an integral part of European history, be it the legions of Caesar or the retired folks on the American Express bus. Almost 2,000 years hasn't truly changed the picture. The guests still make the host doubly glad — twice happy — when they arrive, and when they go. And while the money brought in is accepted, in some instances quite graciously, the sigh of relief on the 'locusts' departure is definitely audible.

So why the travel? I've talked to may almost professional vagabonds that have toured the world. Complaining about everything, but always returning for more. Money hunger stimulates the promotions, travel agents and all of those profiting from the visitors — perhaps the best explanation for the wanderer was given me in answer to the question, "What spot do you like best of all?" And the laconic reply, "The place I prefer is where I haven't been " Got your bag packed?

Her steady opposed to her career

By Jean Adams

18 AND 14: I am 18 and the girl I like is 14. Is there something wrong with me or is it OK to like someone that young and take her out? She likes me too. —Criticized in Connecticut.

(A.) There is nothing wrong with you, but you are likely to run into more problems with a 14-year-old than you would if you liked a girl 18 or 17 or 16 years old.

First, the girl's parents may think she is too young to date, or that you are too old for her.

Second, if you are acceptable to her parents you must be very careful how you treat the girl. You are older than she, stronger. She may think that anything you want is wise and right. You must be very sure to be worthy of her trust in you.

Third, you are far ahead of her in school. Her friends are not your age. Your firends are not her age. Your interests are different from hers.

Unless you are very devoted to each other, it won't be simple.

LIES: (Q.) I have been going to summer school. Last week some other girls and I were caught smoking. The principal told us our parents would be called.

Well, when I got home no one had called my mother so I told her about it. But I changed the truth around a lot. When they called her from school the story was different and, boy, did I catch it.

Now I have decided to stop smoking and lying. I have smoked only a very little but since I was a kid I have told lies. I will never do anything wrong again if I can help it. But how can I get my mother to trust me? —14 in Texas

(A.) It is not easy to stop the habit of lying, and you will have to work hard to do it.

Tell your mother of your resolution and ask her to help you stop both smoking and lying. She wants to help you — I am sure — and she wants to trust you. With her help, I am sure you can make it.

New rules to cut red tape for jobless

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —New regulations designed to trim welfare red tape and allow the state to concentrate on finding jobs for employable recipients were announced Thursday by the Department of Human Resources Development.

Under the change, counties will act on their own in determining welfare eligibility for persons physically unable to work. Presently, the decision of the county must be reviewed at the state level.

Department Director Earl Brian said the change will take a "significant" workload off his staff and allow them to place greater emphasis on finding jobs for those who can work.

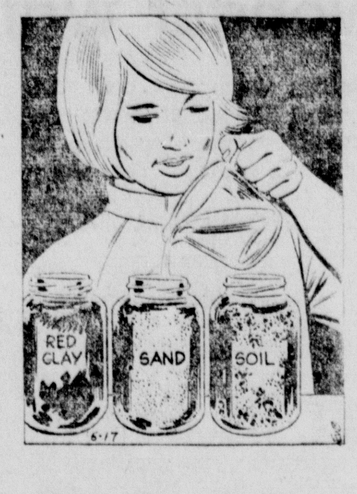
Science for You

By BOB BROWN



PROBLEM: Soil and water.

NEEDED: three cans, one filled with red clay, another with garden topsoil and another filled with sand. Water.

DO THIS: Pack the sand and soil down and pour an equal amount of water on top of each. Watch what happens.

WHAT HAPPENS: The water poured into the sand will pass through it rapidly. Water poured into the clay will stand on top of it a long time. Water poured into the topsoil will seep into it slowly and be held there.

THIS MEANS: When the earth is stripped down to the clay, the rain that falls on it will run off very quickly, and possibly produce flooding. Sandy soil will let the water pass down to harder and more compact layers, possibly too deep to support plant life well. Topsoil holds rain, making it available to plants for good growth.

Once good topsoil is destroyed it cannot be rebuilt easily and quickly. This is good for ecology-minded people to remember.

Batman, Superman cavort on shelves of Library of Congress

By JOSEPH M. CHAPMAN

as an integral part of Ameri-

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Quickly, who's the nation's largest collector of comic books, a reading staple of American kids that ranged from such heroes as Batman and Superman to Captain Marvel?

Shazaam! Would you believe the prestigious and staid Library of Congress?

Barring any evidence to the contrary, the Library of Congress believes that it has more comic books than anyone, a total of about 2,000 separate titles and approximately 37,000 comics.

From this treasure trove of comic books the Library will pull a few select issues for an exhibit in October featuring two great heroes, Batman and Superman.

The exhibit will include Superman comic books from 1943, 1951, 1962 and 1973. It will also feature Batman comics from 1946, the issue of December of 1950-January 1951, 1966, and 1973.

But if that's not enough for comic book fans, the Library of Congress exhibit will also feature full color excerpts from books by an expert in the field, E. Nelson Bridwell —"Superman from the Thirties to the Seventies' and "Batman from the Thirties to the Seventies."

While the exhibit concentrates on Superman and Batman, it is evidence of the importance of the comic book as an integral part of Ameri can culture. Each month, in addition to comics it already has, the library receives from 100 to 200 new issues through copyright deposit.

Sociologists and historians have found comics to be an important part of their study of American life.

The comic strip was first popularized in the 1890s by R. F. Outcault with his "Hogan's Alley" in the New York World and then with his "The Yellow Kid" in the New York Journal.

But it was not until the late 1930s that the first comic books appeared.

Now comic book buffs will pay from $200 to $300 for a 10 cent copy of the first issue of "Action comics" from 1938—which introduced Superman—or as much as $275 for a copy of the 1939 issue of "Detective Comics" that introduced Batman.

"At one time, comic books could be read only in the Rare Book Room of the Library of Congress and usage was restricted to scholars with a serious intention of publishing the results of their research," a spokeswoman said. "Comic books are now available in the Newspaper and Current Periodical Room."

"Only those issues in an advanced state of deterioration are not in service," the spokeswoman said.

Everybody's body needs carbohydrates

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like your opinion on sugar in the diet. I read an article that stated that anyone who eats ordinary meals containing fruits, potatoes and other vegetables, cereals, breads, meats, eggs and milk is getting ample carbohydrates for his needs. He could go through life comfortably without using a spoonful of added sweetening. In fact, this article states some nutritional observers think we'd be better off if our sugar supply were to disappear. What is your opinion? Also, when one is told by his physician that he has low blood sugar, should he add more sugar to his diet or use less.

Dear Reader — It is important to have a sufficient amount of carbohydrates in the diet from foods that contain important vitamins and minerals The body doesn't function well without carbohydrates. This can cause a disturbance in the body chemistry called ketosis. The accumulation of ketone bodies in an untreated diabetic leads to diabetic coma, a serious medical problem. Continued loss of ketones from the urine in this condition also depletes the body of important minerals, including calcium, which accelerates or aggravates the problem of degeneration of the spine and loss of calcium from the bones.

The term carbohydrates includes vegetables, cereals, fruits, as well as the sweets, which include sugar, honey, syrups, jams and jellies. It is perfectly true that a person can get along quite well from a health point of view if they never use any sweets at all, and, instead, got all of their carbohydrates from fresh fruits, vegetables and cereals. Milk, our principal source of calcium, also contains appreciable amounts of carbohydrates.

Earliest man was more of a vegetarian and early fossils show grinding-like teeth of the vegetarian as seen in other primates, as opposed to the canine overhanging teeth seen in carnivores. Those living in the jungle and tropical regions in places where plant food was abundant were more apt to be vegetarians. It is not true that early man did without carbohydrates. Early cave drawings show primitive man obtaining honey from wild bees.

Sugars or sweets are sometimes very useful, particularly if you need to provide large amount of energy in a small amount of bulk for some medical reason. The biggest drawback of most of the sugars and sweets is that they do not contain any significant amounts of vitamins and minerals (blackstrap molasses though is a good source for iron). When true low blood sugar is present and is responsible for the symptoms, then the diet should be one which restricts concentrated sweets, specifically sugars and syrups, jellies and jams. In most instances these individuals can continue to use vegetables and cereals without added sweetners

Not all cases of low blood sugar are rellated specifically to the diet. There are rare examples in which a tumor of the pancreas is the cause. When the tumor is removed this usually will solve the problem.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of the Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on low blood sugar, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Low Blood Sugar" booklet.

ALL THE TIME

Even grandmasters can be checkmated

Although middle-game checkmates are rare in grandmaster chess, threats of checkmate or threats of threats of checkmate appear and reappear in many games. Sometimes the threat will force a weakness in the defender's pawn position and-or the threat will gain time to position an attacking piece.

Infrequently the attacker's checkmate cannot be countered satisfactorily and the defender must lose heavy material to avoid it. The attacker will make a drastic sacrifice or sacrifices if he sees that a costly (for his opponent) mate threat can be achieved.

(Diagram 1)

WHITE

For example, Bent Larsen (white) reached the position in diagram one against Donald Byrne at the San Antonio "Fried Chicken" Tournament last year. Habitually tuned to sharp moves, Larsen made the ncessary sacrifice at this point to achieve a winning mate threat.

He directly played 1) RXPch!! After . . . RPxR the game continued with 2) QxP check, K-R1: 3) Q-R6 check, K-N1; and 4) R-Q3 threatening checkmate. The black king is exposed and the black pieces have limited availability for defense.

Byrne was able to stop the mate with . . .Q-N5 check, but lost his queen after 5) R-N3, QxR; and 6) KBPxQ.

Material is now roughly even but black's ordeal, commencing with 1) RxP check, is not over. Larsen's threat of 7) Q-N6 check, K-RI,; 8) BxP with the danger of Q-R6 mate among others compelled back to play . . . B-K5 to control key white squares needed by the black king.

(Diagram 2)
BLACK

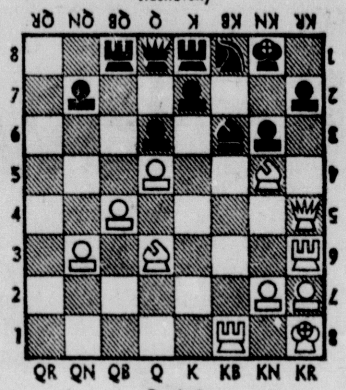
WHITE

White was then able to pick up the bishop by a series of checks (7) Q-N5 check, K-R2; 8) Q-R4 check, K-N2; 9) QxB) and black resigned because of his material disa vantage. Black's return of material by the queen sacrifice had not stopped white's threats. It was Byrne who made the ultimate sacirfice.

Even such meager and ultimately futile defense as Byrne had was not available to Sammy Rsheyvsky in the following position reached in the Interzonal tournament at Petropolis, Brazil against Lajos Portisch.

(Diagram 3)
BLACK
Reshevsky



Portisch
WHITE

Portisch, with all his pieces massed against the black king, has an immediate and straightforward win as against the defending pieces are cut off from effective defense of the king.

What is the winning move? Answer: BxP achieves the breakthrough as PxB leads to a forced mate by white. Try to work it out.

Riles schedules 2 fund-raisers for 2nd term

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles has scheduled fund-raising dinners in Los Angeles and San Francisco next month for his planned re-election campaign.

Riles, although not making a formal declaration, has said he probably will seek a second term as the state's top education official.

The $50-a-plate dinners will be held Oct. 16 at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco and Oct. 24 at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles. An aide said they are expected to raise about $500,000.

Riles became the first black in California history to be elected to statewide office when he rose from political obscurity to unseat incumbent Max Rafferty in 1970.

Trucks represent 17 per cent of the motor vehicle population of the United States, the National Automobile Club reports.

New method may identify those prone to heart attack

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Heart researchers announced that examination of coronary arteries might indicate what persons are most susceptible to instant death from heart attack.

Dr. Meyer Friedman headed a six-member team which examined the habits, behavior patterns and pathological findings of 69 persons who died of coronaries. The findings were reported in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

During the study at Marin General Hospital in Greenbrae and the Harold Brunn Institute of the Mount Zion Hospital and Medical Center, the deaths were broken down for the first time by researchers into "instantaneous" and "sudden."

The 32 instantaneous deaths occurred within 30 seconds of the first symptoms while the 37 sudden deaths ranged from one minute to 24 hours.

In more than half of the instantaneous deaths, Friedman said. The left anterior descending coronary artery of the heart had been totally obstructed "perhaps months or years" before death. And in 44 per cent of the same subjects, two of their four main coronary arteries had been totally blocked.

However only three such old obstructions were found in the 34 sudden death patients.

These findings "have been possible to obtain only in the last several years because of the previous unavailability of precise and safe diagnostic coronary cinearteriography," said Friedman.

"We believe .. that now with the advent of safe coronary angiography and the results of the present pathological findings, foolproof detection and finally truly effective treatment of the subject who is dangerously prone to instantaneous coronary death is at hand."

Clinically, the researchers said the instantaneous deaths differed from sudden coronary arrest by:

—Taking place abruptly and usually without earlier symptoms

—Being far more likely to occur during or immediately after severe or even moderate exertion

—Appearing to be brought on by ventricular fibrillation (rapid uncoordinated contractions of the heart ventricles leading to loss of synchronization between heartbeat and pulsebeat)

The study also suggested that exercise may be particularly and unexpectedly lethal.

"Sixteen (50 per cent) of the instantaneous cardiac arrest cases had been indulging in either severe (jogging 3, carrying heavy objects 3, calisthenics 2, running 1, playing handball 1, digging a ditch 1) or moderate walking 3, golfing 1, gardening 1, physical activity within 120 seconds of their demise," said the study.

"On the other hand, only three (10 per cent) of the sudden cardiac arrest cases had been indulging in either severe or moderate physical activity immediately prior to their demise."

Other elements of the survey indicated

—The majority of the 69 death cases drank little or no alcoholic beverages

—78 per cent of the instantaneous death and 89 per cent of the sudden death cases had been cigarette smokers

—54 per cent of the sudden cardiac cases and 22 per cent of the instantaneous cases had been obese prior to death.

Song lyrics are 'poems'

Bob Dylan really a poet; his book seems to show it

NEW YORK (UPI) —"If I can't please everybody," says singer-composer Bob Dylan, "I might as well not please nobody at all."

So begins a book he has compiled of his own song lyrics dating from the beginnings in 1964 to the album "New Morning," released about three years ago.

It's a cryptic message— followed in parentheses by the words: "There's but so many people and I just can't please them all" —and what it means exactly probably will be bandied about among Dylan's fans and critics for some time to come.

The book —"Writings and Drawings by Bob Dylan" (Knopf, $6.95) —is thick, 8-½ by 10-½ inches in size and more than 300 pages long. The jacket is cerise with one of Dylan's many drawings on the front cover, a picture of him on the back. Inside are the lyrics to all his songs through 1970, liner notes from record jackets and rambling comments on who and what he is.

"Somewheres back I took the time to start playin' the guitar," he writes. "Somewheres back I took time to start singin'. Somewheres back I took the time to start writin'. But I never ever did take the time to find out why..."

Rather than a book of lyrics, really, this is a book of poetry. Those who know Dylan's music will have a difficult time reading the verse without hearing the melody that it accompanies, familiar as the songs are. But the words—his wit, his wisdom—still will stand alone:

"Through the mad mystic hammering of the wind ripping hail the sky cracked its poems in naked wonder..."

"Darkness at the break of noon, shadows even the silver spoon, the handmade blade, the child's balloon eclipses both the sun and moon. To understand, you know too soon. There is no sense in trying..."

And from perhaps his best work to date, "Hey, Mr. Tambourine Man":

"Then take me disappearin' through the smoke rings of my mind, down the foggy ruins of time, far past the frozen leaves, the haunted, frightened trees, out to the windy beach, far from the twisted reach of crazy sorrow..."

One question raised about the book is whether it signals Dylan's self-demise as a folk music hero ("I might as well not please nobody at all"). Why would anyone as gifted and prolific as Dylan lump all his songs into one large volume— quite unlike the "retrospective" books one buys in the music store—unless he is ready to try something new?

One critic, and Dylan aficionado, Peter Knobler, writing in the current edition of the rock magazine Crawdaddy, says Dylan's departure from music is "possible, but not very likely.

European hosts happy to see visitors leave

By DONALD W. REYNOLDS

COSTA DEL SOL, Spain — "Lo peor de la plaga se fue" greets you from the taxi drivers, waiters, bar tenders, sales persons, room clerks and all of the other natives serving the tourist hordes that flood the beaches here.

Not being a very good linguist, I asked for a translation and had surprising difficulty in getting it. Finally found a bilingual waiter that embarrassingly explained that the rather free translation was that "the worst of the locusts have gone." And for more than a week the roads have been bumper to bumper, the buses packed and the "no space available" recording on the airline phones.

I have found that few tourists are happy with the accommodations, food or generacceptance, but had taken it as the normal griping of travelers. It was just a little bit surprising to find that the hosts were even happier to see the guests leaving than were the guests to leave.

One of my favorite stories, told as only the late Joe E. Lewis could tell a story: After quite a buildup Joe would introduce his long-time piano player, Mr. Mack. The audieence perfunctorily applauded, then Lewis with the perfect timing that made him one of the greatest standup comedians of his time, brought the house down as he drawled, "He doesn't like you very much either "

Since the days of the Roman Empire, tourism, under many names, has been an integral part of European history, be it the legions of Caesar or the retired folks on the American Express bus. Almost 2,000 years hasn't truly changed the picture. The guests still make the host doubly glad — twice happy — when they arrive, and when they go. And while the money brought in is accepted, in some instances quite graciously, the sigh of relief on the 'locusts' departure is definitely audible.

So why the travel? I've talked to may almost professional vagabonds that have toured the world. Complaining about everything, but always returning for more. Money hunger stimulates the promotions, travel agents and all of those profiting from the visitors — perhaps the best explanation for the wanderer was given me in answer to the question, "What spot do you like best of all?" And the laconic reply, "The place I prefer is where I haven't been " Got your bag packed?

Her steady opposed to her career

By Jean Adams

18 AND 14: I am 18 and the girl I like is 14. Is there something wrong with me or is it OK to like someone that young and take her out? She likes me too. —Criticized in Connecticut.

(A.) There is nothing wrong with you, but you are likely to run into more problems with a 14-year-old than you would if you liked a girl 18 or 17 or 16 years old.

First, the girl's parents may think she is too young to date, or that you are too old for her.

Second, if you are acceptable to her parents you must be very careful how you treat the girl. You are older than she, stronger. She may think that anything you want is wise and right. You must be very sure to be worthy of her trust in you.

Third, you are far ahead of her in school. Her friends are not your age. Your firends are not her age. Your interests are different from hers.

Unless you are very devoted to each other, it won't be simple.

LIES: (Q.) I have been going to summer school. Last week some other girls and I were caught smoking. The principal told us our parents would be called.

Well, when I got home no one had called my mother so I told her about it. But I changed the truth around a lot. When they called her from school the story was different and, boy, did I catch it.

Now I have decided to stop smoking and lying. I have smoked only a very little but since I was a kid I have told lies. I will never do anything wrong again if I can help it. But how can I get my mother to trust me? —14 in Texas

(A.) It is not easy to stop the habit of lying, and you will have to work hard to do it.

Tell your mother of your resolution and ask her to help you stop both smoking and lying. She wants to help you — I am sure — and she wants to trust you. With her help, I am sure you can make it.

New rules to cut red tape for jobless

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —New regulations designed to trim welfare red tape and allow the state to concentrate on finding jobs for employable recipients were announced Thursday by the Department of Human Resources Development.

Under the change, counties will act on their own in determining welfare eligibility for persons physically unable to work. Presently, the decision of the county must be reviewed at the state level.

Department Director Earl Brian said the change will take a "significant" workload off his staff and allow them to place greater emphasis on finding jobs for those who can work.

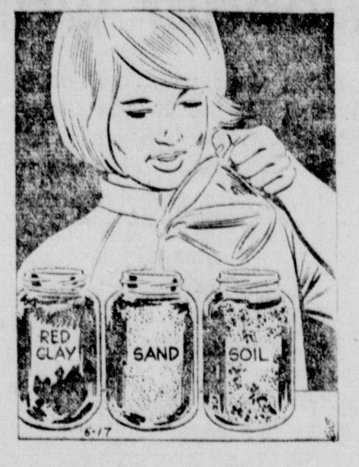
Science for You

By BOB BROWN



PROBLEM: Soil and water.

NEEDED: three cans, one filled with red clay, another with garden topsoil and another filled with sand. Water.

DO THIS: Pack the sand and soil down and pour an equal amount of water on top of each. Watch what happens.

WHAT HAPPENS: The water poured into the sand will pass through it rapidly. Water poured into the clay will stand on top of it a long time. Water poured into the topsoil will seep into it slowly and be held there.

THIS MEANS: When the earth is stripped down to the clay, the rain that falls on it will run off very quickly, and possibly produce flooding. Sandy soil will let the water pass down to harder and more compact layers, possibly too deep to support plant life well. Topsoil holds rain, making it available to plants for good growth.

Once good topsoil is destroyed it cannot be rebuilt easily and quickly. This is good for ecology-minded people to remember.

Batman, Superman cavort on shelves of Library of Congress

By JOSEPH M. CHAPMAN

as an integral part of Ameri-

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Quickly, who's the nation's largest collector of comic books, a reading staple of American kids that ranged from such heroes as Batman and Superman to Captain Marvel?

Shazaam! Would you believe the prestigious and staid Library of Congress?

Barring any evidence to the contrary, the Library of Congress believes that it has more comic books than anyone, a total of about 2,000 separate titles and approximately 37,000 comics.

From this treasure trove of comic books the Library will pull a few select issues for an exhibit in October featuring two great heroes, Batman and Superman.

The exhibit will include Superman comic books from 1943, 1951, 1962 and 1973. It will also feature Batman comics from 1946, the issue of December of 1950-January 1951, 1966, and 1973.

But if that's not enough for comic book fans, the Library of Congress exhibit will also feature full color excerpts from books by an expert in the field, E. Nelson Bridwell —''Superman from the Thirties to the Seventies' and "Batman from the Thirties to the Seventies."

While the exhibit concentrates on Superman and Batman, it is evidence of the importance of the comic book as an integral part of Ameri can culture. Each month, in addition to comics it already has, the library receives from 100 to 200 new issues through copyright deposit.

Sociologists and historians have found comics to be an important part of their study of American life.

The comic strip was first popularized in the 1890s by R. F. Outcault with his "Hogan's Alley" in the New York World and then with his "The Yellow Kid" in the New York Journal.

But it was not until the late 1930s that the first comic books appeared.

Now comic book buffs will pay from $200 to $300 for a 10 cent copy of the first issue of "Action comics" from 1938—which introduced Superman—or as much as $275 for a copy of the 1939 issue of "Detective Comics" that introduced Batman.

"At one time, comic books could be read only in the Rare Book Room of the Library of Congress and usage was restricted to scholars with a serious intention of publishing the results of their research," a spokeswoman said. "Comic books are now available in the Newspaper and Current Periodical Room."

"Only those issues in an advanced state of deterioration are not in service," the spokeswoman said.

Everybody's body needs carbohydrates

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like your opinion on sugar in the diet. I read an article that stated that anyone who eats ordinary meals containing fruits, potatoes and other vegetables, cereals, breads, meats, eggs and milk is getting ample carbohydrates for his needs. He could go through life comfortably without using a spoonful of added sweetening. In fact, this article states some nutritional observers think we'd be better off if our sugar supply were to disappear. What is your opinion? Also, when one is told by his physician that he has low blood sugar, should he add more sugar to his diet or use less.

Dear Reader — It is important to have a sufficient amount of carbohydrates in the diet from foods that contain important vitamins and minerals The body doesn't function well without carbohydrates. This can cause a disturbance in the body chemistry called ketosis. The accumulation of ketone bodies in an untreated diabetic leads to diabetic coma, a serious medical problem. Continued loss of ketones from the urine in this condition also depletes the body of important minerals, including calcium, which accelerates or aggravates the problem of degeneration of the spine and loss of calcium from the bones.

The term carbohydrates includes vegetables, cereals, fruits, as well as the sweets, which include sugar, honey, syrups, jams and jellies. It is perfectly true that a person can get along quite well from a health point of view if they never use any sweets at all, and, instead, got all of their carbohydrates from fresh fruits, vegetables and cereals. Milk, our principal source of calcium, also contains appreciable amounts of carbohydrates.

Earliest man was more of a vegetarian and early fossils show grinding-like teeth of the vegetarian as seen in other primates, as opposed to the canine overhanging teeth seen in carnivores. Those living in the jungle and tropical regions in places where plant food was abundant were more apt to be vegetarians. It is not true that early man did without carbohydrates. Early cave drawings show primitive man obtaining honey from wild bees.

Sugars or sweets are sometimes very useful, particularly if you need to provide large amount of energy in a small amount of bulk for some medical reason. The biggest drawback of most of the sugars and sweets is that they do not contain any significant amounts of vitamins and minerals (blackstrap molasses though is a good source for iron). When true low blood sugar is present and is responsible for the symptoms, then the diet should be one which restricts concentrated sweets, specifically sugars and syrups, jellies and jams. In most instances these individuals can continue to use vegetables and cereals without added sweetners

Not all cases of low blood sugar are rellated specifically to the diet. There are rare examples in which a tumor of the pancreas is the cause. When the tumor is removed this usually will solve the problem.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of the Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on low blood sugar, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Low Blood Sugar" booklet.

The common tern, which eats only live food and scorns garbage and flotsam from fishing boats, may fly over the sea as long as 12 hours and cover 200 miles searching for food.

New method may identify those prone to heart attack

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Heart researchers announced that examination of coronary arteries might indicate what persons are most susceptible to instant death from heart attack.

Dr. Meyer Friedman headed a six-member team which examined the habits, behavior patterns and pathological findings of 69 persons who died of coronaries. The findings were reported in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

During the study at Marin General Hospital in Greenbrae and the Harold Brunn Institute of the Mount Zion Hospital and Medical Center, the deaths were broken down for the first time by researchers into "instantaneous" and "sudden."

The 32 instantaneous deaths occurred within 30 seconds of the first symptoms while the 37 sudden deaths ranged from one minute to 24 hours.

In more than half of the instantaneous deaths, Friedman said. The left anterior descending coronary artery of the heart had been totally obstructed "perhaps months or years" before death. And in 44 per cent of the same subjects, two of their four main coronary arteries had been totally blocked.

However only three such old obstructions were found in the 34 sudden death patients.

These findings "have been possible to obtain only in the last several years because of the previous unavailability of precise and safe diagnostic coronary cinearteriography," said Friedman.

"We believe .. that now with the advent of safe coronary angiography and the results of the present pathological findings, foolproof detection and finally truly effective treatment of the subject who is dangerously prone to instantaneous coronary death is at hand."

Clinically, the researchers said the instantaneous deaths differed from sudden coronary arrest by:

—Taking place abruptly and usually without earlier symptoms

—Being far more likely to occur during or immediately after severe or even moderate exertion

—Appearing to be brought on by ventricular fibrillation (rapid uncoordinated contractions of the heart ventricles leading to loss of synchronization between heartbeat and pulsebeat)

The study also suggested that exercise may be particularly and unexpectedly lethal.

"Sixteen (50 per cent) of the instantaneous cardiac arrest cases had been indulging in either severe (jogging 3, carrying heavy objects 3, calisthenics 2, running 1, playing handball 1, digging a ditch 1) or moderate walking 3, golfing 1, gardening 1, physical activity within 120 seconds of their demise," said the study.

"On the other hand, only three (10 per cent) of the sudden cardiac arrest cases had been indulging in either severe or moderate physical activity immediately prior to their demise."

Other elements of the survey indicated

—The majority of the 69 death cases drank little or no alcoholic beverages

—78 per cent of the instantaneous death and 89 per cent of the sudden death cases had been cigarette smokers

—54 per cent of the sudden cardiac cases and 22 per cent of the instantaneous cases had been obese prior to death.

Song lyrics are 'poems'

Bob Dylan really a poet; his book seems to show it

NEW YORK (UPI) —"If I can't please everybody," says singer-composer Bob Dylan, "I might as well not please nobody at all."

So begins a book he has compiled of his own song lyrics dating from the begin nings in 1964 to the album "New Morning," released about three years ago.

It's a cryptic message— followed in parentheses by the words: "There's but so many people and I just can't please them all" —and what it means exactly probably will be bandied about among Dylan's fans and critics for some time to come.

The book —"Writings and Drawings by Bob Dylan" (Knopf, $6.95) —is thick, 8-½ by 10-½ inches in size and more than 300 pages long. The jacket is cerise with one of Dylan's many drawings on the front cover, a picture of him on the back. Inside are the lyrics to all his songs through 1970, liner notes from record jackets and rambling comments on who and what he is.

"Somewheres back I took the time to start playin' the guitar," he writes. "Somewheres back I took time to start singin'. Somewheres back I took the time to start writin'. But I never ever did take the time to find out why..."

Rather than a book of lyrics, really, this is a book of poetry. Those who know Dylan's music will have a difficult time reading the verse without hearing the melody that it accompanies, familiar as the songs are. But the words—his wit, his wisdom—still will stand alone:

"Through the mad mystic hammering of the wind ripping hail the sky cracked its poems in naked wonder..."

"Darkness at the break of noon, shadows even the silver spoon, the handmade blade, the child's balloon eclipses both the sun and moon. To understand, you know too soon. There is no sense in trying..."

And from perhaps his best work to date, "Hey, Mr. Tambourine Man":

"Then take me disappearin' through the smoke rings of my mind, down the foggy ruins of time, far past the frozen leaves, the haunted, frightened trees, out to the windy beach, far from the twisted reach of crazy sorrow..."

One question raised about the book is whether it signals Dylan's self-demise as a folk music hero ("I might as well not please nobody at all"). Why would anyone as gifted and prolific as Dylan lump all his songs into one large volume— quite unlike the "retrospective" books one buys in the music store—unless he is ready to try something new?

One critic, and Dylan aficionado, Peter Knobler, writing in the current edition of the rock magazine Crawdaddy, says Dylan's departure from music is "possible, but not very likely.

Los Angeles sewer system is gigantic

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Every day the City of Los Angeles generates 350 million gallons of sewage. That's about 125 gallons for every man, woman and child within its boundaries.

The liquid and solid waste produced in homes, businesses and industry is quietly carried away undergound through more than 5,800 miles of mainline sewers, enough pipeline to reach from here to Washington, D. C. and back again.

The pipelines range in size from about the diameter of a pie tin to the height and width of a train car. The largest sewer pipeline is 10 ½ feet high and 12 ¼ feet wide.

The lines weave in and out through various ventilation chambers, siphons, pumping plants and about 100,000 manholes peeking up out of the street pavement along the city's roadways. Some of the manholes extend 100 feet into the ground and are large enough for inspection boats.

This underground world is under the purview of some 250 public works employes including engineers, chemists, superintendents and mechanics. Their job is to service and maintain the sewer system on a 24 hous a day basis, a $2 million payroll for the city.

Major contributors to the city's waste production are industries. They are permitted to discharge liquid wastes into the sanitary sewers and storm drains provided they are sufficiently pollutant-free to meet water quality control standards.

Industry is inspected regularly for compliance, and the cost of administering the monitoring program is carried through annual inspection fees.

Bureau of Sanitation workers also must constantly inspect and clean the sewer lines and pumping plans which lift the sewage from low-lying areas.

But the sewer lines are only artificial riverways and conduits whose main task is to carry the wastes to three major land outfalls—collecting points for sewage from many incoming lines.

One of these outfalls, which measures some 9 ¼ feet in diameter, is a tunnel built under the Los Angeles International Airport.

The outfalls collect all the material and send it to the treatment plants where the real work of processing the sewage begins.

The main treatment facility is the Hyperion Treatment Plant at Playa del Rey Beach, a few miles southwest of downtown Los Angeles.

The Hyperion plant, built in 1950, was the turning point in efficient waste disposal for the city. Prior to 1950, the Santa Monica Bay and many of the city's beaches were polluted and some condemned.

The plant and the sewer system cost a total of $75 million.

What happens to the waste material at the Hyperion plant involves a series of separation procedures.

Raw waste enters the plant and all types of coarse debris is ground up in seven bar screens and four disintegrators.

Next stop is the grit removal tanks. Sand and mineral matter is allowed to settle, leaving the lighter organic material. The grit is separated in a process which takes about 10 minutes. Then it is washed and taken by truck for use as land fill.

The bulk of the waste continues through the primary treatment process, all the time metered so the flow is steadily controlled.

The primary treatment is like a glass jar filled with mud and water. After a while the mud will settle to the bottom of the jar. In much the same way, solid waste material is allowed to settle to the bottom of 12 primary sedimentation tanks covered by concrete slabs.

It takes about 1 ½ hours for the solid matter to settle and the grease, and floating matter to rise to the top.

Grease skimmers collect the floatable material and wooden cross pieces scrape the bottom for the solid or sludge matter. Both the sludge and the grease are removed to digestion tanks and the rest of the liquid waste is ready to be pumped out to sea.

But the remainder of the flow is sent through an activated sludge process. Activated sludge is organic matter which is combined with oxygen. The oxygen accelerates the natural breakdown of the organic matter by bacteria.

This is accomplished in 32 open seperation tanks, each 300 feet long—about the length of a football field—30 feet wide and 15 feet deep. Compressed air is sent into the tanks which hold the activated sludge for about six and a half hours before it is purified.

Finally, the sludge and the liquidin which it is suspended is piped to one of 20 uncovered final sedimentation tanks. There the sludge is settled cut substantially free of organic matter and sent back through the cycling process wither to the seperation tanks or to the primary sedimentation tanks.

What is left is clear water which is pumped out through funnel lines five miles out in the Pacific Ocean. It gushes into a submarine canyon 200 feet deep and is spread over an area about one mile in diameter. Sometimes chlorine is added to control any leftover bacteria at two chlorination stations at sea.

The treatment process goes on at the Hyperion plant and at the Terminal Island plant. Beach waters are tested every day at 17 beach stations for water quality.

Every week the bay waters are tested, and a 65-foot oceanographic vessel cruises the waters to monitor for pollution.

But what about the sludge that isn't clear enough to be sent out to sea?

That sludge is sent through digesters, 18 tanks where the bacteria is nurtured in an oxygen free atmosphere kept at about body temperature. Live steam is shot into the tanks to keep up the heat so that bacteria can break down the organic material.

About half of the sludge is transformed into a gas consiting of two-thirds methane which is then used to fuel the plant's generators and pumps and one-third carbon dioxide. Any leftover fuel is sold to the city's Department of Water and Power Scattergood Steam Plant.

The other half of the sludge is a humus-like substance which is passed through vibrating screens. What doesn't pass through is hauled to land fill sites by truck, and what does is pumped seven miles out to sea.

The plant gets about 94 per cent of its power from gas produced by its own sludge digestion system and much of the sewer line flow moves solely by the force of gravity. The system is almost totally self-sufficient.

In the future, the Bureau of Sanitation hopes to reclaim waste waters for use in the irrigation of golf courses, park lands and greenbelts throughout the semi-arid Southern California area. Reclaimed water could conceivably be drawn directly from the sewer lines and converted at proposed reclamation plants.

San Francisco was linked with the East by the Pony Express in 1860 and by the railroad in 1869.

But Demond Wilson's a star

Redd overshadows 'son'

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Demond Wilson lives in the shadow of Redd Foxx in their weekly television series, "Sanford and Son," but away from work Demond is very much his own, swinging man.

Wilson is a talkative, outgoing bachelor with a string of racial jokes. He pokes gentle fun at the black-white dilemma. But as a black he also feels deeply about civil rights.

Of his role as Lamont Sanford, the actor says: "I like to present blacks in the proper light.

"I grew up in Harlem where there are a lot of Lamonts."

He has written some episodes for the NBC series but hasn't sold any to the producers. Wilson says he is waiting for one he thinks worthy of an Emmy award before he submits them.

Wilson lives in an apartment in the San Fernando valley, about three minutes from the NBC studios where he reports to work at 8 a.m. six times a week.

Unlike many shows, "Sanford and Son" doesn't use cue cards so it is necessary for Demond and Redd to memorize 60 pages of dialogue weekly.

Wilson has decorated his two-bedroom apartment with fastidious care. He bought a combination of French provincial, modern and contemporary furniture in clean, classic lines.

He keeps a second bedroom for visiting friends and relatives. Both his parents and sister continue to live in New York City, but he also has aunts and cousins in his native Valdosta, Ga.

When Wilson moved to Southern California two years ago he brought nothing with him except his clothes. His wardrobe is a great source of pride.

"I'm known as Peter Prep," he says, in reference to his Ivy League image. "I never wear sandals or go out of the house in blue jeans. You can't dress like that when you drive a big Cadillac like I do."

Wilson likes to run three miles a day at the beach to stay trim, a pasttime he enjoys irregularly when the show is in production. When he can't get to the beach he jogs in place in his apartment.

A former college (Hunter College) and high school basketball star, Wilson is unable to play tennis or golf because of a shoulder separation.

Wilson's roots are still in Harlem although he has no plans to return there except to visit family and friends. And his bachelor status may change any day.

He has been dating the same girl for several months and has dinner with her every night.

Happily, he reports, she is the finest cook in the western hemisphere, spoiling him with curry dishes, fetuccini and, he adds with a chuckle, spareribs. There are evenings when Demond dons an apron and does the cooking himself.

On weekends Demond and his girl friend (whom he wants to keep secret until they announce their engagement) attend as many movies as possible. Occasionally they visit Redd Foxx and his wife.

Wilson has no pets and doesn't want any. He's planning, however, to buy a tankful of tropical fish, not so much for their company as the tranquilizing effect of their constant water ballet.

A veteran of Vietnam (1966-67) Demond is content with life, concluding: "I never had it so good."

Jersey Democrats cite win formula

It's a strange sort of political year in New Jersey. Listen to Brendan Byrne, the Democratic nominee for governor, make his case before some conventioners at Atlantic City.

"I've never been a candidate for public office in my life . . . There's nothing that makes me a good politician, a good speaker, or even a good candidate . . .

"I don't know it all. I don't know a lot of things."

With Jersey hip-deep in political scandals, talk like that may go over big. It's a good year to profess inexperience, and even a little ignorance.

Of course Byrne doesn't want that kind of thing taken too literally. He lets the customers know he was an aide for a time to former Gov. Robert Meyner, that he headed the state's Public Utilities Commission, spent nine years as prosecutor in Essex County (Newark), and just quit as Superior Court judge in Morris County.

So the plan is to offer him as clean but not too green. Byrne's strategists don't know any more than do those of his GOP rival, U.S. Rep. Charles Sandman, about the prospective impact of Watergate in this important race. But they figure if it makes New Jersey voters just a little more attentive to character at a time their own state is in a mess, Byrne may be the new face they're looking for.

"Shopworn" is one of the key labels they pin on Sandman.

If Byrne is new, he's also stiff, especially for an Irishman with seven kids. His managers know it, and it makes them a little nervous. Some top Democrats privately fear he'll blow something big before November election day.

But top aides like Richare Leone, a Muskie man last year, and Lew Kaden, once with Robert Kennedy, can't see Byrne giving away what they think is a safe lead. They think Sandman, the veteran legislator from Cape May who himself has six kids, has piled up enough "negatives" in 17 years in office to keep Byrne on the winning side.

In branding the GOP nominee a "rightwinger," a splinter candidate," they'll tell you he's got an incrediby bad labor record — that he's voted against higher minimum wages, better worker safety, food stamps for the poor, even "hot and cold running water" for migrant workers.

Byrne's managers add that if Sandman argues he's done all this as the taxpayer's friend, it amounts to overkill. They think that when they get through laying out Sandman's record, his presumed advantage as the "gut issue" candidate will evaporate. rate.

Says Kaden of Sandman's showing at a recent confrontation of the contenders in Smithville:

"He sounded like he was running for chairman of the board of General Motors."

Well, that's the easy part of a New Jersey report. But, dashing from northern cities to Cape May, you find the total scene and the tons of "facts" baffling. Both the sights and the talk are a shifting montage which eludes definition.

Many gauges say the economy booms, but rail lines totter in or near bankruptcy, high unemployment smothers heavily black Newark, pollution is so bad Sandman dares to say a deepwater port (with threat of oil spills) couldn't hurt. Crime perils the streets.

Bright new houses fill up the long coastline, yet the piney, swampy inland is nearly a human desert. Large areas seem a throwback to the 1940s. Can there be a real New Jersey?

Skylab discovery

One of the most important results of Skylab II, in terms of future life down here on earth, may have been a simple experiment conducted by the crew of the orbiting laboratory.

Using a special furnace, Capt. Alan L. Bean, Maj. Jack R. Lousma and Dr. Owen K. Garriott melted parts of two crystals, then allowed them to cool and reform into new crystals.

On earth, materials that must be melted in their construction, such as metals and electronic crystals, develop impurities or improper mixing because of gravity. This problem does not exist in the weightless environment of space.

By studying how molten materials cool in space, scientists believe they may learn how to construct materials on earth of such purity that their strength and reliability would be increased vastly beyond present standards.

Some of the possibilities are superpure crystals which could perform as many as 750,000 functions compared to the present 200 in a pocket calculator; tiny television cameras that would operate without lights; steel up to 1,000 times stronger, jet engines that could run at higher temperatures, giving more power with less pollution; the efficient conversion of solar energy to electricity.

According to one scientist, Dr. Harry C. Gatos of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the ultimate impact of controlling the chemical composition and structure of materials "is beyond the most far-out-science fiction type of imagination."

Is Nixon backstabbing Agnew?

WASHINGTON — Three major congressional committees have secretly ordered studies of how Congress should respond to the constitutional challenge of ruling on a possible replacement for Vice President Spiro Agnew.

One preliminary study by the Senate Judiciary Committee began more than two weeks ago at a time when Agnew's aides were pooh-poohing any talk of resignation. The other two probes were ordered this week by the House Judiciary and Senate Rules committees.

All three surveys are intended to prepare Congress for possible eventualities. The committees have no positive information that Agnew might actually resign in the wake of the grand jury investigation of Maryland kickback charges.

Although the replacement of a Vice President would be unprecedented in American history, the Senate Judiciary study has already found guidelines in Congress' own rules and in the legislative history of the 25th Amendment. The six-year-old amendment says both houses of Congress must rule on any presidential nominee to succeed a Vice President.

Chairmen

If two sets of hearings are held under the 25th Amendment as is normal on legislation, the Senate Judiciary staff investigation has found it would be headed by Senate Rules chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., and House Judiciary chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J. Both are well-regarded, fair-minded lawyers.

One of the most intriguing precedents discovered by the Senate Judiciary staff has eerie parallels with the present situation. Thirty-six years ago, then-Sen. Hugo Black was picked by Pres. Franklin Roosevelt for the Supreme Court. So highly thought of was Black by his Senate conferees that they skipped committee hearings on the controversial nomination. It went straight to the Senate floor where it was approved.

Today, two of the men mentioned in the speculation as replacements for Agnew are also senators — Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Hugh Scott, R.-Pa., either of whom could conceivably pass the Senate without hearings.

Another possibility is that Cannon's Rules Committee and Rodino's Judiciary group would hold joint hearings. Rodino's legislative sleuths have already discovered that a decade ago the House Judiciary and Senate Finance committees were ordered by an unusual Act of Congress jointly to study a taxation question. Although House Judiciary wound up doing almost all the work, the old act is a clear precedent for joint vice presidential hearings.

Select committees

One of several other possibilities turned up by the studies is that a select committee would be appointed by each House or a joint select committee would be appointed by both houses. However, Senate historians feel any effort by the leadership to dislodge Rodino or Cannon as chairmen would be a flagrant slap.

Presidential taping not new idea

With the first acknowledgment that White House conversations in the Oval Office had been recorded, all of us who have conferred confidentially in that office immediately sought mentally to reconstruct those conversations imagining that they might now be made public.

I didn't sweat — but I "gulped" once or twice. The GSA (General Services Administration) confirms that four former Presidents (F.D.R., Eisenhower, Kennedy and L.B.J.) did have recordings made of at least some of their private conversations without advising the principals taking part in those conversations that they were being recorded.

President Franklin Roosevelt had the telephones tapped in both the offices and homes of some of his closest aides. The libraries of Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson include thousands of tapes of confidential conversations. The Kennedy Library's senior archivist, William Moss, says existing recordings of telephone conversations and face-to-face meetings involving Kennedy and others will not be made public "for a long time," if only for "security reasons."

He implies that military classification is involved in some of the tapes. Certainly some might embarrass foreign chiefs of state — to our diplomatic disadvantage. And it is likely that the reputations of living individuals might be irreparably damaged of those tapes were to include, for example, executive briefings on potential appointees.

When a presidential appointment is pending, there are necessarily some very frank discussions of each appointee's qualifications. The L.B.J. Library includes tapes which are not to be made public before the year 2500.

And tapes made by previous Presidents — perhaps L.B.J. — would likely include such privately harmless but publicly damaging stuff as unbecoming ribald humor and intemperate profanity. On the other hand, a record of unofficial utterances in the Chief Executive's office eventually may have historical significance. Some examples:

When Harry Truman became President he got this advice from former Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn: "From here on you're going to have a lot of people around you. They'll try to put a wall around you and cut you off from any ideas but theirs. They will hypnotize you by telling you what a great man you are. But, Harry, both you and I know you ain't."

When President Nixon was elected, L. B. J. told him to enjoy his Inauguration Day because "that is the only day when you will be President of the United States. Starting the day after inauguration you will be subject to the veto of The Washington Post, the New York Times and three networks."

And to a trusted confident, L.B.J. also had this to say about his protege, Bobby Baker. As Baker faced trial, Lyndon Johnson said, "He knows where all the skeletons are. If he talks, I could be the first President to go to prison — and 20 U.S. congressmen or former congressmen would go with me."

Where's the Referee?

Gossip for today

A newspaper LETTER TO THE EDITOR points out somewhat cynically that:

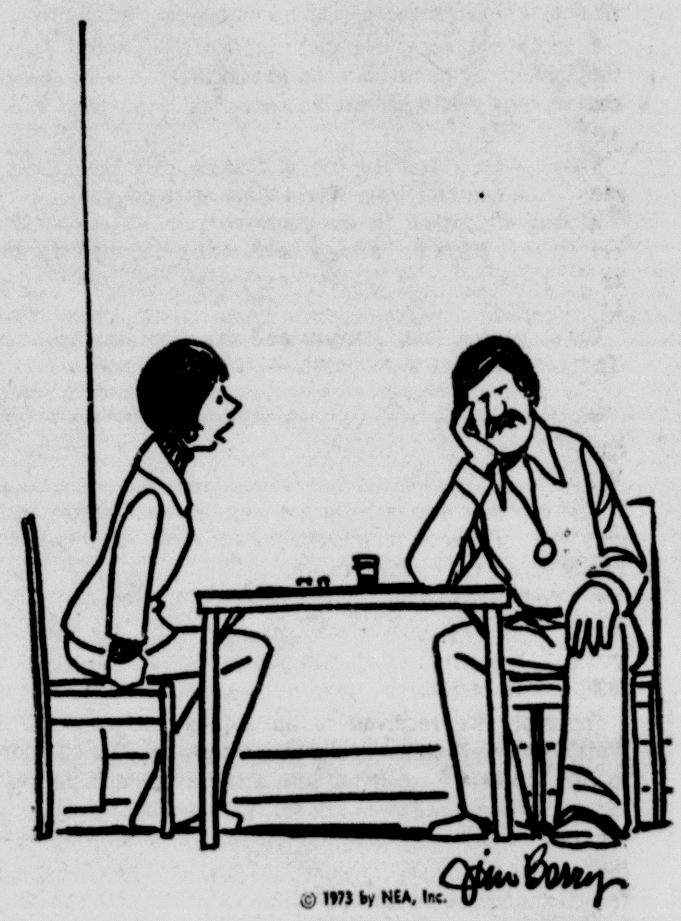
"Everybody wants a good environment but not at the expense of dependable, around-the-clock electrical service."

Which quite accurately describes the attitude of most Americans today. It is going to take more than just a few brown-outs to convince us that maybe in the interest of a clearer environment and energy conservation, we should give up our electric toothbrushes; electric trash mashers, electric razors, electric garbage disposals, electric carving knives, electric sun tan lamps, combs and hair dryers.

However, if worst comes to worst and we finally get scared enough to decide to do our bit to help correlate the environment and the energy crisis, we can not only give up all those before mentioned goodies but also really show our patriotism by installing old fashioned door knockers in place of electric door bells; by changing over from electric to wind-up clocks; by shutting off the electric blanket and adding a comforter to the bed; by outlawing rock and roll band amplifiers; by insisting that secretaries use manually operated typewriters instead of the electric variety; by disconnecting the electric can opener and knife sharpener; and finally (and greater patriotism than this hath no man, woman or child.) we can shut off our TV sets for the duration.

Yes, we can do all of those things if that is what it is going to take to improve the environment and avoid the brownouts. But my guess is we'll think it all over and finally settle for brown skies, a brown taste in our mouths, possible nuclear fall-out and MORE ELECTRICITY.

Berry's world



"It's the newest craze! What will our friends say when they find out you don't want to play backgammon?"

BRUCE BIOSSAT

A president needs to be a politician

There were the Democrats, spread all over national television, collecting pledges of some $5.4 million to pay off their party's debt and build campaign funds. And their telethon chairman, John Y. Brown, dropped in one of the worst lines any party man could utter.

He told his listeners and the nation it was time to stop electing politicians and to begin picking "statesmen" for public office. On the scene at Los Angeles, the applause was warm. But Brown could not have been more wrong.

To be sure, he didn't invent this nonsense. Since the days of King George III, Americans have been captivated by the idea that their public offices could best be filled by "non-politicans." The notion has appealed especially with respect to the presidency.

In fact, it's the purest fantasy and has been responsible for more mischief and ineptitude than almost anything else in U.S. public life. Before he went on camera, telethon chariman Brown should have scanned a newspaper written by Thomas E. Cronin, a young scholar currently at the Center for the Sutdy of Democratic Institutions.

Cronin's piece was most specifically applied to President Nixon and his difficulties, but its theme is timeless. Said Cronin:

". . .a president cannot and should not avoid being openly political. . .that is, he must negotiate and mediate between groups, compromise polar differences and find acceptable alternatives."

In Cronin's view, the presidency "is a very political office and political and partisan leadership are as much needed as foreign policy statesmanship and symbolic leadership."

Everything a president does, the scholar added, "has political consequences, and each explicitly political act has consequences for the state of the presidency."

To attempt to divorce this high office from politics presupposes, in Cronin's judgement, a "significantly different political system than ours, which is glued together in such large measure by ambiguity, compromise, and the extensive sharing of powers."

Perceptive historians have thoroughly documented this country's habitual, crippling distaste for politicians. Cronin's thesis is that Richard Nixon practicied this "escape from politics" from the outset of his tenure, with Watergate the most disastrous but not the only damaging result.

For, the easiest way to be "statesmanlike" is to focus heavily upon foreign policy, generally the great unifier. Out of the Nixon administration's own mouth, with the words carefully tracked by Cronin, that is how he has seen his role.

But that concentration, with its inevitable stress upon secret and closed-door dealings, came at the expense of fuller, more open attention to a wide range of domestic problems which are the real heart and stuff of politics. Conflicts in this field, if solvable at all, are resolved largely by presidents acting openly as mediator and as what Cronin called "coalition-builder."

His final pleas include mature recognition that presidents should be not merely political but "vigorous partisan leaders as well." Only in myth has Mr. Nixon so acted.

I read an ad in a newspaper about World Wide Systems, a firm that would teach you all about heavy equipment.

I wrote and asked for more information. A few days later they called my home collect and told me if I went through the course, they would get me an operating engineer's card and a job.

They asked a starting fee of $195. I sent the money in. I received a contract from World Wide by mail.

Among statements in the contract was this one: "I further certify that there have been no verbal or written agreements or promises made to the applicant other than those appearing in this agreement."

Upon reading this, I wrote and asked for my money back. They do not want to return it. — J. M., Pomona.

You sent us a copy of the contract. The statement you quoted from was to have been signed by a representative of World Wide Systems.

The contract provides for training only and states that it is unlawful for World Wide officers or representatives to guarantee or promise employment.

It is unfortunate that your telephone conversation cannot be verified but fortunate, since you don't want the course, that you signed no contract. If you had signed up, you would be out $895 instead of $195.

The reply we received to an inquiry addressed to World Wide Systems in Indianapolis was a copy of a letter addressed to you. It was a form letter with a few words and figures filled in where spaces had been left for that purpose.

World Wide claims it submitted to you 20 units of pretraining data, constituting the first 100 hours of the 200 being offered, and that you accepted this material and completed it, as shown by your answer sheets.

The firm says you may keep the 20 units and you will be given full credit for your $195 if you want to complete the training later on.

More than seven months ago I ordered a blender from Stur-Dee Health Products, Inc., in New York, enclosing a check for $27.95.

The blender did not arrive. When I wrote to ask why, a letter came to me saying that it had been reshipped.

Last month I wrote three letters to Stur-Dee but no answer came. Please help me get my blender. — E. K., Chino.

We wrote to Stur-Dee and also were told that a duplicate had been shipped. This time you got it.

Early bird didn't get his worms

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A 31-year-old man from North Carolina had only been here a short time and he learned something recently — the hard way.

At 9:40 a.m. Benny Melton donned a stocking mask, pulled out a revolver and rushed the door of a Bank of America branch office, attempting to jar it open with his shoulder.

The door didn't give and Melton bounced back into the arms of a security guard, who had been watching in his car as he waited to come to work.

"In North Carolina the banks open at 9 a.m.," said a confused Melton.

They open at 10 a.m. in Los Angeles.

P.C. magazine, editor praised for excellence

CLAREMONT — Pomona Today, the quarterly alumni magazine of Pomona College, and Gordon J. Hazlitt, coordinator of publications and editor of the magazine, were honored recently by the American Alumni Council and two national magazines for general excellence.

The council named the magazine "a publication of distinction" among the top 25 alumni publications in the nation and later chose it as one of the top 10 alumni magazines.

The magazine was also honored with a citation from Newsweek for its April issue on the effects of the population explosion.

Hazlitt, editor of the publication since 1968, was honored for excellence in writing along with five other collegiate writers by Atlantic magazine.

Chino student hit by sniper

CHINO — A Chino High student returning to his car in the school parking lot after a football game dance was the target of a sniper early Saturday morning, police reported.

Bruce Peebles, 16, 11804 Vernon Ave., Chino, was treated for bullet wounds in the neck at Chino General Hospital and released.

Peebles told police he was returning to his car about 12:05 a.m. when he heard a shot, and was struck in the back of the neck. The bullet entered and exited from his neck.

New roles and classes noted as Claremont High classes resume

CLAREMONT — New responsibilities and new courses of study are evident at Claremont High during the start of another school year.

Dan Stevenson has been appointed associate principal. His position includes being the curricular leader as well as the school manager. He will work directly under Principal Alex Hughes.

Stevenson came to the Claremont Unified School District in 1967 to accept the position of dean of boys at Claremont High, and in 1968 was named assistant principal in charge of curriculum and guidance.

Mrs. Barbara Hinkle has changed jobs, too. She came to the district business office in 1966, and a year later became secretary to the assistant principal in charge of business services at Claremont High. A year later she took the job of secretary for Hughes.

Mrs. Hinkle has been attending college classes since 1962, and was a recent graduate at La Verne College. She is enrolled in the intern program at La Verne College and will teach in the business department at Claremont High.

A new course at Claremont High entitled, "Contemporary Studies," is being taken by about 80 students and offers a unique learning experience.

The course is built around the concept of an American city and includes English, history and science courses. The students will study all phases of a city's operation including landscaping, rapid transit, traffic control, government, architectural awareness and environmental impact.

Toward the end of the course, the students will construct a model city, and become involved in the problems of their own community.

Two immunization clinics to be held for youngsters

POMONA — Two free immunization clinics to protect children against polio, measles, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough will be given at the county health center here during the next month.

Dr. Jonas Naujokaitis, acting district health officer for the Pomona office, said the clinics are offered in place of an immunization program which up to now was conducted in the schools. He said the health department is no longer going out to the schools.

The first of the clinics will be held from 4 to 8 p.m. Wednesday at the health center, 750 S. Park Ave. A subsequent clinic is scheduled for Oct. 24.

Inoculations will be given against diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough—all one shot—for children under 6. For older youngsters the injection against whooping cough must be given separately, the health officer said. Oral vaccines against polio may be taken at the time of the vaccinations.

But, according to Dr. Naujokaitis, inoculations against measles will not be given on the same night as polio vaccines, except in emergency cases, because both carry live cultures.

The Pomona clinic is part of 58 locations offering immunization against diseases on the same dates throughout the county. Health officials have recently voiced concern about the large number of parents who have not kept their youngsters fully immunized.

Another 180,000 children between 1 and 5 have not been immunized against measles, a disease that kills more youngsters in the U.S. than any other communicable disease, he said.

Is Nixon backstabbing Agnew?

While Rodino is new to his blue-ribbon Judiciary post, he has been an articulate veteran chairman of other lesser House units for years. And Cannon's committee, while it generally does fuddy-duddy business on Senate procedures, was the forum for dramatic hearings on former Senate majority secretary Bobby Baker exactly 10 years ago.

Meanwhile, the strain between President Nixon and Vice President Agnew is approaching the breaking point. The rival staffs have become hostile camps, spreading rumors and leaking stories against one another.

Sources close to Agnew believe the President has stirred up the charges against Agnew to divert public attention from his own role in the Watergate scandal.

"The charges against Agnew have created a marvelous distraction," said one source. "Now the President can offer up Agnew as a blood offering to placate the public."

Friends of Agnew tell us he is aware of the White House backstabbing but, nevertheless, refuses to believe the President is personally behind it. Spiro Agnew, said a friend, "has this feeling of awe for the presidency, for the White House, which inhibits him from coming to the inevitable conclusion the President is knifing him."

Mrs. Landin heads school bilingual unit

POMONA — Mrs. Esther Landin, a parent at Madison Elementary School, is newly elected president of the Community Advisory Committee of the Pomona Unified School District's bilingual education program.

She and other new officers were presented at a program presented in Spanish and English recently in the cafeteria at Hamilton Elementary School.

Those serving with Mrs. Landin are Mrs. Vicky Perez, Hamilton parent, vice president; Mrs. Linda Perez, Hamilton, treasurer; Martha Fisher, Roosevelt, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Doris Morales, Westmont, secretary; Mrs. Guadalupe Sandoval, Simons and Garey, assistant secretary; Mrs. Carla Mindiola, Washington, telephone chairman; Tom Lopez, Westmont, city adviser; and Ken Noonan of the Pomona Unified School District, district adviser.

The district's bilingual education program, which this fall is placing bilingual teachers in 19 classrooms to do part of their teaching in English and part in Sapnish, was explained.

A number of parents attended inservice training sessions at the Hamilton school with the bilingual teachers just before school started.

They elected to form a community advisory committee to support the bilingual program in district schools, Noonan said.

New contact lens 4 times lighter

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A new bifocal contact lens, smaller than the pupil of the eye, has been developed by an optometrist in West Virginia, it was reported recently.

A seven-page report prepared by Dr. Claud A. Kendall of Fairmont, W. Va., for a meeting of the American Optometric Association said the patented lens would be widely available for fittings in 1974.

Twelve years of research produced the lens which is four times thinner than those now on the market, Kendall said. Present bifocal contact lenses have a so-called "ballast," making the close-range segment heavier and causing it to hang on the bottom.

Educational grants available for Spanish-speaking students

Spanish-speaking students needing money to continue their education after high school are urged by a Nixon administration official to apply for Basic Educational Opportunity Grants.

"The program should benefit an estimated one-half million students who might otherwise be unable to continue their education," said Henry M. Ramirez, chairman of the Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for Spanish-Speaking People. He is a former Pomona resident.

Ramirez said more than $122 million is available under the grants program, which is administered by the Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"Although the grants are limited to first-year, full-time postsecondary school students, the program marks a major step in making higher education available to all young people who desire it, especially Spanish-speaking," said Ramirez.

Under the grant program, students in financial need may obtain funds to help pay their educational expenses at any approved college, university, vocational school, technical institute or hospital school of nursing.

How much a student or his family can contribute affects the amount of his basic grant and is determined according to a formula established by the U.S. Office of Education.

To apply for a basic grant, an Application for Determination of Expected Family Contribution must be obtained, filled out, and mailed to Post Office Box 3, Iowa City, Iowa 52240.

Within a month, the student is notified of the amount of his family's expected contribution. He then submits the notification to the school of his choice, which calculates the amount of the basic grant to which he is entitled.

Application forms are available at student financial aid offices at post secondary institutions, high school guidance offices, post offices, state employment offices, county agricultural extension agents, Talent Search, Upward Bound, and Student Special Services projects.

Forms may also be obtained by writing to Box G, Iowa City, Iowa 52240, or the the Cabinet Committee, 1707 H Street, N.W. Washington, D.C. 20506.

Other forms of federal student assistance such as supplemental educational opportunity grants, college work-study, national direct student loans, and guaranteed student loans, are available in addition to basic grants.

For further information on basic grants and other student financial aid programs, students should contact their high school counselor or the financial aid officer at the school jn which they expect to enroll.

Jurors react favorably to all-videotape trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Jurors reacted favorably to California's first all-videotape trial and also ruled in favor of a woman who was injured in an automobile accident.

Testimony, taken weeks ago, was presented on two television screens facing jurors, while other screens were in front of the judge and the spectators.

Since attorneys had edited the tapes previously, the jurors were spared courtroom arguments about which evidence was admissable.

All the jurors agreed the TV system was a good approach when the trial ended recently, although two had minor reservations.

A secretary said, "It gets kind of draggy after a while." And a teacher declared, "At least at home we can get up and walk around."

Convention report:

Condominium boom still booming

SAN DIEGO — The condominium boom that California is now experiencing is just the beginning.

"Brokerage opportunities already existing in the condominium resale market are insignificant compared with what they will be in the next five to 10 years," said R. Stanley Dybvig of Dayton, Ohio, president of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers.

He spoke recently at the California Real Estate Association's annual convention being held here.

"The tremendous upsurg in new condominium construction and the condominium conversion market, while not offering great opportunity for the individual Realtor at the present time, does offer possibilities for those who will arm themselves with the knowledge necessary to deal effectively with condominium resales."

Studies have shown the average age of condominium buyers is 50 to 55 years old, he added. "Because of movement to retirement communities, the desire to move closer to their children, and other factors, the condominium market is just beginning to churn."

Other speeches during the week-long conference included:

William R. Schoeffler of Sacramento, president of Schoeffler Investment Co., said too often real estate investments made to secure an income tax advantage or "writeoff" ignore the basic value components of a good investment.

Speaking specifically of real estate syndication, in which a group of small investors pool its money in a common venture, Schoeffler emphasized the importance of cash flow, equity buildup and potential appreciation.

"Unless it is economically viable, it is not a good investment vehicle," he said. Schoeffler suggested that before seeking professional advice, investors judge the investment potential of an offering using the following checklist:

— History and competence of the property manager; Does the investment have cash flow, equity buildup, good location?: What type of financing? Balloon Payment? Due date? Does the investment have cash reserves?; Does it call for assessments.

Charles H. Boxenbaum of Los Angeles, president of Sonnenblick-Goldman Corp. of California, predicted that economic and demographic forces will create a climate in which the demand for mortgage money over the next 10 years will be substantially greater than the supply.

"This imbalance is fueled by the demands of government and industry, the federal government's commitment to promote housing and urban renewal, and the dramatic growth of the family formation segment of our population. We do not see the traditional sources of mortgage money growing at a parallel rate."

Boxenbaum said the mortgage banker views money simply as a commodity. "It is no different from cement, wood, brick or drywall, and what we are doing is renting this commodity. We are interested in renting as much as we can at the lowest possible monthly payments."

Paul G. Reinke of Executive Consulting Services, Inc., Southfield, Mich., said that in its headlong rush to become organized and computerized, business often neglects its most important asset — people.

"The symptoms of this problem are found in the complaints voiced by those most important to the success of any business, its customers," he added.

"Poor workmanship, inconsiderate salespeople, poor service, no one seems to care — these are some of the things one hears repeatedly."

Reinke said the measure of any business is the quality of its personnel, whether measured in per-man sales or work force stability.

"We must refocus our attention on our most important asset — people. If we build organizations with the right people, properly selected, properly trained, and properly managed, we can put quality and craftsmanship back into our business culture."

Unified program for black, white realty groups is announced

SAN DIEGO — Joint meetings, joint educational progrms, and a common voice in the state Legislature are included in a four year plan announced here by black and white leaders of the real estate industry.

The plan was revealed at the California Real Estate Assosociaiton's annual convention here by Richard Van Valer of San Jose, CREA president and Fred Farley of Oakland, president of the state's black real estate organization, the California Association of Real Estate Brokers. They were joined at a news conference by Robert W. Karpe, California real estate commissioner.

The agreement, titled "Road to a Color-Blind Real Estate Profession—a Long Range Flexible Program," calls for joint real estate educational programs in 1974, a single lobbying office in Sacramento in 1975, and an amalgamation of "organization structure and officerships" in 1976. It makes 1977 the target for "full joint status."

The plan avoids the word "merger" since both groups feel there should be machinery for representing the problems of blacks, perhaps through a black institute within the joint association, officials said.

"CREA is not limited to white Realtors," said Van Valer. "We have many black and other minority group members. But we recognize that some of their interests and problems require special attention."

Farley said the black organization, now with just under 5,000 members, was formed 25 years ago because they felt it was needed.

"But we are all in the same business, serving the same human needs for housing. It was natural that we should eventually discover that black and white real estate professionals had more in common than what separated them."

Karpe said white and black leadership in the real estate industry in California is now agreement on a practical plan of action to bring the two groups closer together over the next several years.

"The public will be the beneficiary as we move a step closer to the American ideal of a color-blind society."

Karpe said he invited leaders of the two real estate groups two years ago to discuss mutual interests and problems, which ended in this program.

Long distance for a short call

NOME, Alaska (UPI) — Alaska's Little Diomede Island, which is just two miles from Soviet territory, has obtained telephone service through a hook-up with RCA Communications, Inc.

But if the Eskimos there want to ring up their neighbors on Russi's Big Diomede, they will have to call around the world to do so. RCA says the village bush phone offers almost the same service available anywhere else, including long distance service. But there is no direct connection across the Bering Strait which separates the two islands.

Course in housing is set at UCLA

LOS ANGELES — A six week course titled "Professional Practices in the Housing Industry," will start Oct. 9 at UCLA.

The six sessions, sponsored by the Young Home Builders Council, will be held from 7 to 9:30 p.m. each Tuesday, Oct. 9 to Nov. 13, in room 2250, Young Hall.

"The course is designed for everyone interested in how builders manage basic programs of land acquisition and use, planning, financing, marketing, and all major elements in real estate developments which affect the builder's success," said John Konwiser, a Newport Beach home builder. He is the program coordinator and will be moderator at each lecture.

The subjects and speakers include: Oct. 9, "Real Estate and Construction Financing," presented by George Smith, vice president of Sonnenblick-Goldman, Inc., Century City; Oct. 16, "Structuring the Joint Venture,'' presented by Thomas Peckenpaugh, partner in Kalmbach, DeMarco, Knapp and Chillingsworth, Los Angeles; Oct. 23, "Condominium Laws, Financing and Zoning," presented by Konwiser, president of the Konwiser Corp.

Oct. 30, "New Land Planning Developments," presented by Walter Richardson Associates, architects, Costa Mesa; Nov. 6, "Presenting Your Package to the Lender," Konwiser; and Nov. 13, "Marketing with Imagination," presented by Beverly Thompson, president of Beverly Thompson Interiors, Inc., Newport Beach.

Registration can be made at the class at the first session. Application for the course can be made by writing to UCLA Extension, P.O. Box 24901, Dept. K, Los Angeles 90024. The fee of $60 must be paid at the door or accompany the request for enrollment. Enrollment can be made at the UCLA extension offices.

Banks report increases in mortgage financing

WASHINGTON — The gloomy housing outlook has some bright spots, reports Eugene H. Adams, president of the American Bankers Association (ABA).

Citing from the latest report released by the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), Adams pointed to major increases by the nation's 14,000 banks in five areas of mortgage lending for one-to-four family homes.

According to HUD figures, the banks:

— Originated 59 per cent more in long term loans for the first six months of 1973, compared to the first half of 1974.

— Originated 31 per cent ($12.4 billion) of total mortgage loans for the first six months of this year.

—Increased their acquisition of construction loans by 14 per cent over the same 1972 period—from $3.75 billion to $4.28 billion.

— Put new commitments on the block during June, 1973, of $1.5 billion for construction and and long term loans—an increase of 5 per cent.

— Had outstanding commitments of $7.3 billion for construction and long term loans at the end of 1973 — about 38 per cent above the June, 1972, total.

Adams, who is also president of the First National Bank of Denver, said it was particularly gratifying to know that commitments to make future loans are holding up extremely well, since this is a good measure of loans actually being made today.

Banks again rank No. 1 on HUD's compilations of holdings of construction loans through June, 1973

In order were: banks, $14.4 billion; savings and loan associations, $11.7 billion; mortgage investment trusts, $7.2 billion; mutual savings banks, $1.3 billion; state and local credit agencies, $843 million, and life insurance companies, $389 million.

Adams said ABA surveys show that banks have more than $90 billion invested in municipal bonds.

"Some $60 billion of these are bonds for roads, sewers, waste treatment facilities, schools, fire and police departments, city hospitals—all the facilities neccessary for a community to function."

In addition, nearly 10 per cent of banking's $60 billion in commercial loans outstanding at the end of 1972 was in mobile home loans. According to the ABA mobile homes now account for 20 per cent of all single-family housing in the U. S. and 75 per cent of all single-family housing costing less than $20,000.

Realty president:

Federal plan needed to protect mortgage market

CHICAGO — Congress and federal agencies should develop a plan whereby the mortgage market will be assured of a proper proportion of funds from the total financial resources of the nation, said J. D. Sawyer, president of the National Association of Realtors.

He spoke in response to a speech by Rep. Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking Committee, in which the Texas Democrat proposed a system of credit rationing to make it possible for "plain people" to borrow money in times of severe inflation, such as the present.

Supporting Patman's advocacy of the allocation of credit resources to the mortgage market, Sawyer suggested a tax incentive program granting new mortgage tax credits to banks and savings and loan associations would be preferable to direct government regulation of credit.

"There has to be some method of allocating funds to make sure the mortgage market is going to receive its fair competitive share," he added.

"This is the third time the real estate industry has gone through the wringer in the past six years. In each credit crunch, the mortgage market has been the first hit and the last to recover.

"We believe that it would be irresponsible for government to permit this to happen a fourth time because the industry can't continue to survive these traumatic rises and falls in the credit market."

In his Washington speech, Chairman Patman was sharply critical of the "tight money" policy of the Federal Reserve Board, which he blamed for high interest rates and a resulting threatened slump in the homebuilding industry as mortage money becomes more costly.

"As a result," Patman said, "the average American—the plain people—have been left to compete with the corporate giants, the speculators, the gamblers and the fast-buck artists for available credit at 9, 10 and 11 per cent . . . In my opinion, we can no longer accept these eighteenth century monetary policies."

The position of the National Association of Realtors, according to Sawyer, is that a tax incentive plan for mortgage bankers should be one of the alternatives considered by Congress in attempting to deal with the problem of "credit crunches" in the mortgage market.

New York State stretches 500 miles from the top of Long Island to Niagara Falls and is the only state that touches both the Atlantic Ocean and the Great Lakes.

POMONA — Mildred J. Heckmer has been elected new president of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

She will be installed at an annual installation banquet in December, succeeding James Odom. Mrs. Heckmer is the first woman to head the realty board.

She and her husband have been active in real estate since 1959. They established their own real estate office in Pomona in 1965.

Since joining the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors in 1965, she has served on the multiple listing committee, public relations committee, and served as chairman of the membership and house and ticket committees.

She served two years on the board of directors as secretary. She is presently second vice president.

Mrs. Heckmer was also appointed by the California Real Estate Association as chairman of the public relations committee for the 26th district, which has five realty boards.

Other new officers include Gordon T. Curtis, first vice president; Joseph D. Beck, second vice president; L. Canfield, Jr., secretary; and William B. Johnson, treasurer.

New California Real Estate Association directors for the board are Odom, Roger S. Wheeler and Canfield.

Brisk sales reported at Lewis development

ALTA LOMA — Twenty five of the 31 homes at the Lewis Homes — Alta Loma development have been "spoken for," officials report.

The brisk sales is attributed by the builder to the "total house" package offered the buyers.

"Not only are the kitchen appliances and carpeting of various rooms included in the purchase price, but even the window drapes and front yard lawn and sprinklers are already installed when the buyer moves in," said Edward Lynch, regional sales manager for Lewis Homes of California.

"Keeping our prices frozen at the same figures posted when Lewis Homes — Alta Loma opened 10 weeks ago has also been a strong factor in attracting home seekers," he added.

The three and four bedroom homes are priced from $25,450 to $26,900. Conventional financing and also Cal Vet loans of 4¼ per cent are among the purchasing arrangements available.

The homes also feature two bathrooms, garden kitchens equipped with built-in dishwashers, self cleaning ovens, ranges and disposal units, wall-to-wall carpeting in the living rooms, hallways and master bedrooms, and ceiling lights in all the bedrooms.

The development is located on Eastwood Avenue near Cielito Street. The sales office is open daily and also evenings by appointment.

Saddleback homes ready for buyers

CHINO — The Saddleback homes have everything to make home ownership a pleasure, said Roy Downum, sales agent for McMichael Co.

The three and four bedroom homes are located near Walnut and Ramona avenues. VA, and conventional financing are available.

"We have conventional financing at present at the same interest rate as VA and FHA," said Downum. "We know this is limited, but we hope to have it available for at least for another month. We are also presently paying all the buyers' closing costs."

The development features underground utilities, concrete driveways, and sidewalks.

A sales office and three model homes are open daily from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Forecast's revision sees slowdown, not recession

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A slowdown, but not a recession, will start before the end of the year, bringing a slight easing of inflationary trends and increased unemployment in 1974, the UCLA Graduate School of Management has forecast.

In a quarterly revision of their annual business forecast, the economists said the problem facing government policy-planners now is to tread a narrow line between continued inflation and a full-blown recession.

The UCLA economists said the slowdown would bring lower corporate profits, a drop in housing construction in 1974 and a decline in currently unusually high short and long term interest rates.

Among the predictions in the quarterly revision:

—Unemployment will rise from an average 4.8 per cent this year to 5.2 per cent in 1974.

—Consumer prices will have risen 5.8 per cent by the end of 1973 and will go up 5 per cent during 1974.

—The stock market will "slowly recover" from the lows of the summer but will not surpass the peak levels of last January until the middle of next year.

—Automobile sales, including imports, will be a record 12 million in 1973 but will decline to about 11 million in 1974.

New housing declines in California

LOS ANGELES — New housing starts in California dipped in July to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 194,000 units, reports the Bank of America.

This is down almost 10 per cent from June and 15 per cent from a year ago, officials noted.

The major share of the decline was in apartment projects with five or more units. Single family homes increased to over 56 per cent of new starts.

The bank's economists expect the down trend in new starts to continue in the months ahead. They forecast total starts in 1973 of about 200,000 units.

First Texas oilman

BEAUMONT, Tex. (UPI) — Capt. A. F. Lucas, a mining engineer, was the first "Texas oilman." It was Lucas' crew who brought in the well at Spindletop on the Texas Gulf Coast Jan. 10, 1901. The Spindletop well opened the way for numerous discoveries through the 1930s which made hundreds of fortunes throughout the Lone Star State.

Initial OK on gaming license for Sam Davis

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) —The state gaming control board recently gave preliminary approval for a gambling license for entertainer Sammy Davis Jr., but he still must face more questioning.

Board chairman Philip Hannifin said there must have been recent "allegations reflecting on his (Davis') personal background" and the board will want to quiz Davis at another meeting Sept. 27 in Las Vegas.

Meade Dixon, Davis' attorney, said the entertainer would be present at the Las Vegas meeting but could not make the session because of previous commitments. Davis is seeking to be a director in Hotel Conquistador Inc., which operates the Tropicana Hotel and Country Club in Las Vegas.

Hannifin said these allegations may be "specious" but they must be examined. He would not disclose the exact nature of the allegations which he said came to light ater state officials completed the regular investigation of Davis' background.

Gardeners to pay price for lost beehives

CONCORD, Calif. (UPI) —A beekeeper has gone out of business and he says weekend gardeners in his neighborhood will be sorry.

Pancho Bacciglieri sold all of his 42 hives after merchants complained about bee droppings and the City Council ordered him to sell all but 15 of the hives.

Backyard gardeners, Baccíglieri said recently, would be sorry because without the bees for fertilization tomato crops will disappear, string beans will wilt and flowers will fall by the wayside.

He got wasps, but it cost him $1,200

CINCINNATI (UPI) —Robert Thompson lit a newspaper, climbed a ladder to reach a wasp nest under an eave on his porch—and burned down $1,200 worth of his home.

After responding to the fire alarm, Fire Marshal Thomas Guifoyle said the method worked.

"The wasps were all cleaned out."

Railroad service between the eastern and western parts of the United States was connected at a ceremony at Promontory, Utah, on May 10, 1896.

Commissioners find way out to get raises

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — City commissioners get embarrassed voting themselves raises. So they found a way around it.

The commission agreed recently to conduct a public hearing on a plan basing the wages of five locally elected officials on the salary of the governor.

"It's to keep us from the embarrassment of having to set our own salaries," Finance Commissioner Jennings Phillips Jr. said.

The plan, if adopted, would give the mayor two-thirds of the governor's salary, commissioners 61.6 per cent, and the city auditor 80 per cent of the mayor's salary.

It would, if the governor's salary remains unchanged, give each city official a raise of about $2,000 per year.

The basis of the term "rap session" is from the French "en rapport," or "in harmony.

Algae halts water flow from north

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Foulsmelling algae in Caustaic Lake has halted the flow of Northern California water along the state's billion-dollar water project into Los Angeles, the department of Water Resources announced.

The blue-green algae occurred in a "small section" of the lake, located north of Los Angeles, a department spokesman said Tuesday. "It's a common thing that happens with new lakes because of all the nutrients."

He said it posed no health problems but was a case of "odor and slight coloring."

The water was turned off at the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California's Jensen Treatment Plant. To make up for the loss, the district which servers greater Los Angeles was using extra Colorado River water. The spokesman said there were no shortages.

The state said Caustaic Lake, which is about 30 per cent filled, was receiving more water at a faster rate in an attempt to alleviate the algae problem. Chemicals were being used in "localized areas" to kill the growth.

"We expect the algae to be cleared up in the next week or two," the spokesman said.

Town recreates Civil War mood

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri Town 1850, located southeast of nearby Independence, depicts a typical Missouri pre-Civil War village.

The town is free from commercialism and is being reconstructed on a 170 acre scenic site contributing to the feeling of remoteness which state officials believe is necessary to the mood of the town.

Dog should not eat pits with his fruit

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Lumpy is one of those dogs who is crazy about fruit. Any kind of fruit, ripe, green, almost rotten, he will still eat it. He seemed to get by pretty well with all the cherries he ate (pits and all) but now he is having quite a bit of trouble with the peaches. He usually throws up the peach pits. Will they hurt him? — O.D.

Dear O.D.: Probably not. It's the peach pits he doesn't throw up which would have the potential for doing him in. Just how hazardous they might be would depend on their size and-or his. Certainly one capable of blocking his intestine, for example, could prove deadly. A peach-pit stomach could cause anything from a simple gastritis to perforation and peritonitis. Your pooch's peaches should be pitted prior to consumption.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Geep, my guinea pig, has lost most of her hair in a long line right down her spine. It looks pretty good but a bit dull over the rest of her body. Is there anything I could give her that wouldn't hurt, to try to get that hair grown back? I know you don't know for sure but I would appreciate any suggestion. — R.B.

Dear R.B.: This type of alopacia (hair loss) in the guinea pig is often due to a fatty acid deficiency. You could try one of the commercial oils containing these essential fatty acids.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Having tried all of the new kitty litter deodorant sprays on the market, I can say they don't work nearly as well as the common, human, household disinfectant-deodorizing spray that I use. Actually, it doesn't work as well as I would like it to. My cat's urine is terribly strong. I wondered if you could suggest a better product? — D.S.

Dear D.S.: For keeping a litter box odors down, it's hard to beat providing a clean box frequently. Of the sprays, it is far safer to stick with those designed for the purpose. The human disinfectant sprays of some types could prove toxic to cats. To reduce the odor at its source avoid fish in your cat's diet and encourage him to drink more. If the odor persists, the doctor might prescribe oral medication to reduce it, but he would first want to check a urine sample — and probably the cat as well — to be sure the problem was not due to disease. You didn't say whether or not your cat is a male but, if so, neutering might solve the problem also.

The fisher is the fastest tree-traveling mammal. It can overtake a red squirrel or a marten and can even outrun a snowshoe hare on the ground.

New First Aid

Book redone from scratch

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) —If someone at your house suffers an avulsion wound, do you know what to do?

Such an injury involves the forcible separation or tearing off of fingers, toes or even a whole limb.

Several hundred-thousand toes and fingers are lost annually in the United States through accidental amputation via powermower. The avulsed wound isn't exactly rare.

That's one reason the new Red Cross First Aid book, redone from scratch, includes avulsion wounds in the index. Also suffocation from plastic bags, another something hazardous on the American scene but not yet invented when the basic standard first aid book came out in 1910.

New editions of that first text came out four times, the most recent in 1957. There are so many what's new items on the accident front now that only a completely new text would do for 1973, according to Charles W. Russell, national director of Red Cross Safety Programs.

Emphasis in the new book is on prevention. Mostly through prevention can the accident toll be lessened.

In the case of an avulsion wound, for example, it would be far better to prevent amputation of a finger or toe by a powermower. But when it happens, dealing with it correctly becomes imperative.

You keep the victim calm, stop the bleeding and call for help—all of which you probably remember from the old first aid instructions. What's in the new text is the added advice: Send or take the detached part to the hospital with the victim. As swiftly as possible. This is so the surgeon can try to sew it back on—if possible. Wrap the part in a sterile dressing.

The Red Cross also is out with a new advanced first aid and emergency care book, the one used in courses for policemen, firemen and others in the frontlines of medical emergencies.

The new standard book, titled "Standard First Aid and Personal Safety," includes for the first time problems created by drugs and their abuse.

The information for both texts and the latest procedures for giving emergency aid was provided by a special committee of the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council. This group says accidents "top all environmental problems."

Russell said in an interview it is hoped that one in every family will take a course based on the new standard book.

The standard first aid course takes from 14 to 21 hours of instruction. For the elementary grade level in schools there is a simplified course. Russell said a pilot instruction project now is under way to teach nonreaders and those whose reading ability is limited.

Russell said one of the most popular of all first aid instruction methods is the eight-hour multi-media course developed in cooperation with the Bell Telephone System. This involves movies, programmed workbooks and instructor-led practice sessions. It is available in Spanish and English. Russell said it accounted for a large part of the almost two million first aid certificates issued by the Red Cross in the past year.

The first aid books are among the top best sellers of all time. More than 33 million copies have been distributed by the Red Cross since 1910 and as many more have been sold to schools and other outlets.

Preventive measures suggested in the new standard first aid book include:

—Use sharp objects only for their intended purpose, handle them with care, and keep them out of reach of children.

—Do not allow children to run with wooden sticks or with articles that may break if the children fall (for example, bottles, glasses or plastic toys).

—Mark or identify large picture walk-through doors so that unsuspecting individuals will see them and not walk into them.

—Evaluate as sources of injury all household appliances and equipment for work or play, including power tools, lawnmowers, and all electrical equipment.

—Unplug electric cords when equipment is not in use.

—Instruct children not to play with or around television sets, electrical devices in the kitchen and bathroom, fans, power tools, household cleaning equipment, sewing machines, lawn tools and other dangerous objects.

—Be a good housekeeper. Check the home frequently for objects that may cause lacerations or puncture wounds.

—Sweep up broken glass promptly. Discard cracked china and glassware. Use nonbreakable dishes and containers for all children and around tile and cement surfaces.

—Remove nails for boards.

—Keep yards, garages, storage rooms, basements and play areas free of trash and bottles.

—Take special precautions with firearms and ammunition and observe safety rules.

—Keep guns and ammuniton in separate places, each protected by lock and key.

—Do not allow children to play with any guns, including pellet and BB guns.

—Assume that all guns, as you handle them, are loaded but never load a gun until you are ready to shoot it. Do not misuse blank cartridges; they can cause serious injury and even death.

—Do not allow children to play with fireworks. Avoid the temptation to show off with fireworks in front of them.

P.S. —Why not clip the list of preventive measures here and paste them on the inside of the bathroom medicine cabinet?

Brochures will be handed out at Memorial Park Wednesday and Thursday and a puppet show for pre-schoolers will be staged at 9:30 and 10:30 a.m., Mrs. Streech said.

Fine Arts Foundation

Inaugurates new season

Artist-designer Millard Sheets will return to Claremont Oct. 2 to address members of Scripps Fine Arts Foundation at Balch Auditorium on the Scripps campus.

Professor of Art and Balch Lecturer Emeritus since 1972, Mr. Sheets is still very active with commissions, collecting, lecturing and annual teaching tours. He now spends what time he can at his home on the Mendocino Coast at Anchor Bay. His retreat features a spectacular gallery containing the artist's treasured collection of sculpture, artifacts and antiquities collected over the years on his extensive world travels. House, guest house and gallery-studio will be the subject of his talk at Fine Arts' opening meeting at 2 p.m.

Mr. Sheets was born in Pomona, studied at Chouinard Art Institute in Los Angeles, came to Scripps and gained fame as teacher, lecturer and artist. His works are in 46 museums in 15 states.

The artist will be the keynote speaker for the 1973-74 season of Fine Arts Foundation, with the theme, Art and the Environment.

On Nov. 6, Peter Selz, director of the new Berkeley Art Museum, will speak about his museum and its relation to the Berkeley art community.

Members will be invited to a gala night opening of a light media show at Lang Gallery on Dec. 11, and on Feb. 12, Fine Arts members with cosponsors, Friends of Pilgrim Place, will hear Dr. E. McClung Fleming, educational director of the Henry F. DuPont Museum in Wintertur, Del., lecture on "Wintertur Rooms and Gardens: A Unique contribution to the American Arts."

March 19 will mark the opening of the 30th annual Invitational Ceramics Exhibition at Lang Gallery. On May 7, a world-famous architect and planner Charles Luckman, will address Fine Arts members on "Contemporary Urban Architectural Projects, Worldwide."

Members will have an opportunity to meet with the speakers at a gallery reception following the meeting.

A special series of museum tours has been announced by the board as follows: Nov. 13, J. Paul Getty Museum, Malibu; Jan. 9, Newport Museum for a Mary Cassat retrospective and April 3 the Edward Dean Museum in Cherry Valley and the Desert Museum at Palm Springs. Mrs. Wayne Cameron is tour chairman.

Also offered will be an eventful one-day air trip to the Bay Area for a look at the Oakland, Berkeley and De Young Museum in San Francisco, with lunch at Girardhelli Square and a reception by a private collector who is a trustee of Scripps College. Mrs. Vance Kindt and Mrs. Robert Cooper will handle arrangements for the Jan. 25 proposed jaunt.

Cochairmen for the Lang Gallery Docent program, Mrs. John Esterline and Mrs. David J. Hopley, have invited board members and docents to the gallery today for the opening of the permanent Young collection.

Docents will continue their tours for school groups from Oct. 1 through Oct. 19. In addition to the Young Collection, visitors will see the paintings of Ted Kercie, Scripps art professor, and a concurrent exhibit at the adjacent Humanities Museum of replicas of American Indian cave paintings and of the Spanish Alta Mira cave drawings.

Purpose of the Fine Arts Foundation is to educate and to encourage patronage of the arts. Membership is open.

Broadway stores set store-wide festival

The Broadway Department Store has completed plans for a gala store wide festival, "Italia '73" which opens Thursday and will continue through Oct. 6.

The festival will include displays of special imported merchandise and home furnishings, Italian gourmet cooking demonstrations, Italian fashions, La Trattoria di Broadway, Italian wines and entertainment and enjoyment for all ages.

Egidio Ortona, the Italian Ambassador to the United States will join The Broadway in their salute to Italy.

Sunshine, sidewalk cafes, gaiety and good wines may bring to mind picturesque thoughts of a village in Italy. The stores will bring such a touch of Italy to their Century City shoppers with a sidewalk cafe.

A complete array of fine Italian wines will be offered in The Broadway's Wines and Spirits Gourmet department.

Many of The Broadway's departments will display a beautiful array of imported products. There will be an extensive collection of imported knitwear in both men's and women's apparel. Special emphasis will be given to the home furnishings departments as well.

Activated charcoal, highly purified and treated to increase its absorptive properties, is increasingly used as a filter to remove pollutants in everything from municipal water supplies to breweries.

CARPETS AVAILABLE IN ALMOST ANY COLOR

Which colors do you like best? . . . The carpet industry offers an overwhelming array of colors in many designs and price ranges.

Because your carpet is the second largest area of color in your room, selecting a color for it is most important.

To simplify your choice, think in terms of color families. Then look for the exact shade or tint you like most . . . Medium shades are best if you want a minimum of maintenance. Multi-color carpets, such as tweeds, florals and stripes usually wear better and side soil better than solids.

In heavy traffic areas, such as family rooms and halls, you will enjoy carpets that won't show every footprint. Tight, dense texture such as loops and twists give the best service.

Also consider the practical side of carpet color and texture. Choose a color you can live with comfortably for a long time. Your carpet should be a joy to look at as well as feel.

Remember whatever your selection calls for . . . We can assist you in our wide choice of carpets from the finest mills.

Autumn colors

Fall is the time when everyone is reminded of the wonder of changing leaves, with reds, yellows, greens and so many shades of soft brown dominating the landscape. The same colors will dominate the smart woman's new wardrobe—but in ladylike fashion. The accent is on tweeds and plaids, the traditional fall wear, and you'll never go wrong in camel's hair. Tops on the plaid list is glen plaid, the same design so popular again these days in men's wear.

Soloist will present program for women

SUSAN GARNER

A Scripps College music major will present the program at the Women's Club of Claremont annual membership tea on Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the clubhouse, 343 W. 12th St., Claremont.

Soloist Susan Garner is the winner of the John C. Walker upper division award of the Pomona Valley Music Vocal Award. She also received the Gladys Pattison music award from Scripps College. The program soloist is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Garner of Covina.

Chairman of the membership tea is Mrs. Edward Jakowczyk, assisted by Mrs. Charles M. Eakin. Members of the executive board, Mmes. N. A. Weston, Albert W. Clarke, C. C. Castleberry, William Seanor and C. W. Russi, will be hostesses for the event.

New and old members of the Women's Club will be greeted by Mrs. John S. Reynolds, hospitality chairman, and Mrs. Blair Goodlin, vice chairman.

New members to be presented at the meeting are Mmes. Robert D. Sahwvan, James R. Lattin and Ted Mitchell. Guests of honor from the San Gabriel Valley District will be Mmes. Robert J. What's Going on At Griswolds

Let's 'em eat cake! How'd you like to sample 600 cakes in a day? That's what our Master Bakers did for the L.A. County Fair — from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.! Everyone broke for lunch and Ed laughingly said, "I think I'll go have a beer", much to the horror of the lady in charge as this would ruin his taste buds. He didn't have the beer, but I'd say his taste buds were already in sad shape! Griswold's personnel are giving demonstrations in the Home Arts building at the L.A. County Fair with Merimekko fabrics, use of various coffees of the world, wines, hors d' oeuvres, tortilla making and tips from our cooks and chefs.

Brides-to-be should mark their calendars for the Fall Bridal Seminars to be held Oct. 2 at The Indian Hill in Claremont and Oct. 17 at the Country House in Redlands. Outstanding speakers, displays and fashions make for an interesting evening. There is no charge and reservations are requested.

Africa film industry faced with problems

By JANE BERGEROL

London Financial Times—UPI

Africa's infant motion picture industry is charting a trouble course, including an almost complete screen blackout of African productions in African productions in Africa itself and the rest of the world.

The reluctance of Western nations to show African Films is understandable. The U.S. market, for example, is a difficult enough one for any foreign director to crack. And most of the first generation of African film directors come from French-speaking Africa, so make French language films.

If it is naturally more difficult for these predominantly French language films to get a showing on American or British screens, despite growing interest in Africa, what distresses African film-makers is the blackout they get at home.

A glance at the films showing on any one day in Abidjan, the bustling modern capital of Ivory Coast, fails to turn up one African film. The city's 23 cinemas are filled with "spaghetti" westerns, Indian romances, Japanese adventures and a handful of the latest French box office successes. And Abidjan is no exception.

"These things are of no value to the people. They don't even understand the humor," says Lionel N'Gakane, one of the few African directors to have won a solid reputation. "African television is the same. It is the dumping grounds for all the old American serials."

To fight back and limit the power of the two or three international distributors who, they claim have a stranglehold on the African market, the Federation of African Film Makers is appealing to African governments to give them a share in cinema programs, even if they do not all go as far as Upper Volta, which nationalized the country's cinemas.

But some action at government level is essential, they feel, to impose regular showing of African films.

One problem they face is the reluctance of some governments to show films that are often critical of present-day Africa. Med Hondo, whose "Soleil O" is an irreverent and uncompromising exposure of racism and posturing by white and black alike, knows this well. For three years the film lay unused in his Paris flat.

"No one in France would come out of a showing shaking with fury. I said 'you flatter me'," he says. Now it has been playing to full houses in Paris and has collected wide acclaim. But its attack on the French in Africa today, and on some of N'Gakane's "black Frenchmen" have made several African countries reluctant to give it a screening and one government has banned it as "inflammatory".

U.S. will sell entire Hunters Point shipyard

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) Mayor Joseph Alioto announced that Hunters Point Naval Shipyard can be converted to civilian shipbuilding activities.

The Navy had insisted previously that it would retain 110 acres of the 963-acre installation, including one major drydock and ship repair facilities.

Alioto said the Department of Defense now is open to bids on the entire shipyard.

Alioto made his announcement after a closed-door meeting with Assistant Secretary of Defense Arthur Mendolia.

The Navy has been phasing out its ship repair operations at Hunters Point and proposed putting it in mothballs after next June 30th.

Paintings of horses now at 1st Federal

CLAREMONT — Paintings of horses by Chinese artist Dennis Yeh are on exhibit this month at the Claremont branch of Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association, 393 W. Foothill Blvd.

Yeh, a Ph.D. candidate in political science at Claremont Graduate School, is the son of Gen. Yeh Tsui Pai, a former commander in the nationalist Army, and famous for his own horse paintings. He influenced his son to take up art, starting him with eight years of study in the basis of all Chinese art, calligraphy.

Yeh's paintings are not intended to be photographic likenesses, but to capture what he describes as "the essential quality, the spirit of the horse, the happiness a horse has as a free spirit."

Yeh says his technique, and that of his father, differ from the traditional in that "they use all kinds of brushes, try to paint details right down to the lashes of the eyes." The young artist uses wool brushes which enable him to project a soft, graceful feeling. Yeh's horse paintings, significantly, never show a rider, nor is there every a landscape, true to his feeling that "horses should run free, without limitation of time or space."

Bruins roar back for 55-18 victory

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — UCLA fans needn't worry about the Bruins.

There is no question UCLA has a solid football team after it roared from behind to blister Iowa 55-18, Saturday night to rebound nicely from its opening loss to Nebraska two weeks ago.

Faced with a 10-3 deficit to the Hawkeyes after the first quarter, the Bruins outscored the Big Ten visitors, 21-0, in the second period to start the rout.

Iowa, a 31-7 loser to Michigan last week, was never a factor in the second half as UCLA enjoyed a picnic with sophomore John Sciarra at the controls.

Obviously, Iowa isn't in the same class as Nebraska but the Bruins are encouraged after the doubts expressed following their 40-13 defeat in Lincoln.

Sciarra, who alternated with senior Mark Harmon, scored two touchdowns and passed for another on a spectacular 46-yard play to freshman tight end Raymond Burks to earn Offensive Co-Player of the Game honors with fullback James McAlister.

The UCLA Wishbone blew apart as the Bruins ran for 405 yards with the Blair High twins Kermit Johnson and McAlister, doing most of the damaging.

Johnson became the Bruins' fifth all-time ground carrier as he ran for 87 yards on 12 carries to push his career total to 1,535. McAlister topped the statistics by gaining 101 yards on 18 tries.

Kicker Efren Herrera of La Puente also moved up in the UCLA record books by booting two field goals and seven extra points for a career 12 points, sixth on the all-time Bruin list.

Adding 61 yards on two completed passes in 12 attempts, the Bruins totaled 466 net yards to Iowa's 359. The Hawkeyes did most of their work through the air, completing 14 of 32 passes for 177 yards, but UCLA picked off four interceptions.

Defensively, UCLA was led by end Fulton Kuikendall with 14 unassisted tackles and one assist, but linebacker Rick Baska was named the Defensive Player of the Game for his interception, fumble recovery and three tackles.

It didn't take long for Iowa to get into the fumbling mood. On the third play of the game, quarterback Kyle Skogman's fumble on a pitch-out was recovered by safety Kent Pearce on the Hawkeye 24.

Five plays later, the Bruins settled for a 24-yard field goal by Herrera to light the scoreboard.

For the only time of the game, Iowa gave its fans something to cheer about. Harry Kokolus kicked a 45-yard field goal to tie the score and Skogman passed 11 yards to Brian Rollins for a touchdown and a 10-3 lead.

UCLA didn't trail for long. The Bruins drove 80 yards after the Iowa kickoff with McAlister scoring from the one to make it 10-10.

The Bruins struck again after Rick Baska recovered a Hawkeye fumble on the Iowa 27. After seven plays, Harmon dove over the line from the one to give UCLA a permanent lead.

Sciarra scored from the two with 4:38 left in the half to climax a 34-yard drive started when Pearce returned an interception 40 yards.

UCLA added 10 more points in the third quarter when Johnson ran nine yards around his left end for a touchdown to climax an 80-yard drive in 12 plays. Later in the period, Herrera kicked a 44-yard field goal to up the lead to 34-10.

L.A. goes wild but can't win

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — It was a big day for the Los Angeles Dodgers at the plate.

They banged out a hit every inning with four home runs against the Cincinnati Reds in the middle game of the crucial weekend series.

But the lack of pitching and fielding is causing the Dodgers to be thinking about second place and 1974.

Oh, there is still the slimmest chance the Dodgers will win the National League West but it's too far-fetched for anybody to seriously consider it.

Cincinnati, which goes for a weekend sweep today, cinched at least a tie for the West crown with its 11-9 victory Saturday, increasing its lead to 6½ games over the second-place Dodgers.

Sparky Anderson's Reds can wrap it up today as the champagne is on ice. Even if the Reds lose today, they still have six more games at home, needing only one victory, while the Dodgers close the campaign with a five-game trip to Atlanta and San Diego.

It was an early knockout Saturday as Cincy chased Don Sutton with seven runs in the first inning and added an eighth in the second for a giant 8-0 advantage.

Even with all that, Cincinnati lefthander Don Gullett couldn't record his 19th win as he was tagged for seven runs in 4 1-3 innings with Steve Garvey's three-run homer in the fifth—his second of the game—being the crushing blow.

Joe Ferguson matched Garvey with a two-run blast in the third and a solo drive in the ninth for his 24th and 25th—the highest for a Dodger since Frank Howard hit 28 in 1963—plus a double and single to increase his season RBI total to 88.

But the nine runs and 14 hits weren't enough to overtake the Reds, who used Pete Rose's two-run homer in the fifth and a final tally in the seventh to stay safely ahead.

The Dodgers still had hopes of pulling it out in the bottom of the ninth when Ferguson opened the inning with his second homer and Ron Cey singled.

But winning pitcher Pedro Borbon retired Garvey with Anderson going to his bullpen for the final two outs. Tom Hall got Willie Davis on a long fly to right and Clay Carroll did the job in getting Bill Russell on a force play.

The Dodgers gave the the Reds the game in the first inning on two official errors and several others which weren't put in the official box.

Rose's lead-off double should have been caught by leftfielder Manny Mota and rightfielder Ferguson misplayed Gullett's triple. Besides those, catcher Steve Yeager was charged with an error when second baseman Davey Lopes couldn't handle his throw on Joe Morgan's steal.

Shortstop Russell completed the inning by muffing Rose's grounders as the 32,343 customers booed.

"We didn't catch the ball very well," Dodger skipper Walt Alston admitted. "We made two errors but it should have been four of five. It was probably our worst played game of the whole season."

But Alston has some answers. "We came pretty far this season considering the inexperience of our catchers and infielders. Lopes played today with a bad back and was really hurting," he added.

There wasn't a lot of excitement in the Reds' clubhouse and Anderson still won't admit it's all over.

"I guess we have at least a tie," Sparky asked?

Demonstrating this is a week for records at Dodger Stadium, Rose's three hits made him the top switch-hitter in baseball history with 225 safeties, breaking the mark of 223 set by Frankie Frisco in 1923.

It seems most of the records have been set by the visitors.

DODGERS NOTES — In the home finale today, (2 p.m.) the Dodgers will pitch Tommy John (14-7) against Cincinnati's Fred Norman, 12-12 overall but 11-5 since joining the Reds on June 12 in what shapes up as the deal of the year for Cincy . . .

Many prizes, ranging from campers to bicycles, will be given out today on Fan Appreciation Day . . .

It will also be Autograph Day with 16 Dodgers scheduled to sign autographs between 12:50 and 1:20 p.m. at booths located throughout the stadium . . .

The Dodgers have hit 104 home runs this season for their highest total since 1966 when they hit 108 . . . Third base coach Tommy Lasorda celebrated his 46th birthday and tipped his cap to the fans.

Aaron pockets homer No. 712 against Houston

HOUSTON (UPI) — Hank Aaron, carrying his assault on Babe Ruth's career home run record down to the wire, belted No. 712 Saturday night—a three-run homer that gave the Atlanta Braves a 4-2 victory over the Houston Astros.

Aaron's sixth-inning shot, which stood 17,381 cheering fans on their feet even before he reached first base, pulled him to within two of Babe Ruth's mark of 714. Marty Perez and Darrell Evans singled before Aaron stroked the first pitch off loser Dave Roberts, 15-11, into the second row of the second deck 400-feet from home in leftfield.

Aaron wasn't originally supposed to play in the game. His name was left off the first Atlanta lineup but he said he felt so good when he came to the park he decided to play. Aaron will not decide until just before game time whether he will play Sunday.

The ball was worth $712, a bonus given by the Braves' ball club for returning Aaron's homers, but the fans fumbled the ball and it bounced back onto the playing field. Leftfielder Bob Watson retrieved it and tossed it to an Atlanta coach.

The other Atlanta run came on a homer by Paul Casanova in the third inning.

Zorn's passing paces Poly

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — It's been a restless week for head coach Roy Anderson. The Cal Poly skipper has been anxious to find out which Bronco team was going to show up to play Sacramento State.

Would it be the team that shocked Fresno State two weeks ago or the squad that played so horribly against Southern Utah last week.

Anderson found out Saturday night at Kellogg Field before 2,200 partisan fans. He got both teams.

In the first half Poly played like the team that traveled to Cedar City a week ago. But in the second half, Poly regained the form that beat Fresno State.

The Broncos overcame a 17-3 deficit and quarterback Jim Zorn fired four touchdowns passes to spark Poly to a 31-17 win over the Hornets from Sacramento State.

Trailing by 14-points late in the second period, the southpaw signal-caller spotted flanker Joe Fabian in the end zone for a five-yard TD pass. Klaus Trettin kicked his first of four extra points, to run his '73 string to seven, and the Broncos trailed 17-10.

The turning point of the game came midway through the third stanza when Poly turned down a 27-yard field goal by Trettin to try for a touchdown.

On the three pointer, the Hornets were guilty of off-sides and the five-yard penalty gave CP a fourth-and-one at the S. S. five-yard line.

On the next play Zorn hit Ron Tatum on a down-and out for the five yards and six points. This score tied the contest at 17-all with 3:36 left in the quarter.

The Broncos continued to take advantage of their momentum the rest of the way.

Defensive back Allen Wong intercepted a Hornet pass on Poly's 14-yard line.

On the next play, Zorn lofted an air-ball which Fabian ran under at the 48 and then outraced three defenders to complete the 86-yard score giving CP a 24-17 lead with nine seconds left in the third period.

The Broncs had already taken the sting out of the Hornets when defensive end Bill Embree recovered a bad snap from center on a punting situation at the Hornet eight.

Zorn then hit Fabian on an eight-yard score to complete the scoring.

Sacramento State amassed 220 yards rushing in the first half to lead it to a 17-point second quarter.

Roy Arregue booted a 27-yard field goal to tie the game at 3-3 early in the second quarter. Four minutes later, halfback Bob Martinez scooted around end for a 12-yard TD jaunt. Jack Myers concluded the Hornets' scoring with a three yard run with 3:29 before intermission.

The Broncs got on the scoreboard with 4:07 left in the opening stanza on Trettin's 21 yard field goal.

Linebacker Lonnie Mahi set up the score by knifing through the Hornet line to block a punt. Back Louie Perez picked up the loose ball at the 23 and raced to the nine. Four plays later Trettin split the uprights.

Zorn ended the evening with 13 of 35 completions and five interceptions to go along with four TD tosses. Fabian was on the receiving end on eight of those aerials for 199 yards and three scores. Tatum hauled in three for 32 yards and one score.

In 23-6 victory

SC depends on defense

ATLANTA (UPI) —It's beginning to appear that Southern Cal's hopes of repeating as national collegiate football champions will depend upon its defense.

The top-ranked Trojans, for the second Saturday in a row, failed to show the dazzling offense of a year ago in their 23-6 victory over Georgia Tech, a three-touchdown underdog.

With the heralded Anthony Davis averaging barely three yards per carry against the tougher-than-expected Tech defense, the Trojans were successful on only two scoring drives all afternoon.

The Southern Cal defense was something else. Four pass interceptions, three by Artimus Parker, a 48-yard punt return for a touchdown by Lynn Swann and a fumble recovery at the Georgia Tech 6 kept the pressure on the Yellow Jackets throughout the game.

"I had trouble seeing over all those huge defensive linemen while trying to pass down the middle," said Georgia Tech quarterback Jim Stevens, who completed only nine of 23 passes.

"The big difference was that Southern Cal never made a mistake, no interceptions, no fumbles," said Georgia Tech Coach Bill Fulcher. "I wish we could have said the same for us."

Swann scored the game's first touchdown on that punt return in the closing minute of the first period, and also scored the second, with 17 seconds left in the first half, on a 15-yard pass reception to pace the Trojans against the outmanned Yellow Jackets.

The Trojans, three-touchdown favorites, led only 17-6 until John McKay, the coach's son, caught a 15-yard touchdown pass with barely three minutes left to play.

The Trojans didn't get the first touchdown until the final minute of the first period and the offense could claim no credit for that. It came on Swann's 48-yard return after the out-manned Yellow Jackets were forced to kick from their own seven-yard line.

Georgia Tech actually trailed only 7-3 with 4:53 left in the first half, thanks to a 40-yard field goal by Cam Bonifay. But Swann widened the lead to 14-3 with only 17 seconds left in the half when he caught a 15-yard strike from quarterback Pat Haden who also threw the late game touchdown pass to McKay.

Georgia Tech marched 44 yards after the second half kickoff but bogged down at the Southern Cal 23 and Bonifay kicked his second 40-yard field goal to make the score 14-6 with five minutes gone in the third period.

The Trojans got a big break midway through the final period when James Sims recovered a Tech fumble at the host six one play after Jim Lance had kicked out of bounds on the Tech two-yard line. But the Yellow Jacket defense which had played over its head all afternoon, allowed the Trojans only three yards in three plays and Southern Cal had to settle for a 20-yard field goal by Chris Lamihelu.

The Trojans' final drive was started by the second of three pass interceptions by Artimus Parker and Southern Cal drove 62 yards with the pitch to McKay coming with 3:09 left on the clock.

The Southern Cal defense dominated play Saturday just as it did a week ago when the Trojans opened their season with a 17-0 victory over Arkansas. In addition to Parker's three interceptions, Marvin Cobb also had an interception and the Trojan forward wall kept Georgia Tech passer Jim Stevens off balance most of the afternoon.

Tech didn't even get its first first down until the final play of the first period and only got inside the Southern Cal 20-yard line once during the entire game.

Rams battle Falcons in Coliseum today

LOS ANGELES — It has been eight years since the city of Atlanta was granted an expansion franchise in the National Football League, and since that time the Falcons have become a title contender.

Rated to battle San Francisco for the NFC West championship by most national publications, the Falcons of coach Norm Van Brocklin had their best-ever season last year, finishing second with a 7-7 record.

It was a year in which the Los Angeles Rams slipped to 6-7-1 and third place, prompting owner Carroll Rosenbloom to hire a new head coach, a young perfectionist named Chuck Knox.

Both the Falcons and Rams had so-so pre-seasons in '73. But when the NFL campaign began last Sunday both were ready. While the Rams were upsetting Kansas City, 23-13, the Falcons flexed their muscles and routed New Orleans, 62-7.

Thus the stage is set for L.A.'s home opener against Atlanta today in the Coliseum. A crowd of more than 60,000 is expected to witness the 1 p.m. kickoff.

The two teams have played each other every year since '66 with the Rams winning 10 times, losing only once and tying twice. That loss, however, came last season in Georgia and it will be remembered for a long time. The score was a lopsided 31-3 as the Falcons set one club record with 297 yards rushing and another with six interceptions.

Dave Hampton and Art Malone were the Falcons backs that day, gaining 161 and 103 yards respectively. Last week against New Orleans, Hampton went 104 and Malone 57, and this pair is scheduled to start today.

Starting pitchers have changed, however, for both the Rams and Falcons. In that '72 game Pete Beathard opened in place of injured Roman Gabriel, who relieved and played the second half, while Bob Berry hurled for Atlanta. Beathard has since been dispatched to Kansas City, Gabriel to Philadelphia and Berry is in Minnesota.

John Hadl is now the Rams quarterback and although he wasn't pressed to throw at Kansas City, he was effective when he did, completing seven of nine for 95 yards and two touchdowns.

Meanwhile, Van Brocklin looked at his three quarterbacks during the preseason, then settled on 10-year veteran Dick Shiner over Bob Lee and young Pat Sullivan.

Shiner, who has been with five different NFL clubs, completed 13 of 15 for 227 yards and three touchdowns.

The Falcon quarterback is one of only two new faces in the Atlanta starting 22. The other is defensive tackle Mike Tilleman, the former Houston Oiler, who missed last week with a knee injury, but who is expected to return for the Rams.

Otherwide, it's a group of familiar faces who have become fixtures in Atlanta. They include a pair of stars at defensive ends (Claude Humphrey and John Zook), one of the premier middle linebackers (Tommy Nobis) and a secondary that may be the best in the NFL (corners Ken Reaves and Tom Hayes and safeties Ray Brown and Clarence Ellis).

Offensively, the Falcons like to run with Hampton (995 yards in '72) and Malone, but Shiner also has capable receivers in star tight end Jim Mitchell, who caught seven for 111 yards against New Orleans, and wide receivers Wes Chesson and Ken Burrow, who combined for three TDs in the Saints game.

Knox counters with a potent running attack of his own. Jim Bertelsen and Lawrence McCutcheon each went over the 100-yard rushing mark last week behind the crisp blocking of L.A.'s veteran offensive line.

Defensively, the Rams allowed two second-half touchdown passes, but otherwise contained the Chiefs. Led by Jack Youngblood, who had three, the Rams recorded five "sacks" on the Kansas City quarterbacks.

Knox also had words of praise for the play of linebackers Jack Reynolds, Isiah Robertson and Ken Geddes. Reynolds, in his first regular season start, recorded four tackles, five assists, one fumble recovery and one interception for 49 yards.

Following the Falcons game, the Rams hit the road for two weeks, visiting San Francisco and Houston before returning to the Coliseum to meet Dallas on Oct. 14.

Braves win, 35-6

A.L. buries Cavs

By SCOTT POINDEXTER
P-B Correspondent

UPLAND The Alta Loma High Braves broke open a 7-0 first quarter score with a 28-point second period, to bury the Montclair Cavaliers 35-6, Saturday night at Upland High.

The Braves rolled up 335 total yards to open their season on a devastating show of offensive strength. Jamie Broecker led Alta Loma on five consecutive scoring drives, passing for 77 yards and running 52. Kula Kuresa led the Braves in ground gaining with 80 yards in 12 carries.

Ted Pedvin opened up the scoring by taking a Montclair punt 69 yards back for the tally. On Alta Loma's next possession, Broecker drove the Braves down to the one-yard line and took it in from there.

Led by Bill Houtz, the Alta Loma defense utterly stopped the Cavalier offense on the next three times Montclair got the ball. In the second period, the Cavaliers were held to 23 yards rushing.

Bob Branchetti was the next hero for the Braves, taking a handoff on the Cavs 17 and running around end to up the score to 21-0. Three minutes later, Broecker hit Kuresa with a pass into the flat, and Kuresa took it 20 yards for the fourth score in as many possessions.

One minute later, Branchetti put the icing on the cake with 15-yard run up the middle of the field. At the halftime gun, Alta Loma had a sizable 35-0 lead.

Montclair had been held to a small 68 yard total both passing and rushing, while the Braves had close to 200. Kuresa had half of those yards. Branchetti had 44 yards in four carries.

The second half started with a gleam of hope for the Cavaliers, the first time the Braves got the ball, they didn't score, in fact, they couldn't even get a first down forcing a punt.

Montclair took possession of the ball on their own 49, and in 15 plays went down to score on a one yard dive by Filbert Gonzales. The Braves were almost able to pull off a shutout, nearly holding Gonzales on a fourth and goal situation.

Gonzales was able to rush for 54 yards to lead the Cavaliers in rushing meanwhile Brent Jetton, left-handed quarterback for Montclair passes for 57 yards in 13 attempts, yet had two picked off.

Next Friday night, Alta Loma will take on another San Antonio League team when they face the Upland Highlanders in the warmup game to league play. Montclair will return the favor and take on Hacienda League's Ontario Jaguars at Chaffey High.

'Hens tied 14-all in wild, wild finish

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT—In as wild a windup as anyone could imagine, Whitman College came back to tie Pomona-Pitzer 14-14 Saturday night at Alumni Field.

A total of 15 points were scored in the final two minutes and 20 seconds, eight of them by the visiting Shockers from the state of Washington.

The Sagehens had scored on a 10-yard Larry Cenotto to Biff Sherman pass play in the second quarter. Steve Dewindt's kick made it 7-0, Pomona.

Whitman came back to score a touchdown a minute and 25 seconds into the second half on a 40-yard pass play from Ashley Miller to end Kelvin Spillman. But Mike Guisti's kick was wide and the 'Hens held a 7-6 edge down to the closing minutes of the game.

A break gave the Sagehens the ball on the Whitman 17. A bad pass from center to punter Frank Hanson turned the ball over to the Sagehens.

On the first play, Tony Soter burst through the right side of the Shocker line and scooted 17 yards for the touchdown. Again, DeWindt's kick was good and it looked like the 'Hens were home free, 14-6 with 2:20 remaining.

Whitman put the ball into play on its own 20-yard line after the kickoff. A Miller to Spillman pass was incomplete. But on the second play from scrimmage, the junior quarterback hit Spillman at the Pomona 30 where the 6-4, 170-pound sophomore eluded a host of tacklers and twisted and turned the remaining 30 yards for a 60-yard bomb.

It was obvious the visitors would go for the two-point conversion. Miller took the snap and faded back. And there wide open in the left side of the end zone was Spillman. He took the pass the score was tied 14-14 with a minute and half left.

But that wasn't all. Starting on his own 19, Cenotto took Pomona-Pitzer 76 yards in seven plays to give the Sagehens a second and goal on the Whitman five yard line.

A delay of game penalty moved the ball back to the 10. With no timeouts left, and 13 seconds remaining Cenotta passed to George Benson at the three, but Benson could go nowhere.

The 'Hens hurriedly lined up to try to kick a field goal. With players scrambling all over the field, the center snap came rolling end over end to DeWindt who tried to get off a pass as the clock ran out.

Officials called a penalty on Whitman but ruled that the foul occurred after the clock had run out.

One of the wildest openers in years had ended although Pomona coach Walt Ambord didn't think the game should have ended.

"How can you end the game on a penalty without giving us another play," he demanded.

But there was no one to answer his question.

Burt Blyleven scattered six Angel hits in recording his 19th victory of the season against 16 losses. California starter Rudy May lost his 16th game in 23 decisions.

The Angels made it 4-2 in the fourth when Mickey Rivers and Frank Robinson scored on Bob Oliver's double to center field.

Minnesota added two more runs in the fifth. Rod Carew and Hisle scored when Angels catcher John Stevenson threw the ball past third baseman Oliver trying to catch Carew stealing third base.

California scored its third run in the sixth on Robinson's 28th home run into the right-centerfield bleachers.

Doug Hopper gained 188 yards in 23 carries for the Owls, while Bill Strycula, son of Citrus coach John, scored a pair of touchdowns on keepers.

Strycula sent the Owls ahead in the second quarter with a one-yard plunge, while Palomar came back on a punt return by Ken Iacuaniello that brought the ball to the one.

Hopper put the Owls ahead for good with a 57 yard run in the third and Strycula iced the cake with another TD in the fourth.

Garcia overcame a 6-0 deficit in the second quarter with a one-yard score on a keeper. Dave Pearce made it 13-7 with a two-yard burst in the third quarter, and then brother Don made the reception on a 56 yard pass from Garcia that set up a four yard TD pass from the same combination.

Al Emeterio added a 17-yard TD run late in the fourth quarter for Rowland.

Mounties outclass Golden West, 34-10

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT — Mt. San Antonio is apparently for real, a team not to be taken lightly.

The Mounties won their second in a row of the young season Saturday night, outclassing Golden West College of Huntington Beach, 34-10, at Memorial Stadium.

With a balanced offensive attack, 156 rushing and 149 passing, the Mounties put the game away late in the third period on a 24-yard field goal by Tom MacKenzie for a 20-10 lead.

Two fourth period TD passes of seven and 16 yards by quarterback Steve Myer and Bruce Alley only added icing to the cake.

Myer, the poised, young sophomore who led the nation's community college quarterbacks in completions a year ago, completed 14 of 28 passes for 149 yards and two scores. He mixed his calls nicely, using tailback Teddy Farmer on runs which totaled 124 yards on 27 carries. Six other runners carried nine times for 32 yards.

After spotting the visitors a three-point lead early in the first period, the Mounties scored on a 12-yard pass from Myer to Art Escajeda, a booming 48-yard field goal by McKenzie and Myer to John McIntyre pass which covered three yards, for a 17-10 halftime advantage.

Pat Thorpe's five-yard touchdown run near the end of the half accounted for Golden West's only touchdown.

Defensively, the Mounties capitalized on five fumbles and two pass interceptions by defensive back Larry Burrell.

Burrell's first theft setup MacKenzie's 24-yard field goal in the third period. His second interception and 16-yard return in the final period snuffed a Rustler drive which had penetrated to the MSAC 40-yard line.

But that was the story for Rustlers. Quarterback Danny Accamando worried the Mounties on the option, completing 10 of 20 for 107 yards passing, and an additional 57 yards on seven carries rushing. The fumbles and the pass interceptions nullified his efforts.

Both teams were penalized heavily — the Mounties 79 yards on nine infractions, and Golden West 69 yards on eight pealties.

Myer's main targets were split end Gil Stewart and Farmer. Both caught four passes. Stewart gained 61 yards. Farmer totaled 36 yards for 160 yards total offense.

In a tightly-contested first half the outcome at intermission 17-10, was decided on a Golden West fumble.

Walt Maddox fumbled Bruce Alley's' punt with little time left in the half and the Mounties had the ball with a first down at their own 46.

Myer completed a 29-yard pass to Stewart and followed that up with a 20-yard pass play on a screen pass to Farmer who carried the ball to the Golden West five. An offsides penalty on the Rustlers made it first and goal on the three and Myer hit McIntyre in the end zone for a touchdown and a 17-10 lead after McKenzie's extra point.

Myer completed eight of 14 for 100 yards and two touchdowns—the first one to Art Escajeda in the first period which covered 12 yards and gave MSAC a 7-3 lead.

Leopards fall in SCIAC opener, 20-7

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

WHITTIER — The 1973 edition of Roland Ortmayer's La Verne Leopards opened play here Saturday night with a Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference battle against the host Whittier Poets and a la Bobby Riggs, the Leos proved that a good defense is not enough without any offensive punch as Whittier scored a 20-7 victory.

It was the second game of the season for the Poets who wrote off Azusa Pacific last week, 16-6. That one-game experience showed early as Whittier converted two La Verne fumbles into scoring drives of 20 and 39 yards for a 13-0 first period lead.

Poet quarterback Jim Macdonald snuck over from the one for the first score and hit tight end Jim Lota on a 20-yard slant for the two scores as the Leos buried themselves in a hole early.

And as in years past, the La Verne squad simply does not have the offensive power to play catch-up football.

A spotty Leopard secondary placed La Verne in a deeper hole at halftime as Macdonald passed Whittier to a 51-yard scoring drive in the second quarter, covering final 20 yards himself on a scramble for a 2-0 cushion.

La Verne had a glorious opportunity late in the first half when Casey O'Groman recovered a Whittier fumble on the Poet 13. An off-side infraction helped La Verne get a first and goal at the two yard line. But then the frustration started.

Curtis Frick ran twice for a total gain of one yard, quarterback Marty Mercurio couldn't sneak it over and on fourth down from the one-foot line, Frick was stacked up again completing the Whittier goal-line stance.

Golden opportunity No. 2 popped up again as the Leo defense created another turnover at the start of the second half. Gus Newson intercepted a Macdonald pass on the Whittier 18, but La Verne fumbled on the first play.

In fact, the second half was all defensive with the only one able to move the ball being the officials. A total of 224 in penalties were assessed during the spirited battle, 87 against La Verne.

The Leos' only score was fittingly set up by the defense as Dave Long scampered 40 yards with an interception, giving La Verne first and goal at the eight.

Stags routed in opener

By TOM FAHEY
P-B Correspondent

CLAREMONT — The University of San Diego used a balanced attack to score 35 points in the first half, and hung on to defeat Claremont-Mudd, 35-7 Saturday at Claremont.

It was the season opener for the Claremont-Mudd Stags, who helped show it by fumbling seven times and throwing away three interceptions.

The first fumble came on the opening kickoff when Mike Graber couldn't find the handle, and the San Diego Toreros pounced on it at the 17-yard line.

The Toreros scored two plays later when Rich Paulson ran it in from the 14.

The rest of the first half was exactly the same. The Toreros marched up and down the field at will, scoring five more touchdowns.

The Stags could not move the ball in the first half as the Toreros defense continually came up with the big play.

The second half proved to be a different ball game. The Stags found themselves trailing 35-0, and they were determined to score. After the Toreros fumbled, the Stags had the ball in good position at the 40.

The drive was halted however and so Tony Bailey attempted a 50 yard field goal, but it sailed just to the left.

The Toreros tried to keep up their first half antics, but success was not to be found. The Stag defense led by defensive end San Reece, continually stifled any attemptted drive.

The lone score by Claremont-Mudd came after Terry Robertson intercepted a Torero pass at the Torero 20-yard line.

After two running plays produced only one yard, Stag quarterback Jamie Opatrny rolled out on third down looking to pass. All of his receivers were covered so he scampered for nine yards, and a first down at the the nine.

From there it took Bill Nash three times to score—the score coming on a one-yard plunge.

Nash proved to the Stag's most effective runner, picking up 68 yards on 15 carries.

The Stags had one other scoring opportunity, but Larry Caudillo intercepted Opatrny's pass in the end zone.

The final stats were overwhelmingly in San Diego's favor, as the Toreros gained 378 yards to the Stags' 197.

Top 10 come away victors

By United Press International

All of the nation's top 10 teams who were in action Saturday came through with victories but most of them had tougher times than expected.

No. 1 Southern California, successful on only two scoring drives, had to rely on its defense before nailing down a 23-6 triumph over George Tech; second ranked Nebraska needed a 21-point final quarter in order to whip 16th ranked North Carolina State 31-14; and fourth ranked Alabama found itself trailing 14-0 at halftime against Kentucky before rallying for a 28-14 Southeastern Conference victory.

Three other highly ranked teams, No. 6 Michigan, No. 7 Penn State and No. 10 Tenneesee had things pretty much their own way. Michigan scored the first four times it had the ball to beat Stanford 47-10; quarterback Tom Shuman passed for two touchdowns and scored one himself to lead Penn State past Navy 39-0; and Tennessee whipped Army 37-18.

Flanker Lynn Swann score on a 48-yard punt return and 15-yard pass reception to lead Southern Cal past Georgia Tech. The Trojans, three-touchdown favorites, led only 17-6 until John McKay, the coach's son, caught a 15-yard touchdown pass with barely three minutes left to play.

Trailing 17-14 and facing a fourth and 17 situation in the final quarter, North Carolina State elected to try a fake punt which backfired when Bob Martin tackled Eddie Poole on the State 21. Five plays later Nebraska's sophomore I-back sensation, Tony Davis, crashed into the end zone from two yards out. The score came after quarterback David Humm had rammed one yard to put Nebraska ahead 24-14.

Alabama, stung into fury by two first-half Kentucky touchdowns, stormed back on a 100-yard second-half kickoff return by Willy Shelby. Trailing 14-0 at the half, Bama scored the first three times it had the ball in the third period. Quarterback Gary Rutledge directed the Crimson Tide on marcnes of 59 and 75 yards for its second and third touchdowns to save Bama from a monumental upset.

Michigan rushed for 257 yards and got two touchdowns from Ed Shuttleworth in its win over Stanford and Tennessee got three field goals from Ricky Townsend and a 29-yard touchdown pass from Condredge Holloway to Dan Morgan to whip Army.

Fifth-ranked Texas lost to Miami of Fla. 20-15 and 16th ranked Houston beat South Carolina 27-19 in Friday night action.

Eleventh ranked Notre Dame opened its campaign with a 44-0 thrashing of Northwestern, 12th ranked Auburn crushed Chattanooga 31-0, 15th ranked Oklahoma State throttled Arkansas 38-6, 18th ranked Missouri beat Virginia 31-7 and Maryland upset 19th ranked North Carolina 23-3.

Elsewhere, Illinois downed California 27-7, Miami of Ohio stunned Purdue 24-19, Michigan State upended Syracuse 14-8, Baylor held off Pittsburgh 20-14, West Virginia downed Virginia Tech 24-10, Duke got by Washington 23-21, Georgia stopped Clemson 31-14, Mississippi State thrashed Vanderbilt 52-21, Memphis State surprised Mississippi 17-13, Colorado edged Wisconsin 28-25, Southern Methodist beat Cregon State 35-16, Air Force squeezed past Oregon 24-17 and top ranked small college Delaware crushed Gettysburg 60-18.

Napoles scores unanimous win

TORONTO (UPI) — World welterweight champion Jose Napoles Saturday retained his title with a unanimous 15-round decision over Canada's Clyde Gray at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The 33-year old Cuban native, who emigrated to Mexico in 1960, won the fight on the tallies of the two ringside judges, 71-67 and 71-65. Referee Jay Edson scored it 70-67.

Earlier, Edson's tally was added incorrectly at 69-69 and the fight was declared a split decision for Napoles.

Gray was able to recover after a mandatory eight-count but on the whole was only able to maintain a defensive battle.

Gray, the Canadian and Commonwealth champion, had his best round in the 15th when he rallied strongly and stunned Napoles with a left hook.

The win was the 72nd in 78 fights for the champion and his 10th successful title defense. He won the title originally in 1969 from Curtis Cokes.

"I knew that it would be a good fight," Napoles said after the victory. "Clyde is a good fighter."

"He didn't hurt me but if he wants a return match he can have one. One thing I'll say is he's as good as the other guys I fought in the division," Napoles said.

Napoles said it was a left-hook that put Gray down in the fifth round as the Canadian was coming to him.

Alfredo Cruz, Napoles' trainer, said, "Napoles could have been better. He missed a lot of punches and he needed least another 15 days of training."

Gray, a native of Halifax, N.S., said he thought the fight was "close. I thought it could have gone either way. I'd fight him again."

An estimated crowd of 10,000 was on hand for the fight, the first in a series of 10 bouts to be promoted here during the fall and winter by Top-Rank Inc. and two Canadian companies.

Former world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, who is part of the promotion behind the series, introduced the fighters and was given a standing ovation.

Hubie Green jumps to five-stroke lead

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (UPI) Hubie Green tied the course record of six-under-par 65 for the second day in a row Saturday as he jumped out to a five-stroke lead in the rain-dampened $100,000 Broome County Open.

Green, of Panama City Beach, Fla., fired eight birdies en route to a three-round total of 199, 14 under par. He narrowly missed a putt on the 18th green which would have set a new course record of 64.

Tied for the lead with two other players after Friday's second round, Green now leads Burt Greene of Hattiesburgh, Miss., who shot a three-under-par 68 for the third day in a row for a three-round-score of 204, nine under par.

The two other leaders after Friday's round, Dwight Nevil of Newburgh, N.Y., and Bob E. Smith of Sacramento, Calif., both floundered, finishing with one-over-par 72's and three round totals of 206, seven under par.

Leonard Thompson of Lumberton, N.C., finished behind Nevil and Smith with a two-under-par 69 for a three-round score of 207.

Mike Wynn of Crittendon, Va., was next at 208, followed by three others at 209 and four at 210.

A threat of fog and rain prompted PGA officials to move back Saturday's starting time to 11 a.m. Overnight showers left the course soggy in many spots.

"I hate could weather, but right now I'm digging it more than I usually do," said Green, who said he played his first tournament in the pros in cold weather. In that tournament, he said he chipped from ice-frozen ground on many holes en route to a 65.

Green bogyed the first and 14th holes and he said "those bogeys really bothered me a lot."

But he scored four birdies on the front nine before consecutive birds on the ninth, 10th, 11th and 12th catapulted him into a big lead.

He putted carefully all day, especially on the 18th, when he had the shot to break the record. He sank putts ranging from 12 to 25 feet after good iron shots onto the greens.

"I've got a five-shot cushion and I'll probably be a little more conservative than I would be," Green said about Sunday's final round at the En-Joie C Golf Club.

Bert Greene was pleased with his third straight 68.

"Anytime I shoot better than 70 it will always make me happy," said Greene, 49th on the PGA's money-winning list.

"The hardest thing was putting because we hadn't played in cold weather like this all year. One swing and you're numb."

"I'm very happy because I'm not playing that well. I haven't been hitting tee shots well all week," said Greene, who had seven birdies and three bogeys on the day.

APC Cougars collect first win of '73 season, 32-14

AZUSA — Azusa-Pacific evened its season record to 1-1 Saturday afternoon by rolling over Occidental, 32-14. The Cougars posted a 20-0 lead before Oxy retaliated with a second quarter touchdown.

Azusa quarterback John Tully compleetd 10 of 13 passing attempts for 101 yards including a first quarter touchdown toss to Bryant Stevens.

UCLA transfer Jim Farmer iced the game for all intents and purposes when he broke off a 27-yard run in the second quarter.

Oxy was charged with a safety in the third quarter, and a Dennis Koupal touchdown and Keith Harltey field goal pushed the score completely out of reach in the final quarter.

Farmer gained 110 yards on 13 carries.

The Cougars will try to one over .500 next week when they travel to Pomona for a game with the Sagehens.

Pro football roundup

Miami, Dallas in spotlight

By United Press International

The numbers to watch in the National Football League this weekend are 19 and 100.

The Miami Dolphins will attempt to become the first team ever to win 19 consecutive games when they take on the Oakland Raiders at Berkeley Sunday while the Dallas Cowboys will go for the 100th victory in the history of the franchise when they host the New Orleans Saints Monday night.

If previous form means anything, the Dolphins are going to have the tougher task.

After Miami posted a perfect 17-0 record last year, the Dolphins rallied to beat San Francisco last Sunday to stretch the streak to 18.

If they can beat the Raiders at Berkeley—the game was shifted to the University of California campus because of a conflict with the A's at Oakland Stadium—the Dolphins will set one mark and tie another.

The Chicago Bears in 1933-34 and 1941-42 posted 18 straight triumphs but no team has won 19. It would also be the Dolphins 17th straight regular season triumph—tying the record of the 1933-34 Bears.

The Dolphins won their final regular season game of 1971 plus all 14 last season.

But the Raiders, after losing a tough test to Minnesota last week, will be determined to bounce back. It'll be the first time the clubs have met since the Raiders beat the Dolphins 21-14 in the playoffs at the end of Don Shula's first season at Miami in 1971.

Shula thinks the Dolphins have improved since then—which is certainly true. But, speaking like a coach, he adds, "Oakland has to be improved this year because of the addition of Bubba Smith and what he's capable of doing for their front four. We're well aware of Oakland's potential. Year in and year out, they're one of the best teams in football."

Shrugging off the winning streak, Shula says, "I'm not thinking about winning streaks. Our intention is to win every week—and let the historians do the talking about streaks."

But he was impressed with his team's comeback against the Forty-Niners. "I can't tell you how proud I am of this team for its second half performance. I think the Dolphins should be recognized as one of the alltime teams for their second half performances."

Dallas and Tom Landry—the only coach in the history of the franchise—will be shooting for their 100th win against New Orleans. Only nine other coaches have posted 100 wins. Dallas won only six games in its first six years but the Cowboys have won 74 since 1966 —the most for any team.

Beating New Orleans should be easy considering how the Saints were routed by Atlanta last week. But Landry will have trouble keeping the team interested in the game and the Cowboys weren't that impressive in beating Chicago last week.

There are 11 other games scheduled Sunday. Washington is at St. Louis, Cleveland is at Pittsburgh, Atlanta is at Los Angeles, Minnesota is at Chicago, Detroit is at Green Bay, San Francisco is at Denver, Philadelphia is at the New York Giants, Buffalo is at San Diego, Houston is at Cincinnati, Kansas City is at New England and the New York Jets are at Baltimore.

St. Louis displayed its new passing offense under coach Don Coryell last week as Jim Hart completed 17 of 29 passes for 203 yards to beat Philadelphia. But the defense will be much tougher Sunday when Hart goes against George Allen's Redskin defense. The Redskins picked off four passes while routing San Diego last week.

It's time to start thinking about the AFC Central title already Sunday when Cleveland takes on Pittsburgh. Both clubs made the playoffs last year and are trying to do it again. Mike Phipps, who stung Baltimore with a pair of TD passes to Frank Pitts last week, will try to test the Pittsburgh defense. Cleveland hasn't won at Pittsburgh since 1969.

Since San Francisco lost its opener, the winner of the Atlanta-Los Angeles game will get a jump in the NFC West. Atlanta was supposed to have an erratic defense but Dick Shiner completed 13 of 15 passes for 227 yards last week —but it was against New Orleans. The L.A. defense will be tougher.

Chicago, which blew a chance for tie against Dallas last week with a fourth down gamble that backfired, will attempt to stop Minnesota—which was impressive in the victory over Oakland last week. Minnesota coach Bud Grant is playing rookies these days and one of the most impressive is Chuck Foreman, who has added a new dimension to the attack.

Quarter horses to highlight racing

POMONA — The spotlight will shift from the Thoroughbreds to the quarter horses Monday at the County Fair in Pomona as 10 of the fastest two-year-olds in the country battle in the $72,000 Pomona Quarter Horse Futurity, richest race ever run at the track.

Heading the field for the 350-yard dash are three horses owned by the Vessels Stallion Farm, and that trio is topped by Timeto Thinkrich, the brown colt who scored by one length in the $766,000 All American Futurity at Ruidoso in New Mexico.

Go Fartherfaster, fourth in the All American, and Tiny Be Mine, winner of the Juvenile Invitational at Los Alamitos the same day, will also represent Frank Vessels, Jr. in the Pomona Race.

Five divisions of the Futurity Trials were held last Monday to determine the 10 horses eligible to compete in the Futurity, and although all three of Vessels' horses qualified, Timeto Thinkrich did so while finishing second as a 1-5 favorite.

Fastest qualifier was Willett Barton's Cape Etta who scored by three quarters of a length in 17.80 seconds for the 350 yards. Winds of Spring, Sky of Diamond and I'm-On—the latter was the favorite in that division—also qualified.

Danny Cardoza will again ride Cape Etta who was posting her third career victory in six starts when she took a division of the trials.

Robert Adair has the call on Impressivley, another filly, who ran in 17.84 to upset Timeto Thinkrich and score the first win of her career.

Timeto Thinkrich, clocked in 17.92, will have John Watson in the saddle. Terry Lipham was named to ride Tiny Be Mine who took her division in 17.94, and Stanley Treasure will be aboard Go Fartherfaster, a winner in 18.01.

Lane's Red Hawk and Witchin' Hour complete the field. Kiptymy-Lou, Brandy's Star, Tita Mia and Captain Crunch are on the also-eligible list.

Top Thoroughbred race of the day is a mile and one-sixteenth allowance race for fillies and mares. Sea's Up, a contestant in the recent Bangles and Beads Stakes, will try to stretch out her speed against a field that will include Victorian Battler, Gaelic Coffee and Ruby Satan.

Lewis, Chacon sign for bouts

INGLEWOOD — World rated boxers Hedgemon Lewis and Bobby Chacon have been signed to box 10-rounders on the Rafael Herrera-Venice Borkorsor bantamweight title card at the Forum, October 13.

Lewis, holder of the New York version of the welterweight championship and the No. 1 contender, will meet tough Chucho Garcia of Reynosa, Mexico.

Chacon, the No. 6 ranking featherweight, returns to action against Famoso Gomez of Mexico City.

This will be Hedgemon's first Southland ring appearance since he decisioned Ruben Vasquez at the Forum, May 8, 1972.

The 21-year-old Chacon will be making his first local start since losing to Ruben Olivares, June 23 at the Forum.

Tickets are now on sale at the Forum box office and all Ticketron agencies for this outstanding program. They are priced at $15, $10, $7.50 and $5.

Super prizes for Scouting benefit event

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

About 150 Pomona Valley golfers will tee it up Oct. 17 in the first annual Swing-A-Club for Scouting Golf Tournament at Los Serranos.

Chairman Bob Culp of the Old Baldy Council Boy Scouts has lined up some prizes for the event which are just out of sight.

They include a weekend for two in San Diego and San Francisco and the use of a replica Cal 500 pace car, a Datsun 240Z, for a month. Air California is sponsoring the weekend for two in San Diego vacation and the San Francisco trip is courtesy of PSA.

Entry fee for the event is only $20, which includes use of a cart, green fees and a steak dinner following the tournament.

If you're a golfer with a yen to travel, you can't beat this deal. And you'll be helping a worthy cause at the same time.

THE FOURTH ANNUAL Southern California Women's Amateur Golf Championship will be played Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Pomona National Golf Club in Walnut.

The 54-hole medal play event is open to both private and public links club players with established handicaps (28 max). Competition will be in the championship flight and three handicap flights.

Pam Tynar of the Cal State Fullerton golf team is the defending champion.

The tournament is being held in conjunction with the National Golf Show and Seminar, in the Exhibit Center of the Disneyland Hotel.

Two Pomona teams return with 'gold'

Two of Pomona's 15 entries in last month's S.C.M.A.F. softball tournaments came home with "gold" as they say. However, for the first time in recent years there were no winners among the local teams.

There were participants in all seven of the S.C.M.A.F events with Harris Taven and Pomona First Baptist managing second place finishes. One advantage is being number two instead of one in a S.C.M.A.F. tournament is the trophy will probably fit on the mantle. The first place award is too big for that, a problem we would all like.

First Baptist knocked off Harbor Trinity of Costa Mesa, 6-3, and Bethany Baptist from Conejo, 7-3, to reach the finals. San Bernardino's First Christian team left little doubt who was the better in the championship game winning 11-2.

Twelve squads were entered in the S.C.M.A.F. Church Tournament hosted by the Santa Ana Recreation Department. The local Baptist squad led by coach Art Keough is always near the top in this event.

The Harris Tavern outfit made their first appearance in S.C.M.A.F. Slo-pitch Minor Division Finals an impressive one. They had to capture the tough San Gabriel Valley tournament to qualify.

In the finals the Sam DiCarlo coached outfit defeated Nicholson's Aces of Los Angeles, 21-15, and Kaenjo Bar from Norwalk, 7-2. The bubble burst in the championship game.

Tavern fell behind the Presidents from Ananeim at the very start. The winners scored eight runs their first time up and never trailed. However the locals did give them a scare.

Trailing 15-0 in the bottom of the third, Harris' started a two out rally that was sparked by Bill O'Brien's two run homer and accounted for seven runs. Mike Libolt's three run round tripper moved the score to 15-10 at the end of five.

However the Presidents pushed across seven runs of their own in the sixth and added two in the final frame to take a 24-10 lead. The Tavern rallied for six in the bottom of the seventh but it wasn't enough as they lost 24-16.

The leading hitters for the losers were Bill Woerz, Gary Wurtz and Bill Youpel with three hits apiece. Other players on the squad were Frank Chiappetla, John Hall, Gary DiCarlo, Wayne Cox, Roger Wilson, Larry Master and Bruce Hoxsey.

Fall tennis classes

Now that Bobby Riggs has fallen to Billie Jean King, some might think that tennis will once again move into the background. The feeling here is that even before the outspoken Mr. Riggs began making his challenges, tennis was one of the fastest growing participation sports in the country.

Riggs' antics have just added impetus to the game's growth. More people than ever have taken interest in the game.

Pomona's fall recreation tennis classes will begin on Oct. 8. Miss Marsha Miller will again be in charge of instruction.

Registration takes place on the Washington Park tennis courts on Wednesday, Oct. 3 from 7 p.m. until 9 and Saturday, Oct. 6 from 10 a.m. until noon. Adult instruction is planned for Monday and Wednesday evenings at Washington Park.

Youth classes will be held Saturday mornings at Garey High School. Participants will be given their session times at the registration.

Players must provide their own rackers, Marsha supplies the balls. The cost of the instruction is eight dollars for eight lessons.

A couple final thoughts on the Riggs-King match. It probably won't shut the male chauvinist up, for more than anything he is a hustler.

It could, however, do a lot for women's tennis is Ms. King and her friends will get off the lib kick and realize that there are greater gains to be made off the match.

There were some excellent volleys in the match. It was very entertaining with some outstanding shots. This is always true in the top flight women's tournaments.

Suicide barrier urged by man who lost son in leap

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The lieutenant governor of Maryland, whose son jumped to his death from Golden Gate Bridge, has urged construction of a suicide barrier on the famous span.

Pierre Lee, 27, son of Lt. Gov. Blair Lee III, died Aug. 17, the bridge's 493rd suicide victim. The suicide toll has since climbed to 497.

"I firmly believe my son would be alive today with a good prospect of remaining that way, if a suicide barrier had been in existence," Lee said in a letter to bridge directors. "The Golden Gate Bridge is the most beautiful I have ever seen. It should not be blemished by a suicide mystique that hangs over it."

Boys circus from Spain tours U.S.

BENPOSTA, Spain (UPI) —Benposta is not a place to be found on most maps. It is the "capital" of La Nacion de los Muchachos—"The Nation of the Boys"—near Orense in northwest Spain.

An entry in an encyclopedia about this "nation" might read: "Capital: Benposta. Area: 200,000 sq. yards. Pop.: 800. Flag: Orange and White. Founder-President: Father Jesus Silva. Government: constitutional democracy."

"And it's a practical, true democracy," said Father Silva, 39, who has given most of his years of priesthood to building this enclave inside authoritarian Spain.

"The boys elect their own representatives and officers. With some guidance, they assume full responsibility for running Benposta—its finances, public order and educational system."

There is no visible sign of Spanish authority in the boys' country. The 800 boys, aged five to 21, are fully self-supporting.

American Tour

To meet their annual budget of $500,000 they sell their leather, pottery, carpentry and machine shop products. They run a service station and are building a hotel. They also have a 100-member circus—Los Muchachos, the International Boys Circus—that regularly tours Europe and that is now touring the United States.

(Editor's Note: Beginning Sept. 6 the Boys Circus will tour the U.S., Canada and Mexico for four months. Cities it is visiting are: September— Philadelphia, New York, Providence, N.Y., Toronto, Ont., Syracuse, N.Y., Troy, N.Y., Springfield, Mass., Boston, Hampton, Va., San Antonio, Tex., Mexico City. November— El Paso, Tex., Tucson, Ariz., San Diego, Calif. December— Los Angeles, Oakland, Calif., San Francisco, Chicago, Washington, D.C.)

"I come from an old circus family," Father Silva said, "and when I became a priest I ministered to circus people, first in Spain and then in Europe."

In 1956, Father Silva moved some Orense slum kids, a few orphans and some abandoned farm boys into his mother's house. They soon started a circus, and more boys arrived. Today there are boys from 33 countries and "branches" in Hamburg, West Germany, and Guinea in Africa.

"Our aim is to forge a boy's personality, to stimulate his dignity and humanism within an ideal society of responsibility and liberty," Father Silva said.

The boys breakfast at 7, then attend classes where the emphasis is on individual learning projects. After lunch each boy works at his job.

"We get paid for going to classes and working, and we pay for our meals," said Jose Maria Sanchez Butos, a young trapeze artist. "If you don't earn you don't eat—unless you want to beg."

The whole "nation" comes together each evesing in the assembly, where the day's problems are thrashed out under Benposta's 18-year-old mayor, a recording secretary and the boys responsible for the civic spirit, finances and public order.

Each assembly ends with a recitation of the "nation's" 10 fundamental law, which urge a boy to honor God and his fellow citizens, and, with arms joined, a song that asks God for an end to war, avarice and vice. The boys who want to may then attend an informal Mass.

On Paper, Perfect

"On paper the system is perfect," said Manolo Martin, the curriculum coordinator, "though we don't always live up to it." He says students and teachers have staged an occasional strike when they didn't think the other side was pulling its weight.

And what does the Spanish government think of the system under which the enclave works?

"They don't tax us, which is nice, and they're even slightly proud of our circus, but they don't take us seriously," Father Silva said. "They think we're playing some kind of game."

South Carolina lures Hollywood film maker

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —If you get the urge to produce a motion picture, don't come to Hollywood, call Columbia, ,S.C. and ask for Gov. John West.

You might get lucky.

Composer Jack Lawrence decided to make a movie about a boy and a horse during the Civil War—or the war between the states if you live in the deep South.

He bought a property titled "Sieze the Devil" and decided it would work out best if the movie was filmed entirely on location in the South.

"I didn't know which of the six southern states would be best," said Lawrence, a distinguished looking man who composed "Tenderly," "All Or Nothing At All," "If I Didn't Care" and other long-time hits.

A friend told me that South Carolina was interested in luring film production to the East. At that time I didn't even know who the governor of the state was. But my brother knew a man close to the South Carolina political scene and contacted the governor's office.

"It wasn't long before I heard from Governor West. He invited me down there to discuss my project. I didn't waste any time getting there."

Lawrence was met at the airport by a limousine. He checked into a hotel in Columbia, but after dinner at the governor's mansion and singing some of his songs, West insisted he spend the night at the mansion—and sleep in the same bed once occupied by John C. Calhoun.

Lawrence vouchsafed his friendship by singing his own composition, "Linda," which also happens to be the governor's daughter's name.

"The next day I toured South Carolina's educational television setup. It's the best I've seen anywhere," said Lawrence. "The men are all young, bright and educated. The facilities are great for making movies.

"They were all intrigued by my story. I had a list of required locations—rivers, bridges, buildings, country roads. The governor said it could all be organized for me.

"After I got back to California they sent me a book of 100 photographs of locations that were perfect. I was offered the use of a helicopter during filming.

"When I said Civil War costumes would be expensive, they told me I could use the ones they had left over from a centennial celebration.

"They sent me a breakdown of all the little theaters, college drama clubs and acting societies in the state. It was like having a special casting department.

"I learned that South Carolina can save a producer time and money. Burt Lancaster made 'The Midnight Man' down there and shaved six days off his shooting schedule, not to mention thousands from his budget."

In return for the state's largess, South Carolina hopes the publicity will encourage tourism. It also welcomes the payroll of the production company, much of which would be spent in the state.

"I had hoped to start shooting down there this month," Lawrence concluded. "But now it looks as if we won't get started until spring."

The hangup is financial. But as soon as the bankroll is assured Lawrence will head for South Carolina, movie capital of the old South.

POMONA — Paintings, lithographs and drawings by Los Angeles artist Gary Polonsky are now on exhibit at the Pomona Public Library. The display continues through Oct. 15.

At 26, Polonsky relates his feelings and emotions through the form, color and texture of graphic media.

Beginning with a childhood interest in drawings, Polonsky became an engineering student with an art major at Santa Monica City College. He graduated from Art Center College of Design in Los Angeles with a B.S. in industrial design, and then began working as a serious artist. Believing he has something to contribute to the art world, he feels abstract art is often taken too lightly.

"I am trying to relate to an abstract emotion and so I let my work say what I would rather not put into words," he says. "Everything I do is spontaneous. I start and it develops."

The artist has entered a number of juried shows, including a recent showing in Laguna Beach. He has also participated in outdoor shows at Fashion Isle and Century City and currently has work in the Artisan Workshop in Palm Springs.

Polonsky has 18 pieces on display at the Pomona Library. His work in acrylic uses imagainative placement of color and form in juxtaposition with rough texture and frame lines which are intentionally broken.

The principal known mineral deposits in Oregon are sand and gravel, stone, limestone, asbestos, clays, gold, -cury, lead, uranium, zinc and silver, copper, platinum, mercury, lead, uranium, zinc and nickel.

Prospects bright

Boom in U.S. shipbuilding

NEW YORK (UPI) —American shipbuilders are experiencing their first peace time boom in this century and appear to have the brightest prospects since the days of sail.

This opinion comes from such shipbuilding executives as Ed Paden of Ingalls division at Pascagoula, Miss., of Litton Industries, Tom Batman of Todd Shipyards Corp. in New York and President Edwin M. Hood of the Shipbuilders Council of America in Washington.

As of June 1, there were 83 merchant vessels totaling 4.136 million deadweight tons under construction in American yards. Orders for eight more tankers totaling 1.114 million tons were received in June. During 1972, American yards obtained orders for more than $3 billion worth of new ships, and at year-end the industry order backlog for both merchant and naval craft was $5.7 billion.

The commercial yards currently are working 135,000 men and the Navy yards 65,000 more. Nearly one million people worked in American shipyards to turn out the vessels that helped achieve victory in World War II. But today's figures reflect the industry's healthiest condition in years.

The shipbuilding boom is worldwide, and the surge of business in American yards still leaves the United States ranking ninth among the world's shipbuilding nations as of June 30, according to Lloyds Register. Lloyds also says the global boom waned somewhat in the second quarter of 1973. Both the Organization for Economic Cooperation in Paris and the Brussels-based European Economic Community have warned about overbuilding.

Nevertheless, the scramble for petroleum, grain, ores and other commodities has all the shipbuilding nations expanding their yards to build supertankers, carriers of liquified natural gas and other bulk cargoes. Batman, at Todd, notes Portugal is building two giant yards to enter the competition and "France has quietly staked out a claim in the sophisticated technology of cryogenics with LNG carriers."

The American boom has its own national cause. The United States is the world's biggest customer for petroleum and potentially the biggest exporter of grains and other food products as well as cotton and general merchandise. The United States also is preparing to expand its trade with Russia and China.

The economics of shipbuilding and operating ships is turning in the United States' favor to some degree for the first time in this century except during the two world wars. Devaluations of the dollar and the rapid rise of wages and other costs in foreign shipyards and in foreign shipping fleets are eroding the high cost differentials that for so long relegated the Stars and Stripes to a minor role in ocean shipping.

The federal government says large ships such as LNG carriers can be built in American yards for only 15 per cent more than in foreign yards.

At that rate, the overall advantages of the American built ship to the U.S. economy become overwhelming. Even when the government pays a 35 per cent differential construction subsidy on a ship, it is calculated the total benefits to the national economy from shipbuilding activity amount to two and a half times as much as the subsidy. That was the theory on which Congress enacted the Merchant Marine Act of 1970, which helped start the current shipbuilding boom.

Economic benefits include national, state and local tax recovery amounting to roughly 25 per cent of the price of the ship plus wage and supplier payments and a host of other items.

In recent years a more urgent reason has developed for building American ships. For several years the nation has had a disturbing balance of payments deficit fed by the growing need for foreign oil and gas. Shipping industry experts calculate if the country were to depend on foreign ships to carry this petroleum, $25 billion would have to be expended on foreign exchange to pay for the transport alone.

Unlike old fashioned ships that had to find and carry cargo in both directions, the supertanker and the LNG carrier are one-way ships. That means the customer for the oil and gas pays the whole operating cost in both directions. Therefore a large consumer nation like the United States can specify carriage in its own ships if that is economically and politically advantageous.

Considering all these factors it is not surprising that last October Congress passed a law authorizing construction of 300 new subsidized merchant ships in the next 10 years. This will require the yards to turn out tonnage three times as fast as they are now. However, this law imposes a gradual reduction in maximum building subsidies from 55 per cent to 35 per cent of the value of the ship to cover the difference between costs in American yards and foreign yards.

This 1972 law clearly was aimed at speeding construction of LNG carriers and the type of supertanker called VLCC—very large crude carriers.

The Shipbuilders Council has set as a reasonable goal for the near future the building in American yards each year of eight to 10 LNG carriers plus more than three million deadweight tons of tankers, including six or seven VLCC's of more than 200,000 tons each. Robert J. Blackwell, assistant secretary of commerce for maritime affairs, estimates that from 30 to 35 cryogenic LNG carriers, American and foreign built, will be needed to supply the U.S. market by 1980. President Hood of the Shipbuilders Council says it appears a minimum of 25 to 30 of those LNG carriers costing more than $100 million each will be built in U.S. yards by 1885.

Dr. Armand Hammer of Occidental Petroleum Corp. says his 20-year trade and development agreements with the Russians will require construction of at least $2 billion worth of large new ocean bulk carriers to handle the trade. Hammer has predicted that most of this shipping will be built in American yards will fly the Stars and Stripes.

Such a shipbuilding program will force enormous expansion of the shipbuilding and shipping industries. Last March, President Nixon urged Congress to appropriate money and authorize building of offshore terminals for tankers of up to 250,000 tons. Late in July the administration began to push for passage of this measure but ran into objections from lawmakers from coastal states fearful about the ecological consequences of oil spills.

Nevertheless, this bill is expected ultimately to pass. President Hood of the Shipbuilders Council expects the first such offshore terminal to be built in the Gulf of Mexico within three years. He doesn't expect one on the Atlantic Coast before 1980.

Contracts for expansions of shipyards have been let in recent weeks. Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. of Newport News, Va., a subsidiary of Tenneco Corp., has let a $50 million contract for new drydocks and landfill and plans to spend another $50 million on expansion.

New styling, engines noted in Dodge line

New styling, new engines, new engineering innovations and new options are evident throughout the Dodge line for 1974, which includes the Monaco, Challenger, Coronet, Charger, Dart, Colt and a complete line of Dodge trucks.

The line of large Dodges for 1974 offers a selection of 13 Monaco models completely redesigned with the user in mind. "We feel thay buyers will find in Monaco the appeal and features they want in a big car,' said George A. Bilque, Dodge Division general sales manager.

The basic Monaco models include two-door hardtop, four-door sedan and two-seat station wagon Both the Monaco Custom and luxury Monaco Brougham trim levels come in two and four-door hardtops, four-door sedans and two and three-seat wagons.

Clean, attractive youthful styling is still the trademark of the Dodge Challenger said Bilgue. The Callenger is entering its fifth model year with improvements in safety features, a new engine option, some new exterior colors and a new tire option.

The Rally Challenger package includes a performance hood, black-out painted grille, fender scoops and side strobe tape stripes, ralley instrument cluster, heavy-duty shocks, ralley suspension with front sway bar and white sidewall bias-belted tires.

Other Dodge favorites are the Charger and Coronet, Bilque said. Charger, in coupe and hardtop versions, has three levels of trim: coupe, Charger and the top of the line Charger SE. Coronet comes in basic sedan and two-seat wagon, Coronet Custom sedan and two and three-seat wagons, and two-and-three-seat station wagons.

Dodge Dart for 1974 comes into a new model year with six basic models, new equipment offerings and added value. "The value is measured in economy of operation as a compact, stability of the overall design and quality, versatility and more room than many people might expect," said Bilque.

The Dart line for 1974 will not be extensively changed, but one of the more significant differences will be in the new hydraulic bumper system as standard equipment, a new rear bumper and unibelt passenger restraint system with starter interlock.

Car shoppers will have a lineup of five models to select from in the Colt subcompact family: a four-door sedan, two-door coupe, two-door hardtop, hardtop GT and a two-seat wagon. All are on a 95.3 inch wheelbase.

State agency gives OK on smog devices

LOSANGELES (UPI) —The California Air Resources Board ended a two-year controversy this week by voting to require owners of the state's 4.5 million 1966-1970 model cars to install $35 antismog devices.

The board decision, which faces another vote after a public hearing Oct. 30, would require owners to have the devices installed between January and October of next year.

The board approved a similar program in 1971 but delayed action pending the outcome of a dispute regarding the efficiency of the smog devices to be used.

The goal of the program, according to the board, is to reduce the output of oxides of nitrogen, a pollutant that reacts with hydrocarbons to produce smog. Cars made in 1966-70 are heavy emitters of the oxides.

Auto manufacturers have indicated they'll be ready to market the smog devices Jan. 1. The state plan calls for motorists with license plate digits ending with "1" to equip their cars by the end of next February. Licenses ending in "2" must be equipped by March, and so on until all of the 1966-70 cars are equipped by October.

The United States is Chile's major trade partner. Chile imports about $349 million a year in U.S. goods, while exporting $185 million worth to the United States.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — Two screws fell out of a cabinet door. Having no plastic wood on hand, I dipped the screws in all-purpose white glue and then I screwed them back in very quickly. This worked wonderfully. — LILIAN.

DEAR POLLY — A good way to store spools of thread is to glue golf tees, evenly spaced, to the bottom of a cigar box and put the spools on the tees after the glue has dried. — L. L. P.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for those who like to be sure their dogs are always cozy and warm. We tacked a piece of rubber inner-tubing across the doorway of our dog's house and cut a vertical slit in the center. This stretches nicely so the dog can go in and out, but closes tightly enough to keep out the cold winds and moisture. — ANNA.

DEAR POLLY — I had a piece of perforated board framed on the back, painted it the color of the kitchen walls and hung it near the stove. Many small utensils are kept hanging there so the needed one can be grabbed in an instant. — RUTH T.

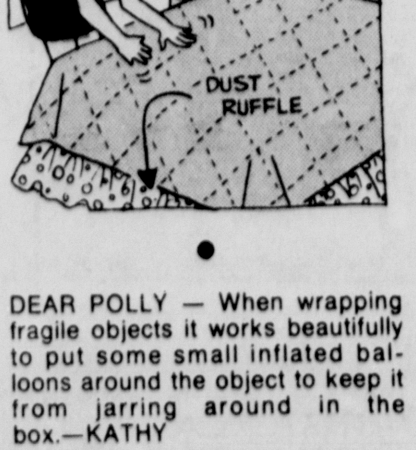
DEAR POLLY — I needed a large trivet to put under a roast to keep it out of the drippings. I used a 10-inch round aluminum pan. Holes were pierced to make a circle around the bottom of the pan and it was inverted under the roast in the roaster. The pan's rim helped give the needed height and it worked like magic. — RUTH.

DEAR POLLY — I have found that I can often use a twin-size spread as a coverlet on a full-size bed if a dust ruffle is also used. — MAXINE.



DUST RUFFLE

DEAR POLLY — When wrapping fragile objects it works beautifully to put some small inflated balloons around the object to keep it from jarring around in the box.—KATHY (Polly's note — This is good to a point, but I would not depend on the balloons for the sole protection.) Do wrap well and with thick enough covering to minimize the danger of breakage. — KATHY.

DEAR POLLY — If you want to make pretty and different coasters or patches, cut a desired shape out of felt. The piece would be larger for coasters than for patches. Stitch around the edges with a blanket stitch and then use an outline stitch to embroider your last initial in the middle.—LEANNA.

PUFFED WHEAT
COMPTON'S Encyclopedia

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

DANA ADAMS OF PINE BLUFF, AR, ASKS: "HOW IS WHEAT PUFFED INTO PUFFED WHEAT?"

CEREAL MAKERS MAKE PUFFED WHEAT IN SPECIAL OVENS THAT LOOK LIKE METAL TUBES. WHEAT KERNELS ARE SEALED IN THE TUBES AND HEATED UNTIL THEY ARE VERY HOT. THE HEAT CHANGES THE MOISTURE IN THE KERNELS INTO STEAM. THE PRESSURE OF THE HOT AIR IN THE SEALED TUBES KEEPS THE STEAM FROM BURSTING OUT OF EACH KERNEL. WHEN THE KERNELS ARE JUST HOT ENOUGH, THE CEREAL MAKERS QUICKLY OPEN THE TUBES TO LET OUT THE HOT AIR. THE HOT KERNELS SUDDENLY EXPLODE AND PUFF INTO "PUFFED" WHEAT.

FOCUS '73 on THE COVER

WEDNESDAY MYSTERY
NBC 8:30PM

A rotating series of four shows: Banacek (returning); Faraday & Company, starring Dan Dailey as Frank Faraday, a man wrongly imprisoned in South America for 28 years, who has a lot of catching up to do—including getting acquainted with a 27-year-old son he didn't know he had. Steve Faraday (James Naughton) is a private detective, as was his father at the time of his imprisonment, and the pair now decide to pool their talents. The Snoop Sisters stars Helen Hayes (as Ernestine) and Mildred Natwick (as Gwendolyn), a pair of nosey sisters who write mystery novels and who frequently become involved in real murders. Tenafly stars James McEachin as Harry Tenafly, a black private investigator who's a harried middle-class American and a solid family man trying to pay off the 30-year mortgage. There are no gorgeous girls chasing him and most of his cases are just routine and unglamorous. He's no superman, but don't try to push him too far. Lillian Lehman co-stars as his wife.

SHAFT
CBS TUESDAYS 9:30PM

Shaft will share the CBS Tuesday movie timeslot with the movies and Hawkins for the season. Richard Roundtree recreates his role from the movie of the same title, but the television version will stress action instead of violence. "I don't believe in violence for Violence's sake," says Roundtree. "In the series, Shaft relies on his razor sharp wit more than his gun." Ed Barth co-stars as Police Lt. Rossi, Shaft's unofficial friend and occasional confidant.

BOB & CAROL & TED & ALICE
ABC WEDNESDAYS 8PM

A half-hour comedy series starring Robert Urich and Anne Archer as Bob and Carol, a "with-it" married couple in their late 20s, and David Spielberg and Anita Gillette are Ted and Alice, a more cautious middle class married couple in their early 30s. Bob and Carol believe in talking out their problems, while Ted and Alice tend toward putting up with them. Bob and Carol are constantly seeking new approaches, new challenges and new trends, and frequently involve their more cautious friends in their schemes.

LOVE STORY (NOT PICTURED)
NBC WEDNESDAYS 10PM

This anthology series will have no regular cast. Each week it will feature different guest stars in a series of romantic tales following the concept of great romantic novels, stories and even motion pictures, with each presentation focusing on the start, the problems and the resolution of a romance. Varied plots may range from modern day romance in a big-city apartment to some of literature's more memorable classics. This series will premiere in October.

What Is the Spell Of the "Born Leader"? By Vance Bourjaily

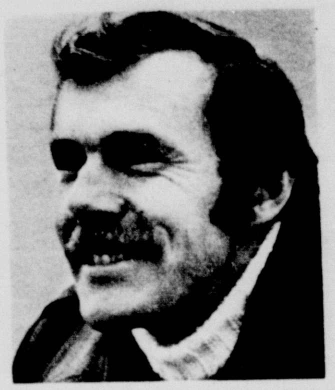
"I Lost My Daughter, Tuesday Weld, When I Helped Her to Stardom"

A Great Chicken And Beef Stew —For Dieters

Child Crises: Which Ones Are Serious— Which Are Not?

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.



FOR RICHARD BACH,
author of "Jonathan Livingston Seagull"

I thought "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" was about everlasting life and even wondered if you are a Christian Scientist. My friend thinks you wrote about reincarnation. Is either of us right?—Mrs. Wayne Figg, Dimondale, Mich.

● One thing that Jonathan isn't, apparently, is a Christian Scientist, since the only newspaper in the world that does not accept advertising for the book has been The Christian Science Monitor. If by "reincarnation," your friend means the living of many life experiences for the purpose of learning the nature of reality, the book is at least in part about reincarnation. If by "religious," you mean "a way of finding what is true," Jonathan can be quite a religious book indeed. I saw the story happen in what appeared to be a rather vivid dream before I slept. The book was not, as some accounts have suggested, dictated to me by a vaporous talking seagull.

FOR TERRY ANNE MEEUWSEN, 1973 Miss America

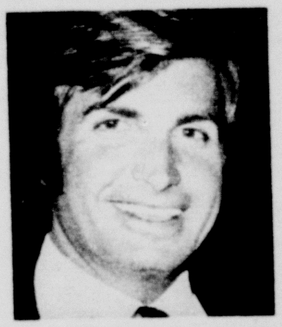
What advice did you give the new Miss America when she was crowned this September?—M. L. A., Mahopac, N.Y.

● That she make it a point to take five minutes out every day to sit down quietly by herself and get her head on straight. It's hard to keep from getting swept up in the rat race. No one can imagine the constant pressures Miss America is under. It would be all too easy to lose one's identity.

FOR JULIET PROWSE

Is it true that you married your nephew, who is ten years younger than you are?—A. C., Rome, Ga.

● Not exactly. My husband is eight years younger than I am, and we met when I played his aunt in "Auntie Mame," so only in that way is he my "nephew." Incidentally, we have a beautiful little boy named Seth who is one year old.



FOR GEORGE HAMILTON

You used to go with Lynda Robb, President Johnson's daughter. Do you still hear from her?—Paula Gabhardt, Norwood, Ohio

● The last time I heard from her was about a year ago. Lynda and her husband came to Los Angeles and we had dinner together at the time. Yes, we are still friends.

FOR SEN. ROBERT TAFT, JR. (R-Ohio)

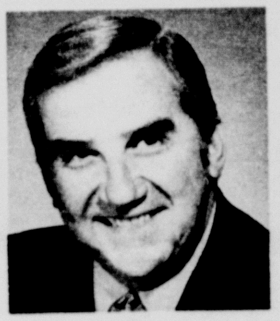
Could better rail service help relieve the energy crisis, or do trains gobble up as much fuel as everything else?—N. Pierce, Reno, Nev.

● The average passenger miles per gallon of fuel for a jet plane is between 21 and 22. For an automobile it is about 32, as compared to 80 for cross-country passenger-train service and 200 for suburban train, two-deck service. These figures, I think, certainly point to the advantages of using trains.



FOR ED McMAHON

Who is your favorite replacement host on the "Tonight" show? Also, how and why do you and other celebrities put up with the abuse heaped on you by Don Rickles?—Mrs. Walter Doll, Quincy, Mass.

● Joey Bishop is my favorite replacement host. He's done the job more than any other person, and I feel comfortable with him. Those of us who know Don Rickles are very aware that "Mr. Warmth" really is a warm human being. He's only acting and wouldn't deliberately hurt anyone.

FOR MARY TYLER MOORE, actress

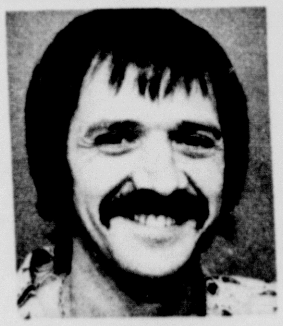
I read recently that you are a diabetic. So am I, and I was wondering if you find it difficult to keep your diabetes under control with your busy schedule?—Penny Holmes, Great Falls, Mont.

● Yes, I am a diabetic, but I don't consider it a handicap in any way. As a matter of fact, I think the fact that I have to organize and regulate my diet and exercise gives me more pep and energy. I feel great.



FOR SONNY BONO

What was the first hit song that you recorded? And do you write all of your own songs?—Tina Thomas, Pueblo, Colo.

● Our first "big" hit was "I Got You Babe," which I wrote. I write songs for many other performers besides Cher. And Cher has had several hits that I didn't write.

FOR RICHARD THOMAS of "The Waltons"

Is it true that on your way to the Shubert Theatre for the Emmy Awards program you destroyed your car?—Regina Philips, Austin, Texas

● It's true. I didn't expect to win, but on the way to the theater I thought, "But what if I should win?" So I began thinking about an acceptance speech and ran my car into a pole. [Editor's note: Richard did win the Emmy.]

FOR SEN. JAMES B. PEARSON (R-Kans.)

How could the Amateur Athletic Union suspend athletes and officials for joining a swimming team that toured Red China? I thought the trip had U.S. approval.—J. Rankin, Gary, Ind.

● It has been apparent for some time that these groups that govern amateur athletes are more concerned about the protection of their own rules and regulations and the perpetuation of their power than about the welfare and success of amateur athletes. We cannot continue to allow these self-appointed sports bureaucrats to interfere with our athletes, or with our foreign policy.

When a Great Leader Charms Us— Is It Really Only "Charm"?

"I cannot guarantee that I will always like the way I behave with men who have these various degrees of magnetism. This feeling is not unusual in the men around Harold Hughes. I remember one of his staff saying to me . . . , 'When I go in to make a pitch to him, I always get myself up for it. . . . But he always takes me. I may get to make my point after he does, but he always has to take me first.' "

John Neubauer

Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa with an aide in his Washington, D.C., office.

By Vance Bourjaily

Novelist, journalist and professor at the University of Iowa's Writer's Workshop, Vance Bourjaily has written "Brill Among the Ruins," "Country Matters" and other books.

My subjects are examples of human magnetism, Tony, and Harold Hughes.

Let me start with Tony, who is still vivid to me from the time we were ninth graders together, 36 years ago. I changed schools in tenth grade, and saw him only once again afterward, before he was killed in the Second World War. He had a lot of charm.

At the age of 14, Tony could cause anybody—man, woman, boy and especially girl—to like him immediately and forgive him eventually. Tony was incorrigibly, sometimes offensively, mischievous, and needed a lot of forgiving. It didn't occur to me then, as another boy, reacting with pleasure or with hurt feelings, depending on whether I found myself in or out of Tony's favor, that the purpose of the offense might be to test the charm.

Using Tony as my example of magnetism at the tricky level of charm, I can begin to see both what produced and what limited it. It seemed to be a product of vitality, physical attractiveness, great verbal ability and warmth—or, at least, the appearance of warmth. When you felt that Tony liked you, you felt that liking you was the center of his life. That wasn't so, of course, so one limit of his magnetism was dishonesty, and there were others like it: Tony was amoral, unstable and full of self-doubt.

Nevertheless, I think he could have made his mother walk off a cliff with one sparkling, blue-eyed glance, and his stepfather was just plain scared of the kid. His smile would have melted anything except, I guess, the Luftwaffe bullets that knocked his P-40 into the English Channel in 1943.

But about charm: I have learned since, as I don't suppose I did with Tony, that while one may have a good time with a charming person, and perhaps be persuaded by him or by her for a time, the insecurity and instability and lack of moral center sooner or later offset the charm. One learns, then, after a while, to handle charming people. Or rather one learns to handle oneself around them, to resist their need to be loved, rejected, loved again.

And then there is the case of Harold Hughes, senior senator from Iowa, where I live. His degree of magnetism is to charm as a jet engine is to a firecracker.

Harold Hughes first saw me about 18 months after his election as governor of Iowa. That was in 1964, when I appeared in his office in Des Moines, from Iowa City 110 miles away, as a constituent, one of a solemn-faced group come to demand an accounting on conservation matters.

Harold Hughes was 46 then. So was I.

In 1968, Governor Hughes took me on as a member of the staff in his campaign for the U.S. Senate, which he won—in spite, so the party professionals out here still say, of his having nominated Eugene McCarthy for the Presidency in Chicago. Since then I've either seen, or exchanged letters, or talked on the phone with Senator Hughes two or three times a year.

Somewhere, I have a letter from him apologizing for his delay in answering one of mine, in which he remarks that secretaries had shuffled it around, "not realizing that you are a personal friend." I would feel quite content to accept the phrase, but not quite honest.

I take it to be part of the particular loneliness of public life that when a man reaches a certain level in it he can no longer make new friends in any full sense of the word, unless it be with others at the same level, and only then if both men have decided against competing to rise to the next level. For all the rest of us, he finds himself the prisoner-king of a realm of jockeys and sharpshooters, wherein the highest rank a new acquaintance may attain, except by some miracle of affinity, is something short of friendship—an honorable and useful courtier, perhaps, a favorite jester; at best a trusted counselor and confidant who, taking the risk of independence, may deserve knighthood or dismissal, depending on how things turn out. But it is only with an old friend, from the time before it all began, that the public man need never be on guard; so be it.

There were one or two times in the 1968 campaign when Harold Hughes and I were close; but they came when he indicated a need for someone to talk to, and I was at hand, and it would have been stupid of me to presume that the tone of an evening's dialogue would carry over to our work next day.

It's as simple as this. In hot weather, and if there's no one else to do it, and no matter how big and strong the candidate may be, you carry the suitcase to the motel room. You know what breaking into a sweat would do to his shirt collar. I remember Harold Hughes saying to me quite ruefully on a day like that, as we started out campaigning, "You've got to take care of the product if you want to show it, don't you?"

I am, then, no more than one of a

WHY PLANT A GROUND COVER?

In many areas and situations, ground covers are more appropriate and more satisfactory than turf. They are able to grow and thrive in sun OR shade, and in poor soil.

On steep slopes where mowing is difficult, ground cover is much more effective and much less laborious to maintain than grass. Ground covers hold the soil as well as turf and the textures are far more interesting.

Small areas of grass are a continual chore to keep mown and trimmed but ground covers require almost no care. They are excellent protection and soil conditioners. They hold the fallen leaves from blowing away, thus helping to add annually to the humus content.

WHY CREEPING RED SEDUM?

One of Sedum's most valuable assets is its full time beauty. Lush foliage begins in early spring, and star-shaped wine red flowers delight the viewer from late June through September. The attractive semi-evergreen foliage lasts well into winter, maintaining its rich green and bronze color nearly all year round.

Besides being one of the loveliest of the ground covers, Sedum also rates high on the other requirements. It is hardy, grows well in sun or partial shade, in sandy soil, clay soil, or good soil.

Its thick foliage and root system hold the soil on slopes or banks. The neat 3-4" cover forms a dense perennial mat to bring green and wine red beauty to slopes, borders, rocky areas, anywhere beauty and durability are needed.

Each plant will easily and quickly spread to fill one sq. ft. Sedum spreads evenly, maintains its uniform smooth beauty at all stages of growth. Unlike some other ground covers, Sedum, also called "Dragon's Blood," stays where you put it — does not straggle out into places where it doesn't belong. Sedum is almost indestructible, enduring and persisting against heavy climatic and nutritional odds.

FULLY GUARANTEED

All items guaranteed to be of high quality, exactly as advertised and to arrive in good healthy condition or purchase price will be refunded. RETURN SHIPPING LABEL ONLY —you may keep the plants. (One year limit).

Now is a Good Time to Order RED SEDUM!

Your young Sedum plants will establish themselves and begin to spread a few days after planting. In a month or so they will already be 3-4 inches in diameter. They may lose their foliage as the first winter progresses but will leaf out again in early spring. During a long growing season they may reach 12" in diameter, always maintaining their neat regulated shape.

I lost 79 pounds and turned into Casanova's dream girl.

by Donna Arnold — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

At 205 pounds, I had a fat chance of dating the one fire fighter I'd really set my sights for. That's when I decided I'd better find a way to lose weight.

It took me eighteen years to get up to 205 pounds. Then I got a glimpse of the Casanova of the Fire Department, Ricky Arnold, and it took me only nine months to come down off that peak and turn his head. But of course, I needed a little help.

Fortunately, I found it soon after I went to work for the Department in Savannah, Georgia. That was the only place I could get a job, thanks to the kindliness of the Fire Chief.

He saw something beneath all those years of custards, cookies, fried chicken, potatoes and gravy — which is more than they did at another place where I was interviewed. You see, a girl friend and I had tried to get telephone operator positions there, but the supervisor said we were so fat, neither one of us would be able to get between the seats at the switchboard. This upset us so, we both went out and ate away our frustrations.

But to get back to the Fire Department, the girls who worked in the investigation division, like me, were put on the second floor. And I'll tell you, those fire fighters had a ball watching our legs going up the stairs. Why, they never missed a pair — of slim ones anyway.

As for mine, if they bothered to look up, all they saw was oversized knees, rubbing together. That didn't stop me, however, from looking down and developing a crush on Ricky.

At this point, I'd like to say that in every overweight person's life, there comes a moment of decision, motivated by desire or shame or ambition or fear. A moment when a person knows it's time to lose weight. And I knew when I saw Ricky that the only way I was going to get his attention was to take off those pounds.

Past experience told me that reducing pills weren't for me. A girl friend at work, however, had some of those reducing-plan candies, Ayds®, so I tried them. And I liked them so much, I bought a box of the chocolate fudge kind and started on the Ayds plan right away. Incidentally, I read the contents on the box and it was reassuring to learn Ayds contain vitamins and minerals but no drugs.

I'd never been a breakfast eater, even though I know that's an important meal. But before lunch, I'd have two Ayds with hot coffee, as the directions say, and they really helped curb my appetite. I was completely satisfied with a salad and maybe meat. For supper, I'd have two more Ayds with coffee, followed by broiled meat, salad again, a vegetable and perhaps fruit. But Ayds were the biggest help to me in the evening, because they kept me from filling up on tons of calories while I watched television. And for someone who was used to eating a hundred miles an hour, that's doing something.

Well, even the first month on the Ayds plan, that weight really started to come off. It must have shown, too, because Ricky actually asked me for a date. He took me to the beach and I felt so wonderful, I refused to eat even a custard. Love had completely taken me over! I was determined that the Ayds plan and I were going to get me my man.

Of course, Ricky still played the field while I was going down, but I was getting to him. When I dropped below 150 pounds, one of his friends asked me out and I went just to make him jealous. And to get back at him for once saying I looked like I had inner tubes under my chin. Well, Rick got so furious at my dating another man, I knew I'd turned the tide.

Anyway, the happy ending is that Rick and I got married a little better than nine months after I'd been on the Ayds plan. I was just below 125 pounds.

Don't think I've given up the plan entirely, though, even now. There is always a box of Ayds ready, if I need them. You see, Rick insists that I get weighed every single day. He checks on me, too, because he won't tolerate my being over 130 pounds. So I know I have to stay between 125 and 130. And the Ayds plan helps keep me there.

Believe me, this is a true story. There are plenty of witnesses. The fire fighters Ricky worked with, thirty men per shift with three shifts, all saw how the Ayds plan worked for me.

As you can see, I've lost just about half of me. I'm now down to 126 pounds and, girls, losing those 79 pounds has won me my man – the Casanova of the firehouse.

Is It Only Charm?

number of men Harold Hughes seems to have found more useful than irritating, likes pretty well (I think I can say that), and can count on.

Nor have I, to be wholly truthful, set forth one final awkwardness; to do it, I've got to confess that many of the times I've felt less than comfortable with Senator Hughes have had nothing to do with his position, but were rather a consequence of the personality that put him into the position. Harold Hughes is, quite simply, an overpowering man. I sometimes wonder if he realizes the strength of his magnetism.

This is the thing I continue to ponder, for the phenomenon of human magnetism seems to me a central mystery to be solved in trying to understand how certain men alter history. It is a quality to which we give different names at its different levels of strength.

At a low level—Tony's level, I suppose—we call it charm. At the next we recognize it, perhaps, with an old-fashioned term like character. At a still higher level we call it personal authority, and can be awed (and discomfited) by it. Yet it causes some rebellion in me, too, and some cynicism—I cannot guarantee that I will always like the way I behave with men who have these various degrees of magnetism. This feeling is not unusual in the men around Harold Hughes. I remember one of his staff saying to me, during the '68 campaign:

"You know, I think I'm pretty good. When I go in to make a pitch to him, I always get myself up for it. I'm going to get him this time. But he always takes me. I may get to make my point after he does, but he always has to take me first."

"God," I had to say. "He even takes me over the telephone."

Once I failed to see that magnetism might exist at levels more potent than charm, a degree that we more often associate with harm politically than good, learning finally to prefer the intelligent, conscientious officeholder who gets his work done. Probably it should have been obvious to me that magnetism at the higher levels is the most essential of the various qualities that combine as leadership, and therefore find myself involuntarily sympathetic with Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon, who have seemed to lack magnetism or even to hold it in negative quantities. "When Nixon comes in green on color TV," my wife said once, "I don't even pink him."

But whatever its origins in personal security, in ego, in great physical and intellectual energy, in moral wholeness, a grown man's degree of magnetism is probably inalterable, like his shoe size or the color of his eyes.

Harold Hughes has more of it than any other man I ever met.

Senator Hughes' voice is a strong, clear bass ("I can't get within an octave of baritone," Harold Hughes once told another writer). The only other American voice I know that resembles it belongs to Johnny Cash, the country singer, but as a speaking voice, Cash's is second best.

Energy is the constant quality in magnetism at every level. But rarest of all, even in the kings and emperors who are supposedly bred and educated for it, is magnetism in its highest degree: dominance.

An actor like George C. Scott sometimes conveys it and I feel it in Senator Hughes. With this kind of person (I'd be more confident in saying so if I knew more than one example) I think the moral certainty has been raised to moral commitment. The emotional certainty is now emotional commitment—yet, oddly enough, the totality of the self-confidence seems somewhat diminished. There is in Hughes (and I would guess other men and women like him) an undisguised strain of humility. I think what has been added to the other qualities, besides commitment, is the kind of intelligence that will not allow any conclusion to be foregone. It reflects. It broods. It asks.

It may not, perhaps, suffer fools gladly, at least not for very long. But genuine dominance, if that is what I've encountered, is not arrogant; it doesn't need to be. fw

Want to Break Those Bad Habits? A New Approach

"Since neurotic behavior originates in learning, its elimination is probably a matter of 'unlearning.' "

"Don't be silly, I've taken them every night now for 20 years, and they haven't become a habit yet!"

By Richard Allen Stull

A tempestuous Broadway star once cajoled her doctor into allowing her to order some sleeping pills. "Be careful how you take these," he cautioned. "First thing you know they'll become a habit with you." "Don't be silly," she scoffed. "I've taken them every night now for 20 years, and they haven't become a habit yet!"

Every one of us is a creature of habit. "Habit is a cable," observed Horace Mann. "We weave a thread of it every day and at last we cannot break it." Each New Year we reflect on our good and bad habits and make resolutions to do something about the latter. We usually fail. This is because habits are so strong. Perhaps what is needed is a new approach. Instead of being so concerned with the elimination of bad habits, perhaps we should spend our time thinking about the formation of good habits.

Psychologists suggest the following rules for breaking involuntary habits and establishing new ones:

1. Make an old involuntary habit voluntary. Deliberate exercise of a bad habit can give us control over the undesirable response, so we can inhibit it at will. Typists, for example, often correct the bad habit of typing "hte" for "the" by consciously practicing "hte."
2. Substitute a new response for the older one. The best way to overcome a bad habit is to replace it by a good one. A new response must be associated with a given stimulus by reconditioning. Dieters often replace the chain of "take, unwrap and eat candy," with "take, wash and eat celery."
3. Start the new habit with all possible initiative. Commit yourself publicly to a new course so that fear of ridicule will strengthen the incentive.
4. Permit no return to the old habit. Refuse every temptation leading to use of the rejected behavior.
5. Exercise the new habit voluntarily as often as possible. Repetition provides regular reinforcement. Unreinforced habits tend to become extinct.

A golf professional, hired by a big department store to give golf lessons, was approached by two women. "Do you wish to learn to play golf, madam?" he asked one. "Oh, no," she replied. "It's my friend who wants to learn. I learned yesterday."

A relatively new psychological concept is the method of treatment known as the learning-maturity concept. Stated simply, this means that emotional stress is the result of mis-education, or lack of proper education, and that emotional stability can be achieved by learning the qualities that comprise maturity. This concept is in direct opposition to Freudian analysis, which is anchored in the concept that emotional stress is conditioned early in life by some unacceptable experience that is relegated to the dark depths of the subconscious where it preys on its host forever.

The learning-maturity concept insists that, regardless of the omissions and commissions of the past, we have to start in the present, here and now, to acquire some maturity so that the future may be better than the past. The present and the future depend on learning new habits and new ways of looking at old problems.

The best presentation of this new theory of psychotherapy as a serious alternative to the repression theory of Freudian psychoanalysis is that of Dr. Joseph Wolpe. In his work, Dr. Wolpe has applied the known laws of learning to the special problems of neurosis and developed new techniques of therapy.

Dr. Wolpe calls his method "psychotherapy by reciprocal inhibition." Briefly, this means that in general it is possible to overcome a habit by forming a new and antagonistic habit when you are faced with a similar situation. For example, an overly dependent adult is encouraged and taught to assert himself in practice situations until he can reach out and take a stand on his own. Since neurotic behavior originates in learning, its elimination is probably a matter of "unlearning." What distinguishes this new method of treatment is the much shorter span of time required for what may be an even more successful approach than the lengthy and expensive exploration of a hidden past.

In earlier days, America's pioneering psychologist, William James, anticipated this approach when he said: "The sovereign voluntary path to cheerfulness, if our spontaneous cheerfulness be lost, is to sit up cheerfully, look around cheerfully, and act and speak as if cheerfulness were already there. If we act as if from some better feeling, the bad feeling soon silently steals away."

In this old and new theory, effect becomes more important than cause, and emphasis is in doing and practicing the new rather than exploring the reasons for the old. If this principle is, indeed, a master key to the cure of neurosis, a much brighter future lies ahead for the victims of neurotic suffering.

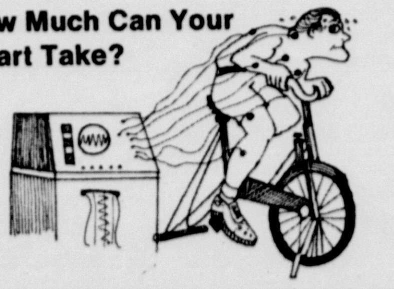
Did You Know Cats Are Born Deaf?

It's true—cats are born deaf. But they soon develop a hearing range of from 20,000 to 25,000 vibrations per second. And, because their ears are much more intricate than ours, they can harbor trouble. When you groom your cat, wipe the ear flaps clean with baby oil and look inside. Never probe with a sharp instrument. If your cat is always pawing and scratching at his ear he may have ear mites, a pesky problem (common to strays) that usually needs a vet's attention. If your cat develops bare patches on the outside of his ears, he may have Notoedric Mange. This will respond to a prescription ointment, but keep your hands clean when applying. Blood blisters, caused by scratching, can collect between the layers of skin. Don't try operating; let your vet do it. Meniere's Disease is an infection of the inner ear that will cause your cat to roll drunkenly from side to side. It's an unpleasant disease, but it does respond to antibiotics.

The Doctor Lets You In

How Much Can Your Heart Take?



You just had a checkup. All is okay—even the electrocardiogram (EKG), in which you lay with electrodes plastered over your chest and leg. Yes, but how does your heart react when you are not lying down? Now methods have been devised to show heart action as it is under stress. Called Heart Stress Tests (HST), they come in a variety of forms. One is the Master 2-step test, in which the patient walks up and down a two-step stool with electrodes on his chest and leg. Another is the stationary bicycle test, in which the patient pedals while his heart action is recorded. The HST does two things: It shows heart action as it is under daily stress, and it tells how much exercise your heart can take without getting hurt. As part of your regular health examination, ask your doctor to send you for a stress test. It's one of the best ways we have of predicting proneness to heart attack.

Joe Weider, fitness expert and trainer of champions since 1936 says:

"Give me 5 minutes twice daily for only 7 days and you'll lose up to 3 inches from your waistline, up to 6 pounds of unwanted weight, and 'shape up' — or I will return every penny."

LET'S FACE THE FACTS WHY YOU'RE OUT OF SHAPE

You eat the wrong combination of foods, you do not get enough exercise to thoroughly work your muscular, metabolic and respiratory systems daily. Because of this, fat accumulates around your waistline, heart and other body organs, slowing you down, aging your body and destroying your vitality, virility and youth. There is only one way to firm up and shape up: that is through proper exercise and proper nutrition. Effortless exercisers, reducing pills, sauna shorts, weighted belts, dangerous and painful diets and other gimmicks designed to appeal to your laziness will not work and have been exposed by the medical profession as frauds, ineffective and in some cases dangerous. They can only reduce your pocketbook.

Face up to it...If you want to slim down, firm and shape up, you must work off the inches, and there is no safer, faster and more enjoyable way to do it than with our patented, truly miraculous "5" Minute Body Shaper Plan.

HOW DOES THIS INGENIOUS "5" MINUTE PLAN SLIM, FIRM AND SHAPE YOU UP?

Its miraculous slimming action is based on doing one simple "5" Minute Continuous Rhythm coordinated exercise, lying on your back! That's all you do! That's all your body needs to help make up for the lack of activity it doesn't get most of the day. The action is designed to supply your waistline and hipline (where fat accumulates quickest, giving your body a flabby, weak and distorted look) with the activity it needs to slim you and keep you slim. It also burns off excess fat FAST by speeding up your metabolism and respiratory system, using up stored calories, carbohydrates and fats and releasing excess water, thereby shaping and firming up your total body!

It's safer than strenuous gym workouts, beats the time consumption and dangers of gym workouts...or any other vigorous sport.

The unit weighs about 16 ounces and fits any wallet-size case. You can carry it with you and use it — anytime — wherever there's floor space for your body. Even while watching television.

Patent Pending. © Copyright Joe Weider, 1973

RICHARD TYLER, D.C.

"Beats jogging and working out in gyms — and much safer. I lost 4½ inches off my waist in 14 days." — JIM HANLEY, famous athletic coach.

"Based on sound physiological and medical knowledge, it burns fat and shapes the body without strain to the heart or other organs. I lost 12 lbs. of excess weight using it." DR. ANITA D. SANTANGELO, Chiropractic Orthopedics

WHAT COMES OFF IN 14 DAYS?

Individual results vary, but during an average 14-day period you can expect to lose up to 4 inches from your waistline and up to 10 pounds from your present weight. For a "5" Minute Exerciser — it sure does a lot.

Tuesday Weld's Mother Says:

"When I Helped Tuesday Become a Star—I Also Lost My Daughter"

By Yosene Ker Weld

Pictorial Parade

Tuesday, as she appeared at recent "Play It as It Lays" cast party: Some compare her with Marilyn Monroe.

Mrs. Weld is coauthor of a forthcoming book about her daughter and herself, "Tuesday Says I'm Dead," scheduled to be published next year by Curtis Books.

This is addressed to all mothers—and fathers—who ever wondered if perhaps their precious little Susie or Johnnie might not be destined for Hollywood fame. Who, in other words, have considered joining that most infamous and maligned club—the "Backstage Mothers."

I am writing because I have "been there." I know. Today, at 29, my daughter Tuesday has attained much of the success I always dreamed of for her. She recently won the Best Actress Award at the Venice Film Festival for her role in "Play It as It Lays," and some profess to see her as the new Marilyn Monroe or Liz Taylor.

Let me tell you what it has been like for Tuesday and me.

As a baby and as a little girl, Tuesday was all love and kisses for her "Mommy." She was so possessive that she demanded most of my time, even pushed aside her sister and brother, to their bewilderment and anger.

I think she was pleased when I introduced her to modeling because it meant she could be with me and have my full attention focused on her.

For me, however, it was the job of a workhorse. After my chores with the other children, I'd get Tuesday ready, then lug heavy suitcases full of clothes from interview to interview, carrying a large portfolio of pictures and résumes, and often toting Tuesday as well. When Tuesday was first getting started modeling in New York, I'd sometimes be so tired and disappointed at the end of the day, I'd feel like sitting on a curbstone and crying.

But of course, I didn't, I couldn't. For the last thing I wanted to do was destroy my child's morale. If a child's deep desire to succeed and great faith in itself is destroyed, there's no use trying. It's utterly senseless for a mother to "push" a child. If the child doesn't want it, there's no way.

For instance, when Tuesday and I first started on our "go-see's," as we called interviews, she sometimes refused to be the little girl I knew she could be. Her shyness would give her a "set" look, and she would become withdrawn around the other chattering children and confident mothers.

But don't get me wrong. Despite a few "disasters," Tuesday took naturally to modeling. Even at three-and-a-half, when she had her first job at Best & Co., she loved the work because it involved getting dressed up and having special attention. Tuesday was as good as gold. She took direction without question and had the stamina to continue long after the other children had started crying and had been taken home. She might get stubborn, but she never tired on the job.

One thing a mother of an especially talented child must watch out for is the demands that talent and ambition can make. Tuesday wanted all of the attention, all of the time. But I had two other children to think about. When Tuesday was eight-and-a-half and at the peak of her young career, I took the family to Florida for a quieter life and healthier climate, but especially so the older children could have the best swimming coach in the country. Earlier, both Sally and David had developed into championship swimmers. For those two years Tuesday lived like other girls her age. But with attention focused on her brother and sister, she was bored. We moved back to New York, and soon little girl friends, now the smart young models and budding actresses, came to welcome Tuesday back to the city. It was obvious that Tuesday would want to get back to work again.

> "Would I advise others to join the 'Backstage Mothers' Club? I think not. The initiation fee is terribly high—and you'll be paying dues the rest of your life."

It's hard to imagine, considering how beautiful Tuesday was as a youngster and as a teenager, that she was ever an "ugly duckling." But she went through an awkward stage between 10½ and 12, suffering from skin problems and overweight. Worst of all, her hair, once long, blonde and silky, came in frizzy curls, brunette and unmanageable. I went to the top hair specialists, had it straightened and made her a blonde again. I concentrated on diets and complexion care. Tuesday came out of it beautifully. All it took was time, some money, constant care, and just plain growing up.

Mothers often ask me how they can tell if their child has a chance. I think the mother's own instinct has a lot to do with the decision. One can tell quite early if a child is musical and has a sense of timing. Timing is fundamental to success, I believe. But the most important thing to look for is a depth and quality of sensitivity. I knew from the beginning, when Tuesday was a little baby, that she had a special awareness. But I always felt she was holding something back.

Another route in which I don't believe is too much special coaching—acting lessons, acting schools. Tuesday received her training by starting at the bottom. From the very beginning, I encouraged her to listen and to observe, particularly the director and the feature players' work of any kind, even as a standby or as an extra in a mob scene. Tuesday had all the exposure to the business of acting that I could manage to get for her.

The greatest heartaches were yet to come. For, like so many actors and actresses who have had "Backstage Mothers," Tuesday grew resentful as she grew older. The pulling away began when she was working in Elia Kazan's "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs" on Broadway. Tuesday was just 13, but the people in the cast, most of them in their twenties, accepted Tuesday. And she reached out to them, too.

When we came to Hollywood, she wooed friendships with older and older show biz people, and because she had them, she felt she needed her mother less and less. Soon she completely disregarded any advice or counsel and stayed away from home most of the time. Several years ago she began to talk about me, outrageously, to the press.

I have had job offers to be an agent for other children. But Tuesday's lack of understanding has been such a bitter disappointment to me that I just cannot bear to put myself in that position again. The joy and pride have been great, but I cannot honestly say they outweigh the sacrifice and pain. I fear when I helped Tuesday become a star—I also lost my daughter.

It's a terrible shame that the only communication between parent and child is what they say about each other in print. But I don't know if it's possible for Tuesday and me ever to resume a natural mother-daughter relationship.

Perhaps, someday ... but it's not very likely.

In the meantime, I live with my regrets. Would I advise others to join the "Backstage Mothers" Club? I think not. The initiation fee is terribly high—and you'll be paying dues the rest of your life.

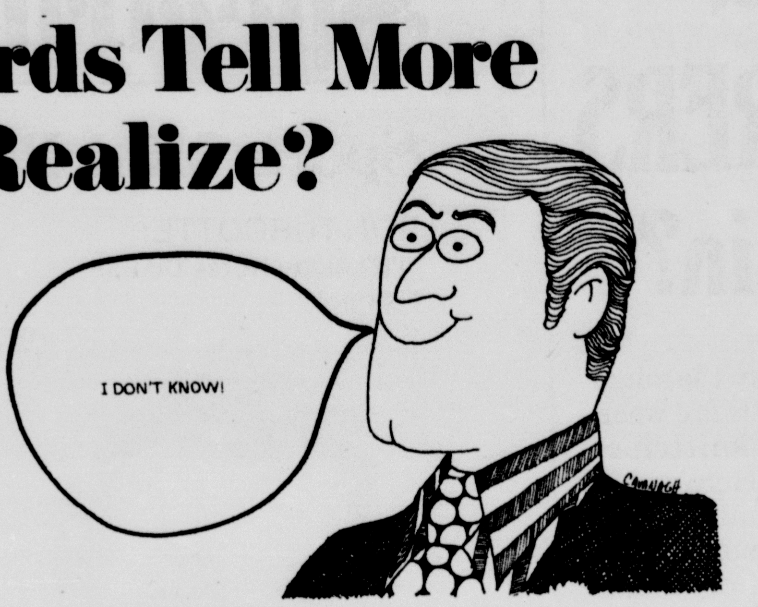
Do Your Words Tell More Than You Realize?

By John E. Gibson



True or False: The silent, taciturn, man-of-few-words, who seldom gives voice to his thoughts, isn't likely to have many. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you have a fluent command of language and are seldom at a loss for words, you may be envied—but it won't make it any easier for you to get along with people.

2. If your language "turns the air blue" occasionally, it can cut down on your chances of being stricken by stress-ailments.

3. The silent, taciturn, man-of-few-words, who seldom gives voice to his thoughts, isn't likely to have many.

4. Frequent use of the phrases "To be perfectly frank . . . ," "To be honest with you . . . ," etc., is an indication that the speaker is basically an honest person.

5. Silence is often far more expressive than speech.

ANSWERS

1. False. Studies show that fluency in speech and "skill and ease in interpersonal relations" tend to go hand in hand. The more articulate you are in expressing yourself, the more it facilitates mutual understanding.

2. True—according to findings of research at Britain's University of Manchester, which show swearing to be highly effective as an emotional safety valve for all sorts of pent-up tensions. It's pointed out that the alternative to swearing—i.e., "swallowing a bellyful of resentment without protest"—may implant the seeds of a duodenal ulcer. It's also observed that: "If the disposition to swear is as deeply ingrained in human life as it appears to be, it could be put to further good use in international affairs as a substitute for war!"

3. True. As one human-behavior specialist has observed: "If a man has no free communication with others, his internal thinking tends to grow inhibited. Thinking demands discussion and conversation, test and confrontation. When it is denied these things, it suffers."

4. False—according to the findings of psychiatrist Sandor S. Feldman. "Habitual use of such phrases as 'Frankly speaking' or 'To be honest,' " he finds, "indicates that the person is not always frank and honest." It's pointed out that if it were characteristic of the person to speak nothing but the truth, he would not feel it necessary to emphasize the fact that he is being honest in this instance.

5. True. "Silent language," when judiciously employed, can be one of the most effective forms of communication. It can say things and convey feelings that could be put into words only with greatest difficulty—if at all. For example, a significant pause before replying—or not answering at all—can have a far more telling effect on the other person than anything you can possibly say. Silence, as one authority has observed, is a powerful and often unanswerable figure of speech. It is also noted that "Silence is one of the hardest arguments to refute."

The Diet Watch

Two New Nonfattening Snacks

Yes, snacking can be nonfattening and satisfying. A delicious snack is a cup of popped corn (25 calories). Instead of pouring butter over it (at 40 calories a teaspoonful), sprinkle it with a teaspoonful of grated cheese (about ten calories), for a total of only 35 delicious calories! By contrast, a skimpy snack of five potato chips runs about 60 calories. . . . From Hollywood comes word of a popular low-calorie healthful lunch or supper that fills you up: Slice half a cucumber into a soup plate, add a dash of lemon, a half-cup of yogurt and a teaspoonful of dried onion soup. Stir up and dine on a fresh-as-spring meal at a cost of about 90 calories. You can also mix in four or five leaves of cut-up romaine, which adds about ten calories and at least three times as much vitamin A as ordinary lettuce.

RON TURCOTTE:
"I'll Let the Horse Do the Talking"

Wide World

Ron Turcotte, who rode Secretariat to his spectacular "Triple Crown" victories this year, thanks his lucky stars he was born small and remained that way instead of developing into an average-size specimen like everyone else. Turcotte's small stature enabled him to latch on to a career as a jockey when he lost his job in a Canadian lumber camp, and his victories aboard Secretariat and other top thoroughbreds have hoisted him into the $250,000-a-year bracket. . . . Turcotte, a French-Canadian, followed his dad into work as a lumber-cutter. But when hard times forced the lumber camp to close in 1960, Ron went to a nearby racetrack to search for a job and was hired as a $35-a-week "hot-walker"—a boy who walks racehorses around the track to cool them off after they've been exercised. Because of his size and because he'd had experience aboard workhorses, he decided to become a jockey. He apprenticed first as a rider of yearlings and gradually acquired the skill to handle mature thoroughbreds. Unlike such colorful jockeys as Willie Shoemaker and Eddie Arcaro, Turcotte disdains a showy style. "I've been lucky enough to have ridden horses with a lot of personality and spirit, so it doesn't matter if I'm not colorful myself," he says. (After dinner, he and his wife Gaetane, a childhood sweetheart, play cribbage, and are in bed by ten.) The 31-year-old Turcotte has been winning consistently for several years, but reached the jackpot with his victories in the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes last year and his "Triple" success this year aboard Secretariat.

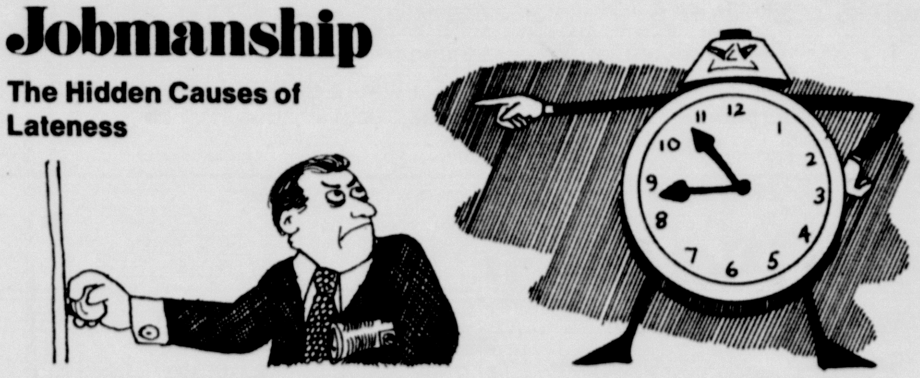
Jobmanship

The Hidden Causes of Lateness



Even though you're a good worker, you'll eventually strain your boss's patience if you're frequently late. When it's an emergency or serious family illness, everyone understands. But if you are often late, you may be able to help yourself. (1) Perhaps you should alter your personal schedule to face the facts. You'll often hear people say, "It only takes me half an hour in the morning to dress and eat." Some people do manage in half an hour, but many others really require 40 minutes or an hour. Till they face the truth and set the alarm clock accordingly, they'll be late. In considering your schedule, also examine the possibility that you're trying to accomplish too much in the morning. You may have developed the "I'll just do one more little thing before I leave for work" habit. (2) Perhaps you're still fighting long-gone battles. Psychologists say that much chronic lateness is due to resentment. This resentment, which may have begun with parents or some person who currently controls your life, may be turned toward all authority. Since the time clock represents authority, you may find it hard to conform to it.—By S. R. Redford

Child Crises: Which Ones Are Normal-Which Are Not?

By Grace W. Weinstein

"The intensity of involvement is the issue. . . . The child who puts on a cowboy suit for Halloween and can't stop being a cowboy for three weeks after Halloween is over may need help."

Bobby sucks his thumb. Laura is afraid of the dark. Andrew is always biting and kicking other children. Eric won't eat dinner until a place has been set for his imaginary playmate.

Some parents can accept such behavior calmly, others are driven frantic. But child-development specialists agree that every one of these things is normal: at the appropriate age and stage of development.

No one objects to an eight-month-old needing a bottle, wetting his bed or relying on a security blanket. But many parents become upset when a four-year-old still sucks his thumb or has trouble staying dry through the night. When can you reasonably expect a child to grow out of infantile behavior patterns? When does this behavior reflect emotional disturbance and become a signal for help?

New York child psychiatrist Abraham Chaplan offers two guides for anxious parents: (1) Is the action appropriate to the child's stage of development? (2) Does he carry it to extremes? Says Dr. Chaplan, "If a five-year-old sucks his thumb or has a security blanket but is otherwise involved in normal activities, leave him alone. If he also talks baby talk and plays only with stuffed animals instead of with friends or the toys appropriate to his age, then be concerned and seek help."

A normally active first grader who still sucks his thumb but is getting along well in school and at home may be offering you a valuable clue to his emotional state. When Bobby is tense and anxious and sucks his thumb more often than usual, it's an indication that he needs parental comfort and support—maybe an older child bullied him in school, maybe he lost a game for his team, maybe he's just overtired. "It's good to have such a barometer of the child's emotional needs," Dr. Chaplan points out. "The same needs, if suppressed, might show up later as more serious problems."

Laura, completely fearless as an infant, is afraid of the dark. But Laura is four years old now and her fear is natural. Fears—of animals, of fire engines, of separation from mother—are all completely normal in preschool children. A normal youngster will be able to accept comfort for his fears—and overcome them as he grows up. An eight-year-old should no longer be so afraid of the dark that he won't go to bed, although he may still be happier with a night-light. A six-year-old should be able to leave his mother and stay in school, even though he is still dependent on her.

Andrew is aggressive. He bites and kicks his playmates in the sand pile, and lashes out at his mother, too. Andrew is two years old and can't put his feelings into words very well yet. By the time Andrew is four he should be able to express his anger, at least part of the time, verbally rather than physically. At the same time, as part of the socialization process of growing up, he learns the give and take of getting along with others, family and friends, and should be angry less often.

Many children like Eric lead a rich fantasy life in the preschool years, complete with imaginary playmates. Try to accept the invisible friend gracefully—and not sit on him when he occupies your chair—unless this behavior, too, goes to extremes.

The key question here is: Is the line between fantasy and reality blurred? Most children with imaginary friends are pretty clearly aware that they are imaginary. Ask yourself: Can the child tolerate an interruption of his fantasy? How large a part does it play in his life? Will he play only with an imaginary friend and never with real friends? Can he cope with the real world?

"The intensity of involvement is the issue," according to Dr. Chaplan, "and an inability to stop. The child who puts on a cowboy suit for Halloween and can't stop being a cowboy for three weeks after Halloween is over may need help."

The same applies to adolescents. "It's perfectly normal for a 14-year-old to daydream in his room," says Martin Adler, Director of the Dumont (New Jersey) Community Center for Mental Health, "but if he can't snap out of it when you call him for dinner, something is wrong."

From infancy through adolescence, try to know your child. Learn to recognize his patterns of behavior, and watch for sudden dramatic changes in behavior.

But don't worry excessively. Most childhood problems are temporary, a normal—if unsettling—part of growing up.

If you use a laxative more than once a week...

Here's real relief from constipation

If you've been taking magnesia, salts, oils or harsh chemical laxatives once a week or more and you're still not satisfied—here's a better way to end constipation worries. Take gentle, effective Serutan. It's different!

Unlike other laxatives that may cause irritation or griping, Serutan, taken daily, forms a soft gel which moistens food wastes and shapes them into a well-formed stool. Serutan produces the proper amount of bulk needed to help bring peristaltic stimulation to your sluggish colon. This is utterly different than forcing your system with harsh chemical laxatives which may dry you out. You can take gentle Serutan every day because it is a pure vegetable hydrogel and contains no harsh roughage, no chemical laxatives. Take Serutan every day to get regular—and keep regular.

Delicious Fruit Flavor

Serutan is available in delicious fruit flavor. Get Serutan fruit flavor or unflavored powder, or toasted granules. When you read Serutan backwards, it spells "natures." And nature's way is best.

Some Verse— Written in Love for Some People I Know

By Marjorie Western Riley

Reminiscences of a Grandmother

I remember . . . I remember . . .
The babies, one and all,
Once so dear and round and
dimpled,
Now so wise and straight and
tall.

I've always pinned on babies
Every hope I have for
Heaven—
And that's a lot of pinning
Because there were—well—
SEVEN!

For twenty years the kitchen
floor
Was covered, ankle deep,
With applesauce and
Campbell's soup,
And also Cream of Wheat.

One little lad I knew quite well,
When once he had been fed,
Would place his blue bowl
upside down
Upon his flaxen head.

Another smeared his egg-and-
toast
Like paint upon the table,
And all in all, the scene
recalled
A filthy, ill-kept stable.

A third young man would often hurl
His pudding to the floor,
And roll in it remorselessly
The while he yelled for more.

Yes I remember . . . I
remember . . .
The babies, sweet and wet.
And I'll baby-sit YOURS,
darling,
Just as soon as I forget.

Temperature: Wintry

The gentle words, "I'm sorry,
dear,"
Fall very softly on the ear,
Melting ice and cold
resentment,
Reinstating sweet
contentment.

I said them to my mate last
night
(Although, of course, I HAD been right).
I said my line; he had his cue
To say, "Dear, I am sorry,
too."

He spoke the words, but not in quite
(And I am sure I heard them right)
The way I longed so much to hear.
He said: "I'm glad you're sorry, dear."

The snow drifts high outside
the door,
The ice is very thin. . . .
Although the calendar says
June,
The cold war's on again.

To My Husband, with Love

For thirty-one relentless
years,
Through, well, inclement
weather,
Though we were adults when
we met,
We have grown up together.

And though my verse is often
aimed
At you in little phrases
More tart than sweet—you
only laugh,
The acid never fazes.

So look upon my poems,
Love,
As tribute to the strong—
We both know that a laughing
time
Can only last so long.

And, darling, from that circled day
When you and I shall part,
Should I remain, no poems
will Come laughing from my heart.

Great Chicken and Beef Stew—for Dieters

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares a scientifically measured diet recipe. Says Marilyn: "I picked this recipe out of 'The Ladies' Home Journal Family Diet Book,' by Evan Frances (Macmillan, $6.95). It was so good, I wanted to share it with you!"

CHICKEN AND BEEF STEW
360 Calories Per Serving*

2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 (3 lb.) broiler-fryer, cut up
1 teaspoon unseasoned meat tenderizer
2 lbs. boneless beef chuck, cubed
3 cans (10½-oz. size) beef bouillon
2 cups water
12 peppercorns, cracked
4 parsley sprigs
4 whole cloves garlic, crushed
2 bay leaves
6 whole carrots, peeled
12 small white onions, peeled
6 leeks, trimmed
6 stalks celery (cut in 2-inch pieces)
2 teaspoons salt
Chopped parsley

1. Slowly heat oil in Dutch oven until hot. Brown chicken a few pieces at a time, until golden. Remove when browned, set aside.

2. Sprinkle meat tenderizer over beef cubes according to label directions.

3. Brown beef on all sides, a few cubes at a time. Drain all fat from pan.

4. Return beef to pan. Add bouillon, water, peppercorns, parsley, garlic, bay leaves. Bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, 30 minutes.

5. Add chicken. Simmer, covered, 45 minutes. Take out meats with slotted spoon. Strain broth into a bowl. Let stand 5 minutes; skim off all fat.

6. Return beef cubes and broth to Dutch oven, together with carrots, onions, leeks, celery and salt. Simmer, covered, 30 minutes. Add chicken pieces and simmer 15 minutes longer.

7. Let stand 5 minutes off heat; skim fat. Place in tureen. Sprinkle with chopped parsley. *Makes 6 servings

*1 serving is 1/6 of the meat, 1 carrot and 2 onions or 1 carrot and 1 leek, 1 cup celery and ⅓ cup broth.

TAKE YOUR PICK—

...High Style Shoe
Selling at retail for as much as $42.95
YOURS FREE

Plus a regular depression proof income of up to $200 a month for spare time hours just for showing friends how they can save as much as 50% on shoes and you can buy shoes for yourself and your family at wholesale prices.

I've given away thousands of boots and shoes like these to men who were fed up with the hopeless job of trying to make their income stretch over constantly increasing prices. They faced up to the fact that there was only one answer—more money—and they got a free pair of shoes or boots for just making that simple decision.

Offer Hanover shoes to your friends and you'll find hard times and high prices working with you instead of against you. Men who have taken Hanover's offer are showing earnings of as much as $200—$250—and more each month. When you can show a man that he can save as much as 50% on high quality shoes; when you can prove that point for point the Hanover shoe that sells for $24.95 is equal or superior to a shoe that sells nationally for $42.95, they not only jump at the chance to buy, they come back to you time and time again for more.

Or to put it another way, you can show a friend now wearing "bargain counter" shoes that he can wear high quality, finely styled Hanover shoes—probably better shoes than he has ever worn in his life—for less money than he now pays.

Jumping on the Hanover bandwagon is the simplest thing you can imagine—and doesn't cost you a cent. Just mail the coupon below to me right now while you're thinking of it. I'll mail you—entirely free—a full selling kit including the full color Hanover catalog of nearly 200 styles of shoes. You'll find dress boots, dress shoes, casual shoes, slip-ons, work shoes, fleece-lined boots for working outdoors or hunting. You'll have more shoes at your finger tips than the largest shoe store in the country. Show the catalog to your friends and neighbors and let them take their pick. And you get a liberal commission on every pair.

And how do you get the free shoes or boots? Get your selling kit and let your friends see it. If you take orders for ten pairs of shoes in the first 30 days you can select any shoe or boot in the catalog selling for no more than $24.95—and we'll send them to you free. And remember, a shoe of like quality to the Hanover shoe you select will sell for as much as $42.95 in shoe stores over the country.

If you need extra money; if you are sick and tired of trying to make ends meet, mail the coupon below to me right away. It doesn't even cost you a stamp—just fold it over and drop it in the mail. The information I'll send you could be the most hopeful uplifting story you have heard in years.

HERE'S WHAT OTHER HANOVER MEN HAVE TO SAY

R.F.H., Pa: Spent one hour in a barber shop discussing shoes...and bass fishing. I left with a total order for $95.80 with commission for me of $19.25.

A.K.K., Conn: Biggest individual sale of my entire shoe career. 18 pairs in one hour. The secret was the marvelous styles and prices Hanover has to offer. My total commission was $64.50. Not hard to take for an hour.

J.R.S., Texas: Enclosed is an order for two pairs of alligator shoes for the same customer. Made $30 in commissions. Not bad for 20 minutes work.

NO STAMP NEEDED Cut out and fold over business reply card. Staple, glue or tape and drop it in the mail.

O.K., Mr. King.

I'd like to have information on the opportunity to make money spare time with Hanover Shoe. I agree to show the Hanover catalog to at least ten friends.

I understand that if I sell ten pairs of Hanover Shoes in the first 30 days I get a free pair of shoes—any shoe or boot in the Hanover Catalog selling for up to $24.95.

What in the World!

TRUMPETER AL HIRT
Weight loss by surgery

Don't you wish you could just "cut that fat away"? Perhaps you can—sort of. In a new surgical operation called an ileo-bypass, fat is not actually cut away, but part of the small intestine is bypassed, thus cutting off a portion of the digestive system that absorbs nutrients. In the course of seven years, Drs. Burton Bergman and Leonard Waldman have performed more than 60 of these procedures. One woman lost 140 pounds after her ileo-bypass. Trumpeter Al Hirt underwent the operation with great success. Dr. Waldman says, "This is a radical way to lose weight. Nobody becomes thin, but the weight eventually stabilizes somewhere around the person's normal optimum. And as time goes by, eating habits change and self-confidence and personality improvements are seen." Although this is a drastic way to lose, if a person's health or life is in danger because of overweight, this may be the answer.

ACTRESS SIMI GAREWAL
Nudity vs. Marriage

Consider the plight of Simi Garewal, Indian costar of the new film "Siddhartha." The film was shot in India, where hand-holding is the most film censors allow. But it features a love scene on the balcony of a gleaming white palace. "There were about 10,000 onlookers watching as we shot and reshot this scene," Simi recalls, "and the crowd was so delighted that it roared its approval after each take!" But Simi has a problem, in that the movie has a nude scene. She says: "By playing such scenes, which will certainly be cut from the version shown in my country, my chances of getting married are probably reduced. Even though the scenes are artistic, they create an image that is not exactly what even the most sophisticated Indian man could easily accept." Simi also confides that the ultimate and most important goal in her life is rather old-fashioned: to become a wife and mother.

Car racing at 250 mph? With "wings" mounted on their sides only four inches above the ground to create 1,000 pounds of downward force, racing cars today are rocketing along at speeds well above 200 miles per hour. Even so redoubtable a charger as A. J. Foyt warns that the quest for ever-greater speeds may lead to greater danger in races where 25 or more cars are approaching record velocities. But champion Mark Donohue feels that "We haven't come anywhere near the limit for speed. The mechanical work is getting more and more advanced all the time, and the drivers are going to be able to respond to it, just as they always have. Back when the first cars were going over 100 mph, there were people warning that it was too dangerous. Two hundred miles an hour? Pretty soon we'll be coming close to 250 mph at Indy."

DO YOU FOLLOW ME?

Some people are skillful at following maps.
There's a compass built into them somewhere perhaps.
They know where to turn—if it's left,
they are right;
If it's right they should turn, they're not left, day or night.

But maps aren't for me, I just follow
my nose,
And I'm lucky I get there at all, I suppose.
For my nose has a curve and a twist and a hollow
That most would find harder than road maps to follow.

LITTLE EMILY

AN EXPERT ANSWERS YOUR QUESTIONS ABOUT MUSCLES

Our files show that thousands of readers like yourself want to build bulging muscles and achieve real physical power like their favorite athletic champions. How to go about it? We decided to ask an expert, Dave Prowse, 3-times British Weightlifting champion and leading fitness expert. Here are his answers.

Q. What does it take to build muscles?

A. Basically, it takes exercise. Almost any exercise will help to develop at least some of your muscles if you keep at it long enough and hard enough.

Q. Isn't there an easier way?

A. Yes. There is one outstandingly effective training method that is also fast and easy—the one I use and recommend—the new Bullworker system.

Q. What's that?

A. The Bullworker is a revolutionary new muscle-building exerciser based on Isometrics, the science that increases strength up to four times faster than conventional methods. In my opinion, it's the most advanced training system in the world today. Many leading athletes use it: World-famous Heavyweight Boxer Muhammad Ali, World Heavyweight Judo Champion Wim Ruska, and Cycling Champion Eddy Merckx, to name only a few.

Q. How long does Bullworker training take?

A. Bullworker provides absolutely the fastest kind of exercise possible. In fact, an introduction training program takes only 70 seconds a day. No other system—weightlifting, pulleys, or strenuous calisthenics—can give you results so quickly and easily. On the contrary, many old-fashioned methods take hours of sweaty, boring work each day...and it's often months before you begin to see improvements. Busy professional athletes and champions don't have time for that. Nobody does.

Q. How long does it take before you begin getting results?

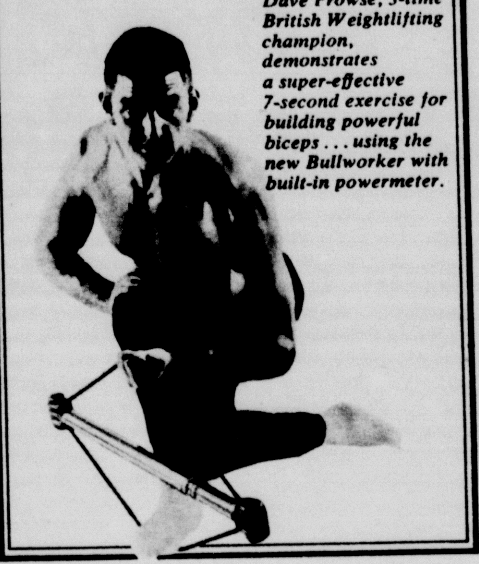
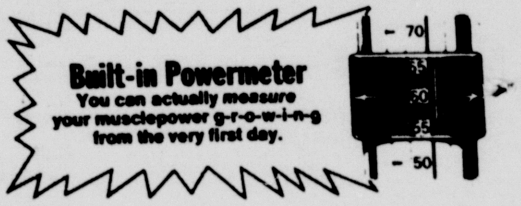
Jack Barclay, junior Mr. Europe shows the kind of results he achieved with Isometric Bullworker training.



Dave Prowse, 3-time British Weightlifting champion, demonstrates a super-effective 7-second exercise for building powerful biceps...using the new Bullworker with built-in powermeter.

A. With the Bullworker, you can actually begin to see and measure the positive results right from the very first day! Thanks to a built-in measuring device called the Powermeter. After every exercise you just check the reading to see exactly how much your strength has increased from the day before. There's no guesswork involved. Isometric Bullworker training can increase your power at the amazing rate of up to 4% per week! That means a 50% increase in strength in the first three months alone. And I've known many young men who have gone on to double and even triple their strength.



Built-in Powermeter
You can actually measure your musclepower g-r-o-w-i-n-g from the very first day.

Q. What do those figures mean in visual terms?

A. They mean that in as little as 14 days you can actually begin to see muscle growth in a mirror and verify it with a tape measure. Every week thereafter brings ever faster growth.

Q. But to get such impressive results, don't you have to work very hard?

A. Absolutely not. That's the outstanding advantage of Isometric training...it's so amazingly easy! Each "Static-power" Isometric exercise takes only 7 seconds, and you barely have to move. It's not even necessary to disrobe. The Bullworker is so light and compact, it can be used at home, in the office, anywhere...even while watching TV! It's a great improvement over bulky, expensive weights, bicycle machines, pulleys, etc.

Q. Can Bullworker training even develop bodies which are weak and skinny, or fat and flabby?

A. Definitely! It's been proven by thousands of men of every shape, size and age all over the world. Bullworker training helps transform weak, thin arms into rippling, muscular pillars of strength, build broad, powerful shoulders, turn flat, shallow chests into deep, manly ones, forge loose stomach flab into steel-hard, well-defined muscle...build that "V" shape of a real athlete, develop sturdy, contoured thighs and calves.... And all this in record time!

What's more, I've known skinny, shy fellows who, after just a few short weeks with Bullworker, turned into real go-getters...every inch a man...bowling girls over with their dynamism, confidence, and new found power! You really have to see the remarkable effects of Bullworker for yourself to believe them!

Q. How can our readers find out more about the Bullworker, perhaps actually try it for themselves?

A. I understand that the Bullworker distributor in the USA is now making it available—free—on a two week home-trial basis in order to introduce it to the general public. If your readers are interested in developing their bodies, in building muscles and strength faster than ever before possible, I suggest that they contact the US distributor for full details.

U.S. massed tanks on Canada border in 1970 crisis?

TORONTO (UPI) — The Toronto Star reported Saturday that the U.S. massed tanks and heavy equipment near the Canadian border in preparation to move into Quebec at the height of the separatist crisis in 1970.

Both the U.S. and Canadian governments denied the report.

The newspaper in a copyrighted story quoted Leslie J. Bennet, a former chief of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) anti-espionage operations, as saying that U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) agents had infiltrated Montreal on a large scale during the Front de Liberation Quebecois (flq) crisis and tanks and heavy equipment were massed just south of the border.

Bennet said the federal government was informed that should the Quebec government fall or fail to preserve order, the Americans would move into southern Quebec to protect vital U.S. interests in the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, who was defense minister at the time of the crisis, denied the story. In Washington, a spokesman for the State Department said the story was "absolutely false."

Bennet, a 53-year-old career intelligence officer was quoted as saying "during the separatist crisis of October, 1970, in Montreal, the Canadian security service had to assign investigators to shadow agents of the CIA who had infiltrated Montreal on a large scale and were carrying on operations without the approval of the Canadian government.

"During the same crisis, the Canadian government moved tanks and other heavy equipment into position just south of Ottawa to offset a buildup of American tanks and heavy equipment just south of the U.S. border."

Bennet, who retired from the RCMP last year, is now employed by a prithat security firm in South Africa.

Macdonald, in denying the story, said: "Frankly the story doesn't accord with any experiences I had as minister of defense. I just don't believe it."

Macdonald sad he could see no reason why the U.S. Army would put troops on the border. "It would have been political insanity on their part to have planned that," he added.

Agnew reported willing to deal

Source says he'd quit to face minor charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's lawyers are bargaining with the Justice Department toward a possible deal in which he could resign and be charged only with a minor offense in a Maryland political corruption case, a congressional source said Saturday.

The source, who declined to be identified, said Agnew was expected to decide his course of action within a week —with his decision possibly hanging on prospects for his indictment by a federal grand jury in Baltimore that may start hearing evidence against him next week.

The highly secretive negotiations between attorneys for Agnew and top Justice Department officials reportedly began Thursday.

Justice Department spokesmen had no comment.

Agnew's office announced Saturday that he is forming a legal "defense fund" and denied reports that his lawyers were trying to arrange a deal.

Agnew's press secretary, Marsh Thomson, said the defense fund was being established to cover all "legal costs" growing from an investigation of the vice president in connection with an alleged scheme of political kickbacks in his home state of Maryland.

There were conflicting reports about the exact nature of the negotiations. The congressional source described them as "plea bargaining" based on the assumption that, if Agnew resigned, the Justice Department would use any evidence against him only to charge him with a minor offense.

Agnew has been under federal investigation for possible violations of conspiracy, extortion, bribery and tax fraud laws in connection with an alleged arrangement in which Maryland politicians accepted kickbacks from architectural and engineering contractors.

The grand jury investigation stretches back to the years when Agnew served as Baltimore county executive and Maryland governor before becoming vice president in 1969.

The Washington Post reported Saturday that Lester Matz, a Baltimore County consulting engineer who has received limited immunity from prosecution, told federal investigators that he gave Agnew between $25,000 and $50,000 over the last decade.

It was not known whether Agnew or the Justice Department initiated the reported plea bargaining —a common judicial maneuver in which a defendant agrees to plead guilty to a lesser than the maximum charge which evidence could warrant. There also was no indication what possible charges were being discussed.

Both the Post and CBS News reported that Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen was inisting that Agnew plead guilty to some offense rather than let the vice president escape all charges by resigning.

The Baltimore Sun said one of the vice president's lawyers, Judah Best, planned to file suit next week to try to stop federal prosecutors from presenting the Agnew evidence to the Baltimore grand jury, which thus far has focused on other aspects of the kickback case.

Agnew denied the allegations soon after he was formally told of them Aug. 1, and has continued to maintain a fairly normal schedule of appearances. The Kissinger swearing-in was one of the first official events Agnew has skipped since the investigation became known.

New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who attended the Kissinger ceremony, told reporters that President Nixon had not consulted with him about the Agnew situation. Rockefeller has been mentioned as one of the possible successors to Agnew if he decides to resign.

Sources said that when Agnew conferred with Nixon for an hour Thursday, he sought assurances from the President that he would not be pressured into resigning by the White House.

Gas dealers to mobilize in war council

By United Press International

A nationwide shutdown of service stations will be one of the major topics of discussion today at a "war council" called for gasoline dealers from 40 states, a spokesman said Saturday.

Robert Jacobs, a leading official of the Illinois and Indiana Gasoline Dealers Associations, said "other forms of activity" also will be discussed at the noon meeting scheduled at a hotel at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport but he declined to describe them.

The meeting today was the latest in a series of protests by gasoline dealers across the country over the Phase IV guidelines. The dealers object to the freeze on retail prices while wholesale prices are allowed to rise.

There already have been a number of localized shutdowns of service station but so far no nationwide action.

Independent service station dealers in the Baltimore and Washington metropolitan areas Saturday reaffirmed their intentions to close Monday to protest Phase IV.

A spokesman for the Maryland Independent Dealers Association predicted most of the agency' 400 members would observe the shutdown. In Washington, organizers estimated that 60 per cent of the area's 2,000 independent dealers would close, but individual station managers indicated they would wait and see what neighboring competitors would do before deciding.

The California State Automobile Association reported that 90 per cent of the stations there were closed.

GASOLINE LINE

These motorists are not queued up for a major sporting event. Instead, they are waiting patiently to get gasoline at one of few open gas stations in San Francisco after a majority of Northern California retail gasoline dealers decided to close for all or part of four-day protest against Phase IV price controls. The protest, through Monday, is reportedly being strongly supported by dealers.

Monorail stalls, power line burns

POMONA — Firemen were kept busy Friday and Saturday with a rescue operation at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds here and a high-voltage power line that burned away partially Saturday afternoon.

Sixty persons were removed from stalled monorail cars at the fairgrounds Friday evening, department spokesmen related. Although no one was injured, it took about 45 minutes to clear the eight cars halted by an electrical problem.

Traffic around Foothill Boulevard and Garey Avenue was routed away from the intersection during a three-hour period Saturday afternoon, said the fire department. Power lines carrying 12,000 volts were left dangling from the northeast corner of the intersection, causing not only a hazard to traffic, but also a fire danger to a gas station below.

Electrical service to some commercial customers in the area was out for a time, related department spokesmen. They said the problem occurred shortly before 2 p.m. when static electricity caused a fire which burned off about 10 feet of the pole some 50 to 60 feet above ground.

Youth, 16, killed crossing freeway

INDUSTRY — A 16-year-old youth was killed as he attempted to dash across the Pomona Freeway east of Azusa Avenue Friday afternoon, the California Highway Patrol reported.

John C. Mock, 18709 Villa Park, La Puente, died three hours after the 12:40 p.m. accident in Doctor's Hospital in San Gabriel.

Driving the auto which struck the youth was Dowsan Metcalf, 26, of West Covina.

Rock singer's body cremated

Hunt on for coffin snatchers

JOSHUA TREE NATIONAL MONUMENT, Calif. (UPI) — The FBI and three Southern California law agencies Saturday hunted a pair of bearded coffin-snatchers who stole the body of rock singer Gram Parsons and cremated it in a ritual ceremony Friday in boulder-strewn Desert National Park here.

The charred remains of the 27-year-old singer-composer were found in the ashes of the coffin, which had been stolen Thursday from Los Angeles International Airport by two men driving a vintage hearse.

Airport officials who mistakenly released the coffin prior to a flight to New Orleans, where Parsons was to be buried, said the fake mortuary attendants wore long hair, one with western boots and a cowboy hat, the other with a heavy black beard.

The men told Western Airline attendants that Parson's family in New Orleans had authorized them to take the body to suburban Van Nuys Airport for a private flight to the Gulf Coast. They signed receipts and were given the coffin.

Parson, a guitar player formerly with "The Byrds," died of an apparent heart attack Wednesday outside the desert park at a motel where he was vacationing for a week. The results of an autopsy will be made known early next week.

The popular, longhaired musician was vacationing with a Los Angeles couple. Parson's wife, Gretchen, was not along on the trip. She was not available for comment.

The morning after the coffin was snatched from the airport, the two men in the old hearse sped down Interstate 15 some 200 miles to the huge desert park, where they set fire to Parson's wooden coffin in a bizarre predawn rite.

Asked if the circumstances appeared ritualistic, Los Angeles homicide detective, Sgt. John Hamilton, said, "It kind of looks like that."

Chief Park Ranger Don Colville, who was on the scene within hours of the coffin's discovery, said the stark cremation scene reminded him of a "Viking funeral, the kind the Norsemen got when they died at sea."

Francis Fox elected to Chino Hills airport board

SANTA ANA — Francis T. Fox, former general manager of the Los Angeles Department of Airports, has been elected to the board of directors and appointed principal consultant to the Chino Hills Airport Complex, Inc.

Fox had served as aviation director for the Hughes Tool Co. since Nov. 1, 1968, when he resigned his airport position. He is currently a consultant to Howard Hughes' Summa Corp., formerly Hughes Tool Co.

His election and appointment were announced by Reg Wood, chairman of the corporation's board of directors. This is viewed as further solidifying efforts to create the jetport.

The airport company is seeking to create an "airport in a park" development on 25,000 acres of unoccupied land in the Chino Hills. The site straddles Orange and San Bernardino Counties.

A recent state survey indicated this as a possible site for a major new airport to serve Southern California.

"There is an obvious need for an airport in this area to meet the demands of the traveling and shipping public. Because of the uninhabited area under consideration, I am sure the proposed detailed environmental impact report and master plan will show a minimal amount of noise or other ecological problems to the neighboring communities," Fox said.

The enormous buffer zone around the proposed two runway system will provide protection for neighboring residents, and the runways will be 1,000 feet above the level of area communities, he added.

"This will be an environmentally controlled airport where only those aircraft meeting the rigid Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) noise standards of the future, as well as safety standards, will be permitted to operate."

Most aviation experts have agreed this is a a feasible airport site since the FAA gave airspace clearance last year, Fox said.

"It is expected the airport will commence operation about 1978. Meanwhile, the air transportation needs of the public can be taken care of at Los Angeles International Airport and a greatly expanded Ontario International Airport."

While with the Los Angeles Department of Airports, Fox was instrumental in that agency acquiring the Ontario airport, then under Ontario City control.

Since joining the Hughes Tool Co., his duties included supervision of activities relating to airports, airlines, corporate aircraft and related aviation projects.

The proposed Chino Hills airport site is four miles northeast of Yorba Linda and four miles southwest of Los Serranos.

The airport company proposes building two 12,000-foot runways to handle 100,000 commercial operations and 20,000 general aviation operations a year.

The airport would occupy about 4,000 acres, with an adjoining 21,500 acres to be controlled through purchase, leasing or easements to prevent any non-compatible development.

Reporter claims Allende was killed by attacking soldiers

OFFENBURG, Germany (UPI) — A West German reporter said in a report published Saturday he saw the body of deposed Chilean President Salvador Allende the day of his death and Allende had been shot in the back, shoulders and head.

Gerhard Eisenkolb, a reporter for Bunte Illustrierte magazine, said in the story:

"Allende did not surrender" during the Sept 11 military coup. "About three hours after the ultimatum (by troops to Allende to surrender) soldiers stormed the government palace.

"Together with two Chilean journalists, I ran after them. There was shooting everywhere.

"We came upon Allende's body in the Red Hall. His head had been mutilated beyond identification. I saw several bullet wounds in the dead man's back and in his shoulders."

Bunte Illustrierte said Eisenkolb had been in Chile for an interview with Allende the day of the coup and had left the country last Thursday.

Anytime they want to, says Tunisia president

Israel able to roll over Arabs unopposed?

By United Press International

President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia said in an interview published Saturday that Israel could roll over Arab lands from the Nile to the Euphrates anytime it wanted, even against united Arab opposition.

Bourguiba said time favors Israel, not the Arabs, and he doubted peace negotiations could begin soon because neither side will drop its preconditions for such talks.

"Israel is in the position to fulfill the old Jewish dream, the dream of a state that stretches from the Nile to the Euphrates," Bourguiba was quoted as saying in an interview with a correspondent for West Germany's Die Welt newspaper.

"The Israelis can do that. They have the might to do it and the Arabs and all the underdeveloped countries can do nothing to stop it, even if they were united."

While Bourguiba's remarks were printed, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was meeting with Soviet Ambassador Valdimir Vinogradov in Cairo as part of a renewed dialogue between Cairo and Moscow aimed at improving relations. The meeting followed a Soviet-initiated exchange of letters between Sadat and Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The Cairo newspaper Al Gomhouriya said Saturday Egypt has no objection to any new American peace initiative in the Middle East provided it takes full account of Arab rights and proposes specific practical steps.

The newspaper was commenting on reports from Israel that U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger might launch a new initiative for a peaceful settlement later this year.

The newspaper said any new initiative would have to include two main principles on which Arab policy is based:

—The necessity of Israel's withdrawal from all occupied Arab territories.

—Guarantees for the legal rights of the Arabs of Palestine, including the right to determine their destiny and return to their homeland.

In his interview with Die Welt, Bourguiba said Israel was now so strong it could get along without U.S. military support.

"Israel can even ignore the pressures of the United States (as a potential mediator) because it can build its tanks, aircraft, cannon and warships itself," he said.

Food prices leveling off across nation

By United Press International

While the price of food showed a definite jump after the price freeze was lifted, a spot survey Saturday indicated that prices have generally leveled off and in some cases declined since last month.

The government announced Friday that retail prices for food went up 6 per cent in August, the largest increase in 27 years.

But a UPI check of selected supermarkets in cities across the country showed that in many cases items had dropped in price since a similar survey Aug. 24.

A Dallas supermarket is a typical example.

A loaf of bread that sold for 39 cents under the price freeze which was lifted July 18 rose to 42 cents in August but is now down to 36. A dozen large AA eggs that jumped from 75 cents under the freeze to 91 cents is selling for 83 cents.

Milk jumped from 52 cents a half gallon to 74 and was back to 57, while uncut chicken selling at 55 cents during the freeze was back at that price after rising to 63 cents.

Eggs were one food item that showed a spectacular rise after the ceiling was lifted. Although still selling at a dime to a quarter above freeze levels, egg prices have fallen from their August level.

A dozen large grade AA eggs was selling for 10 cents less than in August in New York, eight cents less in Boston, seven cents less in San Francisco, six less in Washington, four less in Columbus, Ohio, and Los Angeles and two cents less in Chicago.

Uncut fryers showed a similar trend, going for 24 cents less a pound in Washington, 17 cents less in San Francisco eight cents less in Columbus and six cents less in Chicago. Chicken did show a jump in New York, going up 24 cents a pound and in Boston, up five cents.

The American Meat Institute in Chicago said meat prices will go lower. A spokesman said the average cost of live cattle had dropped 25 per cent and live hogs 31 per cent since the August highs on which the Consumer Price Index (CPI) figures were based.

"It is meaningless to report percentage increases in CPI on meat prices when they are based on the record high prices of mid-August caused by the pressures of the artificial ceiling price on beef," institute president Herrell DeGraff said.

"Already wholesale meat prices are close to or below the same levels which prevailed on March 29 when the government placed ceiling prices on all meat.

"Because of current large runs of livestock, consumers can expect ample supplies of beef and pork to be available soon at retail prices comparable to those of last winter."

2 women slain in robbery of hotel for lovers

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Two women suspects were shot to death early Saturday in a gun battle between police and three couples staging a holdup at a hotel catering to trysting lovers, police reported.

One police officer and a chambermaid at the hotel were wounded in the shooting. The third woman suspect was arrested, but all three men escaped, according to police.

Police said the three couples showed up at the Grand Hotel Alojamiento in a southwestern Buenos Aires neighborhood shortly after 5 a.m. and subdued two employes at gunpoint. They then proceeded to rob the occupants of the hotel.

Alojamiento hotels are establishments that specialize in renting rooms on a short-term basis for lovers' rendezvous. The word alojamiento (lodging) in the name serves to warn married couples and families to seek accomodations elsewhere.

Police said a radio patrol car arrived at the hotel while the robbery was in progress and ordered the suspects to surrender. The women opened fire on the officers whie the men fled, police said.

They're all drinking milk

First diaper for oldest of surviving sextuplets

DENVER (UPI) —For the first time since their birth all five surviving Stanek sextuplets drank milk Saturday and John, the oldest, became the recipient of the infants' first diaper.

Doctors said three of the babies had won their fight against a lung disease that killed their tiny sister.

"We're encouraged about all five infants," said pediatrician Dr. James Strain. "Their conditions are continuing to improve and they're steadily gaining strength. Three of them seem to have shaken the disease that killed Julia."

John, the first of the infants born last Sunday night seven weeks premature, received the first diaper, and his mother, Mrs. Eugene Stanek, 34, held Jeffrey for the first time.

Strain and pediatrician Dr. Tibor Engel, who had administered a fertility drug to Mrs. Stanek, said it was too soon to tell when she and her husband might be able to take the infants home. Mrs. Stanek was expected to be released next week.

"I've had lots of offers from friends and neighbors so I don't think I'll have much of a problem feeding them," she said. "I don't know what this will mean to our 4-year-old son. I haven't seen him yet. I don't believe it will mean that much to him until they are home.

"The babies are not too individual looking right now. There are tubes and wires connected to them helping them along but John's pretty lively."

Mrs. Stanek said she believed insurance would pay for the majority of the $100 per day hospital cost.

"I'm not looking for a part-time job yet," she said. "Everyone, including Eugene and me, is hopeful for the future."

Eugene Stanek, 31, a suburban Denver junior accountant, turned down a chance to lift his children "because they look so tiny." He talked with his wife and then went home to sleep.

Strain said that Catherine, Nathan and Stephen were looking so healthy that they might be taken off respirators helping them breathe by Monday. The respirators were used to dilute the effects of hyaline membrane disease.

Western governors face energy crisis pressures

GLENEDEN BEACH, Ore. (UPI) —Western governors, faced with an energy crisis that could black out much of the Pacific Northwest, Sunday begin there annual conference under pressure to find solutions or face federal intervention.

Their concerted effort to find ways of saving electricity now could avert a major shortage later when water stored behind hydroelectric power plants may fall below already frighteningly low levels.

Among those scheduled to address the governors during the four day session at the Salishan Lodge are John Love, special adviser on energy to President Nixon; Interior Secretary Rodgers C.B. Morton and consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

The big problem confronting the governors is how to coordinate their individual state efforts to conserve and if necessary curtail electricity to avoid a system-wide power failure.

They will have to act quickly.

With the usually wet Pacific Northwest in the midst of one of the worst dry spells in more than 30 years, hydroelectric reservoirs which supply more than 85 per cent of the power supply are far short of meeting projected needs.

Heavy rains in the coming months would help but there is no such guarantee.

Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and parts of Montana and California are particularly affected by the water shortage.

Washington Gov. Dan Evans, chairman of the National Governors Conference this year, wants to get right down to business as soon as the meeting is officially opened by Oregon Gov. Tom McCall, Western conference chairman and host.

Evans was given broad authority to curtail electricity by a special session of the Washington legislature earlier this month. But he was directed to make every effort to coordinate possible mandatory curtailments with other states.

When he asked for the standby authority, Evans said it would take a concerted effort by all of the states to prevent a major power failure during the coming winter months when demand peaks.

He said if one state fails to act, it could cripple all the others in the multistate power system.

Spacewalk by two in Skylab

HOUSTON (UPI) —Two Skylab astronauts whizzed through a simple spacewalk Saturday collecting six rolls of precious pictures of the sun that could hold the key to man's understanding of earth's energy source.

Moonwalking veteran Alan L. Bean, and scientist Owen K. Garriott, clad in cumbersome white spacesuits, waltzed outside the station that has been their home for 56 days to replace the film cassettes in the powerful solar telescopes.

Jack R. Lousma, who has made two outside journeys in two months, stayed in the station to monitor vital spacecraft systems while his crewmates spent two hours and 41 minutes in the starkness of space.

It was the third and shortest spacewalk for the Skylab 2 astronauts who will end history's longest spaceflight Tuesday. Garriott, making his third walk of the flight, captured the record for the most time spent outside an orbiting craft—13 hours and 43 minutes.

The pilots will splashdown about 224 miles southwest of San Diego at 3:20 p.m. PDT after 59 days, 11 hours and nine minutes in space.

It was Bean's first trip outside a spacecraft since walking on the moon on Apollo 12 in November, 1969, and he reacted like a typical tourist with not enough time to see everything.

"Golly, what a place to visit. Whooee," Bean marveled as he moved around suspended in weightlessness with the grace of a ballet dancer. "You sure can get around easy out here. Everything's turning sort of reddish pink as the sun goes down.

"The EVA (spacewalk) went very smoothly, just ground along," the mission commander reported afterwards.

DIANA SANDS

Black stage star dies of cancer

NEW YORK (UPI) —Diana Sands, the black actress who rose to stardom with her role in "Raisin in the Sun," died Friday night of cancer at the age of 39, it was announced Saturday.

Miss Sands had been at the Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Disease for several weeks following an unsuccessful operation to remove a tumor. She had a starring role in the movie "Claudine" but was replaced in the part when the operation became necessary.

A native of New York, Miss Sands began her career as part of a dance team called Twan and Diana in which she wore bells and veils.

She appeared in a number of plays but her big break came in 1959 when she landed a role in the Broadway play "Raisin in the Sun" written by black playwright Lorraine Hansberry.

Miss Hansberry also died of cancer at a young age, 34, in 1965.

Miss Sands' performance won her the "Outer Circle" critics award for the best supporting actress and launched her career.

A veteran of movies and numerous television shows, she also won the Off-Broadway magazine award in 1958, the International Artist award in 1961, the Theatre World award in 1963, an Obie Award in 1964, as well as Toni and Emmy Award nominations.

Her mother said funeral services would be private but there would be a memorial service which will be announced at a later date.

Italy says apology is acceptable

ROME (UPI) —Italy has accepted a Libyan apology for the strafing of an Italian warship by Libyan jet fighters and considers the incident closed, a government source said Saturday.

The source said no further protest was planned over Friday's machine gun attack by Libyan Mirage jets on the Italian corvette De Cristofaro in international waters 33 miles off Libya. The corvette was on routine patrol accompanying Italian fishing boats.

Two Italian sailors were slightly injured and the De Cristofaro lightly damaged in the incident, Italian officials said. None of the fishing boats was harmed.

Libyan Premier Maj. Abdel Salam Jalloud expressed his country's "profound regret" to Italian Ambassador Aldo Conte Marotta, who had delivered a strong protest, a foreign ministry communique said.

Jalloud also offered Libya's immediate assistance in whatever form was needed, the communique said.

The government source said Italy accepted Jalloud's explanation that the incident was "a deplorable mistake."

The attack was one of a series of incidents involving Italian fishing boats. A Libyan coast guard vessel captured five Sicilian fishing boats and took their captains prisoner Wednesday.

Navy awards Gen. Dynamics $2 million pact

POMONA — General Dynamics' Electrodynamics Division has won a Navy contract to modernize the printed circuit board manufacturing facility of the Naval Industrial Reserve Ordnance Plant here.

Value of the pact, according to the office of Rep. Jerry Pettis, is $1,915,583. The company will provide all labor, material, service and equipment to upgrade the facility to meet pollution control and Occupational Safety Hazards Act standards.

According to a company spokesman, the facility at this time is not in violation of pollution standards. The contract, he stated, merely provides for latest equipment to be installed, thus anticipating any future tightening of standards.

Little cigars join advertising ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon signed legislation Saturday banning broadcast advertisements for so-called little cigars.

The bill amends the federal Cigarette Labeling and Advertising Act of 1965 to bring little cigars under the prohibition on advertising of cigarettes over radio, television and other broadcast media.

The "little cigar" was described by Congress in the legislation as any roll of tobacco wrapped in leaf tobacco or any substance containing other than cigarette tobacco which weighs not more than three pounds per 1,000 units.

The bill was passed on the basis of a report to Congress on the consequences of smoking, in which the Public Health Service warned that little cigars are as dangerous as cigarettes if the smoke is inhaled.

Public thinks Nixon not treating him fairly

Undercurrent of suspicion in Agnew poll

NEW YORK (UPI) —Two-thirds of the American public are opposed to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew resigning now, but 58 per cent would approve his leaving office if he is indicted, a Newsweek-Gallup poll reported Saturday.

The poll findings, scheduled to appear in the magazine's Oct. 1 edition, disclosed an "undercurrent of suspicion" that President Nixon may not be treating Agnew fairly, Newsweek said. Only 40 per cent agree that Nixon is being fair to the vice president, while 35 per cent, says he is not, and 25 per cent voiced no opinion.

The poll was the result of a Newsweek-sponsored telephone survey of a cross section of 631 Americans conducted by the The Gallup Organizaition late this week.

Asked if they thought the vice president should resign if he is indicted 58 per cent said he should, 30 per cent said he should not and 12 per cent had no opinion. Only 16 per cent thought Agnew should resign now while 66 per cent said he should not.

Former Secretary of the Treasury John Connally (24 percentage points) headed the list of six potential candidates to succeed Agnew if he resigned, followed by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., with 19 per cent, and Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., 15 per cent.

The others included New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, 14 per cent; Attorney General Elliott Richardson, 5 per cent, and former Secretary of State William Rogers, 4 per cent.

Middle-age paunch vs. the 10-speed bike

REPORTER ON WHEELS — Roland Lindsey, UPI's Austin, Texas, bureau manager, checks out a new 10-speed bicycle. Lindsey, who admits to being a little overweight and a little over 35, thought the bicycle would be a good way to get back in shape. However, both he and the cycle were bent out of shape in a crash in his own driveway. Lindsey suffered only a few minor cuts and bruise.

By ROLAND LINDSEY

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Physical fitness isn't all it's cracked up to be.

Especially if you're on the downhill side of 35, overweight, spend about eight hours a day punching a typewriter and aren't accustomed to lifting anything heavier than that bothersome paunch that materialized around your midsection over the years.

My choices were (1) to cut down on my eating; or (2) to increase my exercise.

Recalling my penchant for food, especially the fattening kind, I mistakenly chose exercise. That proved to be a pain in the neck—and knee, and legs, and shoulders ...

For two weeks, I got up at the crack of dawn, pulled on some jogging shorts, and drove a few blocks to a nearby high school track to begin the regimen of becoming a truly fine physical speciman.

By the end of the first week, the soreness in the leg muscles was about gone. But the spring that I remembered from a few years back—it was really almost 20 years now that I count it up—still wasn't there.

So I came up with the perfect solution—a bicycle! One of those classy, 10-speed foreign jobs. Bike riding was always fun, and like they say, once you learn how you never forget it.

So on I rolled the shiny $100 jewel into the garage and announced to a somewhat skeptical wife that cycling had now replaced jogging. She said I should have used the money to buy some bookshelves she wanted for the house.

Despite jeering from the neighborhood kids, on the first day I toured several blocks in fine fashion, and made it back home without incident.

Then came the second day. I straddled that impossibly hard and pointed seat that 10-speed bikes are cursed with, pushed off down the hill of my front lawn toward the driveway. Instant humiliation.

My front wheel hit the edge of the driveway and turned crossways, spilling me and the bike down the rough concrete drive.

Right in front of my son and another laughing kid, I had crashed. I mean bad. Not only did it break my glasses, skin my knees and hands and bruise a shoulder—it bent the front wheel of my new exercise machine!

The bike repairman managed to straighten out the bent parts with hardly a smirk.

So now I can again peddle through the neighborhood. And this time the kids aren't so eager to spend their time chasing the old man around.

The excitement just isn't there for them. They know there's no way I could top that first crash. And besides, I think they're afraid I'll take them down with me in the next one.

Valley cities to get $934,233 tax revenue

Ten Pomona Valley cities will receive a total $934,233.27 of the $91.9 million to be allocated to California cities and counties in the Sept. 1973 distribution of local sales and use tax funds, the State Board of Equalization reported Friday.

Better than half of the total amount to be allocated to Valley cities will go to the communities of Pomona, Ontario, and Montclair. Pomona will receive the biggest chunk, $311,775.69, while Ontario will get $163,124.96, and Montclair, $145,679.75.

Other Valley cities and their allocations are: Upland, $99,905.96; Glendora, $87,183.85; Chino, $42,594.53; San Dimas, $36,794.95; La Verne, $22,186.02; Claremont, $20,956.01; and Walnut, $4,031.55.

The $91.9 million comes from "cleanup payments" for the second quarter of 1973 totaling $51.4 million, and advance payment for the third quarter 1973 of $40.5 million.

The combined totals of second quarter cleanup payments and third quarter advance payments and the sources of the funds are:

Bradley-Burns 1 per cent local sales and use tax payments to cities and counties, $71 million.

— Bradley-Burns 1 per cent cent local sales and use tax payment to counties for the County Local Transporation Fund, $17.1 million.

Blind Brazilians

Private tour that guard didn't enjoy

CINCINNATI (UPI) —An art lover, armed with a machete, forced a guard at the Cincinnati Art Museum to give him a private, hour-long tour.

Bruce Riley, 19, climbed a wall on the east side of the museum and dropped down an elevator shaft to the main floor of the building where he accosted guard McKinely Smith.

He told Smith he was just "very interested in art and wanted to look at the paintings."

Police were alerted to the break-in when Smith did not report at a scheduled time.

Riley was charged with assault with a deadly weapon and burglary. He allegedly took two black folders of miscellaneous art materials valued at $25.

Martha denies she has mental ills

NEW YORK (UPI) —Martha Mitchell, in her first television interview since she left Washington, denies that she is suffering from a mental condition and complains of "the torture I'm being put through."

In the interview with NBC, taped Friday for broadcast today, an obviously distraught Mrs. Mitchell said she wanted to counter rumors that she is in a mental institution.

She said she has received letters from persons who "say they're sorry I'm in the hospital, to please take care of myself and they're going to send me this and send me that and where can they contact me?

"So I decided it was time for me to tell the American public that I am sitting in my apartment...I'm perfectly capable of doing anything I want to do and there's absolutely nothing wrong with me except I'm mentally tortured from the torture I'm being put through," she said.

Mrs. Mitchell denied she and her husband, John, were getting divorced, and blamed the news media for spreading the rumor. Former Attorney General Mitchell moved out of the apartment last week.

Asked why her husband hadn't contacted her, she replied, "Well I guess he's mad at me for throwing his clothes out for one thing...and then, I think that he just thinks that I'm overly wrought and that I should have some kind of care...I think they are terribly frightened I'm going to say something...I don't know what I could say...." Mrs. Mitchell said she threw some of her husband's clothes out of their apartment because she was angry she wasn't notified of the postponement of Mitchell's trial on charges of purjury and conspiracy to obstruct justice.

"I got mad and like any woman does...if you get mad you do something. He's not here, you can't hit him on the head, so I've got to do something, so I took his clothes...a few ties and a few shirts and threw them out there in the foyer," she said.

"You know when you're under pressure and under strain you say things and do things that you wouldn't do ordinarily—it's just a state that you get in that you can't explain and you'd have to go through something like this before you know what it's like."

Mrs. Mitchell denied she has ever been in a mental institution. "I've never been committed to anything but...except the good of my country...and that's all."

Mrs. Mitchell claimed that she did not make many of the phone calls attributed to her.

"These phone calls that I get credit for, they've got somebody that mimics me so well...somebody mimics my voice all the time," she said.

McGovern not sure about '76

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential nominee, said Saturday he had not decided yet "either privately or publicly" whether he would make another bid for the White House in 1976.

McGovern issued a statement responding to a report by columnist Tom Braden, who said the South Dakota senator had told financial advisers he would run again despite his overwhelming loss last year to President Nixon.

"I do not know who the unnamed supporters are who told Mr. Braden that they believed I would run again in 1976," McGovern said. "But I do know that no such decision has been made. I have my hands full with responsibilities in the Senate and in South Dakota.

"Although I intend to speak out on national and international questions, I have made no decisions either privately or publicly to run for the Presidency again."

NEW ADDITION—Buick's new entry in the intermediate line for 1974 is the Regal four-door colonnade sedan. The new addition combines improved ride and handling qualities plus new interior selections. Buick's 1974 line is now in dealer showrooms.

1974 Buick line

Changes occur in mechanical system, styling

Now on display in dealer showrooms are the new Riviera and LeSabre coupes and a four-door Regal sedan in the Buick 1974 line.

Both the Riviera and LeSabre coupes feature their own distinctive version of the colonnade-style roof which was featured on the Century series last year. The 1974 models also feature a new pillared roof design with a fixed rear side window.

Mechanical changes in the Buick line include a new high-energy ignition sysem, energy-absorbing bumpers in the rear and steel-belted radial ply tires built to General Motors specifications.

All Buick models for 1974 are equipped with the interlock ignition system which prevents the engine from being started until both outboard front seat occupants have their lap and shoulder belts fastened.

New Buick interiors in a wider variety of cloth and vinyl designs are offered as well as a leather interior on the Riviera and Limited. The number of trim sets has been increased from 258 last year to 460.

General Motors' new unitized high-energy ignition system is standard on all Stage I engines and optional on all V-8s. The new system produces greater voltage than regular breaker or conventional solid-state ignition systems and firing is more precise because distribution of the charge is accomplished electronically rather than mechanically. According to company officials, the system also aids starting in cold or wet weather and minimizes ignition tune-ups because there are no points or rubbing block to wear out.

Pomona council asked to open mall to traffic

POMONA — The City Council Monday night will consider a request that the Pomona Mall be opened to vehicle traffic.

Officials, however, may delay a decision pending the return of the city's public works director.

The Pomona Mall has been restricted to pedestrian traffic since a major improvement project about 10 years ago.

The request to allow vehicles is included in a letter from the Central Business District's board of directors, signed by George W. Beamon, chairman, and John A. Evans, co-chairman.

"Due to almost total lack of activity on the mall, on Sept. 13, 1973, the board of directors of the Central Business District voted unanimously to respectfully request that the city restore one-way, no parking, automobile traffic on the mall. There would be no cross-Garey traffic.

"It is further requested that this action be taken as soon as possible, certainly, at least to be effective on or before Thanksgiving day, 1973.

"Since Ron Kranzer (public works director) is out of town, we feel any discussions or debate in council chambers should be delayed until he and staff have had an opportunity to go over the Central Business District's board request.

"The CBD board feels this is a last ditch stand to restore some activity on the mall, so please place the letter on calendar and then request the city engineer to consult with the undersigned CBD committee prior to Friday, Sept. 28." the letter concludes.

The City Council will meet at 8 p.m. in the City Council chambers. There is no afternoon session scheduled.

In another item, the City Council will consider a resolution authorizing the city's purchase from the Historical Society of Pomona Valley, Inc., of the La Casa Primera de Rancho San Jose. It is located at the southwest corner of Park and McKinley avenues.

The total cost to the city will be $82,667, which includes $21,400 for return of down payment; $58,837, trust deed balance; $1,830 for back payments; and $600 for reserve for taxes.

The City Council will also be asked to approve plans and specifications for a pedestrian overcrossing on Valley Boulevard near Omar Street.

The cost is estimated at $75,000, with the project being eligible for gasoline tax improvement funding. Bids may be opened on Oct. 10.

Officials will hold a public hearing regarding a proposal that the hillside overlay zone be applied to a section of the Ganesha Hills located east of Ganesha Boulevard, north of Gillette Road and south of McKinley Avenue.

The 37 acres now contains two reservoir sites, a restaurant, four homes and vacant land. The Pomona Plenning Commission had recommended the overlay at its Sept. 12 meeting.

The city planning staff said the overlay would give the city additional controls over development by limiting the amount of "cut and fill" and specify the type of ground cover to prevent erosion.

Open Door Pomona

Rape crisis assistance offered

POMONA — A rape crisis intervention service has been initiated by Open Door Pomona, 1107 N. Gordon St.

The telephone number to dial is 623-6017. It will be answered 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Director John C. Hinze said Open Door is equipped to make medical referrals for attack victims, provide trained women as escorts and transportation, not only for medical examination or treatment, but also to file complaints with the police department and to help with interpersonal problems that might arise in the victim's family.

Should it be necessary, Hinze said Open Door also is equipped to provide referrals for treatment of venereal disease or problem pregnancy following rape.

"We are compiling statistics and information on how courts and hospitals are treating rape victims," said Hinze, a Cal Poly senior majoring in social services.

According to Hinze, Pomona Open Door is one of the first agencies in Southern California, and one of a few in the United States, to offer rape crisis intervention service.

Trained psychologists and nurses have consented to serve as consultants in providing the service, Hinze said.

Open Door Pomona, founded in June of 1970 as a multi-service center for youth, places primary emphasis on serving those 14 to 24 but, as the name implies, opens its services to any individual in time of crisis or emergency.

Ten services and programs provided include the 24-hour, seven-day hotline for crisis (623-6017); individual counseling, suicide intervention, outreach programs, group rap sessions, juvenile diversion programs, a speakers bureau, public information service, limited emergency housing, extensive referral service and emergency transportation.

The last is provided by volunteers who use their own cars. Hinze said plans are to add a station wagon and provide service within a 50-mile radius of all emergency situations encountered by Pomona agencies.

Hinze lists as "proposed services" for Open Door Pomona, a nonmedical detoxification program utilizing a resident staff of ex-addicts, and an emergency clothing bank, whereby those in crisis might receive clothing.

'Insight' producer to lead fall film course at Theology School

CLAREMONT — "Teaching Theology Through Film" will be added to the fall curriculum at the School of Theology. Father Ellwood Keiser, C.S.P., creator and executive producer of the award-winning dramatic TV series, "Insight," will lead the course beginning Thursday.

The course will center on methods of sharing the gospel through film. Students will learn how to incorporate film into the worship, adult education and teen-age programs of the local congregation, how to select and use film and lead discussions on the topics presented. Father Kieser describes the course as "Cinematic treatments of the great Christian realities—God, Jeus, community—and of the principle Christian values — love, faith and trust."

Father Keiser is a member of the Paulist Fathers, a Roman Catholic order, which specializes in serving those outside their church. Twelve years ago, he was teaching theology and philosophy to college students. Today, he is working with the top writers, directors and actors in the entertainment community to reach more than 150 million people each year. "You show me any other way to communicate human values to that number of people and I'll use it," says Father Kieser.

Now called the freest producer in Hollywood, the 44-year-old Father Kieser has created an imaginative type of TV theater through his series that has attracted many big stars.

These actors, along with top directors and writers, work without pay. "People will do things for God they won't do for money," Father Kieser explains.

"Insight" plays each week on 200 commercial stations and 70 educational channels in the United States. Hailed by civic leaders and critics for its artistic and educational excellence, it is described as the most widely seen TV series of its kind in the world.

Volunteers to drive blind to events needed

POMONA — Volunteer drivers are needed in the Pomona area to transport visually handicapped young people to and from Foundation for the Junior Blind activities in Los Angeles.

These include Friday night socials for teen-agers and Saturday recreation-educational programs during the school year.

The foundation center is located at 5300 Angeles Vista Blvd. between Crenshaw and La Brea, off Slauson.

Foundation executive director Norman Kaplan said without volunteer drivers the foundation has no way of bringing the blind young people together.

Volunteers, he said, are under no obligation to drive any set number of times.

"Once a week, twice a month or even once a month," he explained. "We will be grateful for whatever help an individual can give."

Those wishing to assist may contact the foundation at 213 295-4555.

Comet comment

NEW YORK (UPI) — Comets are sky spectaculars but contrary to what some believe they are not burning, but rather are frozen. Their light comes from the reflection of sunlight off the frozen nucleus. Gases eliminated from the nucleus expand into what is called the coma and together they form the head of the comet.

While the nucleus of a comet may be about five miles across, nucleus and coma together may reach 100,000 miles in diameter. The tail is tens of millions miles long—the record is about 200 million miles.

GOOEY, ISN'T IT—A Claremont School District patron donated her small truck to the kindergarten students of Mrs. Gay Collins at Sycamore School Thursday, and the children painted every inch of the outside of the truck with poster paint. They used brushes at first, then resorted to finger painting. Even the tail pipe and the inside of the gasoline cover received attention. Showing off her poster paint hands is Diana Gray, an artist at 6. The truck owner hopes the paint will come off.

Old man river keeps on rollin'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The mighty Mississippi River, which bubbles to life from little Lake Itasca in Minnesota, is the world's third longest river.

The river travels 2,340 miles from Lake Itasca to where it empties billions of gallons of muddy water into the Gulf of Mexico near New Orleans daily. For comparison purposes, however, the total length of the Mississippi is considered to be 3,484. This includes the length of its longest tributary, the Missouri River.

The other day I shuffled over to a saleswoman with a stack of dresses over my arm and inquired, "Where's your crying room?"

"I beg your pardon," she said.

"Your crying room. I want to try these on."
She directed me to a small room marked "Fitting."

"Do you have one without mirrors?" I asked.

"No," she said stiffly. "This is it. Now, let's see what we have here. Oh, one of our new tent dresses."

The tent dress went over my head easily and when it was belted looked like someone had slipcovered Vermont.

"Do we have these in any other styles?" I asked.

"We have one in canvas with a floor and a screened-in room, but we sold it this morning," she said. "How about our trying on one of our new dresses with a fanny sweater?"

"If it gets that cold, I'll stay at home," I said.

"We certainly can't leave without trying on the new satin slip dress, can we?" She returned with a sleek, sleeveless length of satin that looked like trousseau underwear.

"Surely," I said, "we aren't going to attempt to wear that, are we? I have always felt in my heart that satin was flattering only to pin cushions and women born without stomachs."

She slid the dress over my head and by sheer force brought it to rest over my hips. Neither of us said anything for a full minute.

Then I spoke. "I feel like a mannequin in a Mr. Fredericks window."

"Nonsense," she said. "We just have to learn to suck in."

"What do we wear under it?" I asked.

"Fear," she answered, then added, "maybe we'd like to try on something from the layered look collection."

"I am already into the layered look," I said. "I grew my own this summer."

After I dressed in my own clothes, I wandered off to a corner of the department where a rack of suits caught my eye. "Now we're talking," I said. "Are these career dresses?"

"It depends on how we feel about maternity clothes," she sniffed.

"Are we going to cry now?" I asked.

"I think so," she said, biting her lip.

Men's wear

Time has arrived for wonder watch

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — They are bulky, usually less than beautiful, sometimes hard to read at night, and expensive — $150 to more than $1,000—but they are the hottest status item in men's jewelry today. They are quartz crystal watches which print out the time in digits, i.e.: 12:48.

Aside from the newness of such watches, accuracy is the biggest selling feature—plus the status symbol thing. They are accurate to one minute a year and the people who make them say they will become even more accurate and small enough to be beautiful.

One of the people who makes them is Kenneth Hollandsworth, president of Jules Jurgensen, the 200-year-old Danish watchmaking firm. He produces an all-electronic quartz crystal watch called Optcom I, so we asked him what makes them tick.

Well, for one thing, they don't tick. They don't even hum. About the only thing you have to do is put in a tiny battery from time to time. They are really mini-computers but Hollandsworth couldn't say that because a rival firm has registered the world "computer" as applied to watches.

To start at the beginning, there was the sun dial, the hour glass and the pendulum. After that the balance wheel remained the source of movement in clocks and watches for 300 years. The balance wheel was powered by a hand wound mainspring which oscillated at 2½ times per second to turn the gears that moved the watch hands. In recent years this developed into a self-wind watch where the movement of the wearer's arm wound the spring.

In the early 50s the electric watch came out, replacing the mainspring with a tiny battery. In the 1960s, the first electric watch came out utilizing a battery powered "tuning fork" which oscillated at the rate of 360 times a second.

The latest

Most recently in the last year or so, an electronic quartz watch was developed with a tiny bar of quartz crystal that vibrates thousands of times a second. The faster the oscillation, the more accurate the watch. With such solid state construction all gears and springs are unnecessary.

A solid state watch has no moving parts. The computerized timepiece has the capacity to perform mathematic calculations, programmed to maintain time keeping functions.

Currently bulky looking, the development is so rapid that ultra-miniaturization will make thinner watches (and women's models) available before the end of the year.

The prices range from $150 to above $1,000 and the average is around $250-300. The Optcom is [illegible]. Some solid state watches should be selling for around $100 in a couple of years.

Two types of quartz movements are on the market, both of which have all-electron circuitry for digital readouts of the exact time.

1. The LED (light emitting diode) gives time on demand. You push a button and the time appears in glowing red numbers. The disadvantage is that lighting up the digits takes more battery drain than the movement itself and the battery must be replaced more often.

2. The LCD liquid crystal device) which shows the time on a constant basis, and is the one use by Optcom. Here, a liquid is sandwiched between two pieces of plastic. Sub-miniature electrodes inserted into the liquid cause the liquid's molecules to take the form of digits through the pulsating charges of electricity. The advantage is long life and less battery drain. The disvantage is long life and less battery drain. The disadvantage is that it is hard to see at night.

In the rush to put out [illegible], which the industry says will completely change the market, some makes have added a quartz crystal to an "ordinary" watch with mechanical movement. This adds a little accuracy but does not do away with moving parts.

Engineer's oath is recommended

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Engineers should take an oath similar to the Hippocratic Oath taken by physicians, says an engineering educator at the University of California.

Prof. Charles Susskind argues that engineers increasingly resemble physicians in their concern for the human condition, but the engineering code of ethics still deals mainly with business relations.

"[illegible] of the responsibility for the uses of technology lies with society, not engineers," Susskind said. "Blaming engineers for the shortcomings of technology makes about as much sense as blaming the failure of a new play on the stagehands."

European hosts happy to see visitors leave

By DONALD W. REYNOLDS

COSTA DEL SOL, Spain — "Lo peor de la plaga se fue" greets you from the taxi drivers, waiters, bar tenders, sales persons, room clerks and all of the other natives serving the tourist hordes that flood the beaches here.

Not being a very good linguist, I asked for a translation and had surprising difficulty in getting it. Finally found a bilingual waiter that embarrassingly explained that the rather free translation was that "the worst of the locusts have gone." And for more than a week the roads have been bumper to bumper, the buses packed and the "no space available" recording on the airline phones.

I have found that few tourists are happy with the accommodations, food or generacceptance, but had taken it as the normal griping of travelers. It was just a little bit surprising to find that the hosts were even happier to see the guests leaving than were the guests to leave.

One of my favorite stories, told as only the late Joe E. Lewis could tell a story: After quite a buildup Joe would introduce his long-time piano player, Mr. Mack. The audieence perfunctorily applauded, then Lewis with the perfect timing that made him one of the greatest standup comedians of his time, brought the house down as he drawled, "He doesn't like you very much either "

Since the days of the Roman Empire, tourism, under many names, has been an integral part of European history, be it the legions of Caesar or the retired folks on the American Express bus. Almost 2,000 years hasn't truly changed the picture. The guests still make the host doubly glad — twice happy — when they arrive, and when they go. And while the money brought in is accepted, in some instances quite graciously, the sigh of relief on the 'locusts' departure is definitely audible.

So why the travel? I've talked to may almost professional vagabonds that have toured the world. Complaining about everything, but always returning for more. Money hunger stimulates the promotions, travel agents and all of those profiting from the visitors — perhaps the best explanation for the wanderer was given me in answer to the question, "What spot do you like best of all?" And the laconic reply, "The place I prefer is where I haven't been " Got your bag packed?

Her steady opposed to her career

By Jean Adams

18 AND 14: I am 18 and the girl I like is 14. Is there something wrong with me or is it OK to like someone that young and take her out? She likes me too. —Criticized in Connecticut.

(A.) There is nothing wrong with you, but you are likely to run into more problems with a 14-year-old than you would if you liked a girl 18 or 17 or 16 years old.

First, the girl's parents may think she is too young to date, or that you are too old for her.

Second, if you are acceptable to her parents you must be very careful how you treat the girl. You are older than she, stronger. She may think that anything you want is wise and right. You must be very sure to be worthy of her trust in you.

Third, you are far ahead of her in school. Her friends are not your age. Your firends are not her age. Your interests are different from hers.

Unless you are very devoted to each other, it won't be simple.

LIES: (Q.) I have been going to summer school. Last week some other girls and I were caught smoking. The principal told us our parents would be called.

Well, when I got home no one had called my mother so I told her about it. But I changed the truth around a lot. When they called her from school the story was different and, boy, did I catch it.

Now I have decided to stop smoking and lying. I have smoked only a very little but since I was a kid I have told lies. I will never do anything wrong again if I can help it. But how can I get my mother to trust me? —14 in Texas

(A.) It is not easy to stop the habit of lying, and you will have to work hard to do it.

Tell your mother of your resolution and ask her to help you stop both smoking and lying. She wants to help you — I am sure — and she wants to trust you. With her help, I am sure you can make it.

New rules to cut red tape for jobless

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —New regulations designed to trim welfare red tape and allow the state to concentrate on finding jobs for employable recipients were announced Thursday by the Department of Human Resources Development.

Under the change, counties will act on their own in determining welfare eligibility for persons physically unable to work. Presently, the decision of the county must be reviewed at the state level.

Department Director Earl Brian said the change will take a "significant" workload off his staff and allow them to place greater emphasis on finding jobs for those who can work.

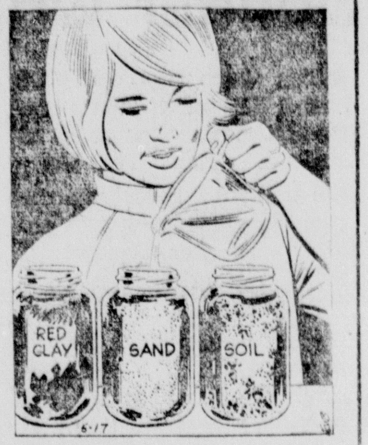
Science for You

By BOB BROWN



PROBLEM: Soil and water.

NEEDED: three cans, one filled with red clay, another with garden topsoil and another filled with sand. Water.

DO THIS: Pack the sand and soil down and pour an equal amount of water on top of each. Watch what happens.

WHAT HAPPENS: The water poured into the sand will pass through it rapidly. Water poured into the clay will stand on top of it a long time. Water poured into the topsoil will seep into it slowly and be held there.

THIS MEANS: When the earth is stripped down to the clay, the rain that falls on it will run off very quickly, and possibly produce flooding. Sandy soil will let the water pass down to harder and more compact layers, possibly too deep to support plant life well. Topsoil holds rain, making it available to plants for good growth.

Once good topsoil is destroyed it cannot be rebuilt easily and quickly. This is good for ecology-minded people to remember.

Batman, Superman cavort on shelves of Library of Congress

By JOSEPH M. CHAPMAN

as an integral part of Ameri-

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Quickly, who's the nation's largest collector of comic books, a reading staple of American kids that ranged from such heroes as Batman and Superman to Captain Marvel?

Shazaam! Would you believe the prestigious and staid Library of Congress?

Barring any evidence to the contrary, the Library of Congress believes that it has more comic books than anyone, a total of about 2,000 separate titles and approximately 37,000 comics.

From this treasure trove of comic books the Library will pull a few select issues for an exhibit in October featuring two great heroes, Batman and Superman.

The exhibit will include Superman comic books from 1943, 1951, 1962 and 1973. It will also feature Batman comics from 1946, the issue of December of 1950-January 1951, 1966, and 1973.

But if that's not enough for comic book fans, the Library of Congress exhibit will also feature full color excerpts from books by an expert in the field, E. Nelson Bridwell —"Superman from the Thirties to the Seventies' and "Batman from the Thirties to the Seventies."

While the exhibit concentrates on Superman and Batman, it is evidence of the importance of the comic book as an integral part of Ameri can culture. Each month, in addition to comics it already has, the library receives from 100 to 200 new issues through copyright deposit.

Sociologists and historians have found comics to be an important part of their study of American life.

The comic strip was first popularized in the 1890s by R. F. Outcault with his "Hogan's Alley" in the New York World and then with his "The Yellow Kid" in the New York Journal.

But it was not until the late 1930s that the first comic books appeared.

Now comic book buffs will pay from $200 to $300 for a 10 cent copy of the first issue of "Action comics" from 1938—which introduced Superman—or as much as $275 for a copy of the 1939 issue of "Detective Comics" that introduced Batman.

"At one time, comic books could be read only in the Rare Book Room of the Library of Congress and usage was restricted to scholars with a serious intention of publishing the results of their research," a spokeswoman said. "Comic books are now available in the Newspaper and Current Periodical Room."

"Only those issues in an advanced state of deterioration are not in service," the spokeswoman said.

Everybody's body needs carbohydrates

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like your opinion on sugar in the diet. I read an article that stated that anyone who eats ordinary meals containing fruits, potatoes and other vegetables, cereals, breads, meats, eggs and milk is getting ample carbohydrates for his needs. He could go through life comfortably without using a spoonful of added sweetening. In fact, this article states some nutritional observers think we'd be better off if our sugar supply were to disappear. What is your opinion? Also, when one is told by his physician that he has low blood sugar, should he add more sugar to his diet or use less.

Dear Reader — It is important to have a sufficient amount of carbohydrates in the diet from foods that contain important vitamins and minerals The body doesn't function well without carbohydrates. This can cause a disturbance in the body chemistry called ketosis. The accumulation of ketone bodies in an untreated diabetic leads to diabetic coma, a serious medical problem. Continued loss of ketones from the urine in this condition also depletes the body of important minerals, including calcium, which accelerates or aggravates the problem of degeneration of the spine and loss of calcium from the bones.

The term carbohydrates includes vegetables, cereals, fruits, as well as the sweets, which include sugar, honey, syrups, jams and jellies. It is perfectly true that a person can get along quite well from a health point of view if they never use any sweets at all, and, instead, got all of their carbohydrates from fresh fruits, vegetables and cereals. Milk, our principal source of calcium, also contains appreciable amounts of carbohydrates.

Earliest man was more of a vegetarian and early fossils show grinding-like teeth of the vegetarian as seen in other primates, as opposed to the canine overhanging teeth seen in carnivores. Those living in the jungle and tropical regions in places where plant food was abundant were more apt to be vegetarians. It is not true that early man did without carbohydrates. Early cave drawings show primitive man obtaining honey from wild bees.

Sugars or sweets are sometimes very useful, particularly if you need to provide large amount of energy in a small amount of bulk for some medical reason. The biggest drawback of most of the sugars and sweets is that they do not contain any significant amounts of vitamins and minerals (blackstrap molasses though is a good source for iron). When true low blood sugar is present and is responsible for the symptoms, then the diet should be one which restricts concentrated sweets, specifically sugars and syrups, jellies and jams. In most instances these individuals can continue to use vegetables and cereals without added sweetners

Not all cases of low blood sugar are rellated specifically to the diet. There are rare examples in which a tumor of the pancreas is the cause. When the tumor is removed this usually will solve the problem.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of the Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on low blood sugar, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Low Blood Sugar" booklet.

Even grandmasters can be checkmated

Although middle-game checkmates are rare in grandmaster chess, threats of checkmate or threats of threats of checkmate appear and reappear in many games. Sometimes the threat will force a weakness in the defender's pawn position and-or the threat will gain time to position an attacking piece.

Infrequently the attacker's checkmate cannot be countered satisfactorily and the defender must lose heavy material to avoid it. The attacker will make a drastic sacrifice or sacrifices if he sees that a costly (for his opponent) mate threat can be achieved.

WHITE

For example, Bent Larsen (white) reached the position in diagram one against Donald Byrne at the San Antonio "Fried Chicken" Tournament last year. Habitually tuned to sharp moves, Larsen made the ncessary sacrifice at this point to achieve a winning mate threat.

He directly played 1) RXPch!! After . . . RPxR the game continued with 2) QxP check, K-R1: 3) Q-R6 check, K-N1; and 4) R-Q3 threatening checkmate. The black king is exposed and the black pieces have limited availability for defense.

Byrne was able to stop the mate with . . .Q-N5 check, but lost his queen after 5) R-N3, QxR; and 6) KBPxQ.

Material is now roughly even but black's ordeal, commencing with 1) RxP check, is not over. Larsen's threat of 7) Q-N6 check, K-RI,; 8) BxP with the danger of Q-R6 mate among others compelled back to play . . . B-K5 to control key white squares needed by the black king.

(Diagram 2)

WHITE

White was then able to pick up the bishop by a series of checks (7) Q-N5 check, K-R2; 8) Q-R4 check, K-N2; 9) QxB) and black resigned because of his material disa vantage. Black's return of material by the queen sacrifice had not stopped white's threats. It was Byrne who made the ultimate sacirfice.

Even such meager and ultimately futile defense as Byrne had was not available to Sammy Rsheyvsky in the following position reached in the Interzonal tournament at Petropolis, Brazil against Lajos Portisch.

Portisch
WHITE

Portisch, with all his pieces massed against the black king, has an immediate and straightforward win as against the defending pieces are cut off from effective defense of the king.

What is the winning move? Answer: BxP achieves the breakthrough as PxB leads to a forced mate by white. Try to work it out.

Riles schedules 2 fund-raisers for 2nd term

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles has scheduled fund-raising dinners in Los Angeles and San Francisco next month for his planned re-election campaign.

Riles, although not making a formal declaration, has said he probably will seek a second term as the state's top education official.

The $50-a-plate dinners will be held Oct. 16 at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco and Oct. 24 at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles. An aide said they are expected to raise about $500,000.

Riles became the first black in California history to be elected to statewide office when he rose from political obscurity to unseat incumbent Max Rafferty in 1970.

New method may identify those prone to heart attack

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Heart researchers announced that examination of coronary arteries might indicate what persons are most susceptible to instant death from heart attack.

Dr. Meyer Friedman headed a six-member team which examined the habits, behavior patterns and pathological findings of 69 persons who died of coronaries. The findings were reported in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

During the study at Marin General Hospital in Greenbrae and the Harold Brunn Institute of the Mount Zion Hospital and Medical Center, the deaths were broken down for the first time by researchers into "instantaneous" and "sudden."

The 32 instantaneous deaths occurred within 30 seconds of the first symptoms while the 37 sudden deaths ranged from one minute to 24 hours.

In more than half of the instantaneous deaths, Friedman said. The left anterior descending coronary artery of the heart had been totally obstructed "perhaps months or years" before death. And in 44 per cent of the same subjects, two of their four main coronary arteries had been totally blocked.

However only three such old obstructions were found in the 34 sudden death patients.

These findings "have been possible to obtain only in the last several years because of the previous unavailability of precise and safe diagnostic coronary cinearteriography," said Friedman.

"We believe .. that now with the advent of safe coronary angiography and the results of the present pathological findings, foolproof detection and finally truly effective treatment of the subject who is dangerously prone to instantaneous coronary death is at hand."

Clinically, the researchers said the instantaneous deaths differed from sudden coronary arrest by:

—Taking place abruptly and usually without earlier symptoms

—Being far more likely to occur during or immediately after severe or even moderate exertion

—Appearing to be brought on by ventricular fibrillation (rapid uncoordinated contractions of the heart ventricles leading to loss of synchronization between heartbeat and pulsebeat)

The study also suggested that exercise may be particularly and unexpectedly lethal.

"Sixteen (50 per cent) of the instantaneous cardiac arrest cases had been indulging in either severe (jogging 3, carrying heavy objects 3, calisthenics 2, running 1, playing handball 1, digging a ditch 1) or moderate walking 3, golfing 1, gardening 1, physical activity within 120 seconds of their demise," said the study.

"On the other hand, only three (10 per cent) of the sudden cardiac arrest cases had been indulging in either severe or moderate physical activity immediately prior to their demise."

Other elements of the survey indicated

—The majority of the 69 death cases drank little or no alcoholic beverages

—78 per cent of the instantaneous death and 89 per cent of the sudden death cases had been cigarette smokers

—54 per cent of the sudden cardiac cases and 22 per cent of the instantaneous cases had been obese prior to death.

Song lyrics are 'poems'

Bob Dylan really a poet; his book seems to show it

NEW YORK (UPI) —"If I can't please everybody," says singer-composer Bob Dylan, "I might as well not please nobody at all."

So begins a book he has compiled of his own song lyrics dating from the beginnings in 1964 to the album "New Morning," released about three years ago.

It's a cryptic message— followed in parentheses by the words: "There's but so many people and I just can't please them all" —and what it means exactly probably will be bandied about among Dylan's fans and critics for some time to come.

The book —"Writings and Drawings by Bob Dylan" (Knopf, $6.95) —is thick, 8-½ by 10-½ inches in size and more than 300 pages long. The jacket is cerise with one of Dylan's many drawings on the front cover, a picture of him on the back. Inside are the lyrics to all his songs through 1970, liner notes from record jackets and rambling comments on who and what he is.

"Somewheres back I took the time to start playin' the guitar," he writes. "Somewheres back I took time to start singin'. Somewheres back I took the time to start writin'. But I never ever did take the time to find out why..."

Rather than a book of lyrics, really, this is a book of poetry. Those who know Dylan's music will have a difficult time reading the verse without hearing the melody that it accompanies, familiar as the songs are. But the words—his wit, his wisdom—still will stand alone:

"Through the mad mystic hammering of the wind ripping hail the sky cracked its poems in naked wonder..."

"Darkness at the break of noon, shadows even the silver spoon, the handmade blade, the child's balloon eclipses both the sun and moon. To understand, you know too soon. There is no sense in trying..."

And from perhaps his best work to date, "Hey, Mr. Tambourine Man":

"Then take me disappearin' through the smoke rings of my mind, down the foggy ruins of time, far past the frozen leaves, the haunted, frightened trees, out to the windy beach, far from the twisted reach of crazy sorrow..."

One question raised about the book is whether it signals Dylan's self-demise as a folk music hero ("I might as well not please nobody at all"). Why would anyone as gifted and prolific as Dylan lump all [illegible] songs into one large volume— quite unlike the "retrospective" books one buys in the music store—unless he is ready to try something new?

One critic, and Dylan aficionado, Peter Knobler, writing in the current edition of the rock magazine Crawdaddy, says Dylan's departure from music is "possible, but not very likely.

Los Angeles sewer system is gigantic

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Every day the City of Los Angeles generates 350 million gallons of sewage. That's about 125 gallons for every man, woman and child within its boundaries.

The liquid and solid waste produced in homes, businesses and industry is quietly carried away undergound through more than 5,800 miles of mainline sewers, enough pipeline to reach from here to Washington, D. C. and back again.

The pipelines range in size from about the diameter of a pie tin to the height and width of a train car. The largest sewer pipeline is 10 ½ feet high and 12 ¼ feet wide.

The lines weave in and out through various ventilation chambers, siphons, pumping plants and about 100,000 manholes peeking up out of the street pavement along the city's roadways. Some of the manholes extend 100 feet into the ground and are large enough for inspection boats.

This underground world is under the purview of some 250 public works employes including engineers, chemists, superintendents and mechanics. Their job is to service and maintain the sewer system on a 24 hous a day basis, a $2 million payroll for the city.

Major contributors to the city's waste production are industries. They are permitted to discharge liquid wastes into the sanitary sewers and storm drains provided they are sufficiently pollutant-free to meet water quality control standards.

Industry is inspected regularly for compliance, and the cost of administering the monitoring program is carried through annual inspection fees.

Bureau of Sanitation workers also must constantly inspect and clean the sewer lines and pumping plans which lift the sewage from low-lying areas.

But the sewer lines are only artificial riverways and conduits whose main task is to carry the wastes to three major land outfalls—collecting points for sewage from many incoming lines.

One of these outfalls, which measures some 9 ¼ feet in diameter, is a tunnel built under the Los Angeles International Airport.

The outfalls collect all the material and send it to the treatment plants where the real work of processing the sewage begins.

The main treatment facility is the Hyperion Treatment Plant at Playa del Rey Beach, a few miles southwest of downtown Los Angeles.

The Hyperion plant, built in 1950, was the turning point in efficient waste disposal for the city. Prior to 1950, the Santa Monica Bay and many of the city's beaches were polluted and some condemned.

The plant and the sewer system cost a total of $75 million.

What happens to the waste material at the Hyperion plant involves a series of separation procedures.

Raw waste enters the plant and all types of coarse debris is ground up in seven bar screens and four disintegrators.

Next stop is the grit removal tanks. Sand and mineral matter is allowed to settle, leaving the lighter organic material. The grit is separated in a process which takes about 10 minutes. Then it is washed and taken by truck for use as land fill.

The bulk of the waste continues through the primary treatment process, all the time metered so the flow is steadily controlled.

The primary treatment is like a glass jar filled with mud and water. After a while the mud will settle to the bottom of the jar. In much the same way, solid waste material is allowed to settle to the bottom of 12 primary sedimentation tanks covered by concrete slabs.

It takes about 1 ½ hours for the solid matter to settle and the grease, and floating matter to rise to the top.

Grease skimmers collect the floatable material and wooden cross pieces scrape the bottom for the solid or sludge matter. Both the sludge and the grease are removed to digestion tanks and the rest of the liquid waste is ready to be pumped out to sea.

But the remainder of the flow is sent through an activated sludge process. Activated sludge is organic matter which is combined with oxygen. The oxygen accelerates the natural breakdown of the organic matter by bacteria.

This is accomplished in 32 open seperation tanks, each 300 feet long—about the length of a football field—30 feet wide and 15 feet deep. Compressed air is sent into the tanks which hold the activated sludge for about six and a half hours before it is purified.

Finally, the sludge and the liquidin which it is suspended is piped to one of 20 uncovered final sedimentation tanks. There the sludge is settled out substantially free of organic matter and sent back through the cycling process either to the seperation tanks or to the primary sedimentation tanks.

What is left is clear water which is pumped out through funnel lines five miles out in the Pacific Ocean. It gushes into a submarine canyon 200 feet deep and is spread over an area about one mile in diameter. Sometimes chlorine is added to control any leftover bacteria at two chlorination stations at sea.

The treatment process goes on at the Hyperion plant and at the Terminal Island plant. Beach waters are tested every day at 17 beach stations for water quality.

Every week the bay waters are tested, and a 65-foot oceanographic vessel cruises the waters to monitor for pollution.

But what about the sludge that isn't clear enough to be sent out to sea?

That sludge is sent through digesters, 18 tanks where the bacteria is nurtured in an oxygen free atmosphere kept at about body temperature. Live steam is shot into the tanks to keep up the heat so that bacteria can break down the organic material.

About half of the sludge is transformed into a gas consiting of two-thirds methane which is then used to fuel the plant's generators and pumps and one-third carbon dioxide. Any leftover fuel is sold to the city's Department of Water and Power Scattergood Steam Plant.

The other half of the sludge is a humus-like substance which is passed through vibrating screens. What doesn't pass through is hauled to land fill sites by truck, and what does is pumped seven miles out to sea.

The plant gets about 94 per cent of its power from gas produced by its own sludge digestion system and much of the sewer line flow moves solely by the force of gravity. The system is almost totally self-sufficient.

In the future, the Bureau of Sanitation hopes to reclaim waste waters for use in the irrigation of golf courses, park lands and greenbelts throughout the semi-arid Southern California area. Reclaimed water could conceivably be drawn directly from the sewer lines and converted at proposed reclamation plants.

San Francisco was linked with the East by the Pony Express in 1860 and by the railroad in 1869.

But Demond Wilson's a star

Redd overshadows 'son'

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Demond Wilson lives in the shadow of Redd Foxx in their weekly television series, "Sanford and Son," but away from work Demond is very much his own, swinging man.

Wilson is a talkative, outgoing bachelor with a string of racial jokes. He pokes gentle fun at the black-white dilemma. But as a black he also feels deeply about civil rights.

Of his role as Lamont Sanford, the actor says: "I like to present blacks in the proper light.

"I grew up in Harlem where there are a lot of Lamonts."

He has written some episodes for the NBC series but hasn't sold any to the producers. Wilson says he is waiting for one he thinks worthy of an Emmy award before he submits them.

Wilson lives in an apartment in the San Fernando valley, about three minutes from the NBC studios where he reports to work at 8 a.m. six times a week.

Unlike many shows, "Sanford and Son" doesn't use cue cards so it is necessary for Demond and Redd to memorize 60 pages of dialogue weekly.

Wilson has decorated his two-bedroom apartment with fastidious care. He bought a combination of French provincial, modern and contemporary furniture in clean, classic lines.

He keeps a second bedroom for visiting friends and relatives. Both his parents and sister continue to live in New York City, but he also has aunts and cousins in his native Valdosta, Ga.

When Wilson moved to Southern California two years ago he brought nothing with him except his clothes. His wardrobe is a great source of pride.

"I'm known as Peter Prep," he says, in reference to his Ivy League image. "I never wear sandals or go out of the house in blue jeans. You can't dress like that when you drive a big Cadillac like I do."

Wilson likes to run three miles a day at the beach to stay trim, a pasttime he enjoys irregularly when the show is in production. When he can't get to the beach he jogs in place in his apartment.

A former college (Hunter College) and high school basketball star, Wilson is unable to play tennis or golf because of a shoulder separation.

Wilson's roots are still in Harlem although he has no plans to return there except to visit family and friends. And his bachelor status may change any day.

He has been dating the same girl for several months and has dinner with her every night.

Happily, he reports, she is the finest cook in the western hemisphere, spoiling him with curry dishes, fetuccini and, he adds with a chuckle, spareribs. There are evenings when Demond dons an apron and does the cooking himself.

On weekends Demond and his girl friend (whom he wants to keep secret until they announce their engagement) attend as many movies as possible. Occasionally they visit Redd Foxx and his wife.

Wilson has no pets and doesn't want any. He's planning, however, to buy a tankful of tropical fish, not so much for their company as the tranquilizing effect of their constant water ballet.

A veteran of Vietnam (1966-67) Demond is content with life, concluding: "I never had it so good."

Opinion

Jersey Democrats cite win formula

It's a strange sort of political year in New Jersey. Listen to Brendan Byrne, the Democratic nominee for governor, make his case before some conventioners at Atlantic City.

"I've never been a candidate for public office in my life . . . There's nothing that makes me a good politician, a good speaker, or even a good candidate . . .

"I don't know it all. I don't know a lot of things."

With Jersey hip-deep in political scandals, talk like that may go over big. It's a good year to profess inexperience, and even a little ignorance.

Of course Byrne doesn't want that kind of thing taken too literally. He lets the customers know he was an aide for a time to former Gov. Robert Meyner, that he headed the state's Public Utilities Commission, spent nine years as prosecutor in Essex County (Newark), and just quit as Superior Court judge in Morris County.

So the plan is to offer him as clean but not too green. Byrne's strategists don't know any more than do those of his GOP rival, U.S. Rep. Charles Sandman, about the prospective impact of Watergate in this important race. But they figure if it makes New Jersey voters just a little more attentive to character at a time their own state is in a mess, Byrne may be the new face they're looking for.

"Shopworn" is one of the key labels they pin on Sandman.

If Byrne is new, he's also stiff, especially for an Irishman with seven kids. His managers know it, and it makes them a little nervous. Some top Democrats privately fear he'll blow something big before November election day.

But top aides like Richare Leone, a Muskie man last year, and Lew Kaden, once with Robert Kennedy, can't see Byrne giving away what they think is a safe lead. They think Sandman, the veteran legislator from Cape May who himself has six kids, has piled up enough "negatives" in 17 years in office to keep Byrne on the winning side.

In branding the GOP nominee a "rightwinger," a splinter candidate," they'll tell you he's got an incrediby bad labor record — that he's voted against higher minimum wages, better worker safety, food stamps for the poor, even "hot and cold running water" for migrant workers.

Byrne's managers add that if Sandman argues he's done all this as the taxpayer's friend, it amounts to overkill. They think that when they get through laying out Sandman's record, his presumed advantage as the "gut issue" candidate will evaporate. rate.

Says Kaden of Sandman's showing at a recent confrontation of the contenders in Smithville:

"He sounded like he was running for chairman of the board of General Motors."

Well, that's the easy part of a New Jersey report. But, dashing from northern cities to Cape May, you find the total scene and the tons of "facts" baffling. Both the sights and the talk are a shifting montage which eludes definition.

Many gauges say the economy booms, but rail lines totter in or near bankruptcy, high unemployment smothers heavily black Newark, pollution is so bad Sandman dares to say a deepwater port (with threat of oil spills) couldn't hurt. Crime perils the streets.

Bright new houses fill up the long coastline, yet the piney, swampy inland is nearly a human desert. Large areas seem a throwback to the 1940s. Can there be a real New Jersey?

Skylab discovery

One of the most important results of Skylab II, in terms of future life down here on earth, may have been a simple experiment conducted by the crew of the orbiting laboratory.

Using a special furnace, Capt. Alan L. Bean, Maj. Jack R. Lousma and Dr. Owen K. Garriott melted parts of two crystals, then allowed them to cool and reform into new crystals.

On earth, materials that must be melted in their construction, such as metals and electronic crystals, develop impurities or improper mixing because of gravity. This problem does not exist in the weightless environment of space.

By studying how molten materials cool in space, scientists believe they may learn how to construct materials on earth of such purity that their strength and reliability would be increased vastly beyond present standards.

Some of the possibilities are superpure crystals which could perform as many as 750,000 functions compared to the present 200 in a pocket calculator; tiny television cameras that would operate without lights; steel up to 1,000 times stronger, jet engines that could run at higher temperatures, giving more power with less pollution; the efficient conversion of solar energy to electricity.

According to one scientist, Dr. Harry C. Gatos of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the ultimate impact of controlling the chemical composition and structure of materials "is beyond the most far-out-science fiction type of imagination."

Thought for today

A happy life must be to a great extent a quiet life, for it is only in an atmosphere of quiet that true joy can live. — Bertrand Russell, English philosopher.

Is Nixon backstabbing Agnew?

WASHINGTON — Three major congressional committees have secretly ordered studies of how Congress should respond to the constitutional challenge of ruling on a possible replacement for Vice President Spiro Agnew.

One preliminary study by the Senate Judiciary Committee began more than two weeks ago at a time when Agnew's aides were pooh-poohing any talk of resignation. The other two probes were ordered this week by the House Judiciary and Senate Rules committees.

All three surveys are intended to prepare Congress for possible eventualities. The committees have no positive information that Agnew might actually resign in the wake of the grand jury investigation of Maryland kickback charges.

Although the replacement of a Vice President would be unprecedented in American history, the Senate Judiciary study has already found guidelines in Congress' own rules and in the legislative history of the 25th Amendment. The six-year-old amendment says both houses of Congress must rule on any presidential nominee to succeed a Vice President.

Chairmen

If two sets of hearings are held under the 25th Amendment as is normal on legislation, the Senate Judiciary staff investigation has found it would be headed by Senate Rules chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., and House Judiciary chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J. Both are well-regarded, fair-minded lawyers.

One of the most intriguing precedents discovered by the Senate Judiciary staff has eerie parallels with the present situation. Thirty-six years ago, then-Sen. Hugo Black was picked by Pres. Franklin Roosevelt for the Supreme Court. So highly thought of was Black by his Senate conferees that they skipped committee hearings on the controversial nomination. It went straight to the Senate floor where it was approved.

Today, two of the men mentioned in the speculation as replacements for Agnew are also senators — Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Hugh Scott, R.-Pa., either of whom could conceivably pass the Senate without hearings.

Another possibility is that Cannon's Rules Committee and Rodino's Judiciary group would hold joint hearings. Rodino's legislative sleuths have already discovered that a decade ago the House Judiciary and Senate Finance committees were ordered by an unusual Act of Congress jointly to study a taxation question. Although House Judiciary wound up doing almost all the work, the old act is a clear precedent for joint vice presidential hearings.

Select committees

One of several other possibilities turned up by the studies is that a select committee would be appointed by each House or a joint select committee would be appointed by both houses. However, Senate historians feel any effort by the leadership to dislodge Rodino or Cannon as chairmen would be a flagrant slap.

Presidential taping not new idea

With the first acknowledgment that White House conversations in the Oval Office had been recorded, all of us who have conferred confidentially in that office immediately sought mentally to reconstruct those conversations imagining that they might now be made public.

I didn't sweat — but I "gulped" once or twice. The GSA (General Services Administration) confirms that four former Presidents (F.D.R., Eisenhower, Kennedy and L.B.J.) did have recordings made of at least some of their private conversations without advising the principals taking part in those conversations that they were being recorded.

President Franklin Roosevelt had the telephones tapped in both the offices and homes of some of his closest aides. The libraries of Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson include thousands of tapes of confidential conversations. The Kennedy Library's senior archivist, William Moss, says existing recordings of telephone conversations and face-to-face meetings involving Kennedy and others will not be made public "for a long time," if only for "security reasons."

He implies that military classification is involved in some of the tapes. Certainly some might embarrass foreign chiefs of state — to our diplomatic disadvantage. And it is likely that the reputations of living individuals might be irreparably damaged of those tapes were to include, for example, executive briefings on potential appointees.

When a presidential appointment is pending, there are necessarily some very frank discussions of each appointee's qualifications. The L.B.J. Library includes tapes which are not to be made public before the year 2500.

And tapes made by previous Presidents — perhaps L.B.J. — would likely include such privately harmless but publicly damaging stuff as unbecoming ribald humor and intemperate profanity. On the other hand, a record of unofficial utterances in the Chief Executive's office eventually may have historical significance. Some examples:

When Harry Truman became President he got this advice from former Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn: "From here on you're going to have a lot of people around you. They'll try to put a wall around you and cut you off from any ideas but theirs. They will hypnotize you by telling you what a great man you are. But, Harry, both you and I know you ain't."

When President Nixon was elected, L. B. J. told him to enjoy his Inauguration Day because "that is the only day when you will be President of the United States. Starting the day after inauguration you will be subject to the veto of The Washington Post, the New York Times and three networks."

And to a trusted confident, L.B.J. also had this to say about his protege, Bobby Baker. As Baker faced trial, Lyndon Johnson said, "He knows where all the skeletons are. If he talks, I could be the first President to go to prison — and 20 U.S. congressmen or former congressmen would go with me."

Gossip for today

A newspaper LETTER TO THE EDITOR points out somewhat cynically that:

"Everybody wants a good environment but not at the expense of dependable, around-the-clock electrical service."

Which quite accurately describes the attitude of most Americans today. It is going to take more than just a few brown-outs to convince us that maybe in the interest of a clearer environment and energy conservation, we should give up our electric toothbrushes; electric trash mashers, electric razors, electric garbage disposals, electric carving knives, electric sun tan lamps, combs and hair dryers.

However, if worst comes to worst and we finally get scared enough to decide to do our bit to help correlate the environment and the energy crisis, we can not only give up all those before mentioned goodies but also really show our patriotism by installing old fashioned door knockers in place of electric door bells; by changing over from electric to wind-up clocks; by shutting off the electric blanket and adding a comforter to the bed; by outlawing rock and roll band amplifiers; by insisting that secretaries use manually operated typewriters instead of the electric variety; by disconnecting the electric can opener and knife sharpener; and finally (and greater patriotism than this hath no man, woman or child.) we can shut off our TV sets for the duration.

Yes, we can do all of those things if that is what it is going to take to improve the environment and avoid the brownouts. But my guess is we'll think it all over and finally settle for brown skies, a brown taste in our mouths, possible nuclear fall-out and MORE ELECTRICITY.

"It's the newest craze! What will our friends say when they find out you don't want to play backgammon?"

BRUCE BIOSSAT

A president needs to be a politician

There were the Democrats, spread all over national television, collecting pledges of some $5.4 million to pay off their party's debt and build campaign funds. And their telethon chairman, John Y. Brown, dropped in one of the worst lines any party man could utter.

He told his listeners and the nation it was time to stop electing politicians and to begin picking "statesmen" for public office. On the scene at Los Angeles, the applause was warm. But Brown could not have been more wrong.

To be sure, he didn't invent this nonsense. Since the days of King George III, Americans have been captivated by the idea that their public offices could best be filled by "non-politicans." The notion has appealed especially with respect to the presidency.

In fact, it's the purest fantasy and has been responsible for more mischief and ineptitude than almost anything else in U.S. public life. Before he went on camera, telethon chariman Brown should have scanned a newspaper written by Thomas E. Cronin, a young scholar currently at the Center for the Sutdy of Democratic Institutions.

Cronin's piece was most specifically applied to President Nixon and his difficulties, but its theme is timeless. Said Cronin:

". . .a president cannot and should not avoid being openly political. . .that is, he must negotiate and mediate between groups, compromise polar differences and find acceptable alternatives."

In Cronin's view, the presidency "is a very political office and political and partisan leadership are as much needed as foreign policy statesmanship and symbolic leadership."

Everything a president does, the scholar added, "has political consequences, and each explicitly political act has consequences for the state of the presidency."

To attempt to divorce this high office from politics presupposes, in Cronin's judgement, a "significantly different political system than ours, which is glued together in such large measure by ambiguity, compromise, and the extensive sharing of powers."

Perceptive historians have thoroughly documented this country's habitual, crippling distaste for politicians. Cronin's thesis is that Richard Nixon practicied this "escape from politics" from the outset of his tenure, with Watergate the most disastrous but not the only damaging result.

For, the easiest way to be "statesmanlike" is to focus heavily upon foreign policy, generally the great unifier. Out of the Nixon administration's own mouth, with the words carefully tracked by Cronin, that is how he has seen his role.

But that concentration, with its inevitable stress upon secret and closed-door dealings, came at the expense of fuller, more open attention to a wide range of domestic problems which are the real heart and stuff of politics. Conflicts in this field, if solvable at all, are resolved largely by presidents acting openly as mediator and as what Cronin called "coalition-builder."

His final pleas include mature recognition that presidents should be not merely political but "vigorous partisan leaders as well." Only in myth has Mr. Nixon so acted.

I read an ad in a newspaper about World Wide Systems, a firm that would teach you all about heavy equipment.

I wrote and asked for more information. A few days later they called my home collect and told me if I went through the course, they would get me an operating engineer's card and a job.

They asked a starting fee of $195. I sent the money in. I received a contract from World Wide by mail.

Among statements in the contract was this one: "I further certify that there have been no verbal or written agreements or promises made to the applicant other than those appearing in this agreement."

Upon reading this, I wrote and asked for my money back. They do not want to return it. — J. M., Pomona.

You sent us a copy of the contract. The statement you quoted from was to have been signed by a representative of World Wide Systems.

The contract provides for training only and states that it is unlawful for World Wide officers or representatives to guarantee or promise employment.

It is unfortunate that your telephone conversation cannot be verified but fortunate, since you don't want the course, that you signed no contract. If you had signed up, you would be out $895 instead of $195.

The reply we received to an inquiry addressed to World Wide Systems in Indianapolis was a copy of a letter addressed to you. It was a form letter with a few words and figures filled in where spaces had been left for that purpose.

World Wide claims it submitted to you 20 units of pretraining data, constituting the first 100 hours of the 200 being offered, and that you accepted this material and completed it, as shown by your answer sheets.

The firm says you may keep the 20 units and you will be given full credit for your $195 if you want to complete the training later on.

The blender did not arrive. When I wrote to ask why, a letter came to me saying that it had been reshipped.

Last month I wrote three letters to Stur-Dee but no answer came. Please help me get my blender. — E. K., Chino.

We wrote to Stur-Dee and also were told that a duplicate had been shipped. This time you got it.

Early bird didn't get his worms

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A 31-year-old man from North Carolina had only been here a short time and he learned something recently — the hard way.

At 9:40 a.m. Benny Melton donned a stocking mask, pulled out a revolver and rushed the door of a Bank of America branch office, attempting to jar it open with his shoulder.

The door didn't give and Melton bounced back into the arms of a security guard, who had been watching in his car as he waited to come to work.

"In North Carolina the banks open at 9 a.m.," said a confused Melton.

They open at 10 a.m. in Los Angeles.

P.C. magazine, editor praised for excellence

CLAREMONT — Pomona Today, the quarterly alumni magazine of Pomona College, and Gordon J. Hazlitt, coordinator of publications and editor of the magazine, were honored recently by the American Alumni Council and two national magazines for general excellence.

The council named the magazine "a publication of distinction" among the top 25 alumni publications in the nation and later chose it as one of the top 10 alumni magazines.

The magazine was also honored with a citation from Newsweek for its April issue on the effects of the population explosion.

Hazlitt, editor of the publication since 1968, was honored for excellence in writing along with five other collegiate writers by Atlantic magazine.

Chino student hit by sniper

CHINO — A Chino High student returning to his car in the school parking lot after a football game dance was the target of a sniper early Saturday morning, police reported.

Bruce Peebles, 16, 11804 Vernon Ave., Chino, was treated for bullet wounds in the neck at Chino General Hospital and released.

Peebles told police he was returning to his car about 12:05 a.m. when he heard a shot, and was struck in the back of the neck. The bullet entered and exited from his neck.

New roles and classes noted as Claremont High classes resume

CLAREMONT — New responsibilities and new courses of study are evident at Claremont High during the start of another school year.

Dan Stevenson has been appointed associate principal. His position includes being the curricular leader as well as the school manager. He will work directly under Principal Alex Hughes.

Stevenson came to the Claremont Unified School District in 1967 to accept the position of dean of boys at Claremont High, and in 1968 was named assistant principal in charge of curriculum and guidance.

Mrs. Barbara Hinkle has changed jobs, too. She came to the district business office in 1966, and a year later became secretary to the assistant principal in charge of business services at Claremont High. A year later she took the job of secretary for Hughes.

Mrs. Hinkle has been attending college classes since 1962, and was a recent graduate at La Verne College. She is enrolled in the intern program at La Verne College and will teach in the business department at Claremont High.

A new course at Claremont High entitled, "Contemporary Studies," is being taken by about 80 students and offers a unique learning experience.

The course is built around the concept of an American city and includes English, history and science courses. The students will study all phases of a city's operation including landscaping, rapid transit, traffic control, government, architectural awareness and environmental impact.

Toward the end of the course, the students will construct a model city, and become involved in the problems of their own community.

Mrs. Landin heads school bilingual unit

POMONA — Mrs. Esther Landin, a parent at Madison Elementary School, is newly elected president of the Community Advisory Committee of the Pomona Unified School District's bilingual education program.

She and other new officers were presented at a program presented in Spanish and English recently in the cafeteria at Hamilton Elementary School.

Those serving with Mrs. Landin are Mrs. Vicky Perez, Hamilton parent, vice president; Mrs. Linda Perez, Hamilton, treasurer; Martha Fisher, Roosevelt, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Doris Morales, Westmont, secretary; Mrs. Guadalupe Sandoval, Simons and Garey, assistant secretary; Mrs. Carla Mindiola, Washington, telephone chairman; Tom Lopez, Westmont, city adviser; and Ken Noonan of the Pomona Unified School District, district adviser.

The district's bilingual education program, which this fall is placing bilingual teachers in 19 classrooms to do part of their teaching in English and part in Sapnish, was explained.

A number of parents attended inservice training sessions at the Hamilton school with the bilingual teachers just before school started.

They elected to form a community advisory committee to support the bilingual program in district schools, Noonan said.

New contact lens 4 times lighter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new bifocal contact lens, smaller than the pupil of the eye, has been developed by an optometrist in West Virginia, it was reported recently.

A seven-page report prepared by Dr. Claud A. Kendall of Fairmont, W. Va., for a meeting of the American Optometric Association said the patented lens would be widely available for fittings in 1974.

Twelve years of research produced the lens which is four times thinner than those now on the market, Kendall said. Present bifocal contact lenses have a so-called "ballast," making the close-range segment heavier and causing it to hang on the bottom.

Educational grants available for Spanish-speaking students

Spanish-speaking students needing money to continue their education after high school are urged by a Nixon administration official to apply for Basic Educational Opportunity Grants.

"The program should benefit an estimated one-half million students who might otherwise be unable to continue their education," said Henry M. Ramirez, chairman of the Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for Spanish-Speaking People. He is a former Pomona resident.

Ramirez said more than $122 million is available under the grants program, which is administered by the Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"Although the grants are limited to first-year, full-time postsecondary school students, the program marks a major step in making higher education available to all young people who desire it, especially Spanish-speaking," said Ramirez.

Under the grant program, students in financial need may obtain funds to help pay their educational expenses at any approved college, university, vocational school, technical institute or hospital school of nursing.

How much a student or his family can contribute affects the amount of his basic grant and is determined according to a formula established by the U.S. Office of Education.

To apply for a basic grant, an Application for Determination of Expected Family Contribution must be obtained, filled out, and mailed to Post Office Box 3, Iowa City, Iowa 52240.

Within a month, the student is notified of the amount of his family's expected contribution. He then submits the notification to the school of his choice, which calculates the amount of the basic grant to which he is entitled.

Application forms are available at student financial aid offices at post secondary institutions, high school guidance offices, post offices, state employment offices, county agricultural extension agents, Talent Search, Upward Bound, and Student Special Services projects.

Forms may also be obtained by writing to Box G, Iowa City, Iowa 52240, or the the Cabinet Committee, 1707 H Street, N.W. Washington, D.C. 20506.

Other forms of federal student assistance such as supplemental educational opportunity grants, college work-study, national direct student loans, and guaranteed student loans, are available in addition to basic grants.

For further information on basic grants and other student financial aid programs, students should contact their high school counselor or the financial aid officer at the school jn which they expect to enroll.

Jurors react favorably to all-videotape trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Jurors reacted favorably to California's first all-videotape trial and also ruled in favor of a woman who was injured in an automobile accident.

Testimony, taken weeks ago, was presented on two television screens facing jurors, while other screens were in front of the judge and the spectators.

Since attorneys had edited the tapes previously, the jurors were spared courtroom arguments about which evidence was admissable.

All the jurors agreed the TV system was a good approach when the trial ended recently, although two had minor reservations.

A secretary said, "It gets kind of draggy after a while." And a teacher declared, "At least at home we can get up and walk around."

Two immunization clinics to be held for youngsters

POMONA — Two free immunization clinics to protect children against polio, measles, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough will be given at the county health center here during the next month.

Dr. Jonas Naujokaitis, acting district health officer for the Pomona office, said the clinics are offered in place of an immunization program which up to now was conducted in the schools. He said the health department is no longer going out to the schools.

The first of the clinics will be held from 4 to 8 p.m. Wednesday at the health center, 750 S. Park Ave. A subsequent clinic is scheduled for Oct. 24.

Inoculations will be given against diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough—all one shot—for children under 6. For older youngsters the injection against whooping cough must be given separately, the health officer said. Oral vaccines against polio may be taken at the time of the vaccinations.

But, according to Dr. Naujokaitis, inoculations against measles will not be given on the same night as polio vaccines, except in emergency cases, because both carry live cultures.

The Pomona clinic is part of 58 locations offering immunization against diseases on the same dates throughout the county. Health officials have recently voiced concern about the large number of parents who have not kept their youngsters fully immunized.

Another 180,000 children between 1 and 5 have not been immunized against measles, a disease that kills more youngsters in the U.S. than any other communicable disease, he said.

Is Nixon backstabbing Agnew?

While Rodino is new to his blue-ribbon Judiciary post, he has been an articulate veteran chairman of other lesser House units for years. And Cannon's committee, while it generally does fuddy-duddy business on Senate procedures, was the forum for dramatic hearings on former Senate majority secretary Bobby Baker exactly 10 years ago.

Meanwhile, the strain between President Nixon and Vice President Agnew is approaching the breaking point. The rival staffs have become hostile camps, [illegible] leaking stories against one another.

Sources close to Agnew believe the President has stirred up the charges against Agnew to divert public attention from his own role in the Watergate scandal.

"The charges against Agnew have created a marvelous distraction," said one source. "Now the President can offer up Agnew as a blood offering to placate the public."

Friends of Agnew tell us he is aware of the White House backstabbing but, nevertheless, refuses to believe the President is personally behind it. Spiro Agnew, said a friend, "has this feeling of awe for the presidency, for the White House, which inhibits him from coming to the inevitable conclusion the President is knifing him."

Convention report:

Condominium boom still booming

SAN DIEGO — The condominium boom that California is now experiencing is just the beginning.

"Brokerage opportunities already existing in the condominium resale market are insignificant compared with what they will be in the next five, to 10 years," said R. Stanley Dybvig of Dayton, Ohio, president of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers.

He spoke recently at the California Real Estate Association's annual convention being held here.

"The tremendous upsurg in new condominium construction and the condominium conversion market, while not offering great opportunity for the individual Realtor at the present time, does offer possibilities for those who will arm themselves with the knowledge necessary to deal effectively with condominium resales."

Studies have shown the average age of condominium buyers is 50 to 55 years old, he added. "Because of movement to retirement communities, the desire to move closer to their children, and other factors, the condominium market is just beginning to churn."

Other speeches during the week-long conference included:

William R. Schoeffler of Sacramento, president of Schoeffler Investment Co., said too often real estate investments made to secure an income tax advantage or "writeoff" ignore the basic value components of a good investment.

Speaking specifically of real estate syndication, in which a group of small investors pool its money in a common venture, Schoeffler emphasized the importance of cash flow, equity buildup and potential appreciation.

"Unless it is economically viable, it is not a good investment vehicle," he said. Schoeffler suggested that before seeking professional advice, investors judge the investment potential of an offering using the following checklist:

— History and competence of the property manager; Does the investment have cash flow, equity buildup, good location?; What type of financing? Balloon Payment? Due date? Does the investment have cash reserves?; Does it call for assessments.

Charles H. Boxenbaum of Los Angeles, president of Sonnenblick-Goldman Corp. of California, predicted that economic and demographic forces will create a climate in which the demand for mortgage money over the next 10 years will be substantially greater than the supply.

"This imbalance is fueled by the demands of government and industry, the federal government's commitment to promote housing and urban renewal, and the dramatic growth of the family formation segment of our population. We do not see the traditional sources of mortgage money growing at a parallel rate."

Boxenbaum said the mortgage banker views money simply as a commodity. "It is no different from cement, wood, brick or drywall, and what we are doing is renting this commodity. We are interested in renting as much as we can at the lowest possible monthly payments."

Paul G. Reinke of Executive Consulting Services, Inc., Southfield, Mich., said that in its headlong rush to become organized and computerized, business often neglects its most important asset — people.

"The symptoms of this problem are found in the complaints voiced by those most important to the success of any business, its customers," he added.

"Poor workmanship, inconsiderate salespeople, poor service, no one seems to care — these are some of the things one hears repeatedly."

Reinke said the measure of any business is the quality of its personnel, whether measured in per-man sales or work force stability.

"We must refocus our attention on our most important asset — people. If we build organizations with the right people, properly selected, properly trained, and properly managed, we can put quality and craftsmanship back into our business culture."

Unified program for black, white realty groups is announced

SAN DIEGO — Joint meetings, joint educational progrms, and a common voice in the state Legislature are included in a four year plan announced here by black and white leaders of the real estate industry.

The plan was revealed at the California Real Estate Associaiton's annual convention here by Richard Van Valer of San Jose, CREA president and Fred Farley of Oakland, president of the state's black real estate organization, the California Association of Real Estate Brokers. They were joined at a news conference by Robert W. Karpe, California real estate commissioner.

The agreement, titled "Road to a Color-Blind Real Estate Profession—a Long Range Flexible Program," calls for joint real estate educational programs in 1974, a single lobbying office in Sacramento in 1975, and an amalgamation of "organization structure and officerships" in 1976. It makes 1977 the target for "full joint status."

The plan avoids the word "merger" since both groups feel there should be machinery for representing the problems of blacks, perhaps through a black institute within the joint association, officials said.

"CREA is not limited to white Realtors," said Van Valer. "We have many black and other minority group members. But we recognize that some of their interests and problems require special attention."

Farley said the black organization, now with just under 5,000 members, was formed 25 years ago because they felt it was needed.

"But we are all in the same business, serving the same human needs for housing. It was natural that we should eventually discover that black and white real estate professionals had more in common than what separated them."

Karpe said white and black leadership in the real estate industry in California is now agreement on a practical plan of action to bring the two groups closer together over the next several years.

"The public will be the beneficiary as we move a step closer to the American ideal of a color-blind society."

Karpe said he invited leaders of the two real estate groups two years ago to discuss mutual interests and problems, which ended in this program.

Long distance for a short call

NOME, Alaska (UPI) — Alaska's Little Diomede Island, which is just two miles from Soviet territory, has obtained telephone service through a hook-up with RCA Communications, Inc.

But if the Eskimos there want to ring up their neighbors on Russi's Big Diomede, they will have to call around the world to do so. RCA says the village bush phone offers almost the same service available anywhere else, including long distance service. But there is no direct connection across the Bering Strait which separates the two islands.

Course in housing is set at UCLA

LOS ANGELES — A six week course titled "Professional Practices in the Housing Industry," will start Oct. 9 at UCLA.

The six sessions, sponsored by the Young Home Builders Council, will be held from 7 to 9:30 p.m. each Tuesday, Oct. 9 to Nov. 13, in room 2250, Young Hall.

"The course is designed for everyone interested in how builders manage basic programs of land acquisition and use, planning, financing, marketing, and all major elements in real estate developments which affect the builder's success," said John Konwiser, a Newport Beach home builder. He is the program coordinator and will be moderator at each lecture.

The subjects and speakers include: Oct. 9, "Real Estate and Construction Financing," presented by George Smith, vice president of Sonnenblick-Goldman, Inc., Century City; Oct. 16, "Structuring the Joint Venture," presented by Thomas Peckenpaugh, partner in Kalmbach, DeMarco, Knapp and Chillingsworth, Los Angeles; Oct. 23, "Condominium Laws, Financing and Zoning," presented by Konwiser, president of the Konwiser Corp.

Oct. 30, "New Land Planning Developments," presented by Walter Richardson Associates, architects, Costa Mesa; Nov. 6, "Presenting Your Package to the Lender," Konwiser; and Nov. 13, "Marketing with Imagination," presented by Beverly Thompson, president of Beverly Thompson Interiors, Inc., Newport Beach.

Registration can be made at the class at the first session. Application for the course can be made by writing to UCLA Extension, P.O. Box 24901, Dept. K, Los Angeles 90024. The fee of $60 must be paid at the door or accompany the request for enrollment. Enrollment can be made at the UCLA extension offices.

Banks report increases in mortgage financing

WASHINGTON — The gloomy housing outlook has some bright spots, reports Eugene H. Adams, president of the American Bankers Association (ABA).

Citing from the latest report released by the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), Adams pointed to major increases by the nation's 14,000 banks in five areas of mortgage lending for one-to-four family homes.

According to HUD figures, the banks:

— Originated 59 per cent more in long term loans for the first six months of 1973, compared to the first half of 1974.

— Originated 31 per cent ($12.4 billion) of total mortgage loans for the first six months of this year.

—Increased their acquisition of construction loans by 14 per cent over the same 1972 period—from $3.75 billion to $4.28 billion.

— Put new commitments on the block during June, 1973, of $1.5 billion for construction and and long term loans—an increase of 5 per cent.

— Had outstanding commitments of $7.3 billion for construction and long term loans at the end of 1973 — about 38 per cent above the June, 1972, total.

Adams, who is also president of the First National Bank of Denver, said it was particularly gratifying to know that commitments to make future loans are holding up extremely well, since this is a good measure of loans actually being made today.

Banks again rank No. 1 on HUD's compilations of holdings of construction loans through June, 1973

In order were: banks, $14.4 billion; savings and loan associations, $11.7 billion; mortgage investment trusts, $7.2 billion; mutual savings banks, $1.3 billion; state and local credit agencies, $843 million, and life insurance companies, $389 million.

Adams said ABA surveys show that banks have more than $90 billion invested in municipal bonds.

"Some $60 billion of these are bonds for roads, sewers, waste treatment facilities, schools, fire and police departments, city hospitals—all the facilities neccessary for a community to function."

In addition, nearly 10 per cent of banking's $60 billion in commercial loans outstanding at the end of 1972 was in mobile home loans. According to the ABA, mobile homes now account for 20 per cent of all single-family housing in the U. S. and 75 per cent of all single-family housing costing less than $20,000.

Realty president:

Federal plan needed to protect mortgage market

CHICAGO — Congress and federal agencies should develop a plan whereby the mortgage market will be assured of a proper proportion of funds from the total financial resources of the nation, said J. D. Sawyer, president of the National Association of Realtors.

He spoke in response to a speech by Rep. Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking Committee, in which the Texas Democrat proposed a system of credit rationing to make it possible for "plain people" to borrow money in times of severe inflation, such as the present.

Supporting Patman's advocacy of the allocation of credit resources to the mortgage market, Sawyer suggested a tax incentive program granting new mortgage tax credits to banks and savings and loan associations would be preferable to direct government regulation of credit.

"There has to be some method of allocating funds to make sure the mortgage market is going to receive its fair competitive share," he added.

"This is the third time the real estate industry has gone through the wringer in the past six years. In each credit crunch, the mortgage market has been the first hit and the last to recover.

"We believe that it would be irresponsible for government to permit this to happen a fourth time because the industry can't continue to survive these traumatic rises and falls in the credit market."

In his Washington speech, Chairman Patman was sharply critical of the "tight money" policy of the Federal Reserve Board, which he blamed for high interest rates and a resulting threatened slump in the homebuilding industry as mortage money becomes more costly.

"As a result," Patman said, "the average American—the plain people—have been left to compete with the corporate giants, the speculators, the gamblers and the fast-buck artists for available credit at 9, 10 and 11 per cent . . . In my opinion, we can no longer accept these eighteenth century monetary policies."

The position of the National Association of Realtors, according to Sawyer, is that a tax incentive plan for mortgage bankers should be one of the alternatives considered by Congress in attempting to deal with the problem of "credit crunches" in the mortgage market.

Brisk sales reported at Lewis development

ALTA LOMA — Twenty five of the 31 homes at the Lewis Homes — Alta Loma development have been "spoken for," officials report.

The brisk sales is attributed by the builder to the "total house" package offered the buyers.

"Not only are the kitchen appliances and carpeting of various rooms included in the purchase price, but even the window drapes and front yard lawn and sprinklers are already installed when the buyer moves in," said Edward Lynch, regional sales manager for Lewis Homes of California.

"Keeping our prices frozen at the same figures posted when Lewis Homes — Alta Loma opened 10 weeks ago has also been a strong factor in attracting home seekers," he added.

The three and four bedroom homes are priced from $25,450 to $26,900. Conventional financing and also Cal Vet loans of 4¼ per cent are among the purchasing arrangements available.

The homes also feature two bathrooms, garden kitchens equipped with built-in dishwashers, self cleaning ovens, ranges and disposal units, wall-to-wall carpeting in the living rooms, hallways and master bedrooms, and ceiling lights in all the bedrooms.

The development is located on Eastwood Avenue near Cielito Street. The sales office is open daily and also evenings by appointment.

Forecast's revision sees slowdown, not recession

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A slowdown, but not a recession, will start before the end of the year, bringing a slight easing of inflationary trends and increased unemployment in 1974, the UCLA Graduate School of Management has forecast.

In a quarterly revision of their annual business forecast, the economists said the problem facing government policy-planners now is to tread a narrow line between continued inflation and a full-blown recession.

The UCLA economists said the slowdown would bring lower corporate profits, a drop in housing construction in 1974 and a decline in currently unusually high short and long term interest rates.

Among the predictions in the quarterly revision:

—Unemployment will rise from an average 4.8 per cent this year to 5.2 per cent in 1974.

—Consumer prices will have risen 5.8 per cent by the end of 1973 and will go up 5 per cent during 1974.

—The stock market will "slowly recover" from the lows of the summer but will not surpass the peak levels of last January until the middle of next year.

—Automobile sales, including imports, will be a record 12 million in 1973 but will decline to about 11 million in 1974.

Initial OK on gaming license for Sam Davis

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) —The state gaming control board recently gave preliminary approval for a gambling license for entertainer Sammy Davis Jr., but he still must face more questioning.

Board chairman Philip Hannifin said there must have been recent "allegations reflecting on his (Davis') personal background" and the board will want to quiz Davis at another meeting Sept. 27 in Las Vegas.

Meade Dixon, Davis' attorney, said the entertainer would be present at the Las Vegas meeting but could not make the session because of previous commitments. Davis is seeking to be a director in Hotel Conquistador Inc., which operates the Tropicana Hotel and Country Club in Las Vegas.

Hannifin said these allegations may be "specious" but they must be examined. He would not disclose the exact nature of the allegations which he said came to light ater state officials completed the regular investigation of Davis' background.

Gardeners to pay price for lost beehives

CONCORD, Calif. (UPI) —A beekeeper has gone out of business and he says weekend gardeners in his neighborhood will be sorry.

Pancho Bacciglieri sold all of his 42 hives after merchants complained about bee droppings and the City Council ordered him to sell all but 15 of the hives.

Backyard gardeners, Bacciglieri said recently, would be sorry because without the bees for fertilization tomato crops will disappear, string beans will wilt and flowers will fall by the wayside.

New housing declines in California

LOS ANGELES — New housing starts in California dipped in July to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 194,000 units, reports the Bank of America.

This is down almost 10 per cent from June and 15 per cent from a year ago, officials noted.

The major share of the decline was in apartment projects with five or more units. Single family homes increased to over 56 per cent of new starts.

The bank's economists expect the down trend in new starts to continue in the months ahead. They forecast total starts in 1973 of about 200,000 units.
